"Our Two Big Jobs in January:
Fourth War Loan and March of Dimes"

wishes you and yours a
New Year of Health, Success—and Victory in 1944!

THEY NEED US!

It does a fellow's heart good to see the pledges come pouring in for the 1944 MARCH OF DIMES DRIVE January 24th to 30th. Let's not be afraid to be proud. This is an industry of swell gents! Exhibitors have plenty to do—there's a 4th War Loan Drive on in January too. But kids are something else. The pitiful sight of these helpless children is something that no film man can resist. Just a little help from you means a chance in life for them. And American audiences are quick to open up their hearts and purses to fight Infantile Paralysis. How they'll respond to the beautiful trailer Greer Garson has made! Any pledges still to come? Let's get going. The excellent campaign book is in the mails to you. Make it more in '44 because they need us more than ever now!

The Editorial Page

Observations On The New Year

The big guns for the coming Fourth War Loan Drive are being moved up into position for action that begins on January 18.

A tremendous amount of planning is going into this next Drive but none of the time and effort will mean much without the enthusiastic and full cooperation of the individual theatremen on whom the committees are depending for a successful drive.

To make the occasion doubly important is the fact that shortly after the Bond Drive gets under way, the annual March of Dimes campaign takes place. Thus, you have to wage your battle to Back the Attack on two fronts at the same time.

This situation will not deter the nation's capable theatremen one bit. They have had to sell two attractions more often, probably, than people in any other line of business. They are quite accustomed to hammering away at a current show while, at the same time, selling the next coming attraction. So by actual experience they are well equipped to sell the Bond Drive and still carry through with a successful March of Dimes collection campaign.

But it will again be a matter of advance planning and smart showmanship. Those who completely concentrate on the Bond Drive and then attempt to handle the Dimes campaign as a last-minute thought, are going to lay an egg. Those who work out their Bond campaign in full realization and understanding of the Dimes collection breaking right in the middle of it, will be prepared and successful not in just one but in both.

Come on you smart theatremen and women of the industry. Put on your thinking caps and get your plans well organized far enough in advance to preclude any possibility of a hitch.

On Monday night of this week Big Boss John H. Harris of the Variety Clubs of America journeyed to Philadelphia to present to Tent 13 the Charity Citation Scroll and Silver Plaque which was awarded to that Tent last February at the annual convention of the Clubs.

This great honor was well deserved and follows closely in the tradition of similar awards to other Tents for outstanding humanitarian work. In the case of Philadelphia, the award was made for work done over a period of years in aid of Infantile Paralysis victims.

All too often, in the rush and pressure of a nation at war and an industry up to its neck in war work, the good deeds of the Variety Club Tents may be forgotten or ignored. But for the benefit of those who may have missed reading as much about the Variety Clubs this past year as they did previously, we beg to report that each and every Tent is continuing its local charity work.

Only a few weeks ago this writer sat in at a meeting in Charlie Skouras' office in Los Angeles at which the Heart Committee of the California Tent selected the Children's Hospital for the location of their premature birth station wing for which that Tent raised the sum of one hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars.

At a forthcoming meeting, a complete report will be made to the industry by the National Officers, detailing the charity and war work now occupying so much of the time of each of the twenty-six Tents. It will be a report of which the industry will be mighty proud.

The expression, "No news is good news," aptly describes what is going on among the Variety Club Tents of this country, for while there has been little or no news about the clubs, their fine work goes on just the same. Whoever might undertake to write about our industry's role as war workers will have to reserve a goodly amount of space if they intend to do full justice to the part the Barkers of the Variety Clubs have and will continue doing until peace comes again and they can turn their full attention back to Charity alone.

It would be so nice to be able to complete this week's editorial with some resolutions for the New Year among which unity and a one-organization exhibitor body would be emphasized. Some resolutions about elimination of the industry's controversial trade practices; the end of a consent decree that has forced higher film costs on the exhibitor . . . and so on . . . and so on . . . and so on. . . .

But just resolving these things will no more bring them to pass than will the widely divergent views and platforms of those who should cooperate in bringing about these reforms.

Therefore, the only logical resolution we can think of at the moment is one in which we ALL resolve—and by "all" we mean every branch of the industry—that those who are in a position to effect the desired changes will at least make an honest effort to bring them a bit closer to realization.

And so, our sincere wishes for a Happy and Healthy New Year and with a prayer for a Victorious one as well.

Morgenthau Enthuses Over Plans for Drive

Secretary of the Treasury Henry R. Morgenthau this week paid high tribute to the motion picture industry and declared the theatres evidently intended to play a major role "as never before" in the Treasury's effort to put across War Bond drives—in this case the Fourth War Loan Drive. Morgenthau's expressions were conveyed in a telegram to Charles P. Skouras, National Chairman of the industry's campaign committee, which was read before an assemblage of more than 150 southern California exhibitors at a luncheon meeting held at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles.

Mr. Morgenthau's telegram was as follows: "Mr. Gamble has advised me of the highly successful meetings which you have held with motion picture industry leaders from the East and Middle West at Washington and Chicago. Looking over your well-conceived campaign material, it appears to me that the industry is organizing as never before to play a major role in our important Fourth War Loan. Please convey on my behalf the Treasury's keen interest and appreciation for what the people you have assembled are contemplating. My best wishes to you all."

In reply Mr. Skouras telegraphed Morgenthau: "The entire motion picture industry joins me in extending sincere thanks for your telegram commenting on our plans and efforts in the Fourth War Loan. I wish to assure you that our aims in the forthcoming drive are greater than ever before, and if the enthusiasm generated and activities already set in motion by the thousands upon thousands of members of our industry are any indication, our Fourth War Loan goal of 'a Bond for Every Seat' will be fully realized. Your recognition of our efforts is keenly appreciated and deeply felt by us all."

Speakers at the meeting were Charles P. Skouras; B. V. Sturdivant, campaign director; A. J. Krappman, assistant campaign director; David Bershon, Southern California bond chairman, and others.

Defendants Charge Chicago Operators Suit Misrepresents

Charging that the complaint of the Chicago Operators Union is permeated with scandalous allegations which are not true, attorneys for Balaban and Katz, Great States circuit, and Paramount Pictures filed answers last week moving that the complaint be stricken out. Among other features of the operators complaint were allegations of connections with the Capone mob and violence against certain union members. The attorneys also asked that portions of the complaint be made more definite.

Warner Bros. Theatres and Circuit Management Corporation filed answers also last week denying any cause for action against the theatre circuit, while attorneys for Essaness circuit and Loew's obtained an extension of time until January 18 to file their answers.

MGM Auditors, Bookers to Meet

The annual meeting of MGM traveling auditors and bookers and student auditors and bookers will be held at the Astor Hotel during the week of January 3. Charles K. Stern, assistant treasurer of Loew's, and Alan F. Cummings, in charge of MGM exchange operations, will conduct the meetings.

Depinet Now WAC Chief

Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Radio Pictures, was elected chairman of the Distributors Division of the War Activities Committee this week to succeed William F. Rodgers. Choice of Depinet was made at a meeting of the heads of the Division, at which a motion was also passed paying tribute to Rodgers and his assistant, Henderson M. Richey, for "the excellence of their past performance." In accepting the post Depinet also paid tribute to Rodgers and declared the first job was the Fourth War Loan Drive. He named Leon J. Bamberger of RKO as his assistant.

Chicago Theatre Managers Gloomy About War Pictures

A week-end checkup in Chicago theatres showed business returning to normalcy in most of the downtown houses, following a bad slump just before Christmas. However, some managers declare that business in the residential districts has been on the down-grade ever since the Thanksgiving holidays and are inclined to put the blame on the type of film offered them, rather than on a break in the theatre-going trend.

Managers say war films are very much taboo in the neighborhoods, that their customers want humor and escape from the cruelties of war. They also kick against too many war shorts, claiming this makes an added dose of gloom. The theatremen declare that, unless they get better film programs, the people will stay away and listen to their radios, with a permanent loss of business.

Altec Service Corp. Elects H. M. Bessey Vice President

H. M. Bessey has been elected vice president of Altec Service Corporation, nationwide theatre service and electronic organization, it was announced this week in conjunction with the election of G. L. Carrington as president.

Mr. Bessey served as secretary-treasurer of Altec from its inception in 1937. In 1942 he was given additional responsibilities as the company's field operating manager. He is a director of the Altec companies, as well as an officer of Altec Lansing Corporation. He also held responsible positions with the ERPI Division of Western Electric Company before joining Altec.

Explains Proposed Tax Does Not Apply to Under Ten-Cent Tickets

As a reply to the many exhibitor requests for information which he says he has received, Abram F. Myers, general counsel of National Allied, explains in a recent bulletin that the proposed admission tax on children's admission tickets does not apply to tickets sold for 9 cents or less.

In further comment on the new tax measure Myers warns that exhibitors may be faced with another effort by the Treasury Department to step up the tax to three cents on each ten cents as originally recommended. The opposition of the Treasury to the tax on admissions in the measure now proposed, Myers points out, is that it does not yield adequate revenue.

Expect Decree Action Soon

With the return to Washington this week-end of Tom C. Clark, Assistant Attorney General, it is expected that news of action with respect to the new consent decree will begin to break. Final proposals of the defendants in the New York case were awaited by Clark following his rejection of their previous proposals of what they would concede on many points contained in the original decree.

SPG Explains Stand on 'Hollywood Canteen'

Announcement last weekend by Warner Bros. that production of "Hollywood Canteen" had to be abandoned because of a salary ruling by the Screen Actors Guild brought a retort from the latter in explanation of the basis upon which the full-salary scale was demanded.

In announcing abandonment of the production after several weeks of active shooting on the picture, Warner Bros. pointed out that under the Guild ruling sums as high as $150,000 would have to be paid to certain players for one hour's work in the picture.

The SPG replied that no waiver of the established salary conditions will be made as an exception in the case of "Hollywood Canteen" until it is established that the Producers Association and other major studios consider the picture an industry undertaking and make available their contract players and approve the appearance of other players with whom they have committments. The SPG claim is that without such action by the Producers Association and the other studios, a small group of stars in the free lance field should not be asked to appear in a production on the non-commercial, cut-salary basis proposed by Warners.

Sturdivant Receives New Honors in San Francisco

B. V. Sturdivant, northern California division chief for Fox-West Coast Theatres, shattered all precedents when he was elected to the board of directors of San Francisco's conservative Chamber of Commerce, which has long been known as one of the nation's "old line" organizations.

This is the first time either the motion picture or theatrical industry has been accorded such recognition and the move is interpreted in these parts as a public tribute to the "all-out" war effort which is in such evidence throughout the entertainment field.

G. L. Carrington

(The Man on the Cover)

President of Altec Service Corporation, and one of the founders of that organization. Mr. Carrington's election to the presidency was announced this week. He succeeds the late L. W. Conrow. Since its formation in 1937, Mr. Carrington has served Altec as vice-president and general manager. With his new duties as president, he also retains the post of general manager of Altec as well as the presidency of Altec Lansing Corporation, West Coast manufacturing subsidiary which operates three factories in the Los Angeles area. Mr. Carrington is well known to exhibitors, having held responsible positions in the Electrical Research Products Division of Western Electric Company prior to his association with Altec.

Arrival of Holiday Sends Key City Attendance Booming Again

Theatremen around the nation this week were thinking that maybe the attendance boom hasn't run its course after all. Following a slump that began in some quarters just after Thanksgiving, box-offices generally took a strong upward jump on Christmas Day and have been merrily ringing up the cash ever since.

The reasons for the unusually severe pre-Christmas attendance decrease this year combined the usual effects of shopping, family interests, and seasonal excitement with the influenza and pneumonia epidemics, all aggravated by very bad weather conditions in many locations. On many sides the distressing results at the box-office were interpreted as being an indication that the extra business enjoyed all year into December was over for good—that the turn had come and exhibitors and distributors must scale their efforts down to more modest proportions.

The song is different now. Although reports show that some situations have not yet overcome the downward trend entirely, most key cities shot up immediately at the box-office as soon as local Santas had finished climbing down chimney and members of the family had looked over their presents. Promptly on Christmas Day the theatres found themselves handling crowds that in some cases went to record figures.

The effect was very noticeable in New York. Radio City Music Hall racked up a new record for Christmas Day with "Madame Curie" by handling a crowd of 24,295. The Roxy, which started last Wednesday with "The Gang's All Here," went slowly until Saturday when a spurt started that had the house headed for a new all-time high gross for the entire holiday week. The Paramount, with "Riding High" and strong stage support in Tommy Dorsey, hit the top in grosses, most of it coming after Christmas. This house benefits from school vacations, since it draws an extremely heavy juvenile patronage, as witnessed by long lines of hepcats waiting for the doors to open at 9 a.m. each morning. Incidentally, during this week even the Music Hall has gone in for early openings, the time being 8 a.m. The influence of the school children was further seen in the very big returns at the Globe, which craftily was playing "Tarzan's Desert Mystery."

Even theatres with holdovers and long-run pictures felt the upswing. The Rivoli, now going into its twelfth week with "For Whom the Bell Tolls," jumped its pace; while "North Star" at the Palace and Victoria and "Cry Havoc" at the Astor also showed advances over their recent box-offices performances.

Some of the other key spots were still struggling to get back on keel after the losses taken prior to Christmas, as in the case of Indianapolis, where business fell off nearly 50 per cent, and Chicago, which dropped off 20 per cent—but mostly the sudden spurt on Christmas Day hit them the same as in New York. As a result exhibitors were saying the week was healthy, or that things were becoming normal again. The rain and subsequent freezing in many northern locations last Sunday night slowed b.o.s, but aside from this temporary setback the week has shown a complete recovery, if looked at from a national viewpoint.

Some recent pictures made pleasant records for their distributors. "A Guy Named Joe" registered one of the biggest four-day grosses for an MGM picture at New York's Capitol. In three pre-releases showings WB's "Destination Tokyo" broke Christmas Day records at Atlantic City, Hagerstown, Md., and Jamestown, N. Y. Besides the big doings for "Riding High" in New York, Paramount also reported "No Time for Love" was ahead of last year's Christmas attraction, "Palm Beach Story."

Shot Ends Dialogue

An elderly gentleman, hard of hearing, attended a picture show in Kirkwood, Mo., and was watching a western film. Two girls nearby were conversing somewhat loudly, adding to the old man's difficulties. Then the horses on the screen came galloping around a bend, a shot rang out and one of the cowboys toppled from his steed. "Well, I'll be d——d," the old man exclaimed, "they've killed the only actor I could hear."

3 MGM District Exchanges Re-allocated to 2 Managers

The three MGM exchange areas formerly comprising Harris P. Wolfberg's district will now have two district managers, it was announced over the weekend. Effective January 1, the Cincinnati and Indianapolis districts will be handled by John P. Byrne, who, with headquarters in Detroit, also has Detroit, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, and Cleveland.

Burtus Bishop, Jr. will add the St. Louis district to his jurisdiction, in addition to Kansas City, Oklahoma City, and Dallas.

$100,000 Suit Hearings Open

Hearing of motions in the $100,000 suit against former officials of the Chicago Operators Union was scheduled for December 30 in Judge Julius Miner's court.

Santa Goes Boom!

Eddie Douglas, manager of Loew's Prospect Theatre, Queens, played Santa Claus at home the day before Christmas. To give the tree an added, special "extra attraction" touch, he climbed a ladder with an ornament. Wham . . . bam . . . broken ankle.

'Frisco Public Backs Films at Box-Office

A survey of San Francisco theatres in the closing days of December shows considerable gains in attendance, lively audience interest in current film offerings, and smart showmanship prevails rather generally.

At the Warfield, a Fox-West Coast downtown first-run and vaudeville, patrons are lobbying for their hobbies in the filmhouse from Dec. 22 to Jan. 4, the winners to receive War Bond prizes. A sneak preview was held during the current month. The stage shows each week are based on the theme of the picture. The Warfield has also offered a week's engagement to the final winner of radio station KQW's shipyard talent contest.

RKO Golden Gate, a downtown first-run, has Ralph Edward's "Truth and Consequences" show on the stage for a week. For one week the theatre will aid the United States Coast Guard Reserve drive with the showing of the film, "Sailors All." A two-week run was given "The Iron Major," and the stage show was held over along with the film.

The Paramount, another Fox-West Coast downtown first-run, screened "Best Foot Forward," tying up with the personal appearance of Harry James and his band at the Civic Auditorium.

Variety is the keynote of current stage productions, as shown by the Sunday afternoon "Jazz vs. Swing" concert at the Geary; the holiday ballet festival by the San Francisco Ballet Company at the War Memorial Opera House; Monologist Dorothy Crawford in a Sunday afternoon program at the Curran; the openings of two plays with well-known stars, Constance Bennett at the Geary in "Without Love" and Otto Kruger at the Tivoli in "Co-Respondent Unknown," and a George Abbott comedy, "Kiss and Tell," at the Curran.

Esquire Theatre, a downtown filmhouse, tried a revival bill of two features, but its rep. as a double bill horror house still sticks and now Esquire is showing the thrillers again.

The Alcazar Theatre, a Fox-West Coast, which roadshows films only, inaugurated a new policy of two top hits on every change of bill, at matinee prices of 40c and nights 55c.

United Artists Theatre is holding the film, "Jack London," for a long stay. The Clay is holding the English film, "Jeannie," beyond the sixth record-breaking week.

Theatre advertising formerly took up only a small space in the daily newspapers here, but now two entire pages is the usual amount taken up with the ads, most of which are illustrated.

Cinema Lodge Party Feb. 23

Cinema Lodge, B'nai B'rith, will hold its annual theatre party on Wednesday, Feb. 23, at the Imperial Theatre. The attraction is Michael Todd's "Mexican Hayride." Miles H. Alben is chairman of the committee, and serving with him are Max B. Blackman, Victor Blau, Irving H. Greenfield, Leo Jaffe, Louis Jaffe, Ben Pepper, Norman Steinberg, Alfred W. Schwalberg, Abel A. Vigard, David Weinstock and William Zimmerman.

2500 Bond Premieres

A total of not less than 2500 bond premieres to be presented during the Fourth War Loan is the goal of the campaign directors, headed by Charles P. Skouras as national chairman.

Skouras announced in Los Angeles Wednesday that all distributors will supply for one performance to be known as a Bond Premiere any picture under contract up to 30 days prior to its availability, provided any exhibitor having prior clearance does not object.

THE LODGER IS COMING TO YOUR HOUSE FOR A KILLING!

Discards Crutches

Wonders never cease in Brooklyn!

Many unusual objects ranging from false teeth to fur coats have been turned over to the lost-and-found department at Loew's Metropolitan. One evening last week brought to light the strangest article yet: a pair of crutches.

Bewildered Manager Ben Simon has no explanation other than the possibility that "Thousands Cheer," the current attraction, made the patron so happy and gay he decided to throw his crutches away.

Process Improvements In Technicolor Plans

Technicolor's postwar plans include the adaptation of proposed improvements in the process of motion picture photography, expansion into the 16 mm field and the establishment of laboratories in foreign countries.

As revealed in Hollywood, the plans call for: (a) to build a new plant of increased capacity to take care of the expanding needs of the motion picture industry in this country; (b) to embody in the new plant the many improvements which have been worked out in its research laboratory but which due to wartime conditions cannot at present be introduced; (c) to offer for gradual adoption new and improved Technicolor photographic procedures of the monopack type which would do away with present Technicolor special cameras; (d) to improve and expand in the 16 mm field; (e) to establish further Technicolor laboratories abroad and (f) to conduct itself so that the motion picture industry will continue to look to Technicolor as its central laboratory and as its technical and engineering guide in all matters pertaining to color.

Rural Filmgoers' Ballot Votes 'Random Harvest' Best of Year

The first annual motion picture poll conducted by the magazine, Country Gentleman, intended to get a cross-section of rural opinion on productions and actors, chose the following as the ten best pictures of 1943: Random Harvest, Yankee Doodle Dandy, My Friend Flicka, So Proudly We Hail, For Me and My Gal, Casablanca, Stage Door Canteen, Andy Hardy's Double Life, Pride of the Yankees, and Dixie. Three "favorite" actresses were chosen: Judy Garland, Greer Garson, and Bette Davis. The three favorite male actors were Spencer Tracy, Robert Young, and Roy Rogers.

The poll was conducted through 11,000 rural clubs with a membership of 350,000. Editors of Country Gentleman pointed out that rural filmgoers demand as high quality in films as city audiences, and in addition want them to be honest and sincere. Westerns ranked high among the runners-up.

New York Film Critics Choose 'Watch on Rhine' as Year's Best

Basing their opinions entirely on artistic values, the film critics of New York newspapers this week voted Warner's "Watch on the Rhine" as the best picture of 1943. Paul Lukas, who played the leading male role in this picture, was voted the best actor of the year, and Ida Lupino won the palm as the best actress for her work in "The Hard Way." George Stevens won first place among directors for "The More the Merrier."

Other pictures in the running for the award were "The Human Comedy," "Holy Matrimony," "Hangmen Also Die," "Mission to Moscow," "Corvette K-225," "Claudia," "Action in the North Atlantic," "This Is the Army," and "Air Force."

Producing Artists To Make 6 a Year

A schedule of not less than six pictures a year budgeted at $1,000,000 minimum is planned for Producing Artists, it was revealed in New York this week by Arthur Lyons, who with David M. Loew heads the company. This unit, which releases through United Artists, is the only one now operating on an equal participation basis by creative talent and producer.

Mr. Lyons told members of the trade press he had come to New York to close deals, if possible, for further story properties. First on the list were "One Touch of Venus," for which he has made an offer, and "Oklahoma," concerning which he is in conference with Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, and Richard Rodgers. Under the Producing Artists plan these hit musicals would be invested by the owners as their share of the creative talent used in the film versions, and they would receive a share of the picture's profits for as long as profits come in. Thus, instead of a lump sum, the owners of the properties would have their return spread over several years at least.

Another venture by the new company now looming is a picturization of Bizet's "Carmen." Mr. Lyons is closing with the Alien Property Custodian for foreign rights, although the story and opera both are in public domain. The PA idea of "Carmen" is to modernize the opera.

Four pictures are now set for this year's schedule. "Love Is Where You Find It" will start shooting at the General Service studios the end of March. Jerome Kern is at present composing the music for it, and Agnes deMille has been signed to do the dances. "High Spirits" is to star Jack Benny, while "Singing City"—another musical—and "The Blackbirder" will follow the publication of two novels of those names, which has been coordinated with the company's plans.

Columbia Pictures operating profit was $1,545,000 for 13 weeks ended September 25, 1943, compared with $989,000 for the same period last year, it was announced this week by Harry Cohn, president. After provision for taxes, including excess profits tax, the net profit for this period was $482,000, compared with $312,000 for the 13-week period in 1942. Estimated taxes for this term were $1,063,000 against $677,000 last year.

Jan. 17 Is MGM Tradeshow Date

"A Guy Named Joe," Spencer Tracy-Irene Dunne starrer, and the Technicolor production, "Broadway Rhythm," will be tradeshown by MGM in its exchange centers throughout the country on January 17, it was announced this week. The only exception is New York, which sees the double showing on January 18. The two pictures will be run both morning and afternoon.

More WB French Versions

Following the successful test run of a French dialogue version of "All This and Heaven Too" at the Capitol, Quebec, Warner Brothers announces a new schedule of 15 to 18 pictures to be so treated during the present season for showing at the Quebec house—a rate of one about every third week.

'Lifeboat' Into Astor Jan. 11

"Lifeboat," 20th Century-Fox's picturization of an original story by John Steinbeck, will have its premiere at the Astor Theatre, Broadway, on Thursday night, January 11. Following the premiere, which will be an invitation affair, the picture will be presented on a continuous performance policy.

FILM TRAVEL-LOG

Jack Flynn, MGM western sales manager, and John J. Maloney, central division sales head, will arrive in New York next week from Chicago and Pittsburgh, respectively.

Claude Lee, Paramount director of public relations, set out for his Washington job this week as motion picture representative in the War Finance Division of the U. S. Treasury Department for the Fourth War Loan.

Jack Segal, Columbia assistant foreign manager, back from an eight-week tour of Latin America.

Columbia executives A. Schneider, A. Montague, Joseph McConville, and Leo Jaffe leave today for Hollywood for conferences with Harry Cohn.

Nat D. Fellman, Warner Theatres executive, made a three-day jump to Cleveland this week.

Warner Bros. field men Jack Leewood and Frank Bruner are in New York this week, having come on from their respective territories, Denver and the southwest.

G. L. Carrington, president of Altec Service Corporation, left New York for Los Angeles Wednesday.

RKO Corp. Declares Dividend On Accrued 6 p.c. Preferred

Investors holding RKO Corporation 6 per cent preferred stock got their best news of the year this week when Floyd B. Odlum, chairman of the board, announced that the directors had decided to declare payment of accumulated back dividends accrued before November 1, 1943. The total in arrears adds up to $15.50 per share.

The regular dividend of $1.50 on the 6 per cent preferred was also voted. The latter is payable February 1, 1944 to stockholders of record January 20. The double dividend payment will approximate $1,986,635.

Fire Wipes Out 3 Theatres

A spectacular $1,000,000 Christmas Day fire in Wildwood, New Jersey wiped out William C. Hunt's historic Hunt's Amusement Pier—which contained two theatres—and the Nixon Theatre located on the Boardwalk opposite the pier. Two persons were killed and a score injured as fire raged through three blocks destroying two hotels, 25 stores, two apartment houses and nine homes, in addition to the pier and theatre.

'Human Comedy' Wins

The Chicago Better Films Council, drawn from membership of various Illinois women's clubs, has made its annual pick of the Ten Best for 1943. Here they are: 1. The Human Comedy. 2. So Proudly We Hail. 3. My Friend Flicka. 4. Stage Door Canteen. 5. Casablanca. 6. Random Harvest. 7. Coney Island. 8. Holy Matrimony. 9. Heaven Can Wait. 10. For Whom the Bell Tolls. More than 800 replies were received in the polls conducted by Mrs. E. B. Holton, president of the Film Council, and Mrs. J. R. Cheeser, state chairman of the film division, Illinois Women's Clubs.

Three Russian Girls

UA Drama 80 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 14th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) A story that is in part a documentary film of the Russian people when the war struck them. As a story of three girls in a nurses corps, it holds entertainment for most of the family.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Picture can fill out a double bill where supported by a strong feature.

Cast: Anna Sten, Kent Smith, Mimi Forsaythe, Alexander Granach, Kathy Frye, Paul Guilfoyle, Kane Richmond, Manart Kippen, Jack Gardner, Marcia Lenack, Mary Herriot, Anna Marie Stewart, Dorothy Gray, Feodor Chaliapin. Credits: Directed by Fedor Ozep and Henry Kesler. Screenplay by Aben Kandel & Dan James. Director of photography, John Mescall. Associate Producer, Eugene Frenke. A Gregor Rabinovitch Production.

Plot: This is the story of a group of Russian women who became volunteer nurses on the fighting front; of their sacrifices and of their own particular problems.

Comment: Whatever box-office lies in the title will have to compete with other current releases depicting the Russian scene. This is not necessarily a disadvantage, as the playup of the Russian background, by many current hits, plus the daily news breaks which the Russian armies and leaders obtain, may make the subject one of intense and continuing public interest. Picture can fill out a double bill nicely where supported by another feature. Performances are hard to discuss as few of the players had much chance to round out a characterization. With the fighting and bombing scenes pounding over hard reality, scenes which are clearly documentary and most likely supplied by the Soviet Information Service, the story whips from fighting to short personal interludes and the continuity calls for quick reactions, not usually found in the average motion picture audience. The tie-in of the documentary shots is very adroitly manipulated and few will ever guess that the footage was not shot in the making of the picture. Many will wonder how Producer Gregor Rabinovitch was able to recreate such striking reality. Anna Sten's return blends nicely with the Russian story as her accent fits well. Kent Smith, Mimi Forsaythe, Alexander Granach, Paul Guilfoyle contribute equal performances. A young girl part by Kathy Frye is a standout for the young lady is delightful. Sell this as a sample of the heroism of the Russian people themselves. The volunteer civilian nurses who went to the front where the actual fighting was taking place, fearfully perhaps, but with the courage to help their soldiers who were wounded. Cooperation can be obtained from any United Nations organization and Pro-Soviet Societies.

Russia

MGM Drama-With-Music 106 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Swell entertainment for everyone is this picture about the Russian people, their life, their humanity and their love for music; backgrounded by the greatest presentation of Tschaikowsky and modern Russian music ever gathered for a single picture; a special treat for music lovers.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Looks like a sure-fire box-office attraction that will pack 'em in everywhere. Title is a natural for all exploitation.

Cast: Robert Taylor, Susan Peters, John Hodiak, Robert Benchley, Felix Bressart, Michael Chekhov, Darryl Hickman, Jacqueline White, Patricia Prest, Joan Lorring, Vladimir Sokoloff, Leo Mostovoy, Leo Bulgakov, Zoia Karabanova, Konstantine Shayne, John E. Wengraf, Barbara Bulgakov, Tamara Shayne, Walter Lawrence, John Nesbitt. Credits: Directed by Gregory Ratoff. Screenplay by Paul Jarrico and Richard Collins. Based on a story by Leo Mittler, Victor Trivas and Guy Endore. Music by Peter Ilyich Tschaikowsky and Modern Russian Composers. Adapted for the scren by Herbert Stothart. Director of photography, Harry Stradling. Produced by Joseph Pasternak.

Plot: An American conductor arrives for a symphonic tour of Russia. There he meets and marries a beautiful Russian girl. They are very happy until Hitler's hordes invade her country, at which time he sends her back to help her people. He goes back to help her and witnesses the killing of others by Nazi bullets . . . and then her people of the country send both of them back to America to devote their lives to familiarizing the people with their Ally.

Comment: Backgrounded by the greatest presentation of Tschaikowsky and modern Russian music ever gathered together for a single picture and with Robert Taylor for marquee draw, this looks like a sure-fire box-office attraction that will pack 'em in everywhere. The basic story idea—that of an American conductor in Russia marrying a Russian girl—is well-presented and lends itself to romance, gaiety and laughter, as shots of the people and their happy lives are shown before war destroyed their method of living. There are the traditional dances in native costumes and the peasants working in the fields, each and every one, from the youngest to the oldest, with their tremendous love for their country shining in their faces. Many a tear will be shed at the destruction and heartbreak of the people when the invaders start wrecking their land and the suspense built up when Taylor, who has been separated from his wife because of the war, starts hunting for her in a bombed city, will have most audiences holding their breaths. By his understanding and masterful direction, Gregory Ratoff, without propagandizing, shows us something of the Russian people, their simple life. their humanity and their love for music. Robert Taylor, as the American conductor, is excellent and his work conducting the concerts of the magnificent Tschaikowsky music is very convincingly portrayed. In her first leading dramatic role, Susan Peters, with a Russian accent, turns in a portrayal that presages bigger and better roles for her future. The supporting cast is perfect, outstanding among them are Robert Benchley, John Hodiak, Felix Bressart and Michael Chekhov. Credit goes to Joseph Pasternak for a production of merit. Of special interest to music lovers is the Tschaikowsky score, so contact all music stores and music schools and arrange tieups. Take advantage of the draw of the title in all your exploitation. Local Russian Relief Organizations and other Russian societies will be glad to cooperate.

SUITABLE FOR ADULTS ONLY

Sing A Jingle

Universal Comedy-With-Music 61 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 7th, 1944)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) A light musical for the entertainment of the family.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Satisfactory program offering.

Cast: Allan Jones, June Vincent, Samuel S. Hinds, Gus Schilling, Betty Kean, Jerome Cowan, Edward Norris, Joan Castle, Richard Love, Vivian Austin, Billy Newell, Dean Collins, The Kings Men and The Four Society Girls. Credits: Produced and directed by Edward Lilley. Original screenplay by John Grey, Eugene Conrad, Lee Sands and Fred Rath. Director of photography, Jerome Ash.

Plot: One of America's favorite baritones makes a farewell broadcast and then under his legal name, goes to work in a defense plant in a small midwestern city. When his attentions to the boss' daughter arouses the jealousy of another suitor, the man puts the baritone up for ridicule at a fund-raising rally for the building of a ship. The arrival of his ex-manager helps to clear up the situation and he wins the girl.

Comment: Sounding a patriotic note with the theme about defense work and the selling of War Bonds for the building of ships, this latest musical from Universal is a light, entertaining program offering that will satisfactorily take care of its allotted sixty minutes running time in regular bookings. The title is particularly apropos, for many songs jingle along throughout most of the footage, a few of them quite old and well-known numbers. In the lead, Allan Jones does well with his portrayal and the presentation of six of the songs, while Betty Kean does her share as a comedian and dancer with some funny routines. Others in the cast are June Vincent, Gus Schilling, The Kings Men and The Four Society Girls—all part and parcel of the general proceedings. Production and direction by Edward Lilley spots the numbers well and keeps the picture moving smoothly throughout. Music store tieups and playing of recordings in lobby, in advance of the showing, will attract attention. Contact all defense plants and patriotic organizations and get their cooperation.

Tender Comrade

RKO Radio Drama 101 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) Dealing with widows of war, this picture will stir feminine hearts and emotions with its tender and human, romantic and amusing, story. A field day for women.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Because of its potent feminine appeal, "Tender Comrade" seems destined for an excellent box-office career.

Cast: Ginger Rogers, Robert Ryan, Ruth Hussey, Kim Hunter, Patricia Collinge, Mady Christians, Richard Martin, Marcy McGuire, Jane Darwell, Richard Gaines. Credits: Produced by David Hempstead. Associate Producer, Sherman Todd. Directed by Edward Dmytryk. Story and screenplay by Dalton Trumbo. Director of photography, Russell Metty. Musical direction, C. Bakaleinikoff.

Plot: Their husbands serving in the war, Ginger Rogers, Ruth Hussey, Kim Hunter and Patricia Collinge, all workers in an aircraft plant, decide to pool their resources, rent a house and live together. Things go smoothly except occasionally when arguments about current problems arise, with Ruth cynically opposing the others. News

THE FILM INDUSTRY

ON THE PATRIOTIC FRONT

California Pledges To Go Over the Top In 4th War Loan

California motion picture exhibitors, representing circuits and independents throughout the state, have pledged 100 per cent fulfillment of the industry's 4th War Loan goal, "A Bond for Every Seat." The pledge was made to their fellow-Californian, Charles P. Skouras, National Chairman, at the conclusion of the pre-campaign exhibitor meeting last week at San Francisco's Hotel St. Francis.

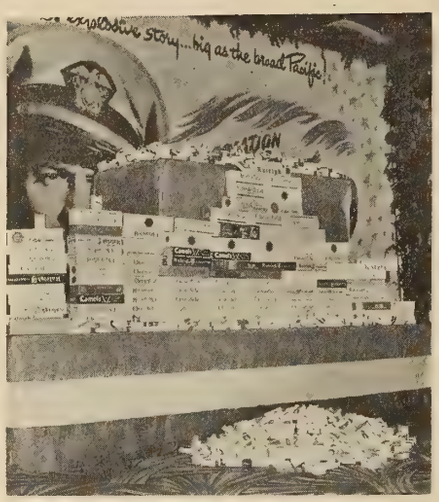
Speakers at the meeting included Skouras, B. V. Sturdivant, National Campaign Director; A. J. Krappman and Fred Stein, Assistant Campaign Directors; and Roy Cooper, Northern California State Chairman.

Honor for Contest Winners

Skouras announced that the winners in the motion picture industry's "Honored Hundred" competition which will be held during the 4th War Loan, will comprise the industry's advisory committee in the 5th War Loan, tentatively scheduled for next summer.

At previous meetings in Washington, D. C., and Chicago, the contest itself and other awards were discussed.

"With this latest award, the 'Honored Hundred' contest takes on added significance," Skouras stated. "Up to now, the 'Honored Hundred' was a competition with tangible prizes such as an all-expense trip to Washington, plaques and citations, but this added prize gives America's showmen a more significant goal to work toward."



'Honored Hundred' on Committee

One hundred showmen representing cities, states and U. S. territories will be selected in the "Honored Hundred" competition. In recognition of their efforts, arrangements have been made with Secretary Morgenthau for them to confer with the 5th War Loan officials next Spring to plot the course of the motion picture industry's activities in that Bond Drive. The "Honored Hundred" will be given trips to Washington, D. C., all expenses paid, and their suggestions will make up the policies of the industry's next drive.

As announced earlier the winners will be selected as follows: One champion from each state, Alaska and Hawaii and ten champions from cities in each of the following population brackets—under 5,000, between five and ten thousand, between ten and twenty-five thousand, between twenty-five and one hundred thousand and from cities with more than one hundred thousand population.

About fifty important circuit and independent theatremen, state exhibitor chairmen and members of various 4th War Loan committees in the Western exchange area, attended the meeting at the St. Francis. Among those conferring with the national staff were these state chairmen: Harry Nace, Arizona; Roy Cooper, Northern California; R. J. Garland, Colorado; N. Dow Thompson, Nevada; Al Finke, Oregon; Frank Newman, Washington Sam Gillette, Utah.

Others were Mike Rosenberg, George Bowser, Harry Vinnicoff, Alex Evelove, John Danz, Nat Holt, John Rugar, George Nasser, Ellis Arkush, William David, Gene Emmick, Mrs. Hulda McGinn, Ellis Levy, D. J. McNerney, Robert J. Lippert, Mike Naify, Rotus Harvey.

Cigaret Benefit a Success

Mrs. J. J. Parker, head of J. J. Parker Theatres, Portland, Ore., asked the newspaper, the Oregonian, to help her sponsor a midnight show to obtain cigarets for the wounded soldiers at a receiving hospital in the Portland area. The show was held, with four packs of cigarets as admission for each patron. It was a huge success, as can be seen by the large quantity of smokes in the picture above. Result: over a million cigarets were donated to the hospital.

'Report' Rates Twice Among Year's 10 Best

The United States Government film, "Report From the Aleutians" which is being distributed through the War Activities Committee, has been selected as one of the ten best films of the year by film critics Bosley Crowther of the New York Times and Alton Cook of the World Telegram.

The film has been shown in several thousand theatres and will play several thousand more.

Filmed in Technicolor by the U. S. Army Signal Corps, "Report" was released in July and has garnered constant praise for creating a complete picture of the life of our fighting men who serve in that portion of the world. It is highlighted by a sequence in which our troops complete a bombing mission to formerly Japanese-held Kiska.

Holiday Issue of Loewdown

A special 8-page holiday issue of the Loewdown, official Loew's Theatre house organ, prepared by Oscar A. Doob, has gone to men of the N. Y. circuit who are in the various armed services. Of the 2670 Loew employes in service, 441 are from the Loew theatres in Greater New York. The publication covers the latest news of these fighters obtained either from their families or from letter sent to friends.

'Madame Curie' to the Fronts

From headquarters of Army Pictorial Service in New York word comes that fifty-one sixteen millimeter prints of MGM's "Madame Curie" which stars Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, have been shipped overseas by plane and boat.

S. S. Carole Lombard To Be Launched By Officials of Industry

In recognition of the motion picture industry's vast bond selling activities and its many-sided participation in the war effort through its War Activities Committee, the Treasury Department has announced the launching of a Maritime ship to be christened the S.S. Carole Lombard. The ceremonies will take place at a California shipyard on January 6th or 7th, and have been planned both to honor Miss Lombard and serve as a springboard for the industry's participation in the coming 4th War Loan.

Charles P. Skouras, National Director for the campaign, was placed in charge of the event by Theodore H. Gamble, Director of the War Finance Division of the Treasury Department. Because of other 4th War Loan business, which call upon him to travel about the country at that time, Skouras has invited Louis B. Mayer to officiate at the ceremony.

Plans have been set in motion to make the event a "united presentation," with all studios, guilds, the Hollywood Victory Committee, and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences participating. Many other plans to make the launching one of national importance and prestige to the industry will be developed by Skouras, Mayer, and other motion picture officials.

Said Skouras: "I am deeply grateful to the Treasury Department for their thoughtfulness in naming this ship after one of the most beloved and talented stars who ever graced the screen. Miss Lombard is truly a martyr to the cause for which we are all buying and selling bonds. Her tragic passing as she was returning from one of her many successful bond-selling tours is the supreme sacrifice one can give in the service of home and country.

"In the ceremony of launching the ship which will bear her name, I feel that all the motion picture industry should be represented because, to us, Carole Lombard was more than a star: she was a grand friend to all from prop man to producer. In fact, those of us who are active in the motion picture industry's plans for the 4th War Loan feel that Miss Lombard's activities in this field are symbolic of the work which is so generously being continued by other personalities in the industry."

The Treasury Department announced that John Carnody, member of the United States Maritime Commission, will come to Los Angeles from Washington, D. C., to attend the launching.

Universal to Distribute Film of Marines' Landing at Tarawa

Official Marine Corps battle films made at the landing at Tarawa will be given theatrical distribution through Universal exchanges, according to Francis S. Harmon, WAC coordinator.

Warner Bros. Studios is currently assembling and cutting the footage, whch was filmed in 16-mm Kodachrome. It will be scored, a commentary added and then "blown-up" to 35-mm by Technicolor.

The film, as yet untitled, will begin distribution early in February, Harmon said.

Milwaukee's Victory Cooking School Good Pattern for Exhibitors

Victory Cooking Schools, which STR has advocated from time to time, not only boost business but provide exhibitors with a means of impressing upon their feminine patrons the importance of recipes on the home front in cooking the Axis' goose.

Most showmen are familiar with the routines and procedure in promoting a successful Cooking School, basis of which is strong newspaper and merchant support. Determined by local conditions and circumstances, some Schools runs a 3-day period, some a week, or a School might be held on a certain day each week for a number of weeks.

Dean Hyskell's 8th National Drive, house organ for National Theatres, carries a report of a recent mammoth Westinghouse Cooking School held at the Palace Theatre, Milwaukee, on three successive Thursday matinees:

At No Cost to Theatre

"Merchandise prizes valued at over one thousand dollars were given away at no cost to the theatre. Included were electric refrigerators, ranges, roasters and other kitchen equipment.

"An extensive advertising campaign financed by a tieup with Westinghouse and the A & P food stores included 1000 four-color posters displayed in all dealers' stores and on 250 street cars; four full-page ads; three 400-line ads tieing up with dealers; six A & P food store ads tieing in with the Cooking School; 35 announcements on two local radio stations; two radio interviews with a home economics expert; eight columns of publicity stories and pictures in the Milwaukee Sentinel each week for three weeks; a window display contest advertising the Cooking School among over 100 Westinghouse dealers, with cash prizes furnished by the company for the best windows; tieups with a large baking concern for inserts in wrapped loaves of bread; a tieup with a creamery for milk-bottle collars advertising the Cooking School."

Not all communities, it is admitted, can effect tieups on the grand scale of those achieved in Milwaukee; but in a great many instances, and on a similar scale, many of the stunts and tieups can be duplicated. Whatever plan you proceed on, make your preparations well in advance, start your publicity reasonably ahead of actual date, then follow through.

'New Parking Law'

New Parking Law cards were distributed by Manager Eddie Selette of the Colonial Theatre, Nashua, N. H., through a tieup with a local Chinese laundry.

With the N.P.L. words in large letters, this copy appeared in smaller type: "Section 655 —Article 9. Made necessary by the cold weather. Young ladies, young men, children and all classes will change their parking places from the street corners, lonely roads, porch chairs, etc., to the warm, comfortable Colonial Theatre."

A list of attractions for the week followed.

World Premiere Scene Symbolic

Pre-war premieres, with their bright lights and throngs of people, were so numerous that pictures of them looked alike. But there's something impressive about the scene above of the world premiere in Los Angeles of 20th Century-Fox's "The Song of Bernadette." Perhaps the combination of the film's message of faith and the rays of light projected against a dark sky symbolizes a brighter, peaceful postwar world.

WB Stars, Films in Radio Jingle Tieup

Under an exclusive tieup made by Warner Bros. with the Canadian Silk Products, Ltd., sponsors of "Hollywood Highlights," broadcast five times weekly over 13 Dominion stations, the name of a Warner feminine player and a current or forthcoming film will be mentioned in jingle verses on every program.

First 20 spots, already recorded, plug 14 Warner names and 10 picture. Sample stanzas:

She's as gay as her role in "Princess O'Rourke"
She's a favorite from Maine to Bolivia
Young Miss de Havilland, she's formerly called
But—she'd rather be known as "Olivia".

She's taking the cinema world by storm
Her charm rates a 4-star salute
Julie Bishop's the answer to Errol Flynn's prayer
In the thrilling film—"Northern Pursuit".

Out of the deep romantic south
Complete with Texas drawl
Ann Sheridan came, with her auburn mane
To become the toast of them all.
You'll see this glamorous Warner star soon
In the movie—"Shine on Harvest Moon".

Hudgins Holds 'Grid' Dinner As 'Iron Major' Campaign Highlight

Manager Paul Hudgins of the Orpheum Theatre, Waco, Texas, tied-in with the high school football team, local district champions, for a "grid" dinner as the highlight of his campaign for "The Iron Major."

The dinner, attended by local sports dignitaries and scribes, was followed by ceremonies conducted from the stage of the Orpheum on opening night, at which time the "champs" were presented with an engraved trophy.

SRO Teaser Angle Enlivens Campaign On Grable Musical

A campaign which capitalized on the "SRO" teaser angle to heighten the interest of the general public was put over on "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" by Manager Harry Stearn of Schine's Manring Theatre, Middlesboro, Ky.

Throughout the town the three letters, SRO, were used as sidewalk stencils, and a notice was run in the newspaper the week before advising the public to watch the sidewalk and inform the theatre of their definitions of SRO. Stearn received 250 correct answers.

Five merchants who handle music tied up on counter and window displays. Music sheet covers were distributed in the music stores, placed on other store windows and also used as lobby streamers. Newspaper came across with sixty inches of free publicity.

In a tieup with Kroger groceries, 2500 large store bags with theatre imprint were distributed. Badges were worn by theatre staff members and by soda fountain girls in the Middlesboro's leading drug store.

Special cutouts were made and placed in merchants' windows.

All in all, it was a pretty complete campaign, and results at the box-office were excellent.

Peters Ties In Shoe Dealers To Exploit 'Best Foot Forward'

Prior to his playdate of "Best Foot Forward," Manager George Peters of Loew's, Richmond, Va., persuaded the shoe division of the Richmond Retail Merchants Association to cooperate by displaying special cards and distributing heralds.

Copy on the cards and heralds: "Avoid a Last-Minute Shoe Stampede! Need new shoes? Then don't wait till the deadline to spend your Stamp 18. Buy while our fall selections are complete and our salespeople have time to give you service which assures perfect fit. Lucille Ball, Wiliam Gaxton, Virginia Weidler and Harry James say Put Your 'Best Foot Forward' to Victory, etc."

In a radio tieup, Eddie Weaver conducted a "College Song Contest" by playing various college songs, with tickets going to listeners who correctly identified them.

Music from the picture was played on the theatre's organ several weeks in advance of playdate.

Upright 24-Sheet

For the first time in motion pictures, an upright 24-sheet is being used to exploit "The Song of Bernadette" throughout New York City and environs for the twin eastern seaboard premiere early this year at the Rivoli and Globe theatres.

Idea of Hal Horne, 20th Century-Fox's director of publicity and advertising, the upright 24-sheet is a reproduction of the famous Norman Rockwell oil painting, with only the title of the picture appearing thereon. New Yorkers, company observers report, are already beginning to talk about it.

About Advance Preparations And Offers That Lose Their Appeal As Time Passes By

Bearing in mind what we said in this department recently about necessarily preparing this material in advance, you will understand why we mention now that Christmas is just a day or two away while, as you read these lines, Christmas and New Year's have come and gone. But things must always be prepared in advance—or at least most things — or they won't be ready at the proper time. Take that bathrobe your wife gave you for Christmas; undoubtedly it was manufactured several months ago. Or suppose you read in the newspaper that a prominent personage has died, and along with the news of his passing is a biography. Chances are that that biography had been prepared long in advance and filed away to be used when the prominent personage's passing occurred. Spot news, of course, must wait until as near the deadline as possible; but since not every department of the newspaper or news magazine can be delayed until the last minute without causing a jam, most of the material must be prepared and placed in the hands of the publisher at an early date. Just why are we going through this long explanation? We don't know, unless we feel it will serve to convince you that advance preparation must always precede the eventual result.

The mercury has climbed the thermometer, which means that the weather is comfortably chilly. The sun is shining, too. It's almost like a near-spring day. We do wish that just enough snow would fall to make it a white Christmas, if only for the children's sake. But we fear that in these parts white Christmases are few and far between.

Perhaps it's because of the heavy Christmas mail, but the fact remains that once more only a handful of programs have reached our desk. We hope that once this rush is over, that once our members and exhibitor-readers get back into their regular stride again, mailing of programs to us will be resumed. Even many of our regulars—those who generally let nothing stand in the way of providing us with every program—have forsaken us. Oh well, we shall carry on as best we can.

Ah, here is another mail delivery. Maybe there's a program or two for us. Well, there's one, anyway, from the Wallace and Rose theatres, Levelland, Texas. Once more, instead of being a handbill, it's a four-page affair utilizing not only one- and two-column ad mats but also one- and two-column publicity cuts. But there's something missing: the offer of guest tickets to folks who find their names in the various ads. Whether the offer has been discontinued temporarily or permanently we have no way of knowing, but it is readily apparent that it's missing, and we bet Wallace and Rose patrons will discover the change two minutes (or even sooner) after they receive their programs. Changes are usually made for a good reason, and we figure that executives of the two Levelland theatres knew what they were about when they eliminated the offer.

Sometimes even the most attractive offer can soon lose its effectiveness. We remember several years ago when a theatre tied in with a newspaper for a weekly recipe contest. For the ten best recipes submitted for publication on the newspaper's Market Basket Page twenty guest tickets were offered. Well, for the first few weeks the recipes poured into the newspaper office; an employe had to be assigned to the job of sorting them out. Then, gradually the number of entries began to decline. Eventually there weren't even enough recipes to cover the prize list, so the offer had to be withdrawn. It had worn itself out. Something like this might have happened to the Wallace and Rose offer. Maybe the idea of receiving a guest ticket whenever their names appeared in the program lost its appeal for the Levelland citizenry. On the other hand, the offer might have been withdrawn to permit more paid admissions during the holiday season. In any event, we won't know what really happened until we see subsequent issues of The Reminder.

While looking over the program for the 48th Street Theatre, New York, a house that specializes in Scandinavian films, the thought occurred to us that the center spread might represent a makeup which some other exhibitors might like to duplicate. Accordingly, we have decided to reproduce this center spread; so you'll find it on this page.

In the Sheffield Fence Rider, a trade paper issued by the Sheffield Steel Corp., Kansas City, Mo., one of our Program Exchange members received an excellent publicity break. You guessed it—the member was Jim Owen. A layout of nine rotogravure pictures under the headline, "Dairyman Jim Owen Also Runs Float Trips," constituted the swell break. One picture showed Jim standing by the fence of his dairy farm, another showed him with a haul of fish (this same picture appeared in STR some months ago) and still another showed him checking out a float party that included Don McNeil, radio announcer. Congratulations, Jim.

Well, what with visions of Christmas dancing in our heads and because of a lack of programs, which we mentioned earlier in this discourse, we think it's about time to conclude. So . . . we'll see you here again next week. Meanwhile, send us your programs, won't you?

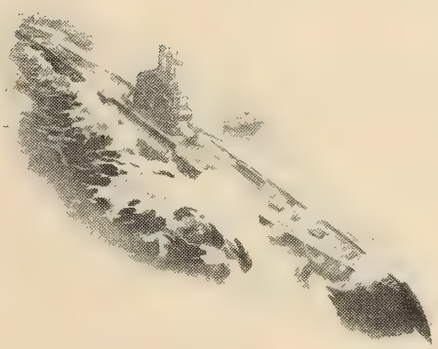
New Version of Song Is Highlight of Party

Highlight of the Oregon showmen's Christmas party held recently at Jack and Jill's, Portland's most popular theatre restaurant, was the singing of words, written by Lou Amacher of the Oregon MGM exchange, to the tune of Paper Doll. Amacher's version:



I'm goin' to buy a picture show
That I can call my own
And gyp the film distributors every way
I'll take vacations on my losses
And I'll not have big bosses
Prosperity will come to me to stay
I'll play percentage pictures if they make me
Somehow I'll find a way to make it pay
I'd rather have a picture show
That I can call my own
Than be a District Manager some day.

When I buy a picture show that I can call my own
I'll try and make the money every way
I never will go broke
With candy, corn and coke
Prosperity will join me for a stay
I'll up the price to a quarter in the rest rooms
And in the lobby I'll have a sandwich bar
When I have a picture show
That I can call my own
Each year I'll buy myself a brand new car.

When I have a picture show that I can call my own
I'll give a Christmas dinner every day
I'll milk the pictures good and dry
While suburbans suckers cry
Happiness will come to me to stay
I'll cut my advertising 'propriation
And let the film exchanges foot the bills
When I have a picture show
That I can call my own
I too will entertain at Jack and Jill's.

Hosts for the party were Mrs. J. J. Parker, president of J. J. Parker theatres, and Albert Finke, Oregon representative of Hamrick-Evergreen Theatres, who entertained the following Oregon area branch managers and their wives: Mr. and Mrs. James Beale, Columbia Pictures; Mr. and Mrs. Lou Amacher, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wessling, Monogram Pictures; Mr. and Mrs. Herb Cass, National Screen Service; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Clarke, Paramount Pictures; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Cory, RKO Pictures; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sheffield, Republic Pictures; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Powers, 20th Century-Fox; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kloepper, United Artists Corp.; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Segel, United Artists Corp.; Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Wilson, Universal Pictures; Mr. and Mrs. Al Oxtoby, Warner Bros.; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dunlop, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lake, and Mr. Jack Matlack of the J. J. Parker organization; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Metzelaar, and Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Mesher of the Hamrick-Evergreen organization; and John Parker, son of Mrs. J. J. Parker.

Another one from Warners gets under way this week!

Our Two Big Jobs in January:
Fourth War Loan and March of Dimes

Big Campaign Sells Milwaukee 'Women In Bondage' Premiere

An excellent publicity campaign was staged in Milwaukee in connection with the world premiere of "Women in Bondage" at the Palace Theatre, and the city was literally turned upside down for the first such occasion in its history. Campaign was planned and carried through by Harold S. Fitzgerald, general manager of the Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises, and his organization, and Jim Schiller, west coast exploiteer for Monogram.

Starting with 100 lines five days before the opening, ads in the Milwaukee newspapers worked up to 600 lines on the day of the premiere. Paper used in billing the picture was confined to 24-sheets, which were posted plentifully in strategic locations all over town. Five hundred streamers were posted on store windows by members of the Downtown Association. A giant banner, advertising the opening, was strung across Wisconsin Avenue, marking the first time the city had issued a permit for such a concession. The city also turned over to the theatre its municipal billboard stand in the downtown area, to be used for a "Women in Bondage" 24-sheet. A wire stockade was constructed before the sign, and at intervals for several days a number of women were confined behind the barricade, under guard of a rifle-toting German Storm Trooper. For five days the moving electric bulletin on the Pabst brewery was turned over for use in publicizing the picture.

Newspapermen Meet Stars

To meet Gertrude Michael, H. B. Warner and Rita Quigley, cast members who went from Hollywood for personal appearances on the opening night, Monogram took Milwaukee newspaper and radio people to Chicago, and they secured interviews with the players on the return train trip between the two cities. Resulting stories and art in Milwaukee dailies amounted to more than 60 columns, and radio appearances were arranged on stations WTMJ, WEMP and WISN, on Heine's Grenadier, Nancy Gray and Early Risers programs. For several preceding days, all local stations had also carried frequent spot announcements.

Arriving in Milwaukee, the party was met at the station by a group of important Army officers and a contingent of Wacs, Waves and Spars numbering 50 girls. Led by a motorcycle escort, the visitors were whisked to their hotel in a parade of jeeps, with sirens wide open and preceded by a sound truck. Hotel marquees featured welcome to stars and premiere. Social events included the customary cocktail party for the press, and a "refugee luncheon" at the Wisconsin Club, housed in the former home of the late Billy Mitchell. In a dining hall appropriately decorated with the flags of the Allied Nations, talks were given by Dr. Neuman and Curt Haensel, respectively physician and motion picture producer before their flight from Germany.

Players Featured on Radio Shows

In addition to appearing on the radio programs as previously arranged, Miss Michael, Warner and Miss Quigley were featured on a special state-wide program, which was given special attention in many neighboring cities. In several of these towns the broadcast was piped into one theatre in each, paving the way for subsequent showings as already covered by bookings.

The opening at the Palace Theatre was handled in approved Hollywood style, with the front illuminated by floodlights, and a loud speaker atop the marquee announcing the arrival of the mayor of the city and other prominent guests. Usherettes were garbed in the costumes of the Hitler Youth Movement, as depicted in "Women in Bondage," and all doormen and other male attendants were dressed as Storm Troopers. The large foyer was given over to an exhibition of enlarged framed pictures from the film, with captions in German-style type, and a live girl, dressed in a disheveled Hitler Youth Movement costume, lay on a dais, surmounted by a large swastika sign which read, "She has served the Reich."

Cast members and Producer Jeffrey Bernerd spoke from the stage, and the presentation of the picture was preceded by a drill of the 50 girls of the various services who had met the train, supplemented by a group of girl war workers. Then the curtains parted for the opening title of the film.

On subsequent evenings the players appeared at theatres in Fond du Lac, Janesville, Marinette and Iron Mountain, where "Women in Bondage" had opened immediately following its Milwaukee world premiere.

Goodfried Winner in Exploitation Contest

Winners in the United Artists Exploiteers $500 Exploitation Contest sponsored in connection with the showing of "Johnny Come Lately" have been announced by William Cagney, president of William Cagney Productions and producer of the picture.

Awards for each exploitation campaign were based on general all-around coverage.

First prize of $250 was won by Robert Goodfried, who covers the Washington territory. Five additional prizes of $50 each were won by the following UA Exploiteers: Max Abramson, southern area; Wallace Heim, midwest; Lew Maren, California; Henry C. Morris, southwestern sector, and Bert Shopenn from the New England territory.

All checks have been forwarded the various winners. In addition to the $250 top prize, Goodfried will be awarded a special scroll to be presented by James Cagney, star of "Johnny Come Lately," when he arrives in New York the early part of this month.

Radio and Tieups Headline 'London' Campaign in Atlanta

Several effective tieups, newspaper and radio coverage were among the highlights of the exploitation campaign put over by Manager Boyd Fry of Loew's Grand Theatre, Atlanta, Ga., for the opening of "Jack London."

A week prior to the picture's opening the Journal and Constitution both devoted stories and art featuring Michael O'Shea and Susan Hayward, the leads in "Jack London."

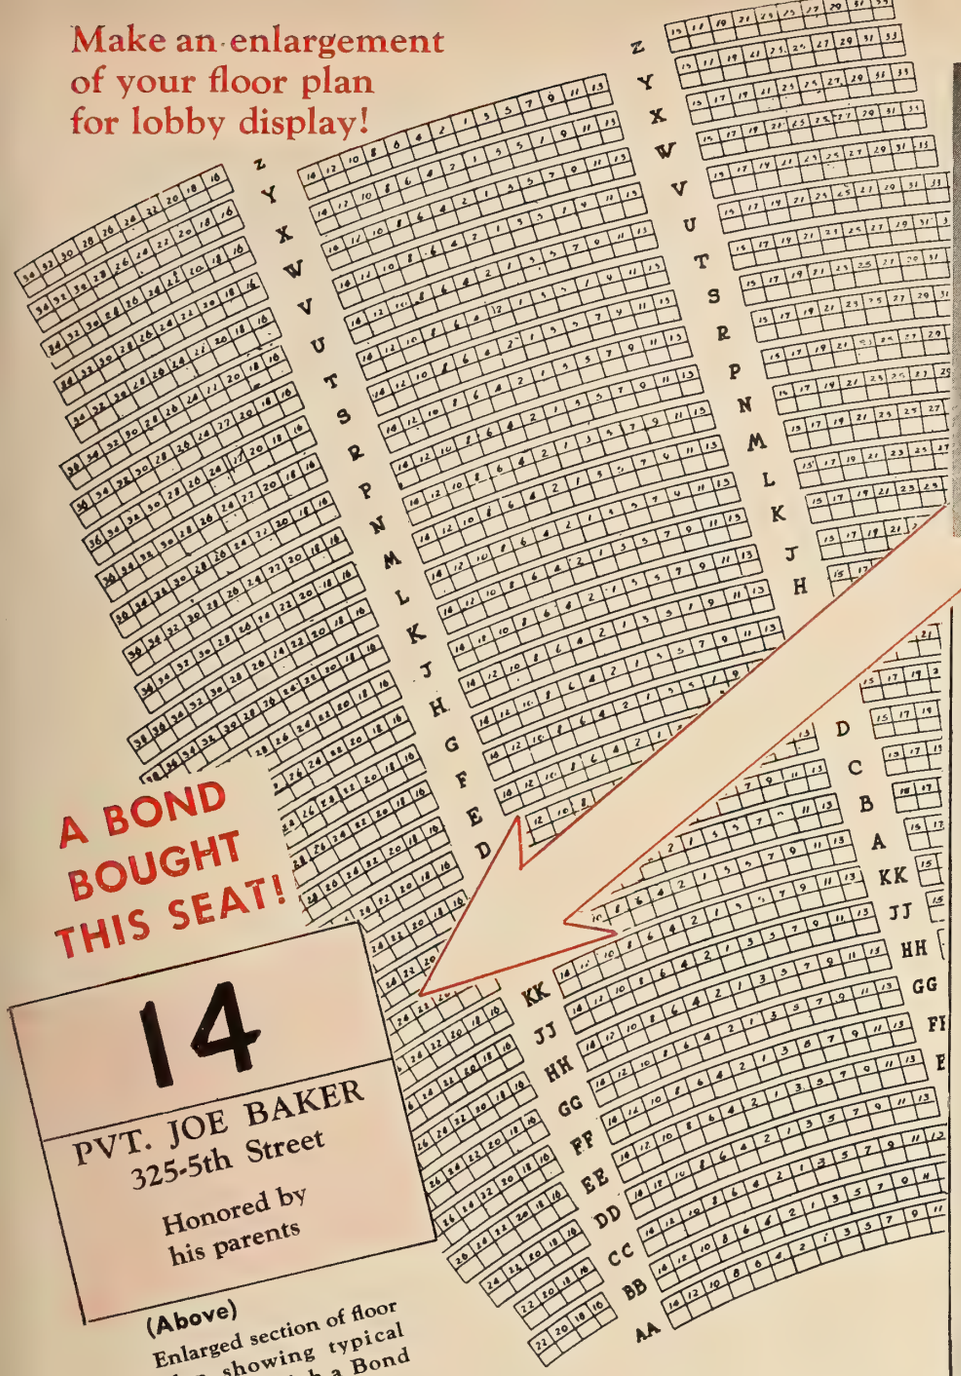
Distributes Bookmarks to Libraries

Cashing in on the popularity of the author and many of his famous books, five thousand book marks were gotten out for all the branches of the local Carnegie libraries. One side of the book marks contained the titles of London's books now available at the libraries, and the other side was an ad on the picture with full credit to the Grand Theatre.

From several of the scene stills in the picture showing Michael O'Shea wearing a pencil-stripe suit, a tie-up was arranged with the local Bond Clothing Store. A 22x28 display was gotten up featuring the stills of O'Shea. This display was first used in the Bond window and later used inside the store.

The Adams Hat tie-up, mentioned in the press sheet, accounted for an ad appearing two days prior to the opening in the Journal. Ad featured a photo of Michael O'Shea with full credit to "Jack London." Store also got out a window display with special O'Shea poster.

Five hundred printed arrows, with copy reading "See 'Jack London'," were placed on all lamp posts throughout the downtown business area. The arrows were backed on each post so as to attract the attention of both pedestrians and motorists.



The five-minute transcription on "Jack London" was used on Radio Station WATL. The same station also gave the film several spot plugs. Bulletin boards in the Piedmont, Henry Grady and other prominent hotels, carried announcements of the opening.

Front of the theatre was decorated with special lobby pieces playing up the dramatic highlights in the picture. A special valance was used. This was placed under the marquee—extending from one end to the other.

A book prepared for the film industry and distributed to exhibitors was given spotlight place in the above window display by the Chicago Lighting Institute, Chicago. The book titled "Light" was published by The Strong Electric Corporation, manufacturer of projector lamps, under the direction of the corporation's publicity and advertising agency, Wendt Advertising Agency of Toledo.

The Box-Office Slant

that her husband is missing in action changes her viewpoint, brings the group closer together. A child is born to Ginger, and all delight in caring for him. Then comes a telegram and the dread news: Ginger's husband (Robert Ryan) is missing in action. Alone in her room, she tells the baby about his father, what he believed in, what he fought for. She places Robert's picture where his son can see it; then, with clenched fists, head held high, fire in her soul, she goes downstairs to serve pumpkin pie to a soldier home on furlough.

Comment: Because it is fraught with strong feminine appeal, "Tender Comrade" seems destined for an excellent box-office career. Dealing with widows of war, this picture, whose audiences for the most part will be comprised of widows of war, will stir feminine hearts and emotions with its tender and human, romantic and amusing, story. As for its appeal to men—as if that mattered—there is cause for doubt. They'll like the picture, to be sure; but they'll shy at its sentiment, since it is around them, especially if they are service men, that this sentiment revolves. Otherwise, "Tender Comrade" is a field day for women. Touching indeed is the scene when Ginger's husband departs for overseas duty after a short furlough, and handkerchiefs will go on duty as Ginger tells her baby that his father is missing in action. And those flashbacks, in which Ginger recalls her husband's backyard proposal, those silly arguments during their first few months of marriage, that talk about the baby they'd have, are so realistic and enacted with such warmth and charm that few spectators can help but be moved deeply by them. Recreating the lives of thousands of American women today, Ginger Rogers scores with a fine dramatic portrayal, perhaps her best since the memorable "Kitty Foyle." Robert Ryan is a lovable composite of all the big, warm-hearted "lugs" wives have seen go to war, and his first major role in this picture should win him countless feminine admirers. Supporting roles are almost all uniformly good, but Ruth Hussey stands out among the characterizations of Patricia Collinge, Kim Hunter and Mady Christians. In his first major assignment, Director Edward Dmytryk ("Hitler's Children," "The Falcon Strikes Back," "Behind the Rising Sun") has done a good all-around job, although from a critical standpoint, some scenes which barely escape being maudlin might have been a little more restrained under the guidance of a more seasoned director. But after all is said and done, regardless of any minor faults any critic may find, "Tender Comrade" will come through with flying colors as a picture with potent feminine appeal and, therefore, with potent box-office draw.

Raiders Of Sunset Pass

Republic Western 55 mins.
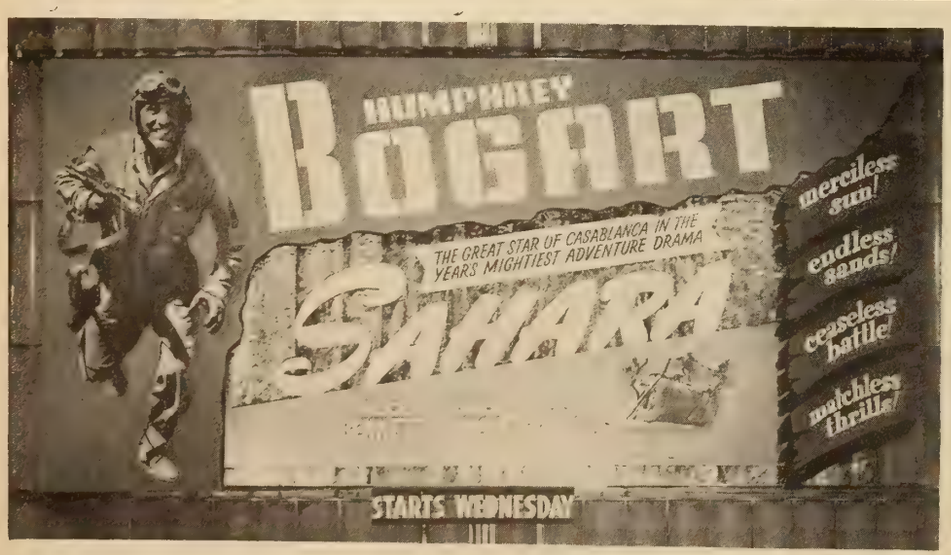
(Prod. No. 352—Nat'l Release, Dec. 20)



AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) A standard western with modern trimmings that will be enjoyed by many not ordinarily interested in the cowboy epics.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Worthy of stronger than usual selling effort.

Cast: Eddie Dew, Smiley Burnette, Leroy Mason, Roy Barcroft, Charles Miller, Jennifer Holt, Larry Stewart, Maxine Doyle, Isabel La Mal, Jack Kirk, Kenne Duncan, Nancy Worth, Mozelle Cravens, Jack Rockwell, Budd Buster, Fred Burns. Credits: Directed by John English. Original screenplay by John K. Butler. Director of photography, John MacBurnie. Associate Producer, Lou Gray.

Plot: To overcome the manpower shortage on the range, a group of hard-riding ranch daughters form an organization called the Waps. They are trained in military procedure and given radio sets to use when calling for assistance against cattle rustlers, who have become quite prevalent. In this way they are able to nab the headman and his whole gang.

Comment: By modernizing a standard western with sending and receiving sets, female cowpunchers and posters on war, Lou Gray the producer, has turned this oater into a picture that will attract many patrons not ordinarily interested in western fare. There's plenty of entertainment in the feminine chorus on horseback and in the Smiley Burnette antics. Eddie Dew in the lead, does well, but most of the action is handled by the Women's Army of the Plains, headed by Jennifer Holt. They lay the groundwork for the final entrapment of the villains.

When Manager George Balkin and his publicity man, Irving Blumberg, sat down to plan their advance lobby display on Columbia's "Sahara" for the Stanley Theatre in Philadelphia, they came up with attractive applique wall display. Lights hidden behind date strip at bottom helped put the message across.

Perhaps You Can Adapt This

This special display was created by Ralph Branton's advertising manager, Dale McFarland, for the premiere showing of the 20th Century-Fox film, "Happy Land," at the Des Moines Theatre.

Exploits 'Bell' With Bell-Tolling Record

A. G. Pickett, manager of the Orpheum Theatre, Phoenix, Ariz., employed a stroke of real showmanship in his campaign for "For Whom the Bell Tolls," using the recorded tolling of a bell to herald the engagement.

Obtaining the tolling bell record which is available from WOR Recording Studios, New York City, he rigged up a turntable and amplifier in his office and installed loud speakers in the tower of the Orpheum Theatre building. For several days in advance of the opening date, Pickett played the record, and the tolling of the bell was plainly heard for several blocks, making passers-by stop, look and listen.

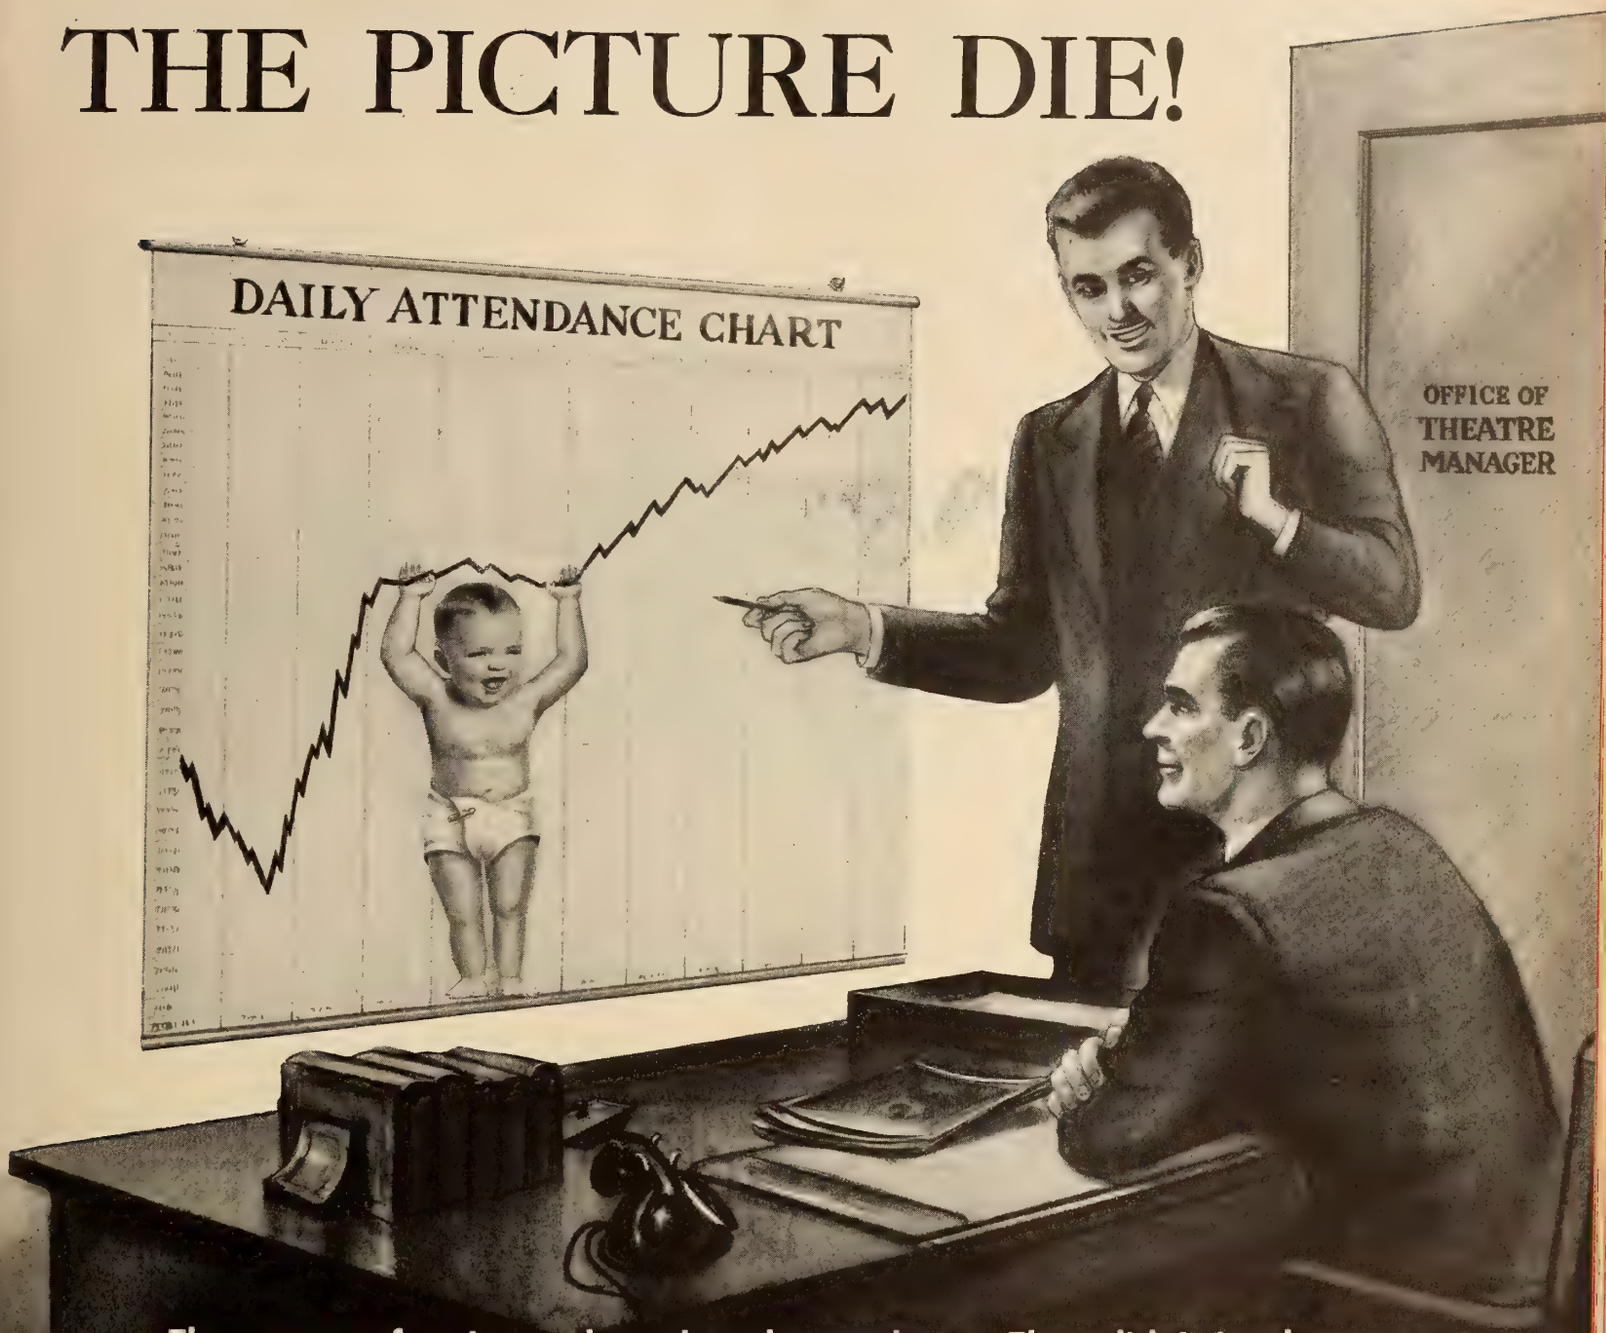
Large banners with the title of the picture attached to the tower and on the side of the building greeted passers-by as they turned to the direction from which the bell was tolling. The stunt was repeated several times daily.

When the picture opened, Pickett had the bells toll for five minutes ahead of screen time, for each showing during the engagement. The opening newspaper ad announced that the "curtain time" would be signaled in this manner.

Pickett said he received fine results from this stunt. Declared he: "It will surely repay anyone for the little effort and expense."

Newspaper Stunt On 'Government Girl'

A novel and space-getting stunt featured the advance exploitation campaign arranged by the management of the Palace Theatre, Albany, New York, for the engagement of "Government Girl."



Taking advantage of the unusual and sometimes amusing incidents evolving in the first meeting of women and their future husbands, the Palace management tied-in with the Albany Times-Union for a letter-writing contest offering married women in the Albany area a chance to win a little Christmas cash. The contest was titled "How I Met My Husband," and cash prizes were awarded for the best three letters submitted. First prize winner was awarded $15 in cash, with second and third prize winners receiving $10 and $5 respectively.

The stunt attracted considerable attention, with the Times-Union allotting it ample news and photo space in all daily editions.

Scores With Morning Shows

Exponent of morning shows for special groups, Larry Beltz of Wausau, Wis., sold the idea of a double western to the rural schools and packed his theatre.

THEY DIDN'T LET THE PICTURE DIE!

They went after it . . . they shot the works . . . They didn't insult a great picture . . . and its marvellous star cast . . . by giving it absent treatment . . . They were out to make Mazumah . . . and they did . . . Their ace in the hole . . . was the kid in the three-cornered pants . . . the kid who sells the stuff that brings in a fifth of all theatre business . . . with trailers and lobby stuff alone . . . not counting all that other stuff in his bag of tricks . . . and all of it the lowest priced theatre advertising there is . . . They knew what all other smart showmen know . . . that this kid is the strongest influence for uplift there is in this industry—on sagging attendance lines . . . He never lets anybody DOWN!

ALBANY

Denial Day, Variety Club's city-sponsored program, netted approximately $5,000 for the Variety Albany Boys Club Camp, according to C. J. Latta, Chief Barker. Not all of the 2,000 cartons placed in business places have been returned and checked as yet for the final report. Variety Club spent more than $2500 in financing the camp last year and intends increasing facilities to handle more than 200 boys at once.

Mrs. Anne Wisper Pielow, who died Monday at Forest Hills, L. I., was buried in her home city of Watervliet on Thursday at St. Agnes Cemetery. Her husband, Ralph Pielow, MGM branch manager in New York, accompanied the body to Watervliet. The deceased is survived, among others, by a sister, Helen Wisper, secretary to the 20th Century-Fox branch manager here.

A son was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. L. Wayne Carignan. Carignan is head shipper for 20th Century-Fox. The new arrival and his mother are both doing well. He will be christened Leo Wayne, Jr.

Max Friedman, zone booker for the Warner Circuit, is confined to Albany Hospital with pneumonia. According to hospital advices, Friedman has passed the crisis and is on the road to recovery.

Another victim of the grippe along film row this week was Welden Waters, Paramount salesman.

Charley Weill, Universal salesman, is confined to his home with a broken ankle, sustained in a fall recently at Norwich.

Ray Smith and George Goldberg, Vitagraph salesmen, are spending their vacation in Albany.

Bill Matteske is the new assistant shipper at 20th Century-Fox exchange, succeeding James McGraw, resigned.

F. Ray Powers, Vitagraph office manager, is confined to his home with a broken rib and heavy cold, sustained in a fall on ice here.

Betty Garry, Vitagraph contract clerk, is ill with a cold.

Joe Miller, Columbia branch manager, and Jack Armm, salesman in that exchange, are in Florida on their vacations.

Doris Freibush, secretary to the supervisor in the Vitagraph exchange, passed the Christmas week-end in Boston.

Al Marchetti, Universal booker, has been elected president of the front office film exchange employes union, F-43, with A. H. Van Deusen, RKO booker, as vice-president, for 1944.

Due to the ice and snow covering roads over the week-end, the usual number of exhibitors along film row was cut to a scattered few. However, Harry Lamont, Lamont Theatre Service; Mitch Conery, Conery Circuit; Charles Wilson, Lake, Indian Lake; and Mrs. Frieda Klein, Hunter Theatre, Hunter, checked in.

Sunday's sleet and ice cut down otherwise very prosperous Christmas week-end business, a survey of the territory indicates. The Sunday business dropped off as soon as the walking and driving became bad. Some checkers phoned or wrote in reports that they were unable to reach their assigned theatres Sunday night due to the condition of the highways.

BOSTON

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Haase spent the week-end in Concord, New Hampshire.

E. M. Loew has returned from a week spent inspecting his theatres from Florida to Maine.

Geneva Melvin has succeeded to the post of secretary to Harry Browning, public relations counselor for M and P Theatres, replacing Frances Alberts, who resigned.

Eddie Alfano, assistant to Herbert Philbrick in the M and P offices, is recovering from the effects of an operation and is hobbling about on crutches, but is again at his desk.

Edward X. Callahan spent several days in New York the past week, returning to his duties as district manager for 20th Century-Fox here with some enthusiastic new ideas for the forthcoming year.

Lester M. Levison went to Rochester and Syracuse to spend several days with relatives there.

OK BOOKING DEALS. Rube Jackter, assistant sales manager of Columbia, and S. A. Galanty, branch manager, snapped in the latter's office at the Washington exchange of the company, during Jackter's recent visit in connection with the conclusion of several important circuit contracts.

Phil Engel soon expects to announce plans for his future association with a new organization. Phil was for years publicity man in this section for Warners.

Through the exchange of post card correspondence Al Somerby and E. M. Loew, veteran theatre men, found after all these years that they are "first cousins."

The directors of the Boston Variety Club met Thursday and discussed plans for the New Year and for the 12 months to come.

The building at 572-580 Washington Street, owned by theatrical interests of Boston, has changed hands recently twice within one week.

The Normandie Theatre building in the heart of Boston's theatrical district has changed hands, having been sold to Gorin and Associates by its former owner, the Charles F. Adams estates.

The Mattapan Theatre has been closed two weeks for complete renovation.

Joseph Kline, formerly manager of the Lancaster Theatre and later with Maurice Pouzzner in Boston, has resigned to accept new duties with a circuit on Long Island.

After several near-deals were completed, the negotiations for the sale of the Somerville Theatre have been called off for the present at least.

Dave Stoneman has been spending several days in New York recently.

Arthur Howard of Affiliated Theatres and Frank Lydon, his associate, were hosts at a party given December 22 in the Hotel Statler, at which many independent exhibitors from in and out of Boston were guests.

Walter Mitchell of Franklin, Mass. was a guest on film row this week.

Bill Vianno, theatre operator of Lexington, Mass., was also a Boston film row visitor this week.

Bert MacKenzie of MGM has returned from a publicity trip around the New England states.

Bill Kummings is now Staff Sergeant at a military camp in Texas. He formerly was manager of various New England theatres.

Maurice Piuzzner announces that the Crown Theatre in New London is reopening this week, completely redecorated.

Wilbur Peterson of the Somerville Theatre visited Boston film friends this week.

Jack Goldstein of 20th Century-Fox spent Christmas with relatives in Boston. So, too, did his first aide, Joe Ehrlich.

CHARLOTTE

R. F. Brannon, chairman of the RKO exchange, has been appointed industry chairman for the states of North and South Carolina in the March of Dimes campaign to be held in January and will attend the meeting in Atlanta January 4 of all state chairmen of the southeastern section, to hear National Chairman Nicholas M. Schenck present plans for the campaign and to witness a demonstration at the Piedmont Hotel of the Kenny method of treating infantile paralysis.

January 24-30 has been selected as the week in which the March of Dimes campaign will be concentrated in Charlotte.

Phil Longdon, former head of the Twentieth Century-Fox exchange in Charlotte, visited the present manager, John E. Holston, and other Charlotte friends, coming here from Dallas, Texas, where he is now living. He is district manager now.

Rosemary McGraw, contract clerk for Twentieth Century-Fox in Charlotte, has resigned to join her family in Florida.

H. F. Kincey, general manager for the Wilby-Kincey chain of theatres, was made a director of the American Trust Company, one of state's largest banks, at the recent meeting of the board.

Mrs. Ruby Thomas has been appointed manager of the State Theatre, one of the five Wilby-Kincey houses in Charlotte, with an all-girl staff to direct, it is announced by Jack Austin, city manager for Wilby-Kincey. Mrs. Thomas was trained in the school for women theatre executives and workers conducted about a year ago by this chain and has served for some time as assistant manager of the Carolina Theatre, Charlotte's largest motion picture house. She will have as assistants Frances Caton and Mrs. Dorothy Glenham.

This change followed the transfer of Earle Holden to Hickory, N. C., as city manager. Another transfer recently announced by Wilby-Kincey is that of Frank Ritch Irvin, from the Lyric in Gastonia to the State in Salisbury, as manager, succeeding Jack Jordan, who has been made manager of the Ambassador in Raleigh.

CHICAGO

Jack Kirsch, city chairman of the Fourth War Loan Drive, will call a meeting of theatre owners and managers within a week to lay final plans. The War Bond Movie Day on January 25 will call for bonds instead of money for admission. For the occasion Jules Rubens, state chairman for the drive, had also appointed Ralph Lawler chairman of the Peoria district, Rudy Born in Rockford, Izzy Weinshenk in East St. Louis. Tom Gillian is film row chairman.

Chicago exchanges have filed requests for exemption to the 48-hour week work order of the WPB, declaring the Chicago situation is not applicable to the order.

Film Employes, F. Local 110, will meet January 11 to select nominations for its 1944 officers. Ted Levy of Warners is now president.

The Great States Theatre circuit is now booking first-runs in its houses south of Bloomington based on both national and territorial release dates. The circuit uses whichever promises the best results.

Recent visitors along film row were Jack Keegan and Cully Buernelle, Detroit theatre executives.

J. A. Diamond, S. E. Hirsch, and J. H. Levi have organized the Hanford Theatre Company with offices at 38 South Dearborn Street. The new company has 1000 shares of no-par-value stock.

The Chicago film trade is extending congratulations to Tom Gillian, 20th Century-Fox exchange manager, and his staff for winning first place in the nation-wide sales drive just completed. Clyde Eckhardt, former Chicago manager and now at Los Angeles, came in second.

Smiles were the rule along film row this holiday week. Bonuses were plentiful, with 20th-Fox leading the list by giving its employes three weeks' salary. Paramount and Columbia gave one week's pay bonus, while cash in various amounts were contributed by MGM, United Artists, RKO, Warners, Universal, Republic, Henri Elman, and Monogram.

Ben Lowrie, Columbia exchange manager, has returned from New York conferences.

The Chicago filmites are extending sympathy to Alvera Berandl of the MGM exchange, who was stricken with infantile paralysis, and is now confined to the Municipal Hospital.

Ben Cohen has been named assistant manager of the Strand Telenews Theatre in Cincinnati.

James Costen, Warner Theatres zone manager, has gone to the west coast to visit his daughter and her family for the holidays.

I. H. Baron, Warner office manager, has gone to Florida for a winter vacation.

Theatre owners in this area have been warned to make sure their ushers are 16 years or older. Authorities have started a drive to enforce the state laws in this regard. Among those fined last week were the operators of bowling alleys employing 14-year-old pin boys.

The Jackson Park Theatre anti-trust suit has been set for hearing January 25 before Federal Judge Michael J. Igoe, according to the plaintiff's attorney, W. J. McConnell.

The Rex Theatre, formerly known as the Varsity, has been re-opened for the winter season.

The Chicago Daily News, in order to save newsprint, has dropped display advertising from December 23 to January 3. Theatre advertising, however, is being accepted.

CINCINNATI

Wes Huss, Jr., president of the Greater Cincinnati Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and Willis Vance, chairman of the Independent Exhibitors Forum, headed the hospitality committee at the "Open House" which was held at the new joint executive offices of the two organizations last Wednesday in the Keith Theatre Building.

Noah Schechter, who recently joined the RKO Theatres publicity department, was chairman in charge of arrangements for recording in motion pictures the Queen City Waste Paper Collection Drive Sunday, December 26. Warners did the filming, while Boy Scouts and Uncle Sam's boys in training at the University of Cincinnati and Xavier University gave their services for the occasion.

Howard Roudebusch, former Universal booker now stationed with the Army in Texas, was home on Christmas furlough and visited his former associates on the Row.

Bob Langer, Universal, spent the Yuletide holidays with his family in Indianapolis.

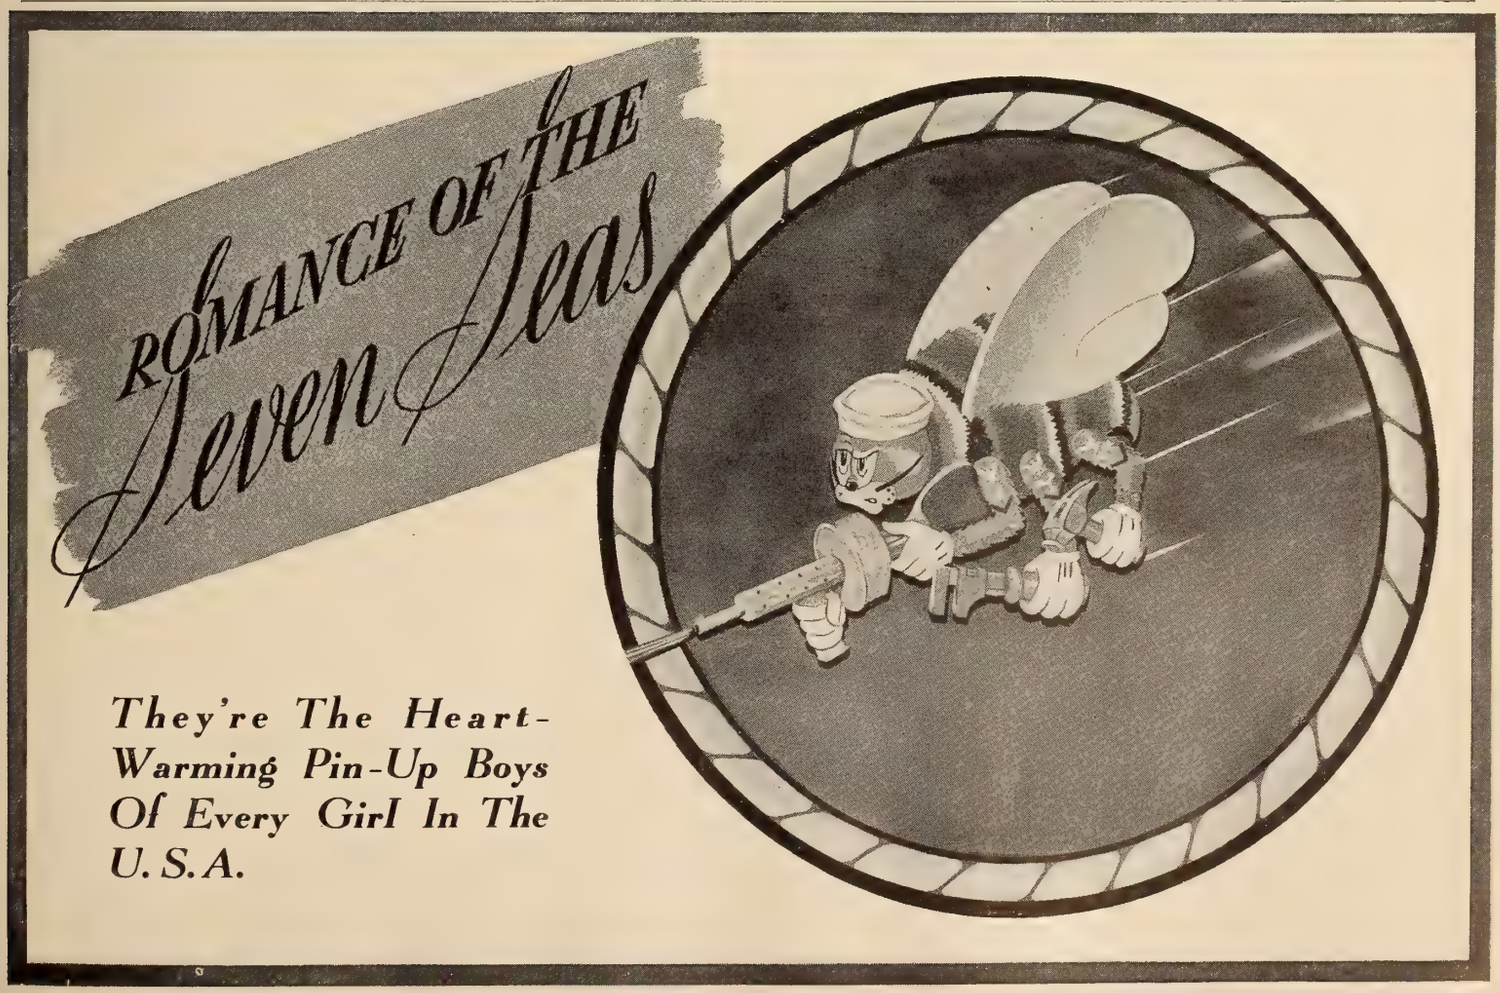
Twentieth Century-Fox held a Christmas party at the exchange for the children of Fox personnel. Fifteen youngsters were present, ice cream and cake were served and they were treated to a screening of "The Gang's All Here." The grownups enjoyed it as much as the kiddies.

Alvira Mary Carroll has been added to the Fox staff.

Irving Sochin, sales manager for Fox, was one who was hit by the present epidemic and was out for a week. He is back on the job. Other 20th-Foxers home with flu were Elvira Hill, Jane Neth, Virginia Philips, Jane Chris, and Jimmy Schrimpf. Manager Leavit Bugie, who was also among the victims, held his ground, however, and refused to be among the sick absentees.

J. J. Grady, 20th-Fox district manager, returned from New York in time for the holidays after attending a district managers' meeting in that city.

Fox personnel held their holiday celebration at the Mayfair Room in the Sinton Hotel with a 100 per cent attendance. Warners held their Christmas party at the Hotel Alms where District Manager Charles Rich and Branch Manager Jim Abrose were special guests.



The Cinema Club election had the following results: Ross Williams, RKO city salesman, president, and Columbia's Pete Niland, secretary and treasurer. Williams succeeds Rudy Knoepfle, who has been president since the inception of the club. An installation dinner is being planned for St. Valentine's Day.

MGM's Salesmen Harry Sheeran and Milt Jacobs left to be with their families for their holiday vacations. Mr. Sheeran headed for New York City, while Mr. Jacobs' destination was Buffalo. Vincent Flynn was another New Yorker who departed to join his folks for vacation leave.

Bill Carroll, Metro's Indianapolis salesman, is on his way to Cleveland where he will visit with his wife and son, Pat.

Visitors at the Row this week were C. F. Pfister, Troy, Ohio; Ross Filson, Pt. Pleasant, West Virginia; and Bertha Wolf of the Pastime Theatre, Owensboro, Kentucky.

CLEVELAND

The week before Christmas, always a slump week, this year sank to a new low at both first-run and neighborhood houses. Because of the early shopping drive, the slump started right after Thanksgiving and hit its peak last week which is accredited with being the worst box-office week on record. Theatres, however, are preparing for a gala New Year's Eve program.

January 13 will be an important date locally. On that day the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association will hold its annual meeting to elect officers. If the slate unanimously passed each year for ten years is repeated Ernest Schwartz will be elected to serve his eleventh term, with Albert E. Ptak as his running mate, as he has been for the past seven years. And George W. Erdmann will enter his 18th year as secretary of the organization.

Nate Schultz announces that "Women in Bondage" will play a week's engagement at Loew's Ohio Theatre starting January 7. This is the first Monogram picture to break into the local first-run situation. The picture has also been booked for the entire Warner circuit.

When Charles Francis Coe, under the auspices of the Cleveland Advertising Club speaks in Cleveland, he will address a full house. Lester Zucker, Columbia branch manager, in charge of the industry ticket sale, says that all tables reserved for members of the industry have been engaged.

Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager, was host to all Warner theatre managers and to the members of the theatre department at a cocktail party, dinner and entertainment at the Carter Hotel last Tuesday. Ninety guests were expected, but the list was slightly reduced by flu.

Harry Thomas, Monogram top official, paid Cleveland a one-day visit.

Louis Ratener has come on from Philadelphia to become local Warner contact manager. He succeeds Mike Conners, who returns to the company's New York office.

Nat Barach, National Screen Service branch manager, joined the growing army of flu victims last week.

Alice Roth is the newest member of the Warner publicity department. She was formerly with the local OPA office.

Variety Post of the American Legion will be host to some 500 service men and women on January 7 at St. John Cathedral canteen. A complete dinner will be served.

All exchanges held Christmas parties. Starting with MGM's party on Monday, the entertainment filtered through the week until the finals on Friday. Mark Larkin was in Cincy last week to arrange for Charles Francis Coe's talk there on January 12. Joe Oulahan, Paramount branch manager and Alan Moritz, Columbia branch manager, are in charge of the affair.

Martin Smith, president of Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, went to Asheville, S. C. to bring home Mrs. Smith, who has been ill, to Toledo for the holidays.

Jack Mundstuk, MGM salesman, spent Christmas with his folks in Detroit.

Last week's engagement of "Higher and Higher" at Warners' Hippodrome, was the picture's world premiere. The film was variously praised and panned by the critics, but a big crowd turned out for the midnight war workers' opening in spite of the zero weather.

Bernard Kranze, RKO branch manager, got back from a business trip to New York just in time to spend Christmas with his family.

J. Knox Strachen, Warner Theatre publicity director, has as holiday guest his mother whose home is in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Ernest Schwartz, president of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, and Mrs. Schwartz spent Christmas in Chicago with their daughter and grandchildren.

Pfc. Bob Nero, ex-Monogram shipper, is spending the holidays in England, compliments of the U. S. Army.

Air Cadet Arnold Nathanson, stationed at Maxwell Field, Ala. won leave to spend Christmas at home with his wife and child. Before enlisting, Nathanson was connected with the Warner theatre publicity department. Also home on leave were Corp. Guy Ellis, former Hippodrome assistant manager, from Camp Claiborne, La.; and Sergeant Tony Laurie, ex-Warner theatre manager, from Lockwood Army Air Base at Columbus, Ohio.

DENVER

Business in the first runs was "good to fine" over the Christmas holiday. "His Butler's Sister," double-billing with "Sherlock Holmes and the Spider Woman," day-dating at the Denver and Esquire, topped the town for money. "Riding High" turned in a fine gross at the Denham and was held over. All this in spite of a heavy flu epidemic.

On Christmas Eve the Fox theatres, 12, admitted all service men in uniform free of charge. Several thousand availed themselves of the opportunity.

More than a ton-and-a-half of fat—3,106 pounds—were turned in by children at a free matinee given by all theatres in Denver and metropolitan area. A child was admitted free for one pound of the makings of munitions.

The Rocky Mountain Screen club is holding open house at their club rooms on New Year's Day from 2 p.m. to midnight, with turkey being served. On Dec. 31 they are holding their usual New Year's Eve frolic. Both parties are for members and their guests only.

A. E. Cates of the Veta Theatre, Stratton, Neb., is a busy man. Aside from running the theatre he also edits the local newspaper.

Charles Klein of the Black Hills Amusement Co., Black Hills, S. D., together with his wife and Mrs. John Bertalero, have gone to New York to meet Lt. Col. John Bertalero, his partner. Bertalero has been in London for many months with the U. S. army.

Bob Spahn, manager of the Nile, Mitchell, S. D., has been returned to civilian life after several Army examinations which revealed an old injury that incapacitated him for active duty.

Pat McGee, general manager of the J. H. Cooper Theatres, reports to the Army on January 6.

A small fire damaged the Roxy, Hemingford Neb., but failed to put it out of business.

Rawleigh Hough, Imperial, Neb., exhibitor, will exhibit one of his bulls, Dandy by name, at the Denver stock show in January.

DES MOINES

The Iowa Theatre at Shenandoah, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Holdridge, was destroyed by fire which followed an explosion. The cause of the explosion was not determined. Both Mr. and Mrs. Holdridge, who lived in an apartment above the theatre, escaped from the burning building in their night clothes. The loss was estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000.

The ideal Iowa service parents selected in connection with the state-wide premiere of 20th Century-Fox's "Happy Land," are Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Taylor of Cedar Rapids. The film company presented the couple with a $500 War Bond at ceremonies held at the Paramount Theatre at Cedar Rapids on Christmas day. Walter Hoffman, New York representative, made the presentation. The couple have five sons in the armed service, including one who is a prisoner of the Japanese.

G. Ralph Branton, general manager of Tri-States Theatre Corp., and Mrs. Branton have announced the engagement of their daughter, Katherine Anne, to Ensign Vincent Michael Fennelly, U. S. N. R., of Brooklyn, N. Y. Miss Branton is a graduate of Northwestern University and attended St. Mary's of Notre Dame while Ensign Fennelly graduated from Holy Cross College and is now in foreign service with the Amphibious Command of the Navy.

William McGraw of Manson, Iowa has sold the Manson Theatre to G. H. Partlow of West Des Moines, who will take possession on January 1. Harry Huddleston has sold the Earl Theatre at Earlham to E. C. Kellogg.

I. J. Miels has purchased the new Palmer Theatre, which has opened at Palmer, Iowa and Frank Parizek has purchased the Avon Theatre at Dysart, Iowa, from Otto Reinke.

Marge Hodges, who served as cashier at the Universal exchange for the past five years, left Christmas day for Ardmore, Okla., where she joined her husband.

DETROIT

Detroit industrial leaders and war workers got a preview of the War Department's film report on war developments Monday when the special film, "War Department Report" was screened at the Hotel Book-Cadillac under the sponsorship of the Detroit Economic Club. The film is scheduled for regular releases in the theatres of the nation.

Theatre attendance in the Detroit area has been hit heavily the past few weeks because of the flu epidemic that has had more than 10 per cent of Detroiters in its hold. To combat the epidemic, Sol Krim, of the Krim Theatre, Six Mile and Woodward, passed out health masks to his patrons. The masks, of the same type as used in hospitals, were good for a three-column news photo in the Detroit Times. Hurting theatre attendance has been the regular warning of the health officials for people to avoid crowds. In the last few days evidence that the epidemic is abating has appeared, much to the relief of the local theatre owners.

Bill Sholl, formerly publicity director for the Fox Theatre, is now Lt. (jg) William Sholl and is addressed care of the Communications Office, Naval Air Station, San Diego, Calif.

The Ritz Brothers, always popular in Detroit in pictures or in person, are appearing in the flesh in the Holiday show at the Bowery night club.

A little mixup in the papers last week brought an instant notice from Lester E. Conley, president of the Berkley (Mich.) Board of Commerce, that he was still manager of the Berkley Theatre. A newspaper, in recounting that Mrs. Edith Benson, wife of William Benson, assistant manager of a Royal Oak theatre, had obtained an injunction restraining another woman from associating with her husband—wrongly identified Benson as the manager of the Berkley Theatre.

INDIANAPOLIS

The value of a new ordinance approved by the Indianapolis City Council will depend upon the manner of its enforcement. It provides a new approach to the problem of juvenile delinquency by authorizing the arrest and punishment of parents who permit their children to roam the streets after 10 p.m. The task of the police department will be one of determining when parental neglect justifies court action, and the cooperation of the courts will convince the community that the ordinance is more than just

THEATRE EQUIPMENT & MAINTENANCE

Published Every Fourth Week As A Special Feature of SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK

SINCE this department is of and for those who are concerned with the operation and maintenance of the theatre property, it may be pardoned if, on this first day of the new year, this particular corner of STR is disposed to strut a little pridefully for the handsome job that has been done during the more than two years since Pearl Harbor by those who manufacture equipment, those who distribute it, and those who operate it in the theatres.

As reported by Leaders of the Motion Picture Industry last week, the STR national survey showed that there were very few if any theatres closed for any very lengthy period because of inability to operate the equipment, or obtain necessary parts which had broken down under the stresses and strains imposed by war restrictions.

That's a right wonderful record, and the manufacturers, the dealers and the theatremen and projectionists of this great land may take a bow in response to well-merited applause.

There is a popular fashion of making resolutions at this time of the year (we're providing very good resolutions in a novel form for managers and projectionists in this issue) and that being the case, the equipment branch of the business can make one little resolve, which, if lived up to until the day of Victory, will serve the great purpose of bringing to ultimate success the fine program of action already established.

The men who make parts to keep their equipment running in theatres, the dealers who service the theatres, the theatre owners, managers and projectionists, have merely to resolve that they'll continue being as good as they've been in order to finish up with the greatest record of any branch of the film industry during the war.

Since it's easy to keep on doing what one's been doing, the chances of the equipment branch making good right up to the finish line are excellent indeed.

There are, fortunately, no "don'ts" necessary in the resolution we hope to see adopted by unanimous action in the equipment field this 1944. All that has to be done is to continue the good job, which after two trying years of valiant and successful effort, surely must be coming close to being a habit, and a noble distinguishing mark, of the equipment branch of this great industry.

Landmark Theatres

The Astor, New York's Most Individual Picture Theatre

Through Nineteen Years It Has Adhered to a Policy of Pictures Only

After almost two decades, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Astor Theatre, famed landmark on Broadway, remains undoubtedly the most famous movie "showcase" on New York's Main Stem. MGM blue-ribbon pictures have been picked for first screenings here over a nineteen-year span. While newer and larger cinema houses have sprouted during the same period in the downtown Broadway and Radio City areas, the Astor has enjoyed the distinctive prestige and tradition. Not only has it housed some of Hollywood's most memorable attractions, but it has surrounded them with some of the most novel campaigns ever devised in the field of motion pictures.

Proving Ground for Showmanship

The Astor claims a place in the spotlight of unusual theatres for many reasons beyond and above the tradition it has earned as a motion picture landmark of the Broadway scene. For it is notable as the most distinctive theatre operation from a strictly "industry" standpoint. It is the only motion picture theatre which, for the full period of its nineteen-year history, has been entirely under the direction and control of a distributing company for the presentation of that company's own product. Thus, the Astor has been a laboratory as well as a "showcase" for specials produced and distributed by MGM. As such, the theatre has been the means of proving in action the judgements and decisions of MGM producers; the company's chief executives in setting policies for the handling of certain product selected as specials; the advertising and publicity director's plans and execution of the showmanship methods recommended for the merchandising of the pictures, and, as well, the technical procedures for the projection as evolved and executed by the director of projection and sound for the theatre company affiliated with MGM.

Home of Great Shows

Probably no showman would disagree with the statement that the Astor has been the most famous roadshow house in the country. Originally a leading Broadway legitimate house, it was converted into a number one movie spot in 1925, with "The Big Parade" as the opening attraction. This picture was presented at two-a-day screenings for twenty-two months, and made movie history in a big way.

The second longest two-a-day attraction at the Astor was "Gone With the Wind," which ran from December 19, 1939 until October 13, 1940. Seventeen months later it returned for a continuous-run repeat showing at the same theatre, thus becoming the only film ever to have come back to the Astor for a return engagement.

In between the middle '20's and the '40's the Astor "premiered" such notable two-a-day productions as "The Crowd," "The Trail of '98," the original "Broadway Melody," "The Hollywood Revue," "The Big House," "The Champ," "Grand Hotel," "Captains Courageous," "Dinner at Eight," "Eskimo," "The Great Ziegfeld" and "The Good Earth."

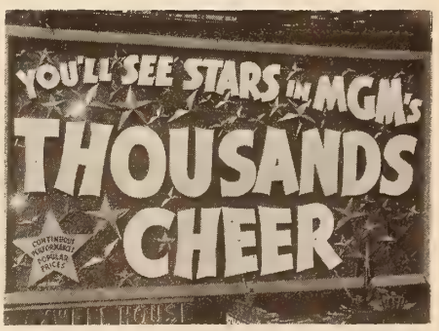
During the popular price, continuous-run policy which has prevailed a good part of the time in recent years, long run records have been established with "Pygmalion," "Good-bye Mr. Chips," "For Me and My Gal," "The Human Comedy" and other pictures.

"Pygmalion" ran from December 8, 1938 to May 14, 1939 and its immediate successor, "Good-bye Mr. Chips," carried on from May 16, 1939 to November 12, 1939. These two films hold the house record for lengths of engagement in the bracket of continuous-run pictures, with "The Human Comedy" and "Best Foot Forward" close behind.

"Cry 'Havoc,'" the present tenant at the theatre, is the forty-fifth MGM Astor tenant, not counting the repeat run of "Gone With the Wind."

Unusual Ad Ideas

Progressive and unusual advertising ideas—many of them later to find extensive application by theatres everywhere in this country—unique theatre displays and exploitation and publicity, notable refinements as well as unique screen presentation methods, have been used at the Astor Theatre.



It has been remarked earlier in this article that many far more elaborate theatres have grown up all around the Astor since its establishment nineteen years ago as a home of the motion picture. But, more remarkable than that is the fact that in a location that is perhaps the most competitive in the world, the Astor has never swerved from its policy of pictures only.

With the ebb and flow of competition and changing public tastes, theatres with which the Astor has competed have progressed, not to say switched, from one policy to another. There have been elaborate stage shows, "name" bands, vaudeville headliners, even whole musical shows used as added attractions at the other theatres. The Astor has gone its serene way presenting pictures, only pictures—and has set some of the most notable record for grosses and length-of-run now standing in the history book of the motion picture. Moreover, at the Astor (which could be the exception proving the rule) it has been demonstrated time and again that there can be a switch in policy from two-a-day to continuous run, from one price to another without those dire consequences most theatremen experience, and complain about bitterly, when special attractions calling for increased scales or restricted number of shows per day come along from the distributing companies.

SIGNPOSTS OF HISTORY. The big displays on the front of the Astor have sketched the development of showmanship and lighting through the period of nineteen years, from the first big mazda sign for "The Big Parade" through the evolution of colorful arrangement and motion via flashers and traveling attraction boards up to the recent dimout prescribed by military authorities for the Broadway sector.

HOWARD DIETZ. Vice-president of Loew's, Inc., director of advertising, publicity and exploitation, who has taken personal supervision of the campaigns for MGM pictures presented at the Astor since its beginnings as a motion picture theatre.

SILAS F. SEADLER. Advertising manager of Loew's, Inc. His execution of advertising for the Astor presentations of MGM films has figured prominently in the many progressive and outstanding newspaper displays which have featured showmanship at the theatre.

Noted for Fine Projection

The Astor is noted for its excellent projection and sound. No picture opens there "cold," for every presentation is planned carefully and well-rehearsed. Several pictures have had the benefit of some very unusual treatment—even "stunts" that have made projection an ally of production. There was, as an extreme example, the "Fantom Screen" stunt used for the presentation of "The Trail of '98," way back in 1928.

The "Fantom Screen" was evolved by Lester Isaac, then as now chief of projection for Loew's Theatres, at the suggestion (so it was said at the time) of Irving Thalberg, the great producer who reached the heights of his notable achievements as an MGM producer and studio executive. The spectacular wow of "The Trail of '98" was a great snowslide. The effect of this realistic camerawork was heightened by a piece of showmanship of the projectionist by use of an enlarged screen—the wide-angle projection that had been employed for many pictures previously. However, an added touch was a moving screen that came forward to the very footlight-trough simultaneously with the switch from normal screen to the "magnascope" screen. The "Fantom" moved forward, its masking extended to enlarge the projection surface, and the entire scene of the huge snowslide became closer as well as larger to the spectator.

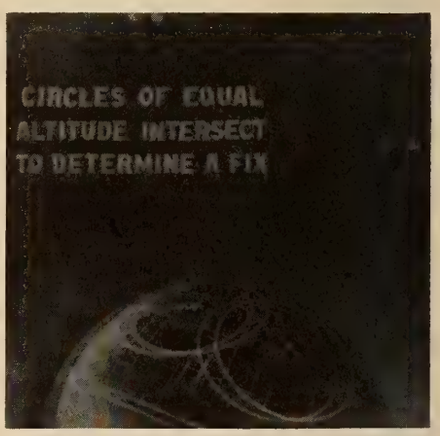
LESTER ISAAC. Director of sound and projection of Loew's Theatres and the personal supervisor of projection at the Astor Theatre for all of the big MGM pictures presented there.

At the Astor, Isaac has successfully proved his theories and ideas about screen masking, the house lighting control and color he advocates for best screen effect, as well as developing improvements and individual treatments for certain pictures. He brought the handling of good Technicolor projection to a new high with the presentation of "Gone With the Wind" there.

Revolutionized Displays

When it was first opened to the public as a movie theatre, the Astor revolutionized Broadway motion-picture lobby displays. The old era of movie lobbies, featuring velvet drapes and potted palms, was swept away over night, with the Astor setting a new pattern in standard for imaginative decor. The Astor has been famous too for its excellent acoustics and for the giant signs that have been created atop the theatre for successive pictures. Some of those which are best remembered on Broadway are the ones featuring the engagements of "The Hollywood Revue," "The Good Earth" and "Captains Courageous."

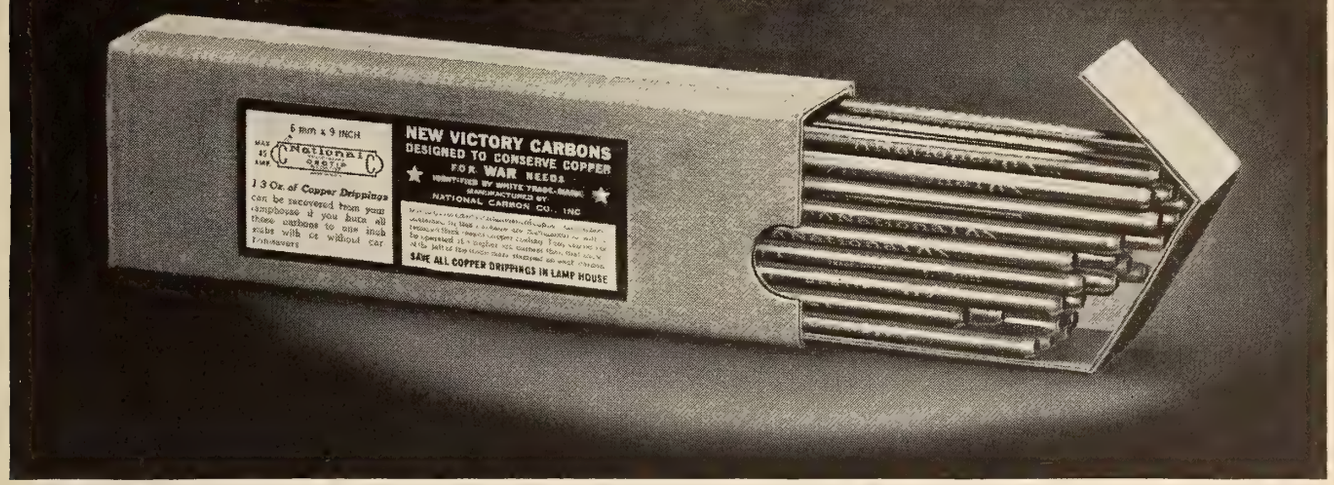
The opening night of "The Hollywood Revue" saw a bevy of Chester Hale hand-picked chorus girls standing amid the twelve foot letters of the sign, as the novel display was unveiled before a Times Square throng. A huge realistic smoke-emanating dragon featured "The Good Earth" sign. For "Captains Courageous," a replica of the schooner appearing in the picture was constructed at a New York shipyard and anchored on Broadway amid a galaxy of bright lights. Thirty-eight feet long, nearly seventy feet overall, it attracted some of the most enthusiastic comment ever given any theatrical or cinema display.



For the first time in the history of Broadway signs the electric letters of the original "Broadway Melody" appeared in alternating colors.

The sheeted brass silhouettes utilized for the figures of "Romeo and Juliet" were an unusual touch in film exploitation.

More than 130 mirrored star replicas were constructed from tiny mirrors for the sign used for "Thousands Cheer." This idea was utilized in a different and even more elaborate way for "Cry 'Havoc'" when tens of thousands of sectional mirrors each about one inch square, were put together to form the letters of the sign title.



Among unique advertising campaigns that first originated at the Astor were those with "Queen Christina" and "Pygmalion." In the former, a daily teaser campaign gradually filled in the outlines in the sketch of Greta Garbo and attracted enormous comment. "Pygmalion" saw a novel cartoon campaign which used provocative caricatures of George Bernard Shaw and set a trend for similar later unusual campaigns in movie advertising.

On one occasion the Astor Theatre was used as a museum. This was just prior to the opening of "Marie Antoinette," when the house was ingeniously converted into a museum containing a storehouse of interesting data and material, sketches, costumes and properties relevant to the period of the picture. Thousands of people visited the theatre admission free for some weeks before the film was launched.

NEW 3-DIMENSIONAL PHOTOS. The photo above rather inadequately illustrates a slide used in a new technique for three-dimensional photography by use of Poloroid, and known as the Vectograph process. It is the invention of Edwin H. Land, president of Poloroid Corp., and Joseph Mahler. A specially treated plastic sheet is used to make slides which are used in a newly perfected "speed up" technique to instruct military navigation students and teaches them more quickly than ever before to steer by the stars, since it eliminates need for training in the interpretation of depth in flat charts and diagrams. A viewer, similar to that used for stereoscopic movies made by a two-color process, in which Poloroid lenses are inserted—one lens polorizing vertically, the other horizontally—is used to view the slides which are projected on a screen. Motion picture men have expressed the greatest interest in the development and its possible application to motion picture photography and projection.

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK WITH YOUR VICTORY CARBONS

EXHIBITORS and projectionists across America are to be congratulated for their splendid contribution to the war effort by conserving and recovering much of the copper plating of their "National" Victory Carbons . . . copper that would have been completely lost but for their cooperation.

Naturally the copper coating on Victory Carbons is as thin as practicable, because copper is a vital war material. This calls for strict maintenance of arc current within the recommended range, and careful adjustment of the carbon feed ratio.

Satisfied theater audiences everywhere are testimony to the constant attention being given to the current and feed factors.

In addition, tons of copper drippings and copper plate stripped from carbon stubs have been turned back into production channels as your Government urged.

Your continued cooperation in saving copper is still of utmost importance, for copper needs go right on expanding as America's war production grows. You've done a splendid job. Keep up the good work!

As a reminder, check the table below for carbon trim and current values specified for your equipment. A bulletin describing completely the operation of the Victory High Intensity Carbons will be sent promptly on request. Write for it today.

JANUARY 2nd to 31st 1944

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SATURDAY
2 Check and order supplies for the month. Clear the desk for action!	3 Check projection for focus, light, sound quality, etc. Discuss improvements with projectionists.	4 Check fuel supply with comparative consumption chart. Drain boiler and fill with fresh water.	5 Check exit doors and panic bolts daily. See that rubbish or obstructions are removed.	6 Check house with cleaners. See that gum is removed, floors scrubbed, carpet on stairs tight, etc.	7 Check outside lighting for burned-out globes and marquee copy after each program change.	8 Start setting details of 4th War Loan Drive opening January 18.
9 Check plan for removal of snow from marquee and auditorium roof promptly.	10 Check masking and curtain controls for proper framing of picture. Keep controls oiled.	11 Inspect marquee roof for debris and leaks. Check flasher and be sure spare fuses are available when needed.	12 Insist on written film condition report on each show for your records, reel by reel, from operators.	13 Rehearse Air Raid procedure with staff checking equipment in place to cope with fire.	14 Instruct staff on importance of checking temperature of house regularly during show hours.	15 Check belts on all equipment and see that they are tight. Also that equipment is oiled.
16 Check carbon supply and order next month's stock. Check carbon consumption, turn in salvaged carbon.	17 Check basement for cleanliness; stairs and floors clear of rubbish, loose bannisters, fire extinguisher refills.	18 Remind employes to report loose wiring connections; lamps too close to draperies and danger of paint rags.	19 Test fire hose to full length and see that it is drained and dried properly before replacing.	20 Check ushers' room for tidyness, also condition of uniforms.	21 Check sockets on all extension cords for loose connections, broken casing, exposed wires, etc.	22 Check aisle lights daily for burned out globes, loose or exposed wires and seat attachment.
23/30	24/31	25 Check seats for loose feet, noisy action, rough surfaces, torn upholstery. Have cleaners report daily.	26 Check box-office for cleanliness, ticket machine for oil, price sign condition, drapes.	27 Change oil in bearings of all ventilating equipment and check thermostatic controls, clocks, etc.	28 Have theatre aired for a short time daily. Foul air wastes heat and discourages patronage.	29 Check plumbing in rest rooms for efficient operation. Guard against leaks and odors.

Recommend 'Equalization' Recording System

Research Council Report Details Advantages of Method Approved

The Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture, Arts and Sciences released a bulletin last week in which the organization's Basic Sound Committee recommends the Pre- and Post-Equalization method for adoption by studios in recording sound.

The report, titled "Pre- and Post-Equalization for Studio Use," details the committee' consideration leading to adoption of the Recommended Practice.

Nine Studios Approve

Studios approving the practice are: Columbia, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount, Republic, RKO Radio, Samuel Goldwyn, 20th Century-Fox, Universal and Warner Bros.

At the outset of the report it is stated that "Ever since the advent of sound on film, there has been a recognized need for an increased volume range."

Citing the numerous systems that have proposed and which are in use for obtaining the desired increase in volume range, the report declares that each has been found to have its advantages and limitations, but the committee finds the pre- and post-equalization system or method superior for average studio and motion picture requirements.

Theatre Equipment Not Affected

The recommended practice will have no immediate effect on the type of equipment, or adjustments to equipment in theatres. "Because of the relatively small amount of equipment in the studios compared with the amount of equipment in the theatres," the report concludes, "new procedures and equipment are often used in recording before their use is practicable in the theatre. As yet pre- and post-equalization has not been developed satisfactorily for theatre use and is not so recommended in this report."

More Advantageous Distribution

"The objective," the report continues, "in pre-equalizing is to gain more advantageous energy distribution over the frequency spectrum to be recorded. In normal recordings, most of the objectionable noise occurs in the higher frequency range where the energy level of the desired signal is low as compared to the energy level of the lower frequencies. Thus the volume range of present recording is limited at the upper volume level by overloads caused largely by the high amplitude of low frequencies and at the lower volume level by objectionable noise blanketing the relatively low amplitude of high frequency energy. The pre-equalizer suppresses the lower frequencies, thus higher percentage modulation of high frequencies may be attained before overload occurs. The post-equalizer in the reproducing circuit returns the energy distribution to normal and in doing so attenuates the high frequencies and also the film noise, resulting in quieter recordings and increased volume range.

Reduces Distortion in Recording

"Pre- and post-equalization has the added advantage of reducing intermodulation distortion in recording. In general, the amount of intermodulation increases as the difference in amplitude of any two frequencies increases and intermodulation is most objectionable when occurring between a low frequency and the higher frequencies. Pre-equalization decreases the difference in amplitude between low and high frequencies and thus decreases the amount of objectionable intermodulation effects.

"The amount of pre- and post-equalization which can be used in practice is limited to the point at which the increase in low frequency recorded and reproducer rumble becomes objectionable. The post-equalizer, which is complementary to the pre-equalizer, raises the low frequency energy as compared to the high frequency energy so any rumble or low-frequency disturbances are brought up in proportion to the amount of equalization used.

Equalizing Effects Tested

"In the past, a form of pre-equalization has been taken advantage of, both from the peaks in the earlier type microphones and from high frequency modulator resonance. Many tests have been made using equalizers with different amounts of equalization and different equalizer slope characteristics."

Data on measurements of the maximum intensity levels for orchestras and voice characteristics showing that the peak energy occurs in dialog in the neighborhood of 500 to 700 cycles, whereas in the case of music the peak intensity takes place at somewhat lower frequency, are cited, and the pre- and post-equalizer characteristics are illustrated by a chart.

The report states that "experience to date with equalizers as herein recommended indicates that only an improvement and no penalty should be observed in orchestral recordings. However, in dialog and sound effects where an abnormally high amplitude of high frequencies is encountred, the recording system will have a greater tendency to overload. The equalizer selected seems to give a maximum of improvement with the introduction of a minimum of detrimental effects."

Loren Ryder, chairman; Daniel J. Bloomberg, Leslie I. Carey, C. W. Faulkner, Wesley C. Miller, William Mueller, Clem Portman, Gordon Sawyer, S. Twining sign the report as members of th Basic Sound Committee.

Four Goldman Theatres in Cincinnati Redecorated

A complete renovation program is in progress at the four Cincinnati theatres of the Jack F. Goldman circuit. The work on the Roosevelt, Lincoln, Beecher and Regal, which cater to colored patrons consists of painting, new wall tapestries, draperies and mural paintings. The work was planned by Novelty Scenic Studios, New York, and will be completed under the direct supervision of that company.

Iowan Plans Post-War Theatre

Preparing for the postwar period, Wayne A. Dutton, well-known Iowa exhibitor and owner of the Castle Theatre at Manchester, has purchased ground lots at Manchester for the construction of a new theatre after the war. Dutton's plans now are to erect a two-story building housing the theatre and apartments on the second floor, as well as an office.

Resolved

That I Will Be A Better Manager in 1944

WHEREAS; I am conscious of the importance of my theatre to the people of the community I serve. Of the vital part entertainment plays in the building of wartime morale. Of my theatre's conduct as a local meeting place. Of its reputation for cleanliness, safety and courteous service. Of its stake in victory and the postwar era. And

WHEREAS; I recognize my responsibility as a community leader, businessman and private citizen to give the best that I can offer of my time and talents to the promotion and furtherance of every worthwhile cause affecting the community or nation. And

WHEREAS; I realize the need to conserve supplies, maintain equipment and utilize my available manpower judiciously in the interest of the war effort,

I HEREBY pledge that I will be a better theatre manager in 1944 and—

RESOLVE—that I will conduct my theatre in a manner befitting a community institution to the end that it may be regarded with respect and enjoy the goodwill of its patrons. That it may be a safe haven for relaxation through my personal checking of exits, lighting, heating and all equipment involving the public welfare as well as through staff education in the proper handling of all emergencies.

THAT I will cooperate in all worthwhile wartime activities in my community and encourage my employes to do likewise. That all salvage materials including copper drippings shall be turned over to the proper authorities. That the theatre will realistically participate in War Bond Drives, Blood Donor Campaigns, Civilian Defense, The March of Dimes, Recruiting and any other opportunities to serve.

THAT I will instruct the members of my staff on the latest conservation techniques to the end that the life of the theatre's equipment and furnishings are prolonged with a minimum of replacement. That I will supervise and inspect these steps to ascertain that they are faultlessly carried out.

THAT I will personally see to it that every degree of care possible be exercised in the handling of film that my fellow exhibitors will not be forced to show scratched or mutilated prints as a result of the carelessness of my operators. That I will return prints and accessories promptly and see to it that the film cans are not damaged in handling.

THAT I will be truthful in my advertising, avoiding misrepresentation to the end that readers will have confidence in what I say. That I will explore every avenue of promotion in the interest of a prosperous business year and that I will diligently cooperate with my fellow showmen in all movements bearing on the welfare of the motion picture industry.

That I will conduct myself and my affairs with dignity that I may set a worthy example for the young people who look with childish admiration upon the "movie man" of their community.

Lighting

Proper Servicing Can Enrich Your Lighting

As indicated by a theatre architect who was quoted in an article appearing in this department last month, one of the notable features of the postwar theatre will be the application to showmanship of many advancements made in the art and science of lighting. While theatremen await with eagerness this new and improved tool for the achievement of better shows for the public, the alert showmen of today are making light work for them today.

The utility lighting of the auditorium is a factor of importance to show values as well as safety for patrons in permitting proper levels of visibility for people entering or leaving seats.

Modern notions of proper treatment of theatre patrons are a direct and aggressive challenge to the old ideas which prevailed in the legitimate theatre and the early picture houses where lighting during performances was too dim either for comfort or safety, and at show breaks was a contrasting, and eye-shattering change to blazing glare that burst upon the startled audience.

This wide difference—from too dim lighting during the show, to blinding glare at the breaks, has been banished by intelligent use of light in the plan and operation of the utility lighting of the auditorium.

The theatre manager finds an easy method of determining the quality of his lighting in observing the difference between conditions during performance and at break times when the full lights are turned on. He can further judge the quality of his lighting by considering the fundamentals of lighting systems as planned for modern picture theatres.

The various types of lighting systems are divided into two main classifications: direct, and indirect.

The four methods of employing direct lighting are: pendant units of translucent glass, parchment or fabric (an inexpensive system to install and easily maintained, but regarded by most moderns to be unattractive in appearance); decorated diffusing glass panels, or "skylights," set in the ceiling (not very common in picture theatres and having the disadvantage of creating contrasty areas in the ceiling because the light does not illuminate surrounding surfaces of the ceiling); large chandeliers (usually decorative pieces which are employed as an integral part of the general architectural or decorative scheme); wall brackets (successfully used but likely, if not properly designed for their particular location, to distract the eyes of the people sitting in the auditorium by obtruding in the field of view).

The indirect lighting systems follow one of three general types. These are: pendant indirect units (usually with illuminated glass panels incorporated in their design, or of the luminous bowl type); cove and wall-box units (generally very effective in affording the proper amount of illumination and working into the design of auditoriums); floodlights (used mostly in large auditoriums to flood certain decorative features or areas with a bath of light).

Periodic inspection (to determine if the proper lamps have been used in replacing burned out bulbs, and maintenance of the necessary standards of cleanliness) is the first essential to good management of the lighting system.

There is another essential which can be attained only in periodic check-ups by careful observation. The manager, having established in his own mind the effects which should result from the system installed in his house, should call for a special "dress rehearsal" of the lighting operation. With the lights set for performance, let him walk about the house and occupy seats in different sections of the orchestra, as well as the balcony. From these positions—which are those from which some of his patrons see his show—let him judge whether the system is giving the amount of light it was designed to deliver. From each selected observation point let him also observe the effect when lights are turned on full for the break periods.

Lighting men who are acquainted with the quality of the system is installed in the majority of picture theatres say that theatremen need not wait for the great improvements of postwar manufacture and design in order to improve their lighting. They can do a lot by efficient use of what they have; this improvement to be effected, in most cases, by better maintenance of the lighting equipment and, in some cases, by some resourcefulness in the use of color that can be sprayed or dipped on the ordinary white incandescent lamps.

That I will be a better projectionist in 1944

WHEREAS; I believe I am the member of a craft whose outstanding members have merited and received high honors in the industry and whose rank and file uphold the American tradition of resourcefulness, honest effort and enthusiastic devotion to the improvement of their craft and the machinery used thereby. And

WHEREAS; I am aware of the necessity of wartime conservation of equipment and motion picture film as a result of material shortages and the salvage of copper and other needed metals.

I HEREBY pledge that I will be a better projectionist in 1943 and—

RESOLVE—That my first consideration will be for the maintenance of equipment in order that people of the community served by my theatre will continue to have the benefits of morale-building entertainment and relaxation that is wholesome.

THAT I will perform each day the necessary functions to assure the proper timing of my show, the best screen results, the continued efficient operation of my equipment, the longest life to prints I handle and project; doing this in the firm knowledge that if each day's duties are diligently performed those additional inspections, adjustments and repairs to be taken care of at other periods such as monthly, semi-annually and annually will be equally well attended.

THAT I will inspect all fuses, fuse terminals, rheostat connections and switch blades and hinges, every day. Inspect each projector, checking tensions and take-ups and film gate, every day. Check clearance of all sprocket idler rollers, each arc mechanism, the tension and condition of carbon contacts and arc feeding mechanism, every day.

THAT I will lubricate all points of all equipment calling for daily lubrication treatment, every day. I will run projectors for several minutes and clean excess oil from the projector; clean projection lenses and arc condensers; clean sound optical systems on each projector, every day.

THAT I will check meter readings for all tubes and exciter lamps and note the appearance and condition of each tube, every day. That I will check separately on each loud speaker and check each projector for equalized sound level, every day. That I will check operation of port shutter release control, every day.

THAT I will examine the daily schedule and consult with the manager if there is any question regarding the running of the show or the condition of the film or the equipment.

THAT I will do my utmost to cultivate a spirit of complete cooperation between myself and my department and the manager.

THAT I will never be guilty of any laxity that might cause fire or accident imperiling the lives of the patrons and my fellow workers in the theatre, nor the property itself or other property in the community.

Projection

How Can Managers Improve Projection?

"The theatre manager cannot escape the responsibility, nor can he or she ask immunity from criticism, if projection in the theatre under his or her control is not as good as it should be."

The quote marks enclose words in a statement made recently by a veteran theatre executive who returned to New York from an extensive trip about the southern territory and who recited to this reporter some of the incidents he observed and the conversations he held with managers in a number of large cities and small towns.

According to the returned traveler (who, in his capacity as a manager some years ago was known as a stickler for good projection) there is a tendency in all parts of the country today to regard the projection phase of theatre operation as a work for a specialized department—a department isolated, so to say, from the other branches of the establishment. Under any such reasoning as this, the returned traveler points out, one could well look for progress of the theory to relieve the manager of responsibility for such things as janitorial work, staff discipline and property maintenance. If such "departmentalization" of the theatre takes place, there is little for the manager to do but look pretty about the premises, take the bows for a good show from departing patrons who have come to the theatre either much of their own accord or in response to some national advertising put on by the distributor or producer of the main feature.

The theatre manager can do a great deal about projection in his house. True, most managers have not the technical knowledge nor skill necessary to operate a projector, let alone to personally effect refinements that will give the screen added zest because of clever use of the theatre's projection and lighting apparatus.

It is a distinguishing mark of good projection that the same is entirely unobtrusive and that the best projection is that which goes entirely unnoticed by the average spectator. The manager, however, is not, or should not be, an "average" spectator. He is manager because he knows his job—and there's no more important job in the theatre than to give the patrons the very best rendition of the performance which has been recorded on celluloid by producer, writer, director, actors and cameramen.

The manager, as well as the projectionist, knows that the fundamental of good projection is a rock-steady picture on the screen. If there is perceptible unwanted motion to the picture (due to poor projection) it is up to the manager to know the reasons why. This he can learn very readily by asking his projectionist for an explanation. If the man who operates the apparatus can prove that the difficulty is due to conditions which are inherent in the machine because of wear and cannot be corrected unless necessary repairs and part replacements are obtained, it is up to the manager to find a way to have the needed improvement made to the machine.

The cooperation between manager and the technical men is something for which the manager is responsible. He can cultivate in his projection department the spirit which will enable his theatre to get the best results on the screen—but only by working with his men. He owes it to himself, as well as to men who do good work, to compliment the projectionist upon a good performance just as he should ask for an explanation of the reasons for some faults observed in the projection.

A great many unnecessary inquiries to the projectionist regarding faulty projection can be avoided by having a system whereby the men in the booth report on the condition of prints delivered for the new show. Likewise, by mere observation when looking into the booth on periodical trips about his plant, if the manager finds everything ship-shape and having the appearance of orderliness, then he can be reasonably sure that his workmen are continuing to live up to the standards of their craft. If he sees that the first projectionist on for the day is in ahead of time to make those necessary preparations, such as lubricating and cleaning the projectors, adjusting parts which should be tended before beginning the day's run, he also has a right to feel that his projection department is up on its toes. If he makes it a practice to include his projectionists in his "family circle" conferences, he will have the benefits of much informed advice on the condition of equipment as well as, perhaps, receiving many valuable suggestions as to ways of making each particular show more smooth and satisfying from a standpoint of rounded entertainment presented with all the polish and skill of modern picture showmanship.

Fluorescent Tubes Lighted by Wireless Electronic Power

Lamps that were lighted by wireless electronic power were demonstrated to a group of prominent architects and designers in New York recently by Samuel G. Hibben, director of applied lighting for the Westinghouse Lamp Division. The demonstration was of laboratory models of new lamps to indicate possible postwar uses of lamps and light, and included in the articles exhibited was a 10,000-watt (one-fifth the brightness of the surface of the sun) mercury vapor lamp.

Walking about the room carrying brilliant, vari-colored fluorescent tubes fully lighted although they were unconnected to sockets or electrical wiring, Mr. Hibben said:

"Although practical use of electric power transmitted without wires—except for signal purposes—is probably many years away, the spectacular strides in development of electron generating tubes we have made during World War II seem to be leading in that direction.

"Actually, these lamps are not connected with any power source. They are electronically harnessed to a beam of high frequency radio energy generated here in this room by a pre-war diathermy set such as your doctor might use to treat a cold in your chest.

"Generators vastly more powerful than this therapeutic apparatus are serving in wartime radio and communications equipment by transmitting radio waves in beams. This engineering advance, now applied wholly to fighting the war, conceivably may bring about the peacetime expansion of wireless power," the lighting expert continued, adding:

"And we've also discovered that we can use the tubular-shaped fluorescents in other than the conventional straight form. Because we can bend the tubing.

"These lamps can be made because we have learned to handle glass tubing much better, aided by studies of glass which in itself possesses properties of fluorescence, supplemental to the present phosphor coatings on the inside of clear tubing.

"Incidentally," Mr. Hibben commented, "these phosphors are playing a significant part in protecting our fighting men. Fabrics impregnated with them line parachute cases so that a pilot downed at sea or in the jungle can be spotted by rescue craft; miles of phosphor-coated cloth tape provide luminous markings on invasion beaches, phosphor-coated controls glow on submarines and luminous signs made visible by phosphors mark escape hatches of merchant ships."

Seizing what seemed to be an ordinary incandescent lamp bulb, Mr. Hibben banged it like a gavel. He explained that it was a shatterproof bulb designed for use in shipyards where regular light bulbs were an accident hazard because they often were broken by welding sparks. A coating of a special lacquer makes a "jacket" around the bulb and a sturdy filament adds to its shock resistance. It can be broken, but it will not shatter, he said.

"Another hazard eliminated by this shatterproof bulb," the lighting engineer continued, "was lamp breakage on aircraft carriers. Used beneath the flight deck, these rough service lamps will not break from the jarring impact of a landing plane. In post-war home workshops, garages and factories, they will provide a needed safety factor."

The incandescent lamp, by far the most widely used today, has been developed to the practical limits of efficiency as a lighting unit, but its successful application to industrial processes as a heat source seems to indicate a whole new field of application in post-war homes, Mr. Hibben said.

"This all-glass lamp," the lighting expert told the architects and designers, "is just the sealed beam landing light for an army bomber. By replacing its light filament with a special high-resistance element, it will produce 95 per cent heat and only 5 per cent light. This is the type of filament used in the infrared or radiant heat.

"Another form of the mercury vapor lamp is the high wattage, high intensity unit which, for its size, produces the most brilliant light in the world. In high factory bays—with 40, 50 or even 100-foot ceilings—3,000-watt mercury vapor lamps are just being introduced as an efficient new light medium because they give, for their size, more light than any other lamp.

"For example," Mr. Hibben continued, holding up a five-foot 3,000-watt mercury vapor lamp, "to produce the amount of light output of this one lamp would require a string of 40-watt fluorescent lamps 228 feet long. There seems to be no physical limit to the wattage or size of mercury vapor lamp we can produce."

Management

Regular Fire Drills A Vital Investment

While caution against conditions which might cause fire in the theatre can greatly reduce the probability of fire, unfortunately even the most scrupulous care cannot remove the possibility of a fire that may occur when patrons are in the house. Consequently, the safe theatre is one in which there is careful preparation for the emergency of fire as well as very particular attention to cleanliness which eliminates flame-breeding heaps of rubbish, or exposed electric wiring, or unsafe practices in the handling of film in the projection booth.

A well-drilled theatre staff in these days of manpower shortage and rapid turnover of help, is, indeed, a tribute to the administrative and executive ability of the manager. But, no matter how much may be forgiven for laxity in other departments, there can never be any forgiveness for lack of training and organization to meet an emergency in which the safety of the public is involved. Therefore, the fire drill must come first of all activities of an organizational character.

The fire drill is a commonly-practiced activity of the great majority of theatres. In all cases where there is efficiency in this department, the drill is not something that reflects casual ideas or notions thought up by the manager or owner of the theatre. It is something based on the advice of authorities who form their conclusions on the basis of facts and experience in meeting the emergencies of fire in theatres. Most theatres have such drill organization rules set forth in the clear-cut terms of a written code or plan. Where no such authenticated code is in use, one should be worked up by the man in charge.

The particular conditions of the theatre should be taken into account in the arrangements and scheme that is followed in the drills and which will go into action immediately should fire strike.

The basic requirements of the drill cover several points. These include:

Basic Requirements of Drill

1. Provision for some signal—by blinking of certain lights, or flashing a coded symbol on the screen—to notify all employes that a fire has occurred in the house. This form of alarm should be such as to be understood only by the personnel, in order that the patrons may not become alarmed before provision has been made to clear the house in accordance with pre-arranged plans.

2. Immediately fire has been discovered, the fire department must be notified. If there is no alarm box in the theatre, the location of the nearest box must be known to certain members of the staff. The one appointed to sound the alarm to the fire department, or his or her alternates, thus being able to proceed speedily to that post of appointed duty. If a street box is used, the person giving the alarm must be instructed to remain at that point until the fire department arrives, in order to direct them to the scene of the fire.

3. The performance must be kept going if possible—and if at all possible, particularly some music via the sound system.

4. New employes must be informed immediately on their joining the organization of the appointed tasks they are to perform and the details of the signal or alarm system used in the particular theatre. They also must be acquainted with the location of fire-fighting apparatus and have explained to them how they are to act should some one of various types of fire occur —whether they are to turn in the alarm, or proceed to a station to obtain and operate a fire-extinguisher.

5. All members of the staff should be drilled and instructed in the precise action they are to take in case of fire. This includes details to open all exits, posts at which certain members of the staff will stand to instruct people in different parts of the house as to which exit they should use—an important factor, for there is a natural tendency for people to go to the door through which they entered a place, thus causing crowding and impeding the free flow of traffic toward the exits which must be used to empty the building speedily.

6. While efforts must be made to calm the people, nothing should be done to give them a false sense of security, which might slow up the very necessary work of getting them out of the theatre as quickly as possible.

7. Provision should be made for a thorough search of portions of the theatre evacuated to make sure no person remains, either because of injury or inability to move along with the crowd.

8. Make provision for doing whatever can be done to protect property after the fire has been extinguished. Due to a popular misconception, many theatre buildings have been neglected because those in charge believed that nothing should be touched until the insurance inspectors arrived to survey the damage. The insured is required to act as though there was no insurance and to take care of property to the best of ability and facilities available.

MAINTENANCE SECTION

Adjustment of the curtain control mechanism is a job for a person capable of doing a precision job, carefully. Due to the fact that the difference of a fraction of an inch in adjusting the trip arms can make a difference of a matter of feet in the travel of the curtain, the adjustment of the arms must be done with particular care to move them only a very little in changing the travel in one direction or the other. The mechanism should be examined to make sure there is no movement due to loosening from its base, as vibration or movement of the unit will cause trouble in the operation of the curtain. If the holes in which the fastening bolts are driven into the floor have become enlarged, they should be packed with suitable material to give a good seat to the screws or bolts holding the unit.

Marquee Maintenance

1. A marquee is as efficient as its "selling" effect. Make every display "punchy" by proper selection of selling names and emphasis.
2. The finest marquee installation will deteriorate if its top becomes the hoarding place for broken letters, burned-out lamps, what-nots and junk "temporarily" dropped onto it to get rid of them for the moment.
3. Drains are not self-cleaning—the job of keeping drains from clogging is up to the man in charge.
4. Marquee letters and attraction boards don't take on sparkle under sunlight and rain—they've got to be washed and cleaned frequently.
5. Flashers, transformers, switches and fuses can't be expected to last forever. Check on them frequently—the longer they've been in service, the more frequent the checking should be made.
6. Missing letters, marred or broken letters will never put over a good selling line—even if they spell out "Betty Grable." Make each display complete, neat and attractive, or you'll be advertising yourself as the man who operates "that slip-shod theatre."
7. Checking the marquee copy is an every-day task for the manager—the marquee might become the accidental or deliberate target of something that will make the selling look and read silly.
8. The marquee will not retain its beauty forever, unattended. Polish and paint applied in time will prevent that morning-after-too-much-neglect look.

Growth of Industry Traced in New Book

The story of the motion picture, its production, distribution, exhibition and equipment developments from infancy of the art-industry up to the present, is covered in "Then and Now," a profusely illustrated book published by The Strong Electric Corporation, manufacturer of projection arc lamps, of Toledo.

The book is departmentalized, and reaches back into the infancy days of the motion picture in tracing the development of each phase of the industry. It has special interest to those who have been long identified with the business, and should be found equally informative as well as entertaining by newcomers to the business and those entirely outside the industry.

Pictorial History

The illustrations include pictures of the first motion picture studio—that tar-papered shack erected at a cost of $637.67 at the Edison plant in West Orange, N. J.; the coin-machine peephole devices which were the forerunners of movies; views of early studios, theatres, and some designs for theatres created by Michael J. De Angelis, architect, for an article on the future theatre written for and published by SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW.

A noteworthy feature of the book is the absence of "plugs" for the manufacturer who published the book for free distribution to exhibitors.

Harry H. Strong, president of The Strong Electric Corporation, and a pioneer in the industry as well as one of the foremost contributors to development and improvement of projection as a designer and manufacturer of arc lamps, writes the dedication, which is devoted to war bond sale effort. Mr. Strong's dedication reads:

"If this book serves as a daily reminder of the necessity of buying War Bonds until the Victory has been won, it will have fulfilled its purpose. For only then can these pages of history be the beginning and not the end of a story of free men engaged in free enterprise... a freedom which means so much to us all but which we may have been prone to take for granted."

Events Prove the Value of Omaha's Strict Fire Laws

Following two major fires in one week at Omaha theatres, including the burning down of the Chermot ballroom, Mayor Dan Butler, issued a statement saying this was evidence that city campaigns to improve fire safety in public gathering places are not based on imaginary danger. Fire Commissioner Walter Korisko and Fire Chief Dan O'Connor said fire inspection is continuing here actively to bring night clubs, churches, public halls and all other public gathering places into compliance with a recent and more-strict ordinance regulating public assembly places.

Compile a list or inventory of all equipment in the theatre—it should be consulted for information as to the name of manufacturer, the model and serial number of the unit. These latter items of data should be written in after the name of the equipment unit. The same inventory, or equipment data sheet, might well carry the names, addresses and telephone numbers of those men connected with the dealers in equipment — which information will come in handy, will facilitate matters just in case you are faced with an emergency and require service or advice on some unit of equipment. In ordering or inquiring about parts for any item of equipment always specify exactly the model and such other identification as may appear on the unit. Manufacturers and dealers are frequently asked to supply parts for equipment they do not make or handle, which means delays for the theatreman and unnecessary work for the dealers.

Thoughts on Results in STR's Leaders Short Subjects Poll; Hope for Showmanship in 1944

A new year has begun—a year in which, we hope, short subjects will make significant strides. In Section Two (Leaders of the Motion Picture Industry) of last week's STR there appeared the ten Leading Short Subject series as selected by the nation's theatremen according to the preferences of their patrons. As our readers know by this time, cartoon series again dominated the field, with comedies and topical reels following. Cartoons, judging from the fact that they've topped the listings for the past six years, have definitely proved the favorite short subject fare of motion picture patrons.

But the results of the poll revealed one thing that rather surprised us: the high rating of such wartime topical series as Warners' Technicolor Specials, 20th Century-Fox's The March of Time and RKO Pathe's This Is America. Now we aren't questioning the quality of these reels, for they have indeed been produced in a most careful and meticulous manner. But from comment we had received from various sources to the effect that audiences desired more "escapist" short subjects, we began to fear that the worthy topical series would fail to get the votes they deserved. Thus it was a pleasant surprise to see them rate so highly.

An important reason for this result, we believe, is the fact that the producers of these topical reels combined audience entertainment values with important information concerning the war front and home front. To get an important message across and yet at the same time make the subject palatable to audience tastes has been the problem facing these producers, and their knowledge of audience entertainment values has proved extremely helpful.

Whether it's peacetime or wartime, the Three Stooges always fare well in the Leaders poll. Their standings may fluctuate somewhat from year to year, but they're always in there pitching. Few comedy series could be more ludicrous, and there are many intellectual moviegoers who shudder at the mere thought of the Stooges; but the rank-and-file patronage of the nation's theatres, particularly in average communities and the rural areas, find in the dizzy antics of these comedians welcome escape from all worries, whether peacetime or wartime. So long as the Three Stooges series exist, just so long will it rate favorably in the Leaders Short Subjects annual polls.

During this new year we would like to see more showmanship in merchandising shorts. The few exhibitors who take the trouble to exploit their worthwhile one- and two-reelers find that this procedure pays. Yet there are thousands of other theatremen who, year after year, continue to treat shorts as fillers and accord them little more than mere mention, if even that, in their advertising. It seems reasonable to suppose that if the minority can make short subject showman-

Value of Screen in Postwar Adjustments Indicated by Nesbitt

The value of the screen in helping to effect postwar readjustments was indicated by John Nesbitt at a special preview of his Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Passing Parade short subject, "This Is Tomorrow," recently held at the clubrooms of the Junior League of the City of New York. Nesbitt was presented with a citation by the National Board of Review.

The citation reads: "Presented to John Nesbitt's Passing Parade Short Subject, 'This Is Tomorrow,' a significant and foresighted film which earnestly and forcefully projects a vital social question and which serves to indicate what the motion picture may be expected to contribute toward the constructive solution of the many problems of the postwar world." The citation was signed by Quincy Howe, president of the Board, and the presentation was made by Shelley Hamilton, executive secretary.

Citing the trend towards informative films in short subject production, Nesbitt suggested that the happy combination of information and entertainment had opened vast new fields of source material for good subjects.

Arthur DeBra, director of research for MPPDA, also spoke at the meeting, referring to "This Is Tomorrow" as a "Personification" film rather than a documentary. He went on to explain that by "Personification" films he meant informative subjects which dramatized their material by the use of incidents and people rather than using ordinary facts and statistics.

Color and Cartoons in WB Shorts Releases

Warner Bros. will release 32 short subjects from this month to mid-May, half of the number being cartoon comedies and about 75 per cent of the total in Technicolor, it is announced by Norman H. Moray, short subject sales manager.

Among the February releases will be "The Devil Boats," Technicolor Service Special telling the exciting story of the Navy's famous P. T. boats, and "Grandfather's Follies," musical featurette in the same vein as the previous hit, "Minstrel Days."

Three two-reel Westerns also are on the schedule, one for January, another for March and the third in April.

"Ted Weems and His Merchant Marine Band" will be released this month, and "Rudy Vallee's Coast Guard Band" in May.

How Jimmie Does It

Manager Jimmie Allard of the Vernon Theatre, Vernon, Texas, utilized his lobby, newspaper ads, radio and marquee for the selling of MGM's FitzPatrick Traveltalk, "Land of the Orizaba."

Richmond Campaign On 'Seventh Column' Gets Citywide Play

An extraordinary campaign on a short subject was staged in Richmond, Va., for the showing of MGM's Pete Smith Specialty, "Seventh Column" at Loew's. Manager George Peters was assisted by Tom Baldridge, MGM exploiteer.

At a meeting of the Richmond Junior Board of Trade, the group pledged 100 per cent cooperation and sponsorship of the film. Newspaper ads prominently listed the Junior Board as sponsors, and the Times-Dispatch and News-Leader cooperated with stories about the group's sponsorship.

Junior Board speakers appeared at high school assembly meetings, and officers and safety committee chairmen of the Board were guests of the management on opening night.

The subject was well advertised in the lobby a week in advance, and a trailer crediting the Junior Board as sponsor of the engagement was projected.

A week in advance Eddie Weaver, theatre organist, inserted two safety songs in his organlogue, with an announcement urging the observance of Safety Week and plugging "Seventh Column." Day before opening, Weaver conducted a "Safety Song Contest" over radio station WRVA, with 25 passes going to the winners. Local important people appeared on other broadcasts.

Safety windows built around one-sheet cards furnished by an insurance company and stills from the film were featured by three department stores. Cards were also distributed to stores and offices by the Junior Board.

Col. Richard B. Myers, president of the Richmond Safety Council, sent out three hundred letters to Safety Engineers, Safety Chairmen and Safety Directors of various groups calling attention to the subject and playdate.

Four "Seventh Column" 24-sheets were posted gratis by the General Outdoor Advertising Company of Richmond. Five hundred 14x22 posters were distributed by the Junior Board for use at defense plants, schools, office buildings and all stores employing more than 25 people each.

'Main Street' Sequel to Have 200 Bit Players in Its Cast

Breaking all records in the number of extras used in a short subject at MGM this year, "Main Street Today," sequel to the 1942 Academy Award winning short subject, "Main Street on the March," will have about two-hundred bit players in its cast.

A story of the manpower situation, "Main Street Today" is a two-reel special directed by Edward Cahn. The cast includes Henry O'Neill, Addison Richards, Ray Collins, Morris Ankrum, Robert Dudley, and Constance Weiler.

SHORTS SHOPPING

ship pay, surely the majority should be able to follow suit.

And while we're on that subject, we are mindful of the fact that only when the proper enthusiasm for shorts is engendered by the producers and distributors can the exhibitor be expected to go all out in exploiting them. Happily, many of the companies are putting strong effort behind the production and exploitation of their shorts; bu there still remain a few who continue to regard the one- and two-reelers as stepchildren. Let us hope that the picture changes for the better during 1944.

Contest Winner Gets Award

Films' Anniversary Is Snapshot Subject

A special Screen Snapshot subject to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of motion pictures is being prepared by Ralph Staub for release by Columbia in February, at which time the anniversary will be celebrated nationally.

Included in the film will be replica of a motion picture theatre in New York, at Broadway and 27th street, in which the first movie was shown in February, 1894. The reproduction is now being constructed for exhibition in Radio City.

Staub is gathering clips from some of the earliest motion pictures for inclusion in the film. He will also use a series of photographs of outstanding picture pioneers, showing them as they are now and as they were in the early days of the industry.

Parents of Daughters in Service Invited to See Short Subject

To all families in Tilbury, Ont., who have daughters in the armed forces, Manager Harland Rankin of the Plaza Theatre sent a special letter inviting them to be his guests at a showing of the Canadian short subject, "So Proudly She Marches." The letter:

"Learning you have a daughter in the armed forces, we thought you might be interested in the part the girls are playing in Canada's war effort, so I am taking this opportunity of enclosing you a pass, to the Plaza Theatre, to be our guests on Monday or Tuesday, November 15-16, and see for yourself a special subject on the life of our Canadian Girls in Service"

Larger Orchestra for Puppetoon

George Pal is using an augmented symphonic orchestra of 55 pieces to score the music for his most pretentious film, "And To Think That I Saw It On Mulberry Street." The Technicolor film will be completed late this month. Pal normally utilizes a 20-piece orchestra to record the score for his Puppetoons.

Selling Campaigns And Publicity Breaks Boost 'Youth' Film

Box-office potentialities of March of Time's "Youth in Crisis" are being realized by exhibitors, as evidenced by campaign reports reaching Phil Williams, March of Time's advertising director, in New York City. Typical:

Manhasset, N. Y. Manager L. McVeigh of the Skouras Theatre gave special attention to the subject in his ads, organized the first "Youth Council for the Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency" in Manhasset, arranged with the Manhasset Youth Council to undertake sale of tickets for benefit preview (3000 tickets distributed and sold two weeks before playdate), succeeded in having the Youth Council committee on disturbance in picture theatres arrange a series of high school assembly programs to impress young people with the importance of cooperation to stop vandalism and hoodlumism in theatres.

Winnipeg, Canada. The Winnipeg Board of Trade sent out postcards in advance of the subject's showing at Manager H. A. Bishop's Capitol Theatre. The Winnipeg Tribune sponsored "Youth in Crisis" with the following results: Two editorials, feature stories on special preview for organization heads, and two 2-column, one 3-column and one 1-column scene mat from the picture.

Two publicity breaks also helped boost "Youth in Crisis." A full page of six stills appeared in the December 20th issue of Life, together with an illuminating article on the facing page discussing the problems raised by the film. During Christmas week King Features released two full pages of stills, syndicated them to its 700 newspaper members throughout the nation.

A plaque commending the March of Time for the subject, with its "intelligent and timely interest in the solution of problems of juvenile delinquency," was presented to Producer Richard de Rochemont recently by E. L. Johnstone on behalf of the National Conference of Juvenile Agencies at their annual meeting in New York.

'Fun Time' Goes Into Production; 'Romance' Billed as Co-Feature

"Fun Time," fifth in the series of Paramount's Technicolor Musical Parades, is now in production by Louis Harris under the supervision of Walter McEwen. Included among the vaudeville variety acts in the two-reeler are Williams and Charles, musical clowns; Ray and Pedro, acrobats; Ames and Arno, comedy dance team; Johnson and Diehl, jugglers; Paul Gordon, unicyclist; Joe Cappo, nut and bolt eater; Irving Harmon, monologist; Irene McAfee and her dogs. Eddie Foy, Jr. and Noel Neill have co-starring roles, and the supporting cast includes Mabel Paige, Oscar O'Shea, Ronnie Rondell and Yvonne de Carlo.

Meanwhile, "Caribbean Romance," second in the series, is the co-feature attraction with "Riding High" at both the Hollywood and Downtown Paramount theatres in Los Angeles.

Mexico Requests 'Marines' Reel

Following a special screening of Pete Smith's "Marines in the Making," President Avila Camacho of Mexico has requested a print of the subject for the Mexican War Department to be shown to all soldiers. Arrangements for the presentation are being handled by the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs and MGM's office in Mexico. The Smith subject has been shown extensively to the armed forces in this country and was the recipient of several awards, including a silver plaque from the Marine Corps League.

Short Subject Reviews

Yokel Duck Makes Good (Fair)

20th-Fox (4507) Terrytoon 7 mins.

This story of an awkward goose who tries to climb the social ladder in a strange pond with swans, ducks, turtles and fish is a simple and refreshing yarn that will appeal particularly to children. The goose first is ridiculed and then welcomed as a hero when he saves a duckling from the claws of a vulture. While there is no particularly outstanding stunt or humorous gag in the piece which might make it more desirable, it nevertheless can be recommended as good cartoon entertainment for any audience. Produced in Technicolor by Paul Terry.

The Hopeful Donkey (Good)

20th-Fox (4508) Terrytoon 7 mins.

An aged donkey, realizing that he is destined for the glue factory by his ungrateful master, escapes with his heart filled with optimism and sets out for the city dreaming of his chances of becoming a great musician. En route he adds to his hopeful mission an old hunting dog, a cat and a rooster who each find themselves in similar circumstances. The group encounters some robbers who have stolen the goose that laid the golden egg and their rescue provides an hilarious windup. A well made cartoon by Paul Terry in Technicolor.

Way Down Yonder in the Corn (Excellent)

Columbia (5752) Fox & Crow 7 mins.

This is perhaps the best of the Fox and Crow cartoons to date. It shows Mr. Fox deploring the fact that the wily Crow is systematically stealing his vegetables. After reading a book titled "How to Fox a Crow" he posts a "Help Wanted" sign for a scarecrow. The crow makes up as a scarecrow, gets the job and then the trouble really starts for the fox. The action is fast and furious, the animation enhanced by Technicolor is very good and a round of applause is due Dave Fleischer for the production. The two cartoon characters, the Fox and the Crow, seem to be improving in stature.

The Phantom (Promising)

Columbia (5160) Serial 15 Episodes

The Phantom, who protects the people of the African jungle, is finally shot fatally by a poisoned arrow, and he sends for his son, who arrives just as the father dies and the people clamor for the Phantom to appear. The son, acted by Tom Tyler, steps into his father's shoes, and the serial is off to a winging start. The menace in the story is a group of enemy saboteurs, who aim to do away with the Phantom, discover the ancient city of Zoloz, and make away with the tremendous fortune of precious stones, meanwhile overcoming the natives in any manner possible. Tom dresses in the black garment made familiar in the newspaper action cartoon, "The Phantom," by Leon Falk. At the end of the first episode Tom is sinking fast in a matted swamp, because he has been misled by the enemy as to direction marks on trees. This doesn't look any too well for the Phantom's sense of jungle knowledge, but Tom Tyler is a new Phantom, it must be remembered, and he will become expert as he goes along—provided, of course, he gets out of the swamp at the beginning of Episode 2. The new serial looks good to carry out its fifteen episodes in fine style. The film has production values, with plenty of extras and first-rate sets. The action has been directed so that it appears more plausible than most serials, yet the element of mystery is there to attract the kids and give the proper amount of excitement. For your information, the first episode, "The Sign of the Skull," is 28 minutes long; the others will run about 15. Columbia has prepared a good line of accessories, including a different one-sheet for each episode with sufficient sniping space.

'So Typical of Our Officers'

Personnel of the 667th Bombardment Squadron, training at Gainesville, Fla., have adopted this scene from the MGM cartoon, "Red Hot Riding Hood," as their squadron insignia. The "Wolfe" —in white tie and tails—appears on all their planes. In writing to Fred Quimby, in charge of cartoon production at the MGM studios, the commandant stated they wanted the drawings because "the modernized wolf is so typical of many of our officers here. . . ."

Goodnight Rusty (Excellent)

Paramount (U3-2) Madcap Models 7½ mins.

You can rate this clever bit of camera magic just about tops. The story dealing with Rusty, George Pal's little hero of "The Truck That Flew," is perfectly tailored for this unique technique. As usual, Pal's use of Technicolor is superb. Blending the factual experience of a little boy, who sneaks a puff on a big cigar when Ma and Pa are asleep, with the fantasy of what happens as a consequence thereof, the short teaches a most convincing lesson to children while being extremely entertaining for the grownups.

Task Force (Excellent)

WB (9003) Technicolor Special 20 mins.

Produced and photographed by members of the United States Coast Guard, this film, conceived to explain the wartime role of the Coast Guard to the members of the other services, has been brought to the theatregoers as a thrilling saga of an historic unit of our country's armed forces. Photographed in Technicolor with skill, it provides an absorbing twenty minutes of educational entertainment. Gone will be any ideas that the Coast Guard is an outfit of home-buddies who patrol our sea coast waiting for something to happen or someone to be rescued. The film tells the story of a foreign invasion, with the audience in on all preparations, the softening up, the establishment of a beachhead and the important part played in these operations by Coastguardmen. The narration is capably handled by Jackson Beck, familiar to radio listeners as the voice on "The Man Behind The Gun" program. Made originally in 16 mm by the Coast Guard, Warners have recognized the merit of the film and have prepared it for general release with USCG cooperation. It will fit very snugly into any screen program other than with a war picture. A tag trailerette will be attached to the film tieing in with the national program for the recruiting of Spars, the women's branch of the USCG. A special poster is available from Warner Exchanges to plug the short and aid the Spar tieup.

Letter to a Hero (Very Good)

RKO-Pathe—This Is America No. 2 18 mins.

While this subject will hold deeper interest and significance to the service man away from home, it nevertheless emerges as a sober reminder to the folks on the home front of what the boys are fighting to return to. It is the story of Main Street as caught by the lens in pace with the pen of a typical school teacher writing to her former pupil. It photographically portrays the newsy, gossipy, homey everyday things that are happening back here on the main stem for the benefit of the local "heroes" who are winning the war. It is a happy picture with bits of humor and heart-touching moments that will bring forth audience praise. It seems to call for booking with a light feature. Produced by Frederic Ullman, Jr. and directed and photographed by Larry O'Reilly, this entry stands as a credit to the series and those responsible for its conception.

You Dear Boy (Good)

Columbia (5429) All-Star Comedy 18 mins.

Vera Vague, about to be married to a homely schoolday chum whom she hasn't seen since childhood, is trying to figure a way of avoiding the marriage. Her girl friend suggests that she feign insanity so that her fiance's family will call off the marriage. The results of the plan are good screwball entertainment which the kids and grownups should enjoy. This is Miss Vague's first short and is supported by Minerva Urecal and Douglas Drake. Miss Vague, who appears on the Bob Hope radio show, should have some box-office appeal. Produced and directed by Jules White from a screenplay by Elwood Ullman.

G. I. Fun (Snappy)

Paramount (R3-3) Sportlight 9 mins.

What is the most important paper a serviceman receives? the film asks. The answer: a furlough. So the audience sees how a soldier or sailor amuses himself in such places as New York, San Francisco (with its cable cars), Yosemite Park, and Florida. The boys sample such novelties, to them, as alligators, mountains, Sequoia trees, Radio City, aquaplanes at Cypress Gardens, and Coney Island. Present with them in nearly every instance are girls from the Spars and civilian misses who do their best to entertain them. Grantland Rice has provided a pleasing 9 minutes to show that war is not all grimness.

Interstate Ad Slugs On Shorts

The art department of Interstate Theatres, whose home office is at Dallas, Texas, have prepared a wide and varied assortment of advertising slugs covering practically all the short subject series released by MGM, Universal, RKO Radio, Paramount, United Artists, 20th Century-Fox, Columbia and Warner Bros. Although somewhat reduced in the above reproduction, each ad slug comes in two sizes: the one-column size, which can be used in a one-column layout or as part of a larger layout; and the three-inch size, which can be conveniently spotted in ads of two-column width or larger. Note that in most cases each slug features a sketch or halftone of the star, character or classification of the subject being advertised. Besa Short is to be congratulated on improving this phase of short subject merchandising.

Richards' Campaign Spurs Wac Recruits

Aan outstanding campaign to aid the Wacs in their All-States Campaign to recruit a group of women in forming a California unit was staged by Manager Dave Richards of Loew's Warfield Theatre, San Francisco, who employed every means of publicity and exploitation: electrolier signs, A-boards, radio tieups, plus an induction center in the Warfield lobby.

Featured in the campaign was the Warner Technicolor short, "Women at War," which Governor Warren, through a proclamation, urged all women to see.

One day of the week was proclaimed as Wac Day, and a special program was given, with Maestro Walt Roesner introducing Captain Margaret N. Horn and Warrant Officer L. E. Decker who led the 50-piece Western Defense Band through encore after encore.

As a result of the campaign, fifty women were signed up for a California Unit. The Wacs were extremely pleased.

Mickey Mouse Show Scores in Sacramento

Mickey Mouse Anniversary Shows are nothing new, but if properly handled, they can still register strongly at the box-office.

One of the most recent, and perhaps one of the most successful, was the morning show held at the Alhambra Theatre in Sacramento, Calif.

The show, planned and scheduled by Manager William Glackin, differed little from the usual Mickey Mouse show except that it was advertised, publicized and exploited thoroughly, but not in excess of the theatre's regular budget.

Talent for a five-act stage show was furnished gratis by the local La Veda Dance Studio. Program also included a good selection of Mickey Mouse Cartoons, a Popeye cartoon, a chapter of the serial, "Secret Service in Darkest Africa," and the feature picture, "Taxi, Mister."

You should have seen the queues of youngsters line up at the box-office.

Little Lulu, Popeye Animators and Artists Are Stimulated by Music

Music to stimulate the creative urge is the new policy at Famous Studio, 25 West 45th Street, New York, where Sam Buchwald, general manager, has installed his own system to provide music to his corps of some 200 artists, animators and other creative workers on Paramount Little Lulu and Popeye cartoons.

A record player run by the switchboard girl furnishes the music and it is relayed by a P. A. system throughout the plant. Best results are achieved by not playing the music continuously, asserts Buchwald, so there are fifteen-minute intervals of playing and quiet. As to the type of music, some of the more melodious classical pieces predominate during the day, and towards four o'clock in the afternoon, tunes and records are speeded up to give a lift to the toilers.

Selling Makes Errol a Favorite

Although there are no details, it is reported that J. C. Casler, manager of the Fair Theatre, Dallas, exploits RKO's series of Leon Erool comedies in such a manner that this star has become a must in the Fair, with patrons asking the date of his next comedy.

Karol Kennedy, assistant booker at 20th-Fox, is on the sick list. John Gentile, former assistant booker at the local Paramount exchange, and more recently transferred to Detroit as head booker there, has been rejected by his draft board.

Claude McKean, Warner exchange manager, is a victim of influenza.

Burdette Peterson, manager here for National Theatre Supply Co., was classified in 1-A and is expecting to be called to service early in January.

Joseph W. Bohn, of the local PRC exchange, will attend the franchise holders' meeting in New York Jan. 7 to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Lieut. John O. Servaas of S. & S. Theatres paid his family a two-day visit during the past week. He is stationed at Love Field, Texas.

Peter Rosian, Universal district manager, was a visitor at the local exchange during the week.

Visitors on Film Row during the week were: Alex Kalafat, Garrett, and his family; Harry Switow, Louisville, Ky.; Andy Anderson, Hartford City, Ky.; Al. Borkenstein, Ft. Wayne; Harold Janicke and Arthur Garber, Louisville, Ky.; and Joe Schilling, Connersville.

Box-office receipts were the lowest in years last week. Exhibitors reported a drop from 40 to 50 per cent, reaching the lowest on record. Neighborhood houses also reported the poorest Christmas business in years.

MEMPHIS

Among the many annual Christmas parties that turned fun and frolic into charity was the Malco dinner and dance for employes who made a generous contribution to the Mothers' Milk Bank of the Variety Club, in honor of M. A. Lightman, Malco president, during the evening festivities.

Variety's annual election of officers last week re-elected M. A. Lightman, Chief Barker; Ed. Willingham, MGM branch manager, first Assistant Barker; Bailey Prichard, Universal branch manager, Second Assistant Barker; Robert Bostick, Dough Guy; Edwin Sapinsly, Malco, Property Master; Herbert Kohn, Malco, chairman Heart committee; James Prichard, entertainment chairman.

The Princess Theatre, a Malco house, has been sold to the owners of the Airways Theatre at a reported price of $75,000. The Malco lease still has three years to run, but the owner, Kemmon Wilson, says the building was purchased for investment reasons only. He stated that at present he had no intention of entering the loop theatre district.

Theatres report here that the before-Christmas business which is usually dead, was fifty per cent ahead of last year, and Christmas day was "terrific," as Warner's Howard Waugh, expressed it. All loop theatres were crowded to capacity the holiday week-end.

Lt. Jack Harris, formerly of Affiliated Theatres; Captain Gus Amsterdam, son of Ben Amsterdam, and now with the Army Intelligence; Lt. Larry Doherty, Air-Cadet Bernie Borish; and Sgt. Paul McGowan of Warners were among the many servicemen from the industry back in Philadelphia for the Christmas Holidays.

The decision in the William Goldman versus the major distributors may not be announced for several weeks due to the illness of the trial judge.

Wilmer and Vincent's State Theatre in Allentown reopened New Year's Eve after being dark several months. The policy calls for stage shows on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with double features Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Along the real estate front there was some activity this week as the Ambassador Theatre in West Philadelphia was transferred from the Land Title Bank and Trust Co., trustee, to Irvin A. Winegrab for $125,000. James F. Hickey took title by a later deed. I. Hurst Enterprises, which operates the Forepaughs and the New Garden theatres, takes over the Auditorium Theatre on January 1. The corporation now owns and operates all the motion picture theatres in the old Tenderloin section.

Harry J. Schad, veteran Reading exhibitor, sold his San Toy Theatre to the Neversink Dying Company. The theatre had been closed for years, and according to reports, is to be used as a warehouse.

PITTSBURGH

Film Row was saddened to learn of the death of one of its veteran employes, Sophie Robinson, who was an inspectress at Paramount for many years. She died on Christmas Day from an attack of influenza, and funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon.

Clay V. Hake, branch manager for 20th Century-Fox, is at his home in Hawley, Pa., recuperating from a bad attack of bronchitis, and will not return to his desk here until the first of the year.

Anne Cohen, secretary for United Artists, has been ordered back to Mercy Hospital by her physician for further treatment of the serious leg injuries which she sustained about a month ago on her way to the office when a barrel rolled off a loading truck.

William Finkel, who with his brother, Morris, operates the Arcade, Colonial, Capitol and Hilltop theatres in this city, is in the McKeesport Hospital for a serious operation.

In general, theatre business during the Christmas holidays throughout the territory has been very brisk, especially on Christmas Day and Sunday. Several of the large downtown theatres in the city were turning them away two and three hours before closing time on Christmas, not having even standing room for the crowds that were trying to gain admittance.

Arthur Lyons, vice-president of Producing Artists, arriving in New York for a ten-day business trip in connection with production plans for pictures his company will make for United Artists distribution.

PORTLAND

Holiday theatre attendance, in spite of some adverse causes, has steadily held to record heights for the past few weeks. Christmas shopping and increasing flu did not slow up theatregoers. With shipyards closing on Sundays, many new faces are seen at first run theatres.

Walter Wessling, popular manager for Monogram Pictures in Oregon, has suffered a relapse from flu.

Jack Kloepper, Oregon manager for United Artists, is suffering an attack of flu, following a trip to California.

Mrs. Julia Schwartz, has been named as the manager of the Beacon Theatre, Seattle, replacing Mrs. Ross.

Thomas (Bill) Wallace, veteran Spokane stage manager, who has written many colorful articles on the stage and screen, is ill at the Sacred Heart Hospital.

William Platt, 29, of Portland has been jailed following a robbery of the Newsreel Theatre, Oakland.

Harold Lawrence has joined the staff of J. J. Parker Theatres as assistant manager of the Broadway Theatre, Portland.

A. J. Sullivan, northwest manager for United Artists and his staff are back from a California meeting.

Whitey Young, eastern Washington salesman for Warners, is back on Seattle row for holidays.

Ben Shearer and staff staged their annual Christmas party at the Seattle Film Club.

Leroy and Aly Johnson of the Jensen & Von Herberg theatres, entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Bowen S. Cobrad from Montana.

Charles Feldman, western district manager for Paramount, visiting Portland and Seattle exchanges.

Jimmy Brooks, office manager for 20th-Fox, Seattle, is a victim of the flu.

Ralph Ravenscroft, Paramount exploiteer, covered the entire Pacific Northwest on a trip from Hollywood.

John Danz of Sterling Theatres left last week for California to attend the industry's Fourth War Loan conference.

Jack Matlack of J. J. Parker's theatres, made sure of another million cigarettes for the boys at Barnes Hospital, Vancouver, with a special midnite matinee.

With upwards of 1000 a day coming down with the flu in the metropolitan area of Portland, and numbering among its victims a number from both film and theatre row, it rather "took the edge" off Christmas. The majority, however, are making extensive plans for the New Year.

Two big Christmas parties staged on Seattle Film Row were that of Paramount and the B. F. Shearer Equipment Company.

Ed Lamb, branch manager for RKO, Seattle, has been named chairman for the annual March of Dimes in the theatres.

The Hamrick-Evergreen Seattle division office staged their annual Christmas party at the Olympic Hotel, with Carl Mahne taking the leading role of Santa.

In spite of the reported film shortage several Portland suburban theatres were running holiday triple feature bills.

ST. LOUIS

Harris P. Wolfberg, district manager for Loew's, Inc., for the past eighteen years, has resigned. After a prolonged vacation in Florida with his family he will determine his future plans. Mr. Wolfberg was an actor and salesman for the Essanay Film Co. in Chicago back in 1909. Next he went with the General Film Company in St. Louis, working for that company from 1914 to 1916.

Harry C. Arthur, Jr., head of the Fanchon & Marco-St. Louis Amusement Company circuit, has been assigned two more important public tasks in recent days. He has been named Missouri state chairman for the 1944 March of Dimes Campaign, January 24-30, and Eastern Missouri chairman for the motion picture industry in connection with the Fourth War Loan Drive which gets under way on January 16.

The influenza epidemic seems to be on the wane in St. Louis and vicinity, notwithstanding there were twice as many deaths attributed to the dread disease here during the past week compared with the preceding seven days. In the past week the St. Louis Division of Health reported 14 deaths as due to influenza and 39 as caused by pneumonia.

Alderman Jake Sellers failed to insist upon the Board of Aldermen's Legislation Committee reporting out his curfew bill at last week's meeting of the city fathers and, since the board had adjourned over the Christmas holidays until January 7, the measure to keep children off the streets after 10 p.m. will remain in the hands of the committee at least until that time.

In the St. Louis Circuit Court last week in the case of Fanchon & Marco, Inc., vs. Leahy there was a further hearing on the defendants motion for assessment of damages on the injunction bonds. The case was concluded and submitted, including requests of plaintiffs and surety on the injunction bonds for separate findings.

At Cape Girardeau, Mo., due to 700 cases of colds and influenza among the 2750 enrolled public school pupils, the Board of Education decided to close the schools until January 3. Ten teachers were also reported as ill. The Cape has three motion picture theatres, the Broadway and Orpheum, units in the Fox Midwest circuit, and the Rialto, operated by Eddie Rosecan.

New Year's Eve celebrants will have only the usual headache this year, since the OPA has knocked out the plan of the local hotels, night clubs and restaurants to kick up their prices 10 per cent above those that prevailed last year.

SAN FRANCISCO

Tribute was paid to the American Theatre Wing and its work during the ceremonies accompanying the launching of the Liberty ship, Otis Skinner, which was sponsored by Mrs. Clarence Lindner, wife of the publisher of the San Francisco Examiner. Ceremonies took place at Richmond Yard No. 3.

Both the RKO Golden Gate and the Fox-West Coast Warfield theatres contributed some of their stage talent to the Examiner's Christmas Party for the carriers, which was held at the Bal Tabarin.

Arthur Ward, local director of the American Guild of Variety Artists, directed the entertainment for the wounded service men on Christmas Day and Christmas Eve.

Most excitin' was the double wedding of the Embassy Theatre's cashier, Kay McGrath, and United Artists Theatre's cashier, Ethel Packard, which took place this month. Kay McGrath is now Mrs. Jan King, wife of a radioman, and Ethel Packard is Mrs. Al Hermann, her husband being with the Merchant Marine.

Paul Milladin, former assistant manager at the Warfield, a Fox-West Coast downtown first-run and stage show, is the new manager at the St. Francis, an FWC subsequent-run downtown.

The Castro Theatre, a Nasser Brothers neighborhood house, presented a special stage show of juveniles and a selected screen program when the San Francisco lodge of Elks gave its annual Christmas party for underprivileged children and orphans.

The Oaks Theatre housed the annual Christmas Sunday service of the congregation of Northbrae Community Church, in Berkeley. "Silent Night" was dramatized with a thousand-candle ritual.

From Theatres of Peace

Wherever our armed forces fight today, they fight with increased efficiency because of SOUND equipment.

SOUND helps them on defense and attack . . . in a variety of ways that will make interesting post-war reading. Thanks to intensive development work by scientists and research men, the part played by SOUND is one of ever increasing importance.

Naturally the engineers at Bell Telephone Laboratories and Western Electric are contributing their knowledge and skill to help bring Victory sooner.

Three Pictures Go Into Production This Month at Paramount

Paramount, with six feature pictures in production, wil start three more this month.

The first will be "Bring on the Girls," Navy musical in Technicolor starring Eddie Bracken, Veronica Lake, Sonny Tufts and Marjorie Reynolds and featuring Les Brown's orchestra and Johnny Coy, the Broadway dancer.

Pine and Thomas will start "One Body Too Many," comedy melodrama starring Jack Haley and Jean Parker, on January 14. Bela Lugosi, Blanche Yurka and George Zucco will have featured roles in the film.

"Practically Yours," starring Paulette Goddard and Fred MacMurray will start January 31. The screen story is an original by Norman Krasna.

Pictures now in production are "Road to Utopia," "The Hitler Gang," "Incendiary Blonde," "Till We Meet Again," "I Love A Soldier" and "And Now Tomorrow."

Gail Russell to Attend Eastern Premiere of 'Lady in the Dark'

Gail Russell, one of Paramount's stellar prospects for 1944, who makes her feature film debut in "Lady in the Dark" as Ginger Rogers' rival in the high school sequence, will leave Hollywood for New York February 4 to meet members of the press and attend the New York premiere of the picture on February 16.

Miss Russell first was given stellar recognition in "The Uninvited," which will open in March and then was cast in the Cornelia Otis Skinner role in "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." The actress will next be starred in "Fear."

Musical to Start in March

Described as a musical of the Eighteen Nineties, "Notorious Nancy Grey" is announced for March production by Edward Small. The picture, to be based on a story by Tom Reed, will have Dennis O'Keefe in a principal role.

To Collaborate on Script

Hunt Stromberg has engaged Joan Harrison, who produced "The Phantom Lady" for Universal, to collaborate with Elliot Paul on the script for "Guest in the House." She may also serve as associate producer.

Thorpe to Direct 'Thrill'

"Thrill of Romance," previously titled "Arrowhead Inn," will be directed by Richard Thorpe. Esther Williams will star in the MGM picture.

Ratoff Gets Assignment

"When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" will be directed by Gregory Ratoff.

True and False

Meet the two Emily Kimbroughs on the set of Paramount's "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." On the right is the real Emily, co-author with Cornelia Otis Skinner of the popular book now being done in films. With her is Diana Lynn, who plays Emily Kimbrough in the new picture.

21 in Technicolor on Studios' Schedules

Eleven pictures in production and ten in preparation are being made, or will be made, in Technicolor, according to News & Views, publication of the Technicolor Company, whose president is Dr. Herbert Kalmus.

Included among the features in production are: "At Night We Dream," Columbia; "Greenwich Village," 20th Century-Fox; "Gypsy Wildcat," Universal; "Home in Indiana," 20th Century-Fox; "Incendiary Blonde," Paramount; "Kismet," MGM; "Meet Me in St. Louis," MGM; "Mr. Co-Ed," MGM; "National Velvet," MGM; "Rainbow Island," Paramount; "Wilson," 20th Century-Fox.

Technicolor pictures in preparation include: "Belle of the Yukon," International; "Bring on the Girls," Paramount; "Caroline," Universal; "The Climax," Universal; "Gibson Girl," RKO Radio; "The Robe," RKO Radio; "Son of Flicka," 20th Century-Fox; "Strolling Down the Avenue," Warner Bros.; "Tonight and Every Night" (formerly "Heart of the City"), Columbia; "Where Do We Go From Here?", 20th Century-Fox.

Karloff Back to Screen

Having completed his road tour with "Arsenic and Old Lace," Boris Karloff will return to pictures in Universal's "The Climax," based on Edward Locke's play of that title. George Waggner will produce and direct the film, which goes into production within three weeks.

Warners Borrow Benchley

Warners have borrowed Robert Benchley from Paramount to play the chamber of commerce secretary in "Janie."

HOLLYWOOD STUDIO ROUND-UP

Following are details of the three features which started in production this week:

20th CENTURY-FOX

I MARRIED A SOLDIER—Principals: Jeanne Crain, Frank Latimore, Kevin O'Shea. Director, Otto Ludwig Preminger.

UNITED ARTISTS

STRANGE CONFESSION—Principals: George Sanders, Linda Darnell, Edward Everett Horton. Director, Douglas Sirk.

WARNER BROTHERS

JANIE—Principals: Joyce Reynolds, Robert Hutton, Ann Harding. Director, Michael Curtiz.

TITLE CHANGES

"Wedding Guest Sat on a Stone" (Col.) now GHOST THAT WALKS ALONE.
"Action in Arabia" (RKO) now DANGER IN DAMASCUS.

'Wonder Man' Set as Next for Danny Kaye

Samuel Goldywn announced this week that the second Technicolor comedy to star Danny Kaye will be "The Wonder Man," based on an original story by Arthur Sheekman. Kaye makes his film debut in "Up In Arms," recently completed and shortly to be released.

The plot of "The Wonder Man" relates what happens to a "quiz kid" when he grows up. Kaye will have the role of the infant prodigy who reaches manhood with an incredible academic knowledge but none at all about the more humdrum facts of life. He becomes a G-Man when he inadvertently takes a civil service examination and passes with a previously unheard of score.

Arthur Sheekman, author of "The Wonder Man," was formerly a top screen comedy writer for Marx Brothers and Eddie Cantor films. Production of the new work is scheduled to start June 1st, with Don Hartman, co-author and associate producer of "Up In Arms" again repeating the same assignment for the new film.

Heyman to Do Score

Werner Heyman has been assigned to prepare the music score for Paramount's picturization of Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough's "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," co-starring Gail Russell and Diana Lynn, with Charles Ruggles, Dorothy Gish, James Brown, Bill Edwards and Alma Kruger in the cast. Lewis Allen directed the comedy.

Columbia Buys 'Forever Art'

Raoul Marlow's story, "Forever Art," has been acquired by Columbia as the basis for a horror picture.

PRODUCTION NOTES FROM THE STUDIOS

Warners Sign Barbara Stanwyck to a Long-Term Contract; RKO Buys 'Capricornia'; Acquanetta Made 'Jungle Queen'

Judy Garland and Margaret O'Brien have recorded the old favorite, Under the Bamboo Tree, for a sequence in the new MGM production "Meet Me In St. Louis" which Vincente Minnelli is directing and Arthur Freed is producing. This marks six-year-old Margaret's first singing assignment since embarking on her amazing screen career.

"Murder in the Fun House," an original screenplay by George Callahan, has been set as the next film in Monogram's Charlie Chan series, and is scheduled to go before the cameras January 10, with Sidney Toler starred as the Chinese detective.

Frank McDonald was signed by producers William Pine and William Thomas to direct "One Body Too Many," their forthcoming mystery thriller for Paramount, which will star Jack Haley and include Bela Lugosi in a supporting role. McDonald currently is at the directorial helm of "Gambler's Choice," with Chester Morris and Nancy Kelly in the stellar spots.

Republic has bought I. A. L. Diamond's story "And Be My Love" for use as Carlton Alsop's first effort as a Republic producer. Diamond has also been signed to write the screenplay.

"Danger in Damascus," RKO feature starring George Sanders and Virginia Bruce, has wound up. Originally known as "International Zone," this is the second American film for Leonide Moguy, French director, and features Lenore Aubert, Gene Lockhart, Robert Armstrong, H. B. Warner, Andre Charlot, Alan Napier and Marcel Dalio in supporting roles.

With the signing of Dennis O'Keefe as the male lead opposite Eleanor Powell, in "Sensations of 1944," producer-director Andrew Stone is nearing completion of casting for the production which will go before the cameras on January 3rd. Cast now includes Miss Powell, O'Keefe, Mimi Forsythe, W. C. Fields, Sophie Tucker, David Lichine, Cab Calloway and orchestra.

Dore Schary's first production for Vanguard Films, Inc. will be "Double Furlough" co-starring Joan Fontaine and Joseph Cotten, it has been announced by Daniel T. O'Shea, president of Vanguard. Schary, who left MGM a few weeks ago to produce for Vanguard, said that he expected "Double Furlough," which will be a Selznick International picture, to start production in March.

Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce will report to Universal in January for rehearsals of their new Sherlock Holmes picture, "Sherlock Holmes in Canada" which is scheduled to get under way January 10. Roy William Neill will produce and direct.

As a result of her work in Warner's "My Reputation," now before the cameras, the studio has signed Barbara Stanwyck to a long-term contract. Addition of Miss Stanwyck to the company roster raises the star number to 23.

The nationwide search for a voice which nearest approximates that of the great operatic diva Nellie Melba, resulted in selection of 22-year-old Jean Forward to sing the role in Rene Clair's "It Happened Tomorrow."

Spencer Tracy has had his hair cropped close and donned a special prison pallor make-up to start his escape from the concentration camp for "The Seventh Cross" new drama with Signe Hasso in the feminine lead under the direction of Fred Zinneman, with Pandro Berman as the producer.

Paramount has set Marjorie Reynolds as the "other woman" with Veronica Lake in its forthcoming musical "Bring on the Girls." Picture goes into production January 7 with Sidney Lanfield directing for Fred Kohlmar, associate producer. Also cast are Sonny Tufts, Eddie Bracken and Cecil Kellaway.

Peter Rurich has been signed to write the screenplay of forthcoming RKO horror picture "The Screaming Skull" which Val Lewton will produce.

Milton Gross and Elwood Ulman have finished the script of "High Spirits" which Edward Hartman will produce for Universal.

Leopold Stokowski's star harpist will teach Alexis Smith the fundamentals of the harp for scenes in "The Horn Blows At Midnight," Warners' Jack Benny starrer.

Burnu Acquanetta has been signed to play the title role in Universal's "Jungle Queen" by associate producer Will Cowan. Story will be a sequel to "Captive Wild Woman," considered one of the more successful of the Universal series of "horror" pictures.

Coveted role of Bette Davis' daughter in Warners' "Mr. Skeffington" was given to Marjorie Riordan following tets of 65 actresses on and off the lot. Miss Riordan, whose contract was recently purchased from Sol Lesser by Warners following "Stage Door Canteen" will start work this week. Vincent Sherman directs for producers Julius J. Epstein and Philip G. Epstein.

Greer Garson has checked in at MGM for conferences with producer Leon Gordon on her starring role in "Mrs. Parkington." Wardrobe and make-up tests are slated to get under way around January 15.

William Beaudine has been signed to the direction of "Black Beauty," Monogram drama based on the famous novel by Anna Sewell. Lindsley Parsons wil produce.

"Capricornia," best selling novel written by Xavier Herbert has been purchased by RKO for early production. The story has an Australian locale and deals with inter-racial problems in the Northern Australian territory known as Capricornia.

Miniature Set Production Boon

Technical Adviser Jack Townsend (left) and Producer Arnold Pressburger (standing, right) comment as Director Rene Clair checks details of the miniature for the 1890 racetrack set for "It Happened Tomorrow" which Pressburger is producing for United Artists. Use of the miniature obviates waste motion in set construction and dressing, enables Clair to arrange his camera angles before production.

LONG DISTANCE—HEDDA HOPPER IN HOLLYWOOD PLEASE!

"Thanks for the column rave. You'll be happy to learn that M-G-M's 'A GUY NAMED JOE' is playing at the Capitol, N.Y. to business named TERRIFIC!"

By HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 26.—The most ironic event of the week—Metro, our biggest studio, can't find a house in which to show "A Guy Named Joe," so it will be ineligible for the Academy award, which, in my opinion, it would win hands down. What a picture! Never a dull moment. Teaming of Irene Dunne and Spencer Tracy is by way of being terrific. This is the picture we've been waiting for. Many of our actors had to go overseas before we realized what a fine performer Ward Bond is. In this, he has many Gable qualities. Van Johnson is going up the ladder so fast that, if he isn't careful, he'll find himself with star rating before New Year's. Vic Fleming has done a magnificent job. Let's not forget Lionel Barrymore, who plays the Boss of Heaven, with a couple of speeches we should memorize. Nor Jimmy Gleason. I don't as a rule find myself in a lather over a picture. But "A Guy Named Joe" got me.

P.S. The reason is that M-G-M's "MADAME CURIE" is playing in 4 Los Angeles Theatres, and it's a leading contender for the Academy Award.

TIMELY TOPICS

January 13th is a day well worth celebrating. It will mark the 30th anniversary of W. Ray Johnston's entry into the motion picture business, and considering Ray's fine standing, the magnificent job he has done for Monogram Pictures, there is all the more reason for extending to Ray sincere congratulations on his fine record and the wish that he will be around to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of this great event.

Get On Your Mark . . . Get Set . . . and right smack at the dawn of January 18th get going on the Fourth War Loan Drive!

There cannot possibly be any excuse or alibi for anything less than greatly exceeded quotas in every theatre throughout the nation. You MUST have the will to make this come true, because along with the will is the fact that everything has been done, or will be done, to make your task a simple one.

Charlie Skouras, "Sturdy" Sturdivant, and Rick Ricketson, aided and abetted by Seymour Peiser, Sam Shain, Morrie Kinzler, and all the rest of the WAC and Bond Drive personnel, have been burning the midnight oil to hand you on a silver platter—all the help you could ever hope to get, and what's more, in an intelligent, showmanlike manner.

Next week's issue of STR will be our special Fourth War Loan Edition and we can promise you a veritable gold mine of suggestions, ideas, and tried and proven activities, all designed to make your planning and execution of a campaign a highly successful one.

But like the proverbial horse that was led to the water, we cannot make you take a drink. You, Mr. Theatreman and Miss Theatrewoman, have got to warm up to your tasks and then follow through for the gosh-derndest, best ballyhooed, extra exploited, local bond drive that will make you and your theatres the bell-wether for the drive.

With any kind of smart planning, and shortly after the Bond Drive gets going, you have a second and, likewise, important responsibility. The March of Dimes.

All the reasons and necessity for this campaign breaking in the middle of the Bond Drive have been revealed to you on several occasions. So, as long as it must be done, and done well, let us see if we can't make a record-breaking showing on the Dimes collections.

You all know your quotas and how much you collected last year. Here is as worthy a cause as any American could hope to support. And he WILL support it wholeheartedly and enthusiastically.

So mark your calendar in advance, order your trailer, your accessories and whatever else you will require, and make it an extra, added attraction to fit right in with your Bond Drive. The dates, just in case you haven't jotted them down, are January 24th to January 30th.

We see by the news that fewer cases were filed in 1943 for arbitration than during the previous year. When you stop to consider that only a little over a hundred were filed altogether in 1942, it might make you wonder how the set-up can possibly mean anything at all when less than that number were filed in 1943.

And such being the case, why continue something that, obviously, has little or no appeal to the average theatre owner as a means of relief, and which is maintained at a terrific cost to the industry?

All facts and factors being considered, the present arbitration set-up should either be altered considerably so as to afford better, quicker and cheaper, relief, or it ought to be junked altogether and filed away in the furthermost archives of "errors" of the industry.

STR's editorial staff is so darned busy on next week's bond issue they asked us to please convey their thanks to all those theatremen and circuit executives who said so many nice things about that Maintenance Calendar in last week's equipment section. They also want you to know that there will be one every month for the balance of 1944.

(There are some reprints available while the supply lasts. First come, first served.)

Regardless of what else we will be able to thank 1944 for when the year is over, it should go down in industry history as the year in which the exhibitor regained his cancellation privileges. And if that doesn't make a lot of youse guys happy, then we don't know what will.

Of course, there are many other items the exhibs would like to see come to pass in this important year, but they are so numerous space prohibits even an attempt to enumerate them here. However, you are all so familiar with them you can make up your own list and check them off if, as, and when they disappear from the controversial skyline of the industry.

Sen. Wagner to Back Golden's 10 p. c. Plea

Hard on the rumors from Washington that the Senate would kill the tax bill and that, if it did pass, President Roosevelt might veto it, came assurances from Sen. Robert F. Wagner to John Golden of the legitimate theatre that he favored the latter's plea for retention of the 10 per cent admission tax. The Senator from New York is not a member of the Senate Finance Committee, where the current 1-cent-in-5 admission tax has been written, so he told Mr. Golden that he will present the plea to the chairman of the committee, Sen. Walter F. George.

Mr. Golden had urged Sen. Wagner to advocate a "sane, reasonable tax—the present 10 per cent excise—on the people who need the recreation that the theatre can and does provide." In answering the producer, Sen. Wagner wrote that he was sure many Senators on the floor would have Golden's viewpoint about the tax.

Actually, if the entire tax bill is killed on the Senate floor or through the President's veto the present 10 per cent tax will go on as usual, but it is certain the Administration will attempt to shape a new tax bill that provides larger funds for carrying on the war. In this case the admission tax will have to be considered all over again, and the 10 per cent feature will be retained only so long as no new legislation is written.

Henry Reeve, president of Texas Theatre Owners, this week sent a letter to each member of the Senate and to each of the 21 Texas representatives in which he made a final plea to effect a more reasonable tax for smaller theatres charging 35 cents and under. Mr. Reeve considered the 1-cent-in-5 tax an undue burden on the theatres in towns of less than 5000 population, and suggested an added clause in the bill which would apply only to theatres in this situation. The suggested clause provides for a tax of 2 cents for each 15 cents admission, or major fraction. This, wrote Mr. Reeve, would cover the theatres in towns which have lost population because of war work fluctuations.

Here's Hoping

Commander "Mush" Morton, whose famous submarine, "Wahoo," furnished exploits featured in "Destination Tokyo," served as technical adviser on the film, but he may never see the picture. He was ordered to duty before the film was completed. As soon as the film was ready, the studio sent the Commander an invitation to see it. But Commander Morton was reported "missing in action."

Rank Seeks Releasing Co-op Plan With U. S.

A larger world market for British pictures through a joint British-American distribution plan for the occupied countries as the war progresses was envisaged at a press conference this week by Barrington Gain, financial advisor and representative here of J. Arthur Rank, reigning English film mogul. Rank was anxious, said Gain, for a close cooperation between the film interests of the two countries after the war.

Means for achieving this end called for several methods on the part of Rank's organization, General Film Distributors, one of which is the possibility of the British interests buying into some American company. Other plans being considered are as yet in the idea stage, although Gain said he was empowered to make any distribution deal he saw fit. However, the visiting financial advisor indicated such a deal would mean contracting for distribution of Rank product as a whole, and not in separate sales, as has been the practice until now for most British film-makers.

During his stay here Gain expects to confer with executives of all the American companies, regardless of size, concerning distribution or consolidation possibilities.

Paramount Has 5 Pictures In Work, 2 More to Start

Paramount started 1944 with five feature pictures in work. They are: "The Hitler Gang," "Road to Utopia," "And Now Tomorrow," "Till We Meet Again," and "Incendiary Blonde."

Two features which will start next week are the Technicolor musical, "Bring on the Girls," starring Eddie Bracken, Veronica Lake, Sonny Tufts and Marjorie Reynolds, directed by Sidney Lanfield, and the Pine-Thomas production, "One Body Too Many," starring Jack Haley and Jean Parker, directed by Frank McDonald.

'This Is Army' Does It Again: London Theatre Turns 'Em Away

All London box-office records since the war started were broken by Warner's film version of "This Is the Army" at the Warner Theatre over the New Year's weekend. Police had to be called to help with the crowds, and thousands were turned away.

Picture has been set for eight weeks at the West End first-run and Max Milder, managing director for Warners in Great Britain, predicts it will be the biggest grosser the company ever had in this country.

RKO Theatre Employe Killed

Frank Adams, former engineer at the RKO 81st Street Theatre, New York, who left to join the Merchant Marine, was killed in action in the Mediterranean on November 20 last, according to word received at the RKO home office.

Revised Decree Plan Speeds Final Action

Progress on the consent decree moved forward this week after attorneys for the five major producers met at the MPPDA office on Tuesday. The conference was generally considered to be for the purpose of making final corrections in company proposals for changes in the decree. At any rate, a revised draft was expected to be sent immediately to Assistant Atorney General Tom C. Clark in Washingon. This draft, it was hoped, would erase the objections raised by Clark to earlier proposals from the distributors.

Clark was expected to have the new draft mimeographed and sent out to a number of independent exhibitor leaders who had been working with the Assistant Attorney General and MPPDA officials on a new form of decree. Since the new proposals will have to be studied by the independents no immediate definite action can be expected, but later these representatives will come to Washington for a final conference with Clark.

In the meanwhile the Washington official will make a jump to New York next week, when he will go into conference with Joseph P. Hazen, Warner vice-president who is serving as liaison between Clark and the distributors, presumably to discuss the revised plans. Following the round of talks on both sides, it is believed Clark will call a meeting of distributor and independent representatives in an attempt to thresh out a final decree paper acceptable to both the industry as a whole and the Government.

Jean Arthur 'Our Glacier Gal'

In an effort to combat the Big Freeze which keeps the mercury at the bottom of the bulb, the boys at Camp Whittler, Alaska, held a contest recently and voted Jean Arthur as "Our Glacier Gal."

W. Ray Johnston

President of Monogram Pictures Corporation, which he organized in 1931. On January 13 next, Mr. Johnston will celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of his entrance into the film business in 1914, when at the invitation of the Shallenberger brothers and Charles J. Hite of the old Thanhouser Film Corporation, he became secretary, then treasurer of Syndicate Film Company, progressing from that time on to the high Monogram post he holds today. His well-established principles of square dealing are reflected in the goodwill which Monogram enjoys throughout the industry.

A PROMISE TO A KID ON CRUTCHES

Thousands of pledges have been received for the 1944 MARCH OF DIMES DRIVE. Each day brings more. They mean just one thing. The exhibitors of America are not forgetting the fight on Infantile Paralysis during the week of January 24th to 30th. This fight for the life and happiness of stricken children is something that comes close to all of us and to our public. They will spare a dime for it when you champion this cause with sincere Showmanship. They will contribute when Greer Garson appeals to them in the beautiful trailer. Here's a promise to a kid on crutches: When a feller needs a friend—depend on the sporting heart of America's theatre men.

Less Flesh in Chicago?

More concentration on film fare and fewer stage shows are forecast for the Chicago area during 1944 by John Redmond, general manager of the Mort Singer Theatre circuit. Bands, says Redmond, have been losing their popularity, and plans for the New Year call for the booking of leading name bands only, as the second flight bands have not brought in enough business to pay for their booking. Good vaudeville acts are difficult to get, and therefore flesh shows will not be so numerous as in the past, he thought.

Upper N. Y. Zones Start Work on 4th Loan Drive

With the personnel of the Upper New York State Fourth War Loan Drive committee completed, regional meetings were called this week by J. Myer Schine, chairman. The meetings were held at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, on Wednesday, the Hotel Syracuse, Syracuse, on Thursday, and the Statler in Buffalo on Friday. With the preliminary conferences over, the key men will next hold similar meetings in their own zones. The Upper New York area has been broken down to 28 zones, each zone having a chairman or co-chairman to supervise bond-selling activities.

The Advisory Committee that will work with Mr. Schine are: District Co-Chairmen: Lou Golding, Palace Theatre, Albany, C. J. Latta, Warners Theatre, Albany; District Chairman: Lou Hart, Schine's Glove Theatre, Gloversville; District Chairman: W. C. 'Rationing' Tradeshow Jan. 24

MGM will tradeshow "Rationing" in exchange centers throughout the country on January 24, with the exception of New York, where it will be screened January 25. Wallace Beery is starred in "Rationing," which features Marjorie Main, Donald Meek and Dorothy Morris.

Altec Promotes L. J. Patton

Promotion of Lane J. Patton from New York supervisor to branch manager of the New York Eastern District is announced by G. L. Carrington, president of Altec Service Corporation.

St. Louis Reports Flu Has Passed Its Peak

St. Louis this week reported that the influenza epidemic was definitely on the wane in that locality. Since the Missouri city was the first to send out word of the epidemic when it started, the slackening there assumes importance for other parts of the country which were hit by the flu and pneumonia later.

During the first three weeks of December deaths were running approximately twice the normal rate, the weekly average for that period being 380 deaths as against a normal average of 185. The report for the week ended December 25 was much more encouraging, showing deaths of 320 or 60 under the average for the first three weeks.

The prevalence of influenza, la grippe and ordinary head colds has had its effect on motion picture theatre attendance. Reports from the city and county and from various points in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois indicate that attendance for Christmas Day and Sunday, December 26 was decidedly under the corresponding days in 1942. Another factor that had some bearing on the theatre situation was the trend toward spending Christmas Day at home with the family. Many soldiers, sailors and marines with holiday furloughs desired to spend as much time as possible with the folks. So they didn't go to the shows as in former years. The natural drain on the population by the draft law and enlistments in our armed forces by young men and women were other factors that have had an adverse effect on theatre attendance in recent weeks.

Columbia Starts Producing Year With Seven in January

The new year will start for Columbia with seven pictures being slated to go before the cameras during January. The present production calendar calls for three features to start this week. These include "Mr. Winkle Goes to War," Edward G. Robinson starrer; the still untitled Kay Kyser musical, and "Girl in the Case," a mystery thriller.

Next week two more are slated to start shooting: "Pilebuck," starring Pat O'Brien, and "The Whistler," melodrama. Additional January starters are "Mission Thirty-Six," and "Soldiers in Slacks."

FILM TRAVEL-LOG

Stanton Griffis, OWI chief of the film bureau, arrived in Hollywood early this week for a ten-day conference with the coast WAC on short subject releases.

Fredric March has recently returned from his overseas tour for the USO, and is now resting at his home in Connecticut.

Allan Meltzer, eastern publicity manager for Warners, is leaving this week-end for his first visit to the company's studios in Burbank.

J. C. Bavetta, managing director of 20th-Fox in Brazil, is due to arrive in New York this week-end from Rio de Janiero.

Roy Haines, southern and western division manager for Warners, is on a tour of exchanges, including Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, and Kansas City.

House Staff Saves Kids

Employes of the Highland Park Theatre, Detroit, were receiving high praise this week for their cool work in getting more than 500 patrons, most of them children, out of the theatre last Saturday when a fire completely destroyed the building. The fire broke out at 1:50 p.m. when the theatre was entertaining its usual Saturday afternoon juvenile crowd. When the blaze was noticed behind the screen, the children were led out without any panic. The house, which is operated by Associated Theatres, was completely destroyed.

Committeemen for Moss Lunch Cover Industry

The set-up of committees appointed in connection with the luncheon in honor of License Commissioner Paul Moss at the Hotel Astor next Wednesday was announced this week. The luncheon will be on behalf of the 1943 campaign of the merged New York and Brooklyn Federations of Jewish Charities. Co-chairmen of the Amusement Division are David Bernstein and Major Albert Warner. The campaign manager is Nathan B. Spingold. Vice-chairmen are: Barney Balaban, Nate J. Blumberg, Jack Cohn, Malcolm Kingsberg, William Klein and Herman Robbins.

The various committees follow: Exhibitors Committee: Harry Brandt, William Brandt, Max A. Cohen, Simon H. Fabian, Louis Frisch, Sam Goodman, Jack Hattem, Arthur L. Mayer, Charles Moss, H. Rachmil, Walter Reade, Sr., Sam Rinzler, Edward N. Rugoff, R. Sanders, Fred J. Schwartz, Edward Seider, Ben Sherman, Spyros Skouras, Joe Springer, and Samuel Strausberg.

Legitimate Theatres: Lawrence Langner, Chairman; Marcus Heiman, Ben A. Boyar, Howard Dietz, Sidney R. Felisher, Sam Forrest, Harry M. Goetz, John Golden, Lee Shubert.

Motion Picture Accessories: Benjamin S. Moss, chairman; Walter Barber, Jules Catsiff, M. J. Fessler, George Feinberg, Emil Friedlander, William Freedman, Emanuel Frisch, Miss I. Garretson, Joe Hornstein, Joe Katsh, A. L. Kirwin, Stanley Kolbert, Fred Lakeman, Jerome M. Loeb, Milton Maier, Harry Mandel, Harry A. Nadel, Joe Pear, Eugene Picker, Arthur M. Rapf, Harold Rinzler, Sam Rosen, Edward Seider, Max Seligman, Charles Sonin, Monroe E. Stein, James E. Stroock, and Max Wolff.

Night Clubs: Lou Brecker, Chairman; Billy Rose, and Ed Levine. Ticket Brokers: Harry Kaufman.

Taylor Mills in OWI Post

Taylor Mills, at present administrative analyst for the Budget Bureau, will become assistant director of the OWI motion picture bureau on January 17, it was disclosed this week in Washington. Mills succeeds Arch A. Mercey, who resigned last week to enter the Coast Guard. The new director handled all film contracts and analyzed film work done by the armed services while with the Budget Bureau.

Barrows Elected for 27th Time

For the 27th consecutive term Thad Barrows was elected president this week of Boston Local 182 of the Motion Picture Projectionists Union at the regular annual election. Other officers elected were: James F. Burke, business agent; Bernard McGaffigan, vice-president; Joseph Rosen, treasurer; and Albert Moulton, financial secretary. Walter Diehl, Joseph Nuzzolo, and Harold Kaitz were elected to the Board of Governors.

Monogram Signs Illinois Chain

Publix Great States Theatres, Inc., with a circuit of 56 houses in Illinois, has signed for the Monogram 1943-44 program, according to an announcement by Steve Broidy, vice-president and general sales manager.

Boston's 'Cocoanut Grove' Law Cuts Seating Capacity

The Bijou, one of the oldest motion picture theatres in Boston and originally built as the B. F. Keith Theatre, but of late years the home of a "proven picture" policy, was shut down completely, the second balconies in four other theatres have been ordered closed, and the seating capacities of many public amusement spots drastically cut in an order issued last week by the State Department of Public Safety.

Officials of the Safety Department, under whose jurisdiction all places of amusement now come by the terms of what is popularly known as the "Cocoanut Grove law," explained that these orders have been issued because the egress at the four theatres affected are not adequate under the law, but that owners will be permitted to bring their theatres up to the requirements if possible. They stress the fact that the theatres are not in any way structurally unsafe or unsound, but that the exits are not sufficient.

City Censor John J. Spencer thereupon refused to issue a 1944 license for the Bijou and said he would not issue one until such time as the theatre can provide sufficient additional exits to meet the law.

Second balconies have been ordered closed in the Colonial, Old Howard, Gayety and Normandie theatres. The Colonial capacity is cut from 1643 persons to 1195. The old Howard is a nationally known burlesque and motion picture theatre. The Normandie plays second-run pictures.

So closely did the Safety Department figure the requirements of the law that the RKO Boston, largest vaudeville and picture theatre in the East with a seating capacity of 3800, had its capacity cut a mere 72 persons and will be able to overcome this with one added exit. The Keith Memorial and the two large Marcus Loew theatres, the State and the Orpheum, were not affected by the new ruling.

Paramount Sales, Exploitation Forces Set for Jan. 21 Meet

Paramount district sales managers and field exploitation men will hold a two-day meeting at the Hotel Pierre in New York City on January 21-22 to discuss sales and exploitation plans on "Lady in the Dark" and other important 1944 pictures, Neil Agnew, general sales manager, announced this week.

Attending the two-day meeting will be district managers: William Erbb, M. S. Kusell, M. R. Clark, E. W. Sweigert, John Kirby, Allen Usher, R. C. LiBeau, Hugh Braly, Del Goodman, J. J. Donohue and Gordon Lightstone. Also the following exploitation men: Arnold Van Leer, Ed J. Wall, Sid Mesibov, J. M. Joice, Charles C. Perry, William Brooker, James Levine, E. G. Fitzgibbon, M. D. Cohn, James Lundy, Ralph Ravenscroft, W. C. Lewellen, Allan S. Glenn, Vernon Gray and Win Barron.

BRITAIN'S FILMLAND IN 1943

By Jock MacGregor

So ends yet another fantastically successful year for Britain's filmland. Almost everywhere cash has poured into the box-office as never before. Even bad films have drawn crowds. During popular hours it has been almost impossible to get into any cinema without waiting.

Before the war key cinemas in cities like Glasgow, Cardiff and Manchester jealously guarded their first-run clearances. Few movies were held a second week. Now many will run day-and-date at two cinemas and be retained for further sessions without harming subsequent runs. These new audiences are found among war workers who, with high wage envelopes, can afford city center prices. Their places in the neighborhoods are taken by those who dislike crowded transport and blackout travel.

Product shortage has, if aything, helped the industry! Second features are out where the feature can stand alone, and good shorts are in. To economize in prints, releases have been spread out and, at the same time, speeded up. Pre-war general release was often six or more months after preview. Now many pictures are going the rounds within six weeks. Some are even being distributed here before America.

This is a decided asset. Live-wire showmen can cash in on the national newspaper publicity which results from the London premiere while it is still fresh in the public's mind. It was not uncommon for a star's newest film to be in the West End before the previous one had been released; a damper if there ever was one.

In assessing the success of stars and films the psychology of British cinemagoers must be understood. Americans are more susceptible to publicity, novelty, new faces. The British eye newcomers with suspicion, will patronize the film with the established star in preference to that with the "discovery" whom they will accept only after several appearances.

This accounts for the phenomenal success of certain re-issues. "Rebecca," for instance, enjoyed the longest run ever at UA's London Pavilion. "Four Feathers" was retained for a second week at the West End's most important cinema, MGM's Empire—a feat not achieved by many big new films.

Thanks to the Special Services Branch of the U. S. Army, many well-known American radio programs have been "canned" and aired through the BBC. This boosting has helped a number of regular broadcasters and guest stars at the box offices in particular, Bing Crosby, Jack Benny, "Charlie McCarthy," Bob Hope and certain bands. A ready-made public awaits Dinah Shore.

Unquestionably the two stars to make the most headway here are Humphrey Bogart and Betty Grable—both established favorites with the forces. The former because he is rugged, meaty and has been helped by many roles; the latter . . . well, need I say . . . ? Eric Portman, whom you may remember as the U-Boat Commander in "The Invaders," is the British artist to make the greatest strides.

The light-hearted, escapist entertainment is the most certain of universal success, but war films which have merited it have done all right too.

No less successful than the cinema has been the studio. No year which has produced two such brilliant British films as "In Which We Serve" and "Col. Blimp" can be regarded as uneventful. The former has gained laurels for the British film wherever it has been shown, while the latter is a great picture, breaking new ground and holding audiences throughout the three hours that it runs.

For consistency and variety, the Gaumont-British-Gainsborough Studios take a spot of beating. Not world beaters perhaps, the line-up has included no cheese. "Men in Grey," "We Dive at Dawn," "Miss London Limited," and "Dear Octopus" have been very popular.

The death of Leslie Howard was a great tragedy. "The Gentle Sex," a charming story of women at war, was just evidence of what an inspired artist he was.

In "The Yellow Canary," Herbert Wilcox proved that he could make a good picture about a subject other than Queen Victoria.

Ealing has slogged away with subjects dealing with the home front. The story of the Fire Service, "The Bells Go Down" was notable.

The Warner Brothers British studios turned out some workmanlike pictures. RKO's British films with Eric Portman have been successful. MGM's "Tartu" caught the imagination of British cinemagoers, and has done well wherever shown. For the future studio space is booked to capacity, with producers concentrating on quality rather than quantity.

Phil Engel Goes to UA as New England Publicity Chief

Phil Engel, who recently resigned after 13 years as publicity representative for Warner Brothers in Boston, this week was named New England publicity chief for United Artists and will assume his new duties at once under the supervision of James Winn, district manager for the Buffalo, Boston, and New Haven areas. Engel's territory will be the same.

Most of this week Engel has been in New York for conferences with director of publicity Paul Lazarus at the home office to plan special exploitation campaigns for the New England and Buffalo districts. The new publicity head, in signing his new contract, declared he was very happy to retain headquarters in Boston because of many theatre and exchange friendships.

Two Former MGM Auditors Promoted to Office Managers

Two former auditors are now MGM office managers, according to an announcement by Alan F. Commings, in charge of exchange operations. Ben Wolf today assumes his new duties at the Boston exchange, as does Alvin Gross in the Minneapolis branch.

Wolf originally was with the Loew accounting department. In 1938 he became a student auditor for MGM, later being promoted to auditor. Gross joined MGM as a checker in Albany and after a short time was made a student booker in Cleveland. In May, 1942, he joined the Marine Corps and was discharged honorably in October.

Harry Friedman Joins WB

Harry Friedman, veteran trade and newspaper reporter, has been engaged by Alex Evelove, Warner Bros. studio publicity head, to handle trade paper relations for the studio in Hollywood.

'Wishing Well' to Aid Dimes Drive

The March of Dimes 1944 campaign will get under way in New York City on January 18 with the unveiling in Times Square by Mayor LaGuardia of a twelve-foot, all-glass "wishing well." A large glass manufacturer is cooperating in the construction of the well.

New York City Publicity Chairman Eddie Dowden is planning a Broadway parade featuring open cars to be occupied by stars of Broadway and Hollywood.

Members of the American Women's Voluntary Services will make a collection along the line of march.

District of Columbia Theatres Set Plans For War Loan Drive

With the slogan, "Sell a Bond for Every Seat," the motion picture industry of Washington went all-out for success of the 4th War Loan at a special meeting of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of D. C. and the War Activities Committee.

In order to reach a goal of approximately 20 per cent more bonds sold in the 4th War Loan, the theatremen recommended the division of the District into zone areas. Zone chairmen designated by President A. J. Brylawski, of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners, to spearhead the Bond sales in each area are:

Pledge to Double 1943's Dimes Quota

Twelve hundred of the 1500 theatres in Georgia, Alabama, North and South Carolina were represented Tuesday at the five-state March of Dimes conference called by Georgia State Chairman J. H. Thompson. It was predicted that Georgia would double its quota of last year, thus boosting collections from $18,000 to $36,000 or more.

The delegates, in session at the Piedmont Hotel, were cheered by the announcement that all of the Lucas & Jenkins theatres would take March of Dimes audience collections in the drive Jan. 24-30.

Governor Arnall of Georgia paid high tribute to the motion picture industry. J. H. Thompson and Hugh E. Martin, co-chairmen for Georgia, presided at the meeting. From New York came Harry Brandt, E. L. Alperson, Oscar A. Doob and Dr. John L. Lavan, all of whom spoke. Bob Wilby introduced Brandt and Alperson, and added a plea in behalf of the 4th War Loan. Dr. Lavan explained why, due to epidemics in 1943, it is important that the funds of the National Foundation be greater than ever in 1944.

The "flying squadron" of the National Executive Committee proceeded to Chicago for a meeting on Jan. 7 at the Blackstone.

Drive Officials Check In

B. V. Sturdivant, national campaign director, Seymour Peiser, publicity director, Charles P. Skouras, national chairman, Rick Ricketson, vice-chairman, and Andy Krappman, assistant campaign director, checked into Fourth War Loan headquarters, New York, this week, preparatory to the opening of the forthcoming bond drive, January 18.

Church Bells, Sirens to Herald Bond Drive

Church bells will ring and victory sirens will blow for five minutes at noon on Monday, January 18, throughout the United States, Alaska and Hawaii, signaling the opening of the Motion Picture Industry's Fourth War Loan Drive.

The pealing of church bells and crying of sirens will be the Motion Picture's clarion call to the nation for the purchase of bonds in its gigantic effort to sell a bond for every seat, which means a goal of $5,500,000,000. This will mark the first time that such a sensational plan will have been put into effect, and it is hoped that it will prove a resounding and effective inaugural stimulation for the campaign.

Revealed by National Chairman Charles P. Skouras, the plan was originated by H. H. Lowenstein and Don Jacocks, New Jersey showmen.

By this extraordinary method, public attention will be immediately focused upon the campaign in a manner which, it is expected, will have durable inspiration through the industry's drive. Arrangements for carrying out the plan are being handled by the State Chairmen of the Fourth War Loan Drive of the Motion Picture Industry.

'Ice-Capades' Show to Aid War Loan Drive

Plans are under way for co-sponsorship by Station WRC and Variety Club of Washington of a Fourth War Loan Bond Matinee of "Ice Capades of 1944" to be held at Uline's Arena on January 29th.

Under the chairmanship of Carter Barron, Loew's Theatre division manager, a committee comprising many of Washington's best known showmen has been set up to handle the many details of what is planned to be one of the most important bond-selling ventures undertaken by the District's show-folk. Again this year each purchaser of a War Bond will be entitled to a seat at the matinee performance.

Associated with Barron on the committee are: John J. Payette, Warner Bros. general zone manager; Hardie Meakin, managing director of RKO Keith's Theatre; Sidney Lust, president of Lust Theatres; Howard Livingston, manager of Uline's Arena; Frank La Falce, publicity director of Warner Bros. Theatres; Sam Galanty, Columbia Pictures division manager; George Wheeler, assistant to manager of WRC; Fred Shawn, program manager, WRC; John Allen, MGM branch manager; and Lou Janof. Al Sherman and Tom Knode have been appointed publicity co-chairmen, representing the Variety Club and Station WRC, respectively—W.

Bond Sales Thru Family Club

Sales of bonds among 20th Century-Fox home office employes will be handled through the Family Club, an organization of employes which has been organized into groups and committees for that purpose, it has been announced by Dan Michalove.

Drive Trailers Ready

Fourth War Loan Drive special trailers, 12,000 of them, are ready for shipment to theatres from local National Screen exchanges. Release dates on the first three of the five specially prepared trailers are: Ginger Rogers "Finds a Bargain," January 18; Ann Sothern, "Box-Office Maisie," January 27; Bob Hope, "This is Bob . . . Fourth War Loan . . . Hope," February 6.

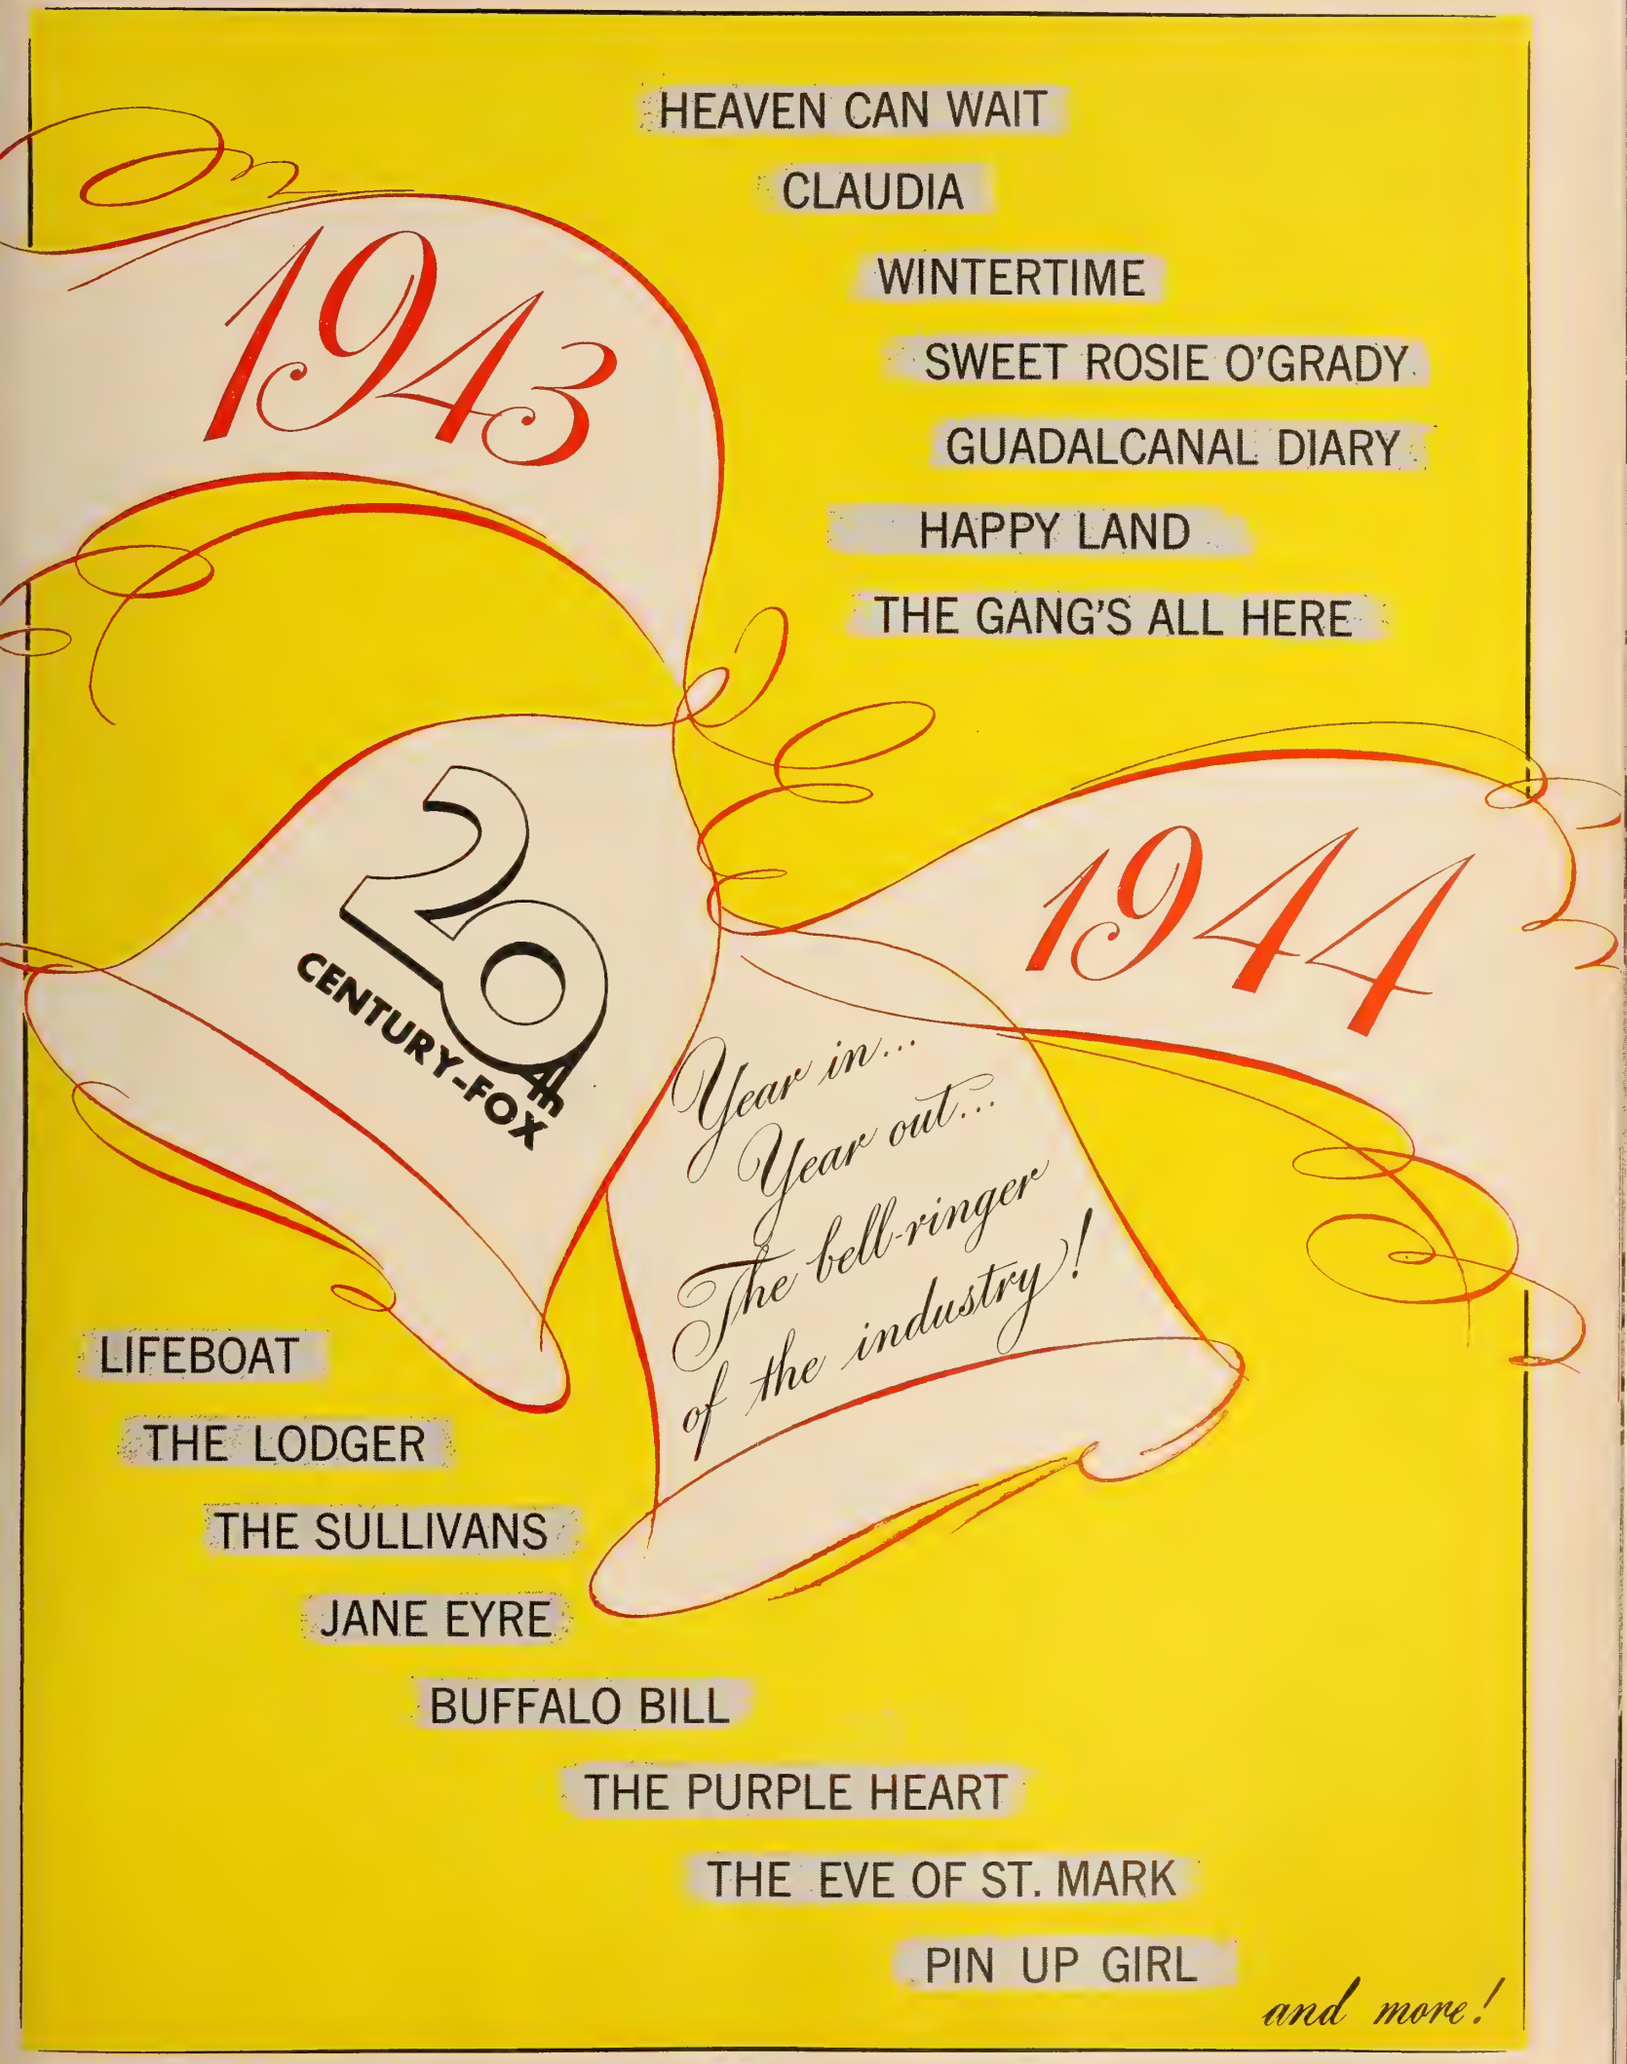
National Chairman Charles Skouras announced that State Chairmen will make a survey of their territories to find out exactly how many additional trailers will be needed to reach each and every one of the 16,000 trailers.

To Honor Officials At Meet in Dallas

The War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry of Texas and the Variety Club of Texas will be co-host at a luncheon for Texas exhibitors and distributors on January 10, to be held in the roof garden of the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas.

War Activities Committee, Fourth War Loan and March of Dimes officials, including Charles Skouras, B. V. Sturdivant, Rick Ricketson, Sam Shain, Ned Depinet, Si Fabian, Andy Krappman, Harry Brandt, Oscar Doob, Edward Alperson, Dr. John L. Lavan, will be honored.

Distinguished guest list follows: Henry Reeve, president, and board of directors of the Texas Theatre Owners, Inc.; H. A. Cole, president, and board of directors of Allied Theatre Owners, Inc.; Nathan Adams, Texas State Chairman, War Finance Committee; R. L. Thornton and Ed Shelton, co-chairmen of Dallas County; Fred Florence and C. F. O'Donnell, Dallas regional co-chairmen; Judson James, state executive manager of the War Finance Committee; George Tucker, New Mexico 4th War Loan state chairman; Arthur Lehman, Mississippi state chairman; M. S. McCord, Arkansas state chairman; Tony Sudekum, Tennessee state chairman; E. V. Richards, Louisiana state chairman.



Distributors Hold War Loan Meet At WAC Headquarters in New York

Robert Wolff of RKO Radio Pictures serving as distributor chairman for the War Activities Committee in the New York Metropolitan area, held a meeting Monday at WAC headquarters of branch managers of all film companies, zone distribution chairmen and the salesmen's field committee.

Present at the meeting, where the 4th War Loan Drive and the March of Dimes campaign were discussed, were the co-county chairmen: Ray Moon, 20th Century-Fox, Manhattan; Jack Bowen, Metro, the Bronx; Phil Hodes, RKO, Kings; Moe Sanders, Fox, Queens; Dave Burkan, United Artists, Richmond; and Irving Wormser, Columbia, New York State. In addition were other branch managers including Clarence Eisman, Warner Brothers; Jack Ellis, United Artists, and Myron Sattler of Paramount.

The entire salesmen's field committee attended as did exhibitor and New York are co-chairman of the War Activities Committee—Sam Rinzler.

It was decided to acquaint every local independent exhibitor with the purpose of the March of Dimes and the industry's participation in the 4th War Loan Drive. Plans were also made to complete final arrangements to publicize "Free Movie Day" Tuesday, January 18th.

OUR TWO BIG JOBS IN JANUARY: FOURTH WAR LOAN AND MARCH OF DIMES

The Box Office Slant

Standing Room Only

Paramount Farce-Comedy 83 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Like all good things, it ends too soon. A laugh riot for the critics of bureaucracy.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Good names and a timely theme should make this a worthwhile box-office bet.

Cast: Fred MacMurray, Paulette Goddard, Edward Arnold, Hillary Brooke, Roland Young, Anne Revere, Clarence Kolb, Isobel Randolph, Porter Hall, others. Credits: Associate Producer, Paul Jones. Directed by Sidney Lanfield. Screenplay by Darrell Ware and Karl Tunberg. Based on a story by Al Martin. Photographic direction by Charles Lang. Musical score by Robert Emmett Dolan. Art direction by Hans Dreier and Earl Hedrick.

Plot: Fred MacMurray, an efficient half-owner of a toy factory, is engaged to his partner's daughter who resents the interest shown in her fiance by his comely secretary. The secretary is detoured from going to Washington with MacMurray, and Paulette Goddard goes instead. The housing problem in the Capitol stumps the couple until Miss Goddard in desperation answers a want ad for a couple to serve as cook and butler in the home of Roland Young. MacMurray keeps trying to see the coordinator, but finally is forced to become the coordinator's butler in order to outwit a competitor for the war contract. Miss Goddard gets the boss, the boss gets the contract and the senior partner's daughter gets the air.

The Uninvited

Paramount Mystery 98 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) A thrilling, eerie picture built around spiritualism that is excellent entertainment.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Sure-fire money maker, with word-of-mouth comment certain to multiply the grosses. Will lead in any situation, and particularly in class houses.

Plot: A young musician and his sister buy a house on the Dover Cliffs in England, for quiet and a place to study. They find the house to be haunted by two female ghosts and set about ridding the place of the uninvited guests, with hair-raising results.

Comment: Sure-fire thrill entertainment that will pack them in, especially after word-of-mouth has its chance to spread. The film has an eerie quality, can top the bill in any situation and will serve on a long run in class houses. It is not a picture for persons who can't stand frightening and eerie situations, and while this phase may keep some out, it will also serve as excellent exploitation and draw many more in. Starting with a perfectly normal group of people, and approaching the thought of a house that is haunted, with the average person's skepticism, the story gradually draws on a mysterious presence and builds suspense like the drop-by-drop water torture. Slowly an unadmitted fear is admitted, and spirit forces are brought to work with a finesse that speaks very highly for the technique of the producer and director. A faithless seance is conducted and it will bring horror and spine-tingling chills to everyone in the audience. Even the evanescent smoke wreathing that is the spirit of the dead person who haunts the house is real enough to be shocking and the delicate touches of morbid mystery overpower the commonsense thinking of the audience. On many occasions the deep breath-intake of the combined audience with accompanying ohs smother the lines for seconds at a time. Ray Milland is his usual cynical, light-hearted self, and the expression of fear and doubt which now and then steals across his face is extremely effective and at the same time amusing. Ruth Hussey as the sister and Alan Napier as the doctor do equally effective jobs. Special notice should be taken of Gail Russell who has her first important feature part; the starlet is striking and winsome. Production by Charles Brackett and direction by Lewis Allen are responsible for the excellence of the picture, for it is the type of story which could very easily have been mishandled. Sell by using more subtle means of impressing ghost theories, as the spiritualistic aura is most important. Radio or newspaper contest might be based on ghost stories with spiritualism implicit in the story, the best ones being reproduced or read over the air. Another contest could be for newspaper or radio based on imaginary "conversations" with ghosts of departed persons, with cleverest "conversations" winning guest tickets.

Legion of Decency Ratings

(For Week Ending Jan. 8th)

SUITABLE FOR GENERAL PATRONAGE

Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves

In Our Time

OBJECTIONABLE IN PART

Casanova In Burlesque

A Correction

Through a mechanical error, the title of MGM's "Song of Russia" was inadvertently referred to as "Russia" in a review of the film in this department last week (STR, Jan. 1, p. 13).

Cowboy In The Clouds

(Nat'l Release, Dec. 23rd)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) A western with the timely addition of the Civil Air Patrol, that will satisfy action fans.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Not up to the standard of previous Charles Starrett films.

Cast: Charles Starrett, Dub Taylor, Julie Duncan, The Jesters, Jimmy Wakely and His Saddle Pals, Davison Clark, Hal Taliaferro, Dick Curtis, Edward Cassidy, Paul Zaremba, Charles King, Jr., John Tyrrell. Credits: Directed by Benjamin Kline. Story and screenplay by Elizabeth Beecher. Director of photography, George Meehan. Produced by Jack Fier.

Plot: The continuation of a war defense project, known as CAP (Civilian Air Patrol) is hindered by the richest man in the state. A ranch boss who has been sponsoring the movement tries to see this man to discover why he is trying to halt its progress, at which time he becomes involved in a murder. He is eventually able to prove his innocence and at the same time win over this man so that everything is straightened out.

Comment: With the addition in the plot of such timely references as the Civilian Air Patrol and a musical fund-raising project, this western becomes a little different than the average western, offering something new to the sagebrush followers and the Saturday Matinee customers. The heavy doesn't get a chance to do much dirty work, so there isn't too much of the usual suspense, but there are some good outdoor vocals and range comedy tunes by Jimmy Wakely and his Saddle Pals and The Jesters, respectively, and the comedy of Dub Taylor. The rest of the cast portray the regular standard western characters with Julie Duncan, playing the feminine lead, a gal interested in flying and Charles Starrett capably handling the lead assignment. Direction is by Benjamin Kline and production by Jack Fier.

The Lodger

20th Century-Fox Horror 84 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 7)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) A horror picture in the "A" class that will tingle spines and send patrons out talking.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: A shrewdly chosen cast, with Oberon and Sanders teamed, should attract patronage. Picture will top a double bill.

Cast: Merle Oberon, George Sanders, Laird Cregar, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Sara Allgood, Aubrey Mather, Queenie Leonard, Doris Lloyd, David Clyde, Helena Pickard. Lumsden Hare, Frederick Worlock, Olaf Hytten, Colin Campbell, Harold De Becker, Anita Bolster, Billy Bevan, Charles Hall. Credits: Produced by Robert Bassler. Directed by John Brahm. Screenplay by Barre Lyndon from the novel by Mrs. Marie Belloc Lowndes. Music, Hugo W. Friedhofer. Dances by Kenny Williams. Photography, Lucien Ballard.

Plot: The Ripper has all London terrified with a series of murders in which women are knifed to death and then mutilated. Scotland Yard, headed by Sanders, can't catch up with him. Then Hardwicke and his wife, Sara Allgood, take in a lodger to help tide over a bad time. Their niece, Merle, is a rising stage star. The family of three gradually suspects the lodger, Laird Cregar, of being the Ripper, as the murders increase to six. Cregar falls in love with Merle, but since he hates all women because an actress had ruined his brother, he also hates her. Cregar is the Ripper, and the climax finds Merle in his clutches, with Sanders to the rescue and the psychopathic Ripper ending his career with a spectacular plunge into the Thames.

Comment: London fog, dark alleys, costumes of the '90s, and Laird Cregar looking more maniacal every minute—not to mention the horror-stricken faces and screams of his victims—combined with a smooth direction that builds to a really solid climax, makes "The Lodger" a really first-rate horror number. The attempt has been made here to do a horror picture that depends, not on grotesque makeups, but on suspense that grows in terror as the film unwinds. The element of "whodunit" is almost completely missing, for the audience is allowed to feel sure of the Ripper's identity by the time the story is half over. As a result, the story is logically developed, with the audience let in for pure excitement, without the trimmings of surprise. Miss Oberon does a nice job as the girl and looks very well, and Sanders is his immaculate self. Cregar, of course, has the fattest role, and he gives it a feeling of insanity that builds the terror considerably. There are also a number of fine secondary parts, with exceptional work by Sara Allgood, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Queenie Leonard, and a stunning scene by Doris Lloyd that makes your hair stand on end. Make an attempt to go after patrons who don't ordinarily like horror or mystery films, for this story is so well developed that even the sophisticated will be intrigued.

Paramount Comedy 99 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) There are comedy, pathos, near-tragedy, and slapstick here, which when thoroughly mixed in the Preston Sturges manner add up to sheer entertainment.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: This Sturges number has wider audience appeal than his earlier films, establishes a new star in Betty Hutton, and will hit top box-office if properly exploited.

Cast: Eddie Bracken, Betty Hutton, Diana Lynn, William Demarest, Porter Hall, Emory Parnell, Alan Bridge, Julius Tannen, Victor Potel, "McGinty" (Brian Donlevy), "The Boss" (Akim Tamiroff), and others. Credits: Producer, G.M.O. Written and directed by Preston Sturges. Photography, John Seitz. Musical score by Leo Shuken and Charles Bradshaw.

Plot: Betty Hutton is knocked silly at a dance for soldiers and can't remember anything—much—when she gets home with Eddie Bracken's unwilling help. Eddie is her schoolboy adorer and becomes the fall guy. Pretty soon Betty remembers that following the dance somebody thought it would be fun if they all got married—and she did. Her trouble: she can't quite recall whom she married, and the soldiers have been sent away. Then Betty finds there will be a baby, and the panic is on. Young sis, Diana Lynn, suggests she marry Eddie, but Betty can't bring herself to deceive him. He learns the situation, however, and after such matters as the irate father, William Demarest, threatening him with a gun, a bank "robbery," and the fears of committing bigamy, they do get married. Then Eddie is arrested and faces no less than 17 charges. He's put in jail, escapes, and comes back six months later to find Betty in the maternity hospital. Then comes the Miracle of Morgan's Creek, which gets even Governor Brian Donlevy excited, makes Eddie a State Guard Captain, raises Papa from unemployment to head of the police force, and erases everybody's troubles. Sorry, but what the miracle is you'll have to see for yourself.

Comment: Preston Sturges has outdone even himself with this story and the treatment given it. Every element of entertainment from the crudest kind of slapstick to moments of near-tragedy are played upon with a master hand. The final effect is hilarious comedy that should have something for everyone in the audience—even the kids, despite the maternity angle. Out of the production Betty Hutton emerges as a full-fledged star. With a chance to do something besides being a hepcat, she carries away first acting honors, with Bracken right at her heels. Two others have the best roles of their careers—William Demarest as the father and Diana Lynn as the precocious 14-year-old sister. It is important that you get back of this picture for all you're worth. The production will back up every claim you make for it and, most significant, you will be setting up a new star for your theatre—future money in the cash-box. Our advice is to go to it.

Henry Aldrich, Boy Scout

Paramount Comedy 66 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Falls below the average for this series in laughs and situations. Will satisfy the kids and it teaches a moral.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: While not a top-flight Aldrich yarn, this one packs plenty of youth tie-up possibilities.

Cast: Jimmy Lydon, Charley Smith, John Litel, Olive Blakeney, Joan Mortimer, Minor Watson, Darryl Hickman, David Holt, Richard Haydel. Credits: Associate Producer, Michel Kraike. Directed by Hugh Bennett. Screenplay by Muriel Roy Bolton. Story by Agnes Christine Johnston. Photographic direction by Daniel Fapp. Technical advice by E. B. DeGroot of Boy Scouts of America.

Plot: Mr. Aldrich induces his school-day chum, Ramsey Kent, to build a factory in Centerville on the deal that Henry will try to reform Kent's cantankerous son, Peter. Henry is doing nicely in the Boy Scouts until Peter joins up as Henry's number-one problem. In the competitive Scout activities, Henry, who heads his local troop, is fast losing the coveted honors due to Peter's pranks until the rascal suffers a rude awakening. Henry and Dizzy rescue him at the risk of their lives and the troop goes on to win the competition with a repentant Peter and a proud Henry.

Comment: This picture has a number of funny gags, but it is far more serious than most previous Aldrich stories. It is possible that the film has been retarded by an all-out desire on the part of the producers to contribute a morale-building youth film with a bit too much reserve in order to make possible the Scout sponsorship and approval. Naturally the promotional value of this tieup will score favorably at the box-office and is worthy of plenty of showmanship attention. The Chamber of Commerce sequence, which is played up prominently in the plot, should help to enlist cooperation from local business men in exploiting the film.

Timber Queen

Paramount Action-Drama 66 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Routine Rudolf Rassendale and the mortgage tale brought up to date. Fair entertainment for action fans.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Dualer material with one musical number and northwoods background to sell.

Cast: Dick Arlen, Mary Beth Hughes, June Havoc, Sheldon Leonard, George E. Stone, Dick Purcell, Tony Hughes, others. Credits: Produced by William Pine and William Thomas. Directed by Frank McDonald. Screenplay by Maxwell Shane and Edward T. Lowe. Musical score by Willy Stahl. Photographic direction by Fred Jackman, Jr. Song, You're the One, by Johnny Mercer & Jimmy McHugh.

Plot: Arlen, an Army flyer, returns to the states and calls upon the wife of his buddy who was killed overseas. He finds her singing in a night club and learns that his business associate in civilian life is swindling her through a $30,000 mortgage on the dead husband's timber land. Dick, with the singer-wife, June Havoc, and her friend, Mary Beth Hughes, set out to cut the timber, enlisting the money and aid of a group of gamblers who stake the trio. After much dirty work at the crossroads, all ends happily.

Comment: While the plot and sequence of events in this film are familiar material, the production is reasonably well mounted. There is one thrilling scene which is new to big timber stories with a tree-topper being crushed to death by his safety belt when the tree splits high above the ground. Another good action shot is that of Arlen blasting open a dammed-up stream by dropping a homemade block-buster from his private plane. June Havoc sings one number, You're the One, in the night club scene. This can only be rated as a formula production which will serve to fill in on a double bill, but it will find a pretty good following in the action spots.

Sherlock Holmes and Spider Woman

Universal Mystery-Drama 62 mins.

(National Release, January 21)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) An excellent murder yarn with plenty of surprises and suspense.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Good supporting picture which lends itself to special exploitation. Equal to tops in series.

Cast: Basil Rathbone, Nigel Bruce, Gale Sondergaard, Dennis Hoey, Vernon Downing, Alec Craig, Mary Gordon, Arthur Hohl, Teddy Infuhr. Credits: Produced and directed by Roy William Neill. Based on a story by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Original screenplay by Bertram Millhauser. Photographic direction by Charles Van Enger.

Plot: Sherlock Holmes disappears and is purported to have drowned while on a fishing trip. Dr. Watson is disposing of his friend's possessions when Holmes returns under a disguise explaining that his widely publicized death was deliberately planned to expose a baffling pajama murder ring. Holmes, through a series of attempts on his life, eventually tracks down the Spider Woman who is responsible for the series of crimes.

Comment: This is a skillfully concocted yarn which places the life of fiction's most famous detective personality constantly in jeopardy. Holmes' hairbreadth escapes are carefully spaced to maintain a goodly pace of suspense. No attempt is made to conceal the identity of the murderer as the story deals principally with Holmes endeavors to procure ample evidence to bring the criminals to justice. The final sequence places his life unwittingly in the hands of Dr. Watson, with the action taking place in an up-to-date shooting gallery using dummies of Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito. Holmes saves himself and captures the Spider Woman. Exploitation of this film can take many forms with the "Pajama Murder" theme, playing up the shooting gallery sequence, Holmes' "death" or the "Spider Woman" angle.

California Joe

Republic Western 55 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Dec. 29th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) A fast-moving western; will be enjoyed by all who like outdoor dramas.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Topnotcher in the Don "Red" Barry series.

Goal of $3,000,000 Looms for the 1944 March of Dimes Drive

No quota for the 1944 March of Dimes drive has been set by national chairman Nicholas M. Schenck, but the super-optimistic goal of $3,000,000, predicted by Edward Alperson and other enthusiastic drive leaders, now looms as more than a mere possibility.

With the opening of the campaign, January 24th to 30th, still two weeks away, the March of Dimes headquarters in the Asor Hotel, New York, announces that pledges have been received from nearly 10,000 theatres, far exceeding the participants signed up at this point in the 1943 campaign.

"Not only are more theatres pledging to take an active part in the drive with audience collections and other activities, than last year," said Harry Brandt of the executive committee, "but letters and wires indicate a tremendous increase in personal interest. This is, undoubtedly, due to the fact that during 1943 there were savage infantile paralysis epidemics in many sections and thousands of exhibitors learned, for the first time, of the terrible ravages of this vicious disease."

As an indication of the increased interest by exhibitors, are the returns from Georgia, Alabama, Florida, North and South Carolina areas. Following a five-state meeting in Atlanta on the 4th, indications pointed to nearly a 100 per cent increase in number of theatres participating this year. The demonstration of the Sister Kenny method of treating infantile paralysis, put on at the meeting in Atlanta, deeply impressed the visiting exhibitors and film exchange representatives.

One outstanding point emphasized at the meeting was the fact that exhibitors, usually reluctant to make audience collections, were becoming convinced that the public welcomed a chance to contribute to the fight on infantile paralysis and in no way resented the collections. One exhibitor reported that he had a complaint at one of his theatres because he showed the trailer and did not make the audience collection last year. He's going the full way in the current drive.

At the four-state conference in Chicago on the 7th, exhibitors from Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana promised at least a 25 per cent increase in the collections as compared with last year's.

On January 10th, a three-state meeting will be held in Dallas, Texas, with representatives from Oklahoma and Arkansas attending.

A "flying squadron" of the national executive committee—Harry Brandt, Oscar A. Doob, Eddie Alperson and Arthur Mayer—are attending the regional meetings called by the various state chairmen. Dr. John L. Lavan, once famous shortstop in the major leagues and now research director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, is accompanying the "flying squad" and directing demonstrations of the Sister Kenny method at each meeting.

The committee urges all theatres that have not yet sent in their pledges to do so at once, so that the Greer Garson appeal trailer, campaign book, report blanks, etc., may reach them in time for the drive.

Film Salesmen to Carry War Loan Display Kits

Each salesman of every motion picture company in every exchange throughout the country will carry with him on his rounds National Screen Fourth War Loan display kits, which will be offered at seventy-five cents each to each exhibitor, it was announced Wednesday by Ned E. Depinet, Chairman of the Distributors Committee, Fourth War Loan, Motion Picture Industry.

This is being done, Depinet said, in an effort to provide greater exploitation impact in the sale of bonds and to offer stimulation for war bond premieres and "Free Movie Days."

Lay Groundwork for Drive

This executive-looking group came over to New Jersey last week to lay the groundwork for that state's Fourth War Loan Drive. The men are: Edward Alperson, New York chairman; Harry Lowenstein, New Jersey chairman; S. H. Fabian, WAC chairman of the Theatres Division; Ed Schreiber, WAC publicity director; Harry Murphy, of the Treasury Department, and Don Jacocks, co-chairman. Over 50 exhibitors from 13 New Jersey counties were present.

Theatres Set Plans For War Loan Drive

mittee Chairman for the 4th War Loan, introduced John Reilly, chairman of the War Finance Committee, who spoke of the increased sales necessary for the success of the 4th War Loan. Barron then outlined the industry's plans in the coming campaign. Frank La Falce, War Activities Publicity Committee Chairman, informed the gathering of plans made to bring to the attention of local moviegoers theatres where bonds are available for immediate sales.

The theatremen also went on record to permit Treasury Department Speakers in the theatres sometime during the Drive. Several special committees were designated to devise additional plans for an all-out campaign. These plans were to be announced at a meeting scheduled for January 7th.

Attending the session were John J. Payette, of the Advisory Committee of 4th War Loan; Hugh Lynch, of War Finance Committee; Robert Smeltzer of the Distribution of Films Committee; L. J. Wineland, Jr., Gene Ford, Samuel Ashman, Jack Foxe, Angie Ratto, Harry Lohmeyer, Nat B. Browne and those members assigned as zone area chairmen.

Queens Bond Drive Captains Hold Meet

Queens County Chairman Fred Schwartz and his district captains met Monday morning at the Treasury Department offices in the Chatham Phenix Building, Long Island City, to plan their participation in the 4th War Loan Drive.

In addition to Schwartz and Treasury officials others scheduled to attend were John A. Cassidy, Sigurd Wexo, Raymond P. Malone and the following captains: Richard Trestler, Ted Rodis, J. Evans Kall, Louis Falk, Ed Douglas, Miss Doreen Camp, Harry Davies, Al Green, Jules Pincus, Earl Wadge, Fred Brunel, Abe Vallet, John Heinz, John Andres, Bernard Zelenko, Mr. Johneck, Warren Bartlett and Frank Reo.

Connecticut Exhibitors Meet to Formulate 4th War Loan Plans

With the opening day of the Fourth War Loan drive of the motion picture industry less than three weeks away, exhibitors throughout the country are organizing for the successful execution of the campaign under the direction of Charles P. Skouras, National Chairman, and meetings are being scheduled everywhere.

First of the meetings along the eastern seaboard was held this week by the exhibitors and distributors of Connecticut in New Haven at the Hotel Taft. It was a luncheon meeting attended by Governor Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut, and Mayor John W. Murphy of New Haven.

Combined exhibitor groups of Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut and the Motion Picture Theatre Owners units who are behind the campaign, were represented at the meeting Approximately 100 exhibitors, in addition to distributors and special honored guests, were also present.

S. H. Fabian, chairman of the Theatres Division of the War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, and Ed Schreiber, Publicity Director of the WAC, were among the speakers. Others addressing the meeting were Mayor Murphy and Colonel Arthur Reeves of the Army Airport Technical Corps of Yale University.

Purpose of the meeting was to formulate organization plans and to organize into committees and groups for the duration of the drive.

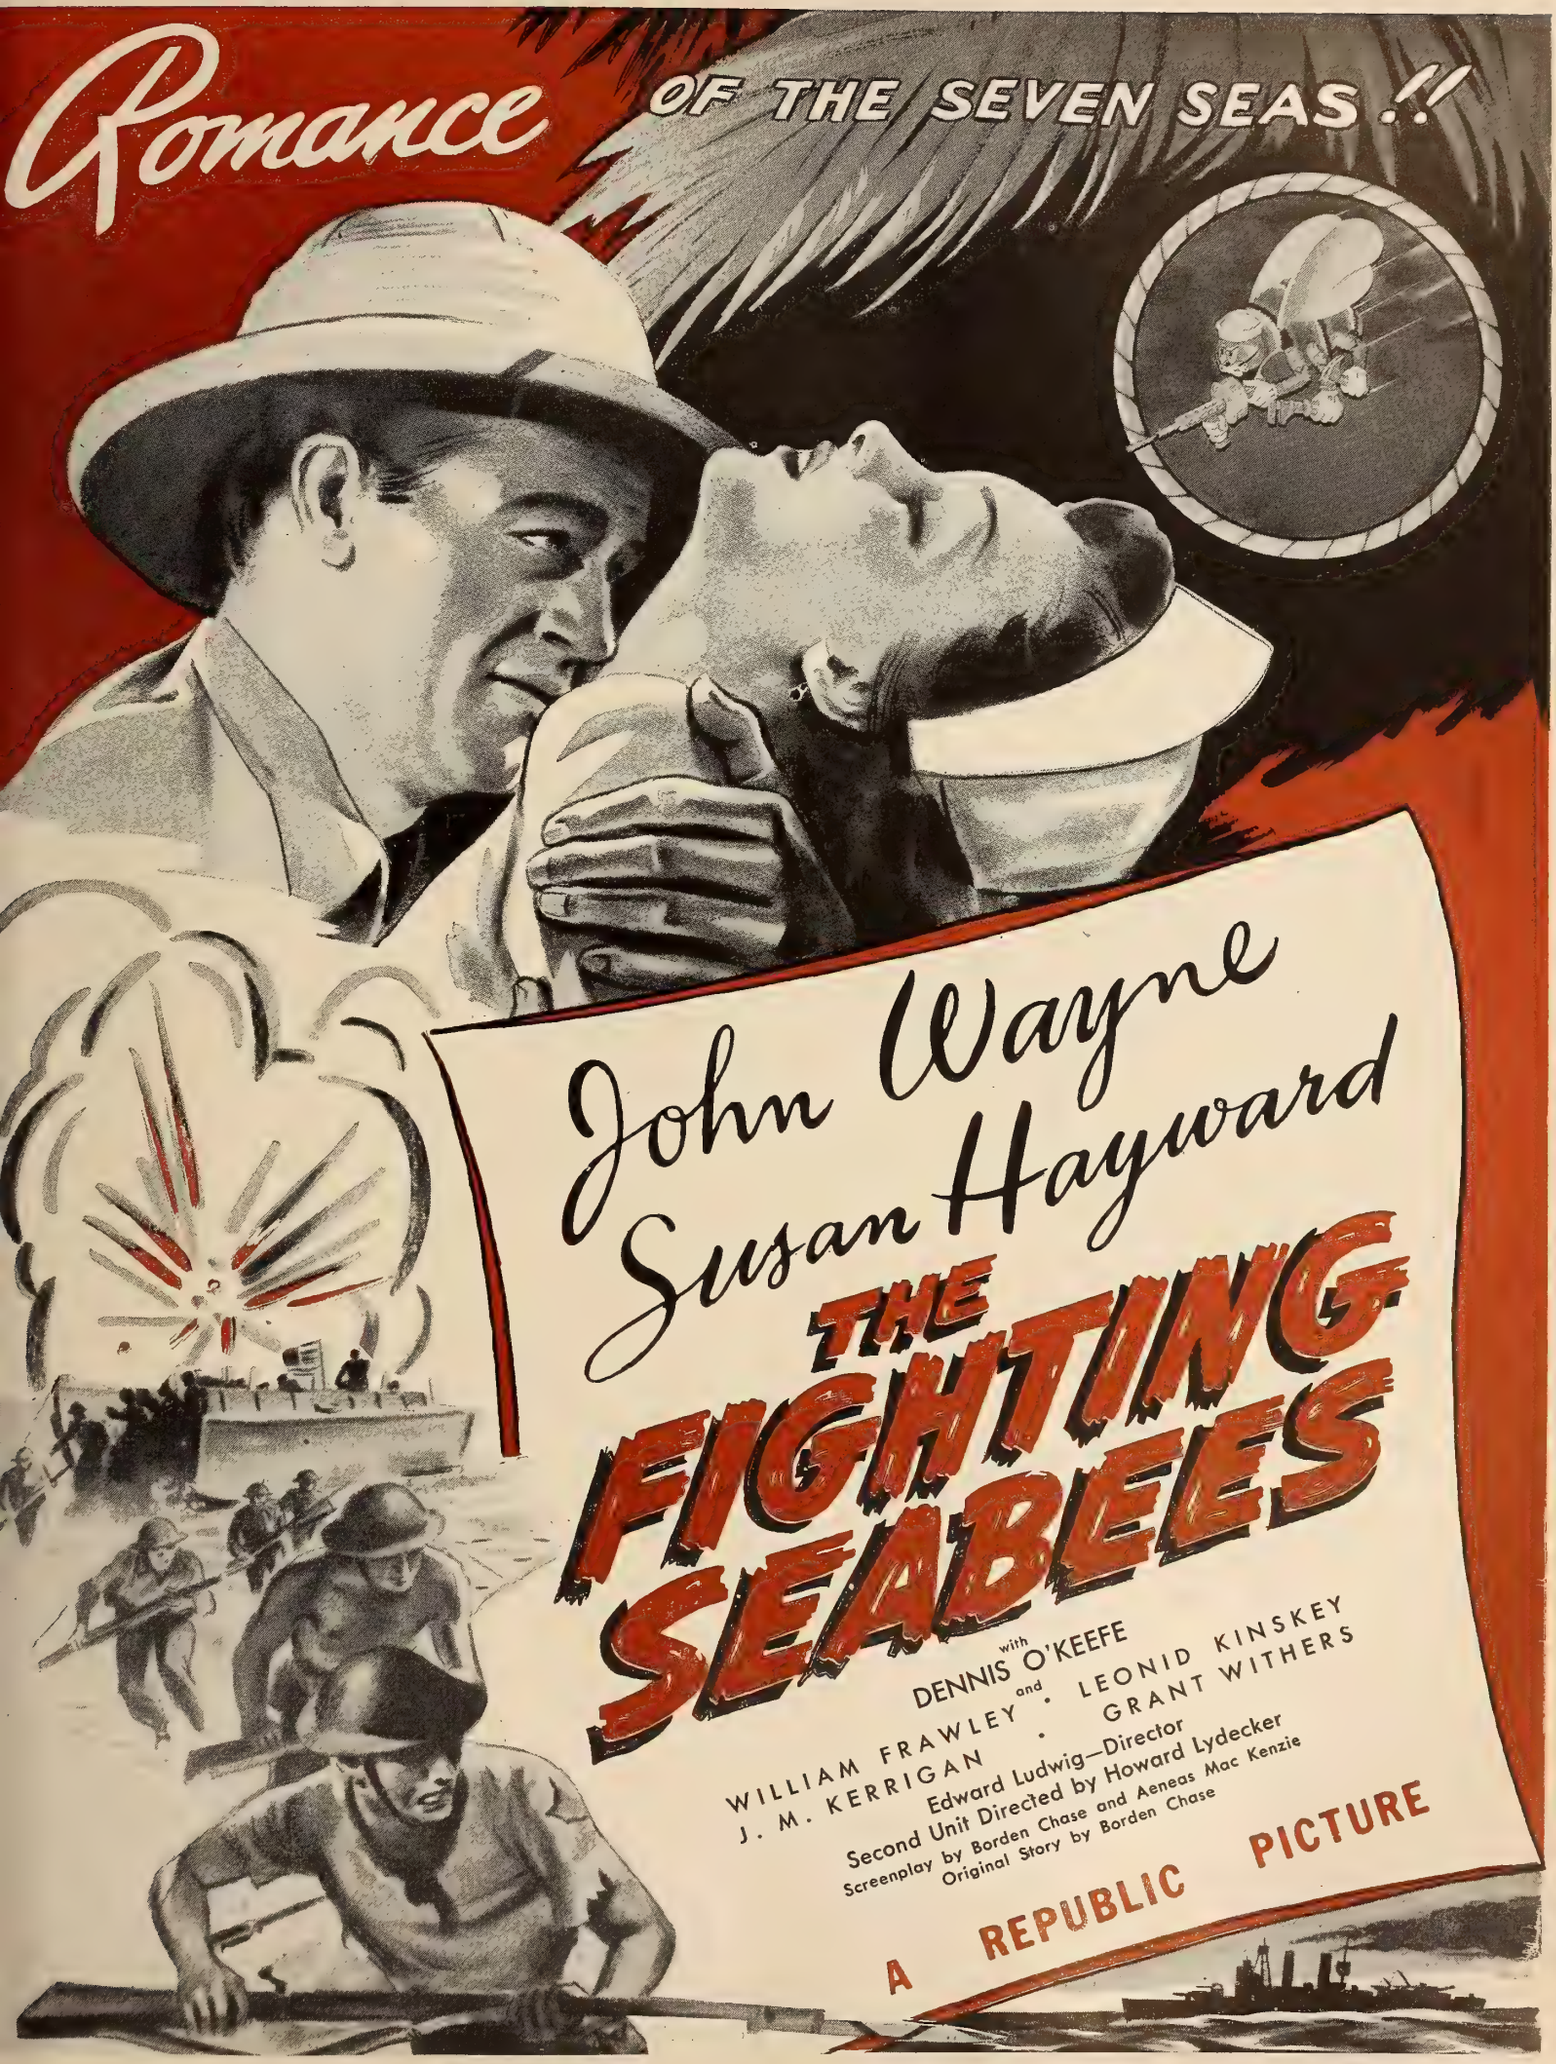
Harry F. Shaw of Loew's, State Chairman, heads the Advisory Committee. This committee includes: Morris Bailey, Lou Brown, Dan Finn, Hy Fine, Dr. Jacob Fishman, Murray Goldstein, I. J. Hoffman, Henry Needles, Barney Pitkin, Dan Pouzzner, Morris Podoloff, George H. Wilkinson, and B. E. Hoffman, Treasurer.

Army-Navy Show is Held in Los Angeles

Stressing the long struggle ahead in the Pacific theatre of war and the necessity that war plant and essential civilian service workers "stay on the job and finish the job," a huge free Army-Navy War Show, "Los Angeles Attacks," was staged on the nights of Jan. 8 and 9 in Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

Fifteen hundred trained combat troops and 200 pieces of mechanized equipment, including flame throwers, medium tanks and 75 and 37 millimeter guns, participated in a simulated attack on a South Pacific strong point.

High military officers from Washington, D. C., and distinguished war heroes were conveyed in state during the grand entry and were introduced for brief remarks.



A spectacular downtown war parade, with thousands of troops, motorized equipment and massed bands, preceded the show.

Beginning Jan. 4 and until the night of the show, suburban areas and nearby cities were visited by detachments to perform drills and other maneuvers.

The show was presented as the Army's method of getting behind community programs of the Citizens' Manpower Committee and government agencies.

Selig in War Loan Post

Robert Selig of Denver, Colo., has been appointed Assistant Campaign Director of the Fourth War Loan, it was announced by Charles Skouras. Selig will be in charge of the "Honored Hundred" Contest.

Program Exchange

Christmas Programs Colorful; Window Cards, Heralds and Blotters Banned in Canada

Did you have a Merry Christmas? Undoubtedly you did. And perhaps you've been busy this week exchanging that rainbow-colored necktie for one a little more conservative, or exchanging that size 14 shirt for one two sizes larger. And if you received tobacco for Christmas, you're either nobly smoking the brand you received, even though it nearly kills you, or you're looking for someone else who has the brand you smoke so that you can exchange with them. But it's a lot of fun, just the same. Fortunately, we received just what we wanted and in the correct sizes, but that's because all year whenever we were around anyone whom we thought might get us something we'd wear we'd make remarks like these: "How do you like my size 10 socks, aren't they nice?" "Gosh, I'm running out of size 14 shirts—I hope the few I have last me until the end of the year." "I really should get down to the store to get some of those size 34 undershirts and size 32 shorts, but I'm just so busy I don't have the chance." It worked!

Above, center spread of the pre-Christmas program issued by Manager Richard Nyquist of the Savoy Theatre, Catasaqua, Pa. Nyquist uses the offset printing process. Elements from the press book are cut out and pasted on vari-designed backgrounds, while lettering is done by hand. Procedure offers the manager, provided he has a sense of art and makeup, the opportunity to effect eye-catching programs.

During the past few days the weather has been balmy, but now it has turned cold again. On Christmas night, when snow should have been falling, what should we find descending but a steady downpour of rain which, at first, slightly froze into a sleety, slippery sheet of ice under foot, and then later, thanks to a rise in temperature, became just cold water under foot. We had to walk in it, and we got our feet wet. But so did a lot of other people and, like us, they probably soaked their pedal extremities in hot water, just as we did.

In this department recently we ventured the guess that David Nolan, manager of the Normandie Theatre, New York, might have followed our suggestion concerning a "Who's Who" column in his program. Since then, Mr. Nolan has written to us to verify the fact that he did. He also points to the theatre's annual Christmas message—a page devoted to Christmas wishes quite on a different order than one finds in most programs. We're reproducing it here, because we feel that next Christmas it can serve as a pattern for other exhibitors' Christmas messages, with perhaps changes here and there to take care of any changes or developments on the fighting front:

"The management and the personnel of the Normandie Theatre wish to take this opportunity to thank their many friends for their devoted patronage and kindly cooperation throughout this past year. We wish to express at this time our sincere wish that all may enjoy a very Merry Christmas. And to those of our friends and patrons in the Armed Services, in whatever theatre of the war they may be today, we have a special wish: that yours will be a peaceful Christmas, and we join with you in giving thanks that this Christmas finds us so much farther on the road to Victory than we were this time last year; and with you we pray that this will be your last Christmas away from those you love and the things you hold dear. With this in mind we make one promise: that our every thought and every deed will be directed toward that Victory and your early return."

The message is signed by Nolan and staff members Stephen J. Brooks, Barbara Ender, Catherine Kopet, Margery MacDonald, Winifred Watkins, Vivian Asbury, Evelyn Byrnes, Josephine Harrington, Dorothy Andreachi, Emma Taylor, Joseph Siclari, Abraham Mendelsohn, Joseph Roppel, Milton Mark, Joseph Boritz, Morris Daniels.

In his letter, Nolan also thanks us for our comments anent his program and also extends the season's greetings. And while the New Year is still in its infancy, we'd like to extend our best wishes to Nolan and his staff for a happy and prosperous twelvemonth.

Perhaps the gayest and most colorful Christmas program came our way from Manager Howard Rathburn of the Strand Theatre, Manlius, N. Y. Manager Rathburn had his eight-page house organ all decked out in red and green, and a cheery red Santa Claus appeared on the front cover against a green background, holding a panel in which the Manlius theatreman and his family extends season's greetings:

"In appreciation of your patronage and friendship, we wish to extend our heartiest good wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to you and yours. May each succeeding visit to this theatre bring you a bountiful joy and a well earned relaxation. This and the blessings of victory and peace is our wish to you this holiday season."

Just by way of mention, Rathburn had a strong lineup of holiday attractions: "Best Foot Forward," "Salute to the Marines," "Stage Door Canteen," "Footlight Glamor," "Silver Spurs" and "Thank Your Lucky Stars."

Wish we could reproduce the cover of the Strand program, but the effect of the brilliant coloring would be lost in a black-and-white reproduction.

All our worry and conjecture concerning the absence of ticket-winning names in The Reminder, program for the Wallace and Rose theatres, Levelland, Texas, was in vain. For in the new issue the names appear once more. One has to look carefully, for they're tucked in corners, on Santa's beard, on advertising cuts, etc. But there they are. So we shall assume that once more patrons will search the program carefully to find out whether or not they get free tickets.

Another program all decked out in Christmas colors was that distributed by Manager Allan Easson of the Oakwood Theatre, Toronto, Canada. Easson advises us that 8000 of these heralds were distributed: 6000 house to house in the theatre disrict, and 2000 at newsstands, banks, post office, liquor store lineups, etc. Writes Easson: "This looks like the last advertising of this nature in Canada for the duration, for after January 1 all types of heralds, blotters, window cards, etc., are on the 'out' list."

All we can say is that Easson ends the era of programs in a blaze of attractive colors.

For months now we haven't heard from the Savoy Theatre, Catasauqua, Pa. But just a day or two ago we received a copy of the pre-Christmas program. Green is the color used in printing, and the art layout, along with Christmas-like decorations, make this a handsome program. We're reproducing the center spread on this page. Wish we could reproduce the program which immediately followed, but we fear its blue color would not reproduce well. Anyway, Manager Richard Nyquist takes the front cover to wish his patrons a Merry Christmas and to express "a sincere and a fervent wish that by Christmas of 1944 our valiant service men will have returned home and by their presence cause the joyous season to regain its former cherished and hallowed significance."

It's been good hearing from Nyquist, and we hope he sends us some more programs from time to time.

That's a nice color and greeting on the cover of the program for the New Paltz Theatre, managed by Thomas Di Lorenzo, in New Paltz, N. Y. And thanks, Jim Owen, for sending us that flashy and eye-catching herald on your New Year's Eve midnight show at the Owen Theatre in Branson, Mo.

Well, guess we'll have to stop here.

Dim-Out Areas Note

When the dim-out was lifted in Boston, Joe Longo of Loew's State Theatre was quick to take advantage of the return to normal lighting by rushing through with 200 special tack cards that read: "Now that the dim-out has been lifted everybody can see Blazing 'Sahara' at Loew's State Theatre!" Humphrey Bogart and other credits of the picture were added to the card which was printed red on yellow and got considerable comment.

Selling the Picture

Extra Advertising to Sell Key Dates on 'Fighting SeaBees'

Following the simultaneous world premiere of "The Fighting SeaBees" at all SeaBee camps throughout the country on January 14, Republic's production will have its first pre-release opening at the Woods Theatre in Chicago, where the film, starring John Wayne and Susan Hayward, is to open January 19.

The production is also set for pre-release engagements at the Malco in Memphis, the Stanton in Philadelphia, and the Earle and Ambassador in Washington. Memphis date is January 20; Philadelphia, January 22; Washington, January 28.

Elaborate advertising and publicity campaigns, including newspaper advertising, radio spot announcements, billboard posting, and special promotion are being employed in connection with these and all openings in branch cities and subordinate key runs. In Chicago, the campaign for the Woods engagement includes a full showing of 24-sheets; posting of 250 three-sheets; radio spot announcements on stations WMAQ, WGN, WENR, WIND, WJJD, WAIT; and 1500 lines of newspaper advertising, in addition to the regular theatre budget in the Herald-American, Sun, Tribune, News and Times.

Interest in the Memphis booking at the Malco is being primed by radio spot announcements on stations WREC and WMC; 24-sheet posting; and 1500 lines of newspaper advertising, in addition to the regular theatre budget, in the Commercial Appeal and Press Scimitar.

The Philadelphia engagement at the Stanton is being promoted by radio spot announcements on stations KYW and WCAU. A full showing of 24-sheets is being employed, as well as 1500 lines of newspaper advertising, in addition to the regular budget, in the Inquirer, News, Record and Bulletin.

In Washington, for the run at the Earle and Ambassador, radio stations WTOP and WRC are carrying spot announcements. A full showing of 24-sheets is being used, and 1500 additional lines of advertising will appear in the Post, Times-Herald, News and Star.

Bernard Lewis Heads 20th-Fox National News Service Dept.

Hal Horne, director of advertising-publicity-exploitation of 20th Cenury-Fox, this week announced the appointment of Bernard Lewis, who joins the publicity staff as head of the National News Service Department, under Jack Goldstein, publicity manager.

Lewis was with Paramount Pictures for three years until his present new association, replacing Ellen Davis, who has joined the USO. He served as publicity and exploitation writer during his first two years at Paramount, and then became a magazine contact man.

Neil Maguire, well-known artist in the motion picture field, has been appointed production manager for Filmack Trailer Co., Chicago, according to Irving Mack, general sales manager.

Personalized Clown Appeal

Comical characters were used by Jim Lindsay as a street bally to get laughs and create word-of-mouth publicity for Universal's "Crazy House" prior to the Olson & Johnson picture's opening at the Harris Theatre, Pittsburgh, Penna.

Dance On Stage At New Year's Eve Show

Having booked a new picture and a few acts of vaudeville for his New Year's Eve programs in the past only to have his box-office gross not quite take care of the additional expenses involved, Manager Edward Selette of the Colonial Theatre, Nashua, New Hampshire, decided to try a new wrinkle in the New Year's Eve Midnight Show idea this year.

Selette merely extended the running time of his regular program, allowing an hour from 11 p.m. to midnight when patrons danced on the stage to records played on the theatre's non-synchronized machine.

Those entering the Colonial at 10 p.m. saw a feature, then jigged and waltzed around the stage, welcomed the New Year at midnight, then saw the last feature, which was out around two o'clock New Year's morning.

And a good time was had by all, thanks to Selette's showmanship.

Kallis Named Art Director of Universal Studios' Ad Dept.

Appointment of Maurice Kallis to the post of art director of Universal Studios' advertising department was announced this week by John Joseph, national director of advertising and publicity.

Kallis was associated with Publix Theatres at the home office in New York, later became art director for Paramount, working through the Lord & Thomas and Buchanan agencies. For the past year he headed the Kallis Art Service in New York, specializing in the creation of motion picture ads for trade papers.

Hit December Peak On Radio Exploitation For Paramount Stars

Radio exploitation for Paramount pictures and personalities reached a peak in December with 63 plugs on nationwide network broadcasts during the month, the largest number for any month in the company's history, Robert M. Gillham, director of advertising and publicity, has revealed.

This record exploitation resulted from guest appearances of Paramount stars and players on important radio shows set by the publicity department in New York and Hollywood, as well as dramatizations of Paramount properties. Not only were the personalities publicized to the millions of listeners, but current and forthcoming productions in which they appear received valuable publicity. The guest appearances were in addition to regular weekly shows on which a number of Paramount personalities are starred.

Personalities who appeared as guest stars on broadcasts during December included Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope, Veronica Lake, Victor Moore, Bing Crosby, Laraine Day, Loretta Young, Alan Ladd, Paulette Goddard, Franchot Tone, Anne Baxter, Fortunio Bonanova, Robert Benchley, Marian Hall, William Bendix, Jean Heather,Charles Quigley, Barry Sullivan, Cass Daley, Mimi Chandler, Bill Goodwin, Marjorie Reynolds, Joseph Calleia, Rise Stevens, Jean Parker, Brian Donlevy, Richard Arlen, Dick Powell and Wendy Barrie. Some of these appeared on two or more network programs during the month.

Pictures publicized on the radio during December included "The Hour Before the Dawn," "Riding High," "True to Life," "The Story of Dr. Wassell," "And Now Tomorrow," "Standing Room Only," "For Whom the Bell Tolls," "National Barn Dance," "Lady in the Dark," "Hostages," "Going My Way," "Road to Utopia," "And the Angels Sing," "Let's Face It," "Ministry of Fear," "Miracle of Morgan's Creek," "The Navy Way," "Minesweeper" and "Submarine Alert."

In addition to their guest appearances, Paramount talent featured on weekly coast-to-coast network shows includes Bob Hope, Tuesdays; Bing Crosby, Thursdays; Dick Powell, Saturdays; Johnnie Johnston on "Duffy's Tavern," Tuesdays, and Betty Rhodes, Saturdays on Mutual. William Bendix starts January 16 on a new weekly show, "The Life of Reilly," to be heard Sundays over the Blue Network.

Essay Contest for Boy Scouts Selling Angle for 'Happy Land'

Through a tieup arranged by Assistant Manager Sam Horwitz of the Loew-Poli Theatre, Meriden, Conn., a bulletin issued by the local head Boy Scout executive in conjunction with the showing of "Happy Land" was sent to scout masters and troop leaders in Meriden and surrounding towns.

Besides urging attendance at the theatre to see the picture, bulletin called attention to an essay contest on the subject, "Why Our Country Is a Happy Land." Prizes of guest tickets and copies of the MacKinlay Kantor novel were awarded the writers of the five best essays.

Gala Ceremonies Set For Midwest Premiere Of 'Snow White' Film

Plans have been completed by RKO Radio for the launching of Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" during February in the midwest, involving a vast tieup with radio station WLW of Cincinnati, contests, personal appearances, and the official cooperation of the states of Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and Indiana.

With the governors of the four states issuing proclamations designating the week of February 24 to March 2 as Snow White Week, the backbone of the campaign will be a series of radio broadcasts consisting of full-hour, half-hour, quarter-hour and five-minute programs running for three weeks prior to and during the theatre engagements of the picture.

In each of the more than 50 cities participating in the campaign, the manager of the first-run theatre that will show "Snow White" will head a local committee of prominent citizens who will conduct a contest to select the Miss Snow White of that particular area, and the best local cartoonist or animator. Auditions and tryouts will be held in the theatres and hotels as available.

Winners of each class in each of the four states will appear for the finals in Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Charleston, and Lexington. Two finalists from each state will then be chosen to appear on a special radio program sponsored by WLW on February 22. Deems Taylor, as judge, will choose from among the four girl finalists the one whose voice nearest approaches that of Snow White, and she will be crowned winner at a special ceremony conducted by the Variety Club at the Netherlands Plaza Hotel in Cincinnati on the evening of February 23rd. Maury White will be the Chief Barker for the occasion. Both the winning Miss Snow White and the winning cartoonist will be guests of RKO Radio and Walt Disney on a trip to Hollywood next summer.

Following the inauguration, the girl selected as Miss Snow White will make personal appearances in the more than 50 midwest cities playing "Snow White," as will the original Snow White, the latter starting her tour on January 25th and continuing for five weeks.

For three weeks prior to the multi-city opening of the picture on February 24, the voices of the original Snow White, Donald Duck, Clara Cluck, Goofy, plus two groups of dwarfs and an animator from the Walt Disney Studios, will tour the four states, appearing in theatres, schools, war plants and other places.

Set by S. Barret McCormack for RKO Radio, and Roger Baker for station WLW, the entire campaign is being handled by Terry Turner, Harry Reiners, Bob Hickey, the promotional staff of WLW, and Antoinette Spitzer of Walt Disney Productions.

'Guadalcanal' Tied In With Drive To Recruit Women for Marines

In San Francisco, when the Paramount Theatre ran "Guadalcanal Diary," the picture was tied in with a recruiting campaign for Women Marines.

Specially prepared recruiting posters carried this copy: "Women of California! Join the Marine Corps Women's Reserve and Free a Fighting Marine to Fight! See "Guadalcanal Diary' now at Paramount Theatre. These Fighting Marines Will Show You Why Marine Corps Women Are Proud to Be Marines!"

Masked Player Stunt Scores

Manager William Murray of the Rialto Theatre, Atlanta, Ga., set up his huge masked cutout of Willard Parker as an advance teaser for Columbia's "What a Woman," in which Parker makes his screen debut. Murray arranged with school girls to "sneak up" on marquee to uncover the face ahead of schedule because "they couldn't wait until opening day." Resulting excitement required police assistance to remove the girls from atop the marquee, with coverage by the newspapers for stories and photos.

Cards From 'Maria' Used By Wise in 'Bell Tolls' Campaign

An attractive front for "For Whom the Bell Tolls" was arranged by Nate Wise, publicity director of the RKO theatres in Dayton, Ohio.

Wise went all-out in his campaign on the picture, using radio, window displays and special displays in the lobbies of the other theatres in Dayton.

One outstanding stunt was his postal campaign, in which ten thousand cards written in a feminine hand and signed "Maria" were sent to a selected mailing list.

Wise also promoted a special editorial in the newspapers, as well as extra art and publicity stories.

'Jack London' Sold By Sam Gilman via Tieups in Harrisburg

Several effective tie-ups were put over by Manager Sam Gilman, of Loew's Regent Theatre, Harrisburg, Pa., for the opening of "Jack London."

Through the cooperation of G. F. Plitt & Son, distributors of Royal Crown Cola, 500 special 12x18 display cards featuring Michael O'Shea and Susan Hayward, were posted in all restaurants, bars, drug stores and night spots. Six Royal Crown Cola delivery trucks carried banners plugging the opening of "Jack London" at Loew's Regent. Adams Hat tieup accounted for displays at Fellers, local Adams outlet. The Harrisburg News Company displayed banners on their trucks plugging the picture and bulletin board announcements were posted in six defense plants.

A tieup with the Pomeroy department store resulted in valuable window display space for "Jack London." Local school libraries carried displays featuring all Jack London books.

Other window displays, featuring scene stills and special art, were arranged at Postal Telegraph, Pomeroy's book department and in all five- and ten-cent stores. Hotel bulletin boards carried mention of the film's opening and public libraries got out displays on books by Jack London with credit to the author's picture.

Radio station WKBO gave the picture several plugs on their Green's Show Time program. Daily newspapers played up the picture's premiere with feature stories and art of O'Shea and Hayward, stars in the picture. The Harrisburg Bulletin, gotten out for service men, gave the picture full coverage.

Heralds in Record Envelopes

A special display in the library on music books and the insertion of a special herald in song sheets and record envelopes were arranged by S. Hanauer of the Rialto, Beaver Falls, Pa., for his showing of "I Dood It."

TRY THIS 'ARMY' DOUBLE-TRUCK PROMOTION

With Army Emergency Relief showings of Warners' "This Is the Army" being held here and there across the nation, the above double-truck cooperative ad promoted in The Albuquerque Tribune by the management of the Sunshine Theatre, Albuquerque, N. M., paves the way for other smart showmen to get their showings of film off to a flying start. In view of the benefit idea behind exhibition of the film, certainly it should be not at all difficult to line up merchants for an impressive display like this.

Effective Campaign Exploits Coast Date of 'Heroic Stalingrad'

An effective ticket-selling campaign for "The City That Stopped Hitler—Heroic Stalingrad," Paramount release of the official Red Army film, including many compelling showmanship angles, was staged by Albert A. Galston and Jay M. Sutton for the Western premiere engagement at the Hawaii Theatre in Hollywood. The picture had a four-week run at the house.

Highlights of the campaign follow:

Publicity. Newspaper stories and features began breaking three weeks in advance in all Los Angeles and Hollywood dailies, starting with a three-column feature in the Los Angeles Daily News by Virginia Wright, drama editor. Publicity stressed the drama of the crucial battle and the fact that "katusha," the Russians' secret rocket gun, is revealed in the picture for the first time. Newspapers were liberal with space and devoted columns to pictorial layouts of stills from the film. Stories and pictures also broke in the California Jewish Voice, B'nai B'rith Messenger, the People's World and similar publications.

Display Ads. Two-column and one-column ads were used in Los Angeles and Hollywood dailies in advance, with smaller ads during the run of the picture. Ads followed the pattern of the record six-week run of the film at the Victoria Theatre in New York City. Some of the catchlines used were: "The True, Amazing, Battle-Swept Drama of 162 Days That Shook the World!" "Now! See It in Action—'Katusha'." "True, Authentic, Real!" "See Human Drama Unmatched for Stark Realism, Heart-Stirring Emotion!" "Filmed Under Blazing Battle Fire!" A special ad was run in the Jewish Forward.

Bus Cards. Full coverage in Hollywood, Los Angeles and suburban buses. Title, superimposed on a bomburst, was stressed, with art lettering red and yellow on red, with yellow background.

Radio. A total of 60 commercial announcements were made over five stations, including KFWB, KHJ, KECA, KNX and KWKW. Campaign covered first 19 days of engagement. Spots ranged from 50 to 150 words and mostly were heard early in the evening to catch the theatre-bent listeners. They were spotted immediately preceding or following news broadcasts or important shows. Some evenings there were two announcements on a station. Hard-hitting copy used such phrases as "Censorship now lifted on one of the greatest war epics ever filmed"; "On the spot filming by Red Army cameramen of the 162-day battle that shook the world."

Exploitation. Three thousand postcards imprinted with forceful copy and announcing that the picture was "now playing" were sent to a select mailing list provided by the American-Soviet Friendship Society, Russian War Relief and United Nations War Relief. Five hundred prominent educators, priests, ministers, rabbis and civic leaders in the Los Angeles area were invited by Albert A. Galston by letter to a private screening at the Hawaii Theatre, two days before opening. All leading radio news commentators and personalities in Hollywood and Los Angeles were also invited to the screening by the radio agency handling the account, and their opinions of the picture were solicited.

Window cards printed in red and black on white stock were widely distributed.

All the World Loves a Dog Story

All the world read last week the pathetic story of "Pal," 17-year-old airedale shepherd who has been grieving his life away for his master, T/Sgt. Franklin E. Higgins, since the soldier's induction in July. Master and dog were reunited (above) Nov. 11, following Higgins' 1,300-mile train trip from Camp Crowder, Mo.

A story of a boy and a dog that is just as pathetic is being lived out here in Bridgeport where Pat, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cremins, of 135 Austin street, is grieving over "Thor," three-year-old collie who has been missing for about a year. Pat and "Thor" are pictured above, the last picture of them together before "Thor's" disappearance. Brown and white with a well-pointed nose, "Thor's" disappearance has caused constant heartache at the Austin street home.

A happier story, though, was written by the late Eric Knight, whose lovable "Lassie Come Home" has been produced in Technicolor by M-G-M. Booked into the Loew's-Poli for the week beginning Dec. 2, the film stars Lassie, golden brown and white collie, and Roddy McDowall, who are shown here in a scene from the picture.

Ties in True Dog Stories for 'Lassie' Publicity Break

Be on the lookout for true-life stories about dogs when you play a picture in which a dog is featured. That's what Manager Matt Saunders of Loew's Poli, Bridgeport, Conn., did in connection with the showing of MGM's "Lassie Come Home." One of the stories above—that of the airedale who grieved his life away for his soldier-master—was publicized throughout the nation. The other was a "local," which Saunders hopped on to in a showmanly manner. Both were combined with a scene still from "Lassie Come Home" to make impressive art break reproduced above, which appeared in Bridgeport Post.

Heroes of Bombing Missions Attend Chicago 'Sahara' Premiere

Six members of the crew operating the Mitchell Bomber B-26, the "Coughin' Coffin," who took part in 50 successful bombing missions against the enemy, were entertained at the College Inn in Chicago and then at the Roosevelt Theatre premiere of "Sahara" by Manager Charles Nesbit and Publicist Jimmy Savage of the Roosevelt.

Through the cooperation of the public relations office of the Army Ordnance Chicago District the heads of the war plants in the area were invited to a special screening of the picture which resulted in all plants posting notices on their bulletin boards urging thousands of employes to see "Sahara."

Detroit's 'Phantom'

David Idzal of the Fox Theatre put over a good gag stunt in pushing "The Phantom of the Opera." Idzal hunted up one of the tallest men in the city: James (Mickey) McGuire, young commercial artist who is just under seven feet tall. McGuire was dressed in a long opera cloak and a green mask and roamed about the streets and through various night clubs with the idea of getting people to inquire who he was. The answer, naturally, was "I'm the Phantom of the Opera."

The "Phantom" on one occasion walked up and down in front of the long line of people waiting to get into the state liquor store downtown. When he failed to get the response he considered proper to his attire, the "Phantom" looked up and down the long line of would-be thirst-quenchers and said: "You'd better quit drinking that stuff. Look what it did to me."

Prizes Awarded in Contest on 'Lassie'

Awards in the letter-writing contest on "Why I Want a Dog Like Lassie" were made recently at Loew's Sheridan Theatre, New York, in connection with the showing of "Lassie Come Home."

First prize, a collie puppy and complete set of harness, was given to fourteen-year-old Joan Reardon, of 117 Varick Street; second prize, a full-grown collie, given by a soldier in the service, was captured by Gerald Mulhall, age 15, of 226 West 4th Street. Other prizes consisting of war stamps, colored pictures of "Lassie" and Roddy McDowall, and guest tickets were awarded to the runners-up.

The Loew's Sheridan Hero Award for 1943 was presented to Sven of Bagaduce of 171 West 12th Street. This award, consisting of medal and scroll is given annually by Loew's Sheridan to a dog who saves a human life. During the blizzard last February, Sven found a man unconscious, due to a heart attack, lying in the snow. The dog summoned help, the man was taken to a hospital, and recovered.

The letterwriting contest was sponsored by the Greenwich Village Humane League, Inc., of which Miss Alice Manchester is president. Judges consisted of Miss Manchester, Robert Rosen and Miss Miriam Sangster, manager and assistant manager, respectively, of Loew's Sheridan.

Dog House to Humane Society

In a tieup for "Lassie Come Home," Sid Kain of Loew's home office publicity staff arranged to present a specially-constructed, glass-enclosed dog house to the New York Humane Society. Art broke in all newspapers. The house will be permanently used by the organization for its own exploitation.

SHOWMANSHIP IN WARTIME LONDON

On Not Being Neat

Once in a while it doesn't pay to be neat. When Manager H. Bennett of the Regal, Southport, played "Action in the North Atlantic," he set aside one corner of his lobby and crowded it with a display of photographs and a collection of nautical accessories in such profusion that it was difficult to see everything there. The very crowdedness of the display attracted attention and proved a real center of interest to the people of Southport. This not only helped the box-office, but also brought a generous response to the appeal for King George's Merchant Navy Fund.

A Favor by Menjou

American film stars in England to entertain troops under USO auspices are very busy people, but Adolphe Menjou found time to make a personal appearance at the Odeon, Bury Street, Edmunds, to help out Manager W. C. Hall in presenting "You Were Never Lovelier." Since Menjou is one of the three stars in the picture, interest was heightened to such an extent that the "Full House" sign was put out as early as 2:30 p.m.

Bananas as a Gag

The well-known scarcity of bananas in England was capitalized on by J. B. Howard of the Electra, Cheadie, Chesire, when he showed "Casablanca." From a shipper Howard got a free supply of colored transfer transparencies of bunches of bananas. He put one on each of the glass panels of the front doors, and on the space between doors he placed posters with the following wording: "Yes. We have no bananas today" and "No, but we have 'Casablanca' all this week." Passersby were certainly intrigued with the bananas, even if they weren't real, and so also fastened their interest on the picture.

Using the Veterans

In these days when military outfits often join in with a theatre for exploitation purposes, it is a little unusual to go back to the Boer War for your personnel. But Manager Alex Webster of the Odeon, Aberdeen, did just this for the opening of "Colonel Blimp." With the Boer War veterans exchanging reminiscences with Lord Provost Mitchell before and after the showing, the affair was a real old-timers' rally.

'Graves' Pique Patrons' Curiosity

An effective vestibule display on "Five Graves to Cairo" was created by Manager John Gee at the Hendon Odeon. Within an alcove facing the main entrance doors he created a small section of desert, with the white-fronted "Hotel Empress of Britain" on one side and a background of palms. Above this on the back panel were cut-out portraits of the chief players, and the whole model was framed in a black paper border, on which were fixed stills, interspersed with gilt stars. Most striking part of the affair, however, was the presence in the sand of five tiny "graves" composed of whitened pebbles. "Graves" caused the patrons to inquire of Manager Gee who the five persons were who had been murdered in the picture. He gave them additional information which made them want to see it. The "hotel" was a small plywood model, and the "desert" was a bucketful of gravel scooped out of his car-park.

Amusement Page Layouts

(Periodically STR publishes reproductions of the amusement pages of certain newspapers for the purpose of illustrating how these papers cater to the public interest in motion pictures and screen personalities. The reproductions have further interest in that they show how theatres are using the advertising space they buy in local publications to merchandise their current attractions. Theatremen in localities where the newspapers give little attention and space to motion pictures may find added interest in these reproductions as examples of how other publishers cooperate with the theatres and, in so doing, offer their readers attractive and interesting editorial and pictorial matter.)

This Week: Orlando (Fla.) Sunday Sentinel-Star

In the above amusement page, culled from a recent Sunday issue of the Orlando Sentinel-Star, published at Orland-, Florida, only seven theatres advertise their wares, and six of these are combined in one layout as Florida State Theatres; the remaining advertiser is the Lincoln, which caters to negro patronage. Wisely enough, most of the space the newspaper devotes to local theatres is taken up by art which is attractively placed across the top of the page. Theatres represented in this art are those operated by Florida State Theatres. Just below the layout is a general story, "At the Movies," which gives brief paragraphical information about the attractions at the leading houses. This by-line article and the aforementioned art layout constitute all the movie publicity on the page. Looking at the advertising space, then the publicity space, it would seem that the theatres get a fair allotment of publicity. If it appears at first glance to fall short of peacetime publicity space, this can be attributed to the present shortage of newsprint which requires many newspapers to drop certain features, combine others and to reduce the sizes of their pages. In this regard, note that the Sentinel-Star has confined its running head to the two-column space in the upper right-hand corner of the page.

At a night club he meets a young singer and when they go to church together the next day, he learns that she is the wife of a man serving a life term for murder. After he leaves he hears that her husband has escaped. Suspecting that the man will seek haven with his wife, the soldier gets to her home just as the police trap and kill the escaped man. He spends his entire leave with her and just before he goes, they come to an understanding.

ROSIE THE RIVETER (Rep.) Comedy-Drama. Principals: Jane Frazee, Barbara Jo Allen, Frank Albertson, Frank Jenks, Frank Fenton, Maude Eburne. Plot: The housing problem near a defense plant causes two girls and two boys to share one room. The two girls by night and the two boys by day. The fiance of one girl breaks their engagement when he hears of this, so one of the boys, who has fallen for the girl, goes to him and explains. When the fiance calls to straighten things out, the girl sends him away because by this time she realizes that she and the boy are in love.

OUTLAW ROUNDUP (PRC) Western. Principals: Jim Newill, Dave O'Brien, Guy Wilkerson, Helen Chapman. Director, Harry Fraser. Plot: In order to uncover the leader of a gang of outlaws, the three Texas Rangers plant the story of the escape from prison of a notorious gunman. Then one of the boys, with the mark of the Ace of Spades tatooed on his arm, poses as the man and is welcomed into the gang. After many narrow escapes for him and his pals, who try to assist him in his work, the gang are found and broken up, and the leader imprisoned.

Plenty of SRO Appeal

There was plenty of SRO appeal in the front created by Manager Harry Stearn for the showing of "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" at Schine's Manring Theatre, Middlesboro, Ky. Note how the songs from the 20th-Fox musical are plugged.

The Box Office Slant

underground society of southern sympathizers, operating in California, whose objective was to separate California from the Union. The leader plans to eventually establish California as the start of his own empire of the Pacific. A Union Cavalry Officer, sent to track down the trouble, gets this man on charges of treason.

Comment: Here is another topnotcher in the Don "Red" Barry series; topnotch as usual because produced as usual by Eddy White. The whole layout shows thought in planning a western with the historical background of the fight between the blue and the gray. Instead of the helter-skelter action and riding that is often found in program westerns, the story here is built on suspense as well as fast moving action with a plan and purpose. The added thought makes the picture better than a filler and will send the customers out well pleased. Speed and continuity are maintained throughout, and, in addition to the fine production handling, direction by Spencer Bennett keeps the film moving with effective change of pace. You can book this, secure in the knowledge that it will play to satisfied outdoor fans.

Elaborate Front Sells Tickets

Credit goes to Norman Kassel for this elaborate front at the Woods Theatre, Chicago, to promote public interest in the showing there of Republic's "In Old Oklahoma," which is based on Thomson Burtis' "War of the Wildcats."

BOOK REVIEW

A PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE MOVIES; by Deems Taylor, Bryant Hale & Marcelene Peterson. Published by Simon & Schuster. 350 pages. $3.95.

Everyone, even remotely connected with the movie industry in all of its branches, should find this absorbing reading and a genuine eyeful in the way of illustrations from the inception of the motion picture right up to recent productions.

It is presented in a manner that makes following the progress of the movies a relatively simple task because the "stills" and the history are in chronological order. And while it makes no attempt to delve into or reveal the technical or mechanical progress of the industry, its treatment is such as to hold your interest from beginning to end.

Since the "stills" dominate the entire volume, the amount of text is small; but this too, in a sense, is good judgment, because the "stills" tell their own story, to which is added a minimum of writing that serves to explain and make the telling of the history of the movies easy to follow.

It is a volume that belongs on the desk or shelf of every person affiliated with the industry in the past, the present or the future. Even to the oldtimers, it will be found nostalgic to the point of sentimentality. We found it so.

Deems Taylor sums it all up very neatly: ". . . . All we could hope to do was to show you its beginning, its past, and some of its present. As to its future—that is in the hands of you, its audience."

Our summation is even briefer: Get a copy. You will undoubtedly enjoy it.

ATLANTA

White Christmas was no dream as Atlantans awoke to the reality of an ice storm that made the scenery of city and countryside look like an artist's picture for a greeting card. It struck all of the southeast above a line running east and west through Macon, Georgia. All of Atlanta's traffic was slowed down, resulting in disastrous Christmas B.O.'s for theatres, many of which closed early for lack of patronage. And for the entire week before the holiday, business was very much off.

Danny Demetry, owner-manager of the Emory Theatre, played host to the children of the Methodist Orphanage and Hillside Cottages at a Christmas party, the program being "A Christmas Carol," "Bambi," and three Disney cartoons. Each child was given a sack of candies.

The Brookhaven Theatre was scheduled to re-open Christmas Day following extensive improvements, but was delayed due to the non-arrival of essentials. John Carter, owner-manager, hoped to re-open New Year's Day.

Paul Wilson and Harry Ballance, Fox execs here, have returned from Gotham.

Dustry T. Rhodes, Lucas & Jenkins chief booker, entertained all bookers on Film Row at a dinner party in the Atlanta Variety clubrooms.

Lieutenant Billy Pratt, former local theatre manager, is in town. Billy's now stationed at Tyndall Field, Panama City, Florida.

Mac (Warner Bros.) McCoy and 35 employes and friends observed the holidays in the Paradise Room of the Henry Grady Hotel.

Sam Hammond is the new manager of L & J's Roxy Theatre. Sam is from Lenoir City, Tenn. Started his show career with the old Southern Enterprises, an Atlanta firm, some twenty-five years ago.

BOSTON

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wolf returned home last week from their visit with their son, Norton, who is with the Army Air Corps in North Carolina. En route, Mr. Wolf, who is district manager for MGM here, stopped off to visit friends of the industry in Washington and New York.

Paul Levi, publicist at the M and P Metropolitan Theatre, was host to the press at a cocktail party given in the Hotel Statler, where Bert MacKenzie at the same time was entertaining for MGM and Joe Longo for the Loew theatres.

Mark Larkin is on his way to the mid-west again, but will return to Boston soon for the Will Hays office.

Private William Koster, member of the Boston Variety Club and very active in its work before joining the Army, writes from Camp Fannin, Texas, "please extend my greetings to all the boys—and girls—and my best wishes for the coming season. I paid a visit to the Dallas Tent of Variety and received a cordial welcome from Bob Harris. My address is Private William S. Koster, 31367995, Company "D," 52 BN-11th Regiment, U.S.A., Camp Fannin, Texas."

Harry Browning went to New York last week on a business conference connected with the Fourth War Loan drive.

Scores are out with the influenza from the Boston film row offices and all offices are short on manpower at the moment.

STR PLAQUE PRESENTATION. Universal stars Bud Abbott and Lou Costello proudly display the plaques presented them during one of their recent nationwide broadcasts by Edward Arnold, in honor of their selection by the exhibitors of America as the top male motion picture stars in STR's Leaders of the Motion Picture Industry annual poll. Copy on the plaques: "Showmen's Trade Review takes pleasure in presenting to Lou Costello (or Bud Abbott) this token of their selection by the exhibitors of America as the top male motion picture stars in the industry at the nation's box-offices. Abbott and Costello. 1943. Leaders of the Motion Picture Industry."

Benjamin Gilbert, attorney for motion picture interests, spent the week-end on business in New York. Ben was once an usher at the Metropolitan here and later treasurer of that house.

Edward X. Callahan, 20th Century-Fox district manager, went to New York this week to confer with company officials.

Joseph C. Harlacker came up from Providence to spend two days visiting Booker Al Martin.

Hy Fine, district manager for M and P theatres in western New England, toured his district last week.

Captain and Mrs. Lou Gordon—he is the Gordon of the Lockwood-Gordon circuit—entertained several friends at a New Year's party at the Hotel Statler.

Bob Sternberg, district manager for M and P theatres in Boston, was out with a bad cold several days.

Tom Shehan, former publicist here, is now in Arabia with the American forces as a war correspondent for Yank.

Ed Smith, manager of the Paramount in Springfield, was a recent visitor on Boston's Film Row.

Mary MacFarlane of MGM has been ill with a severe cold for the past several days.

CHARLOTTE

Dick Chastain, formerly with the National Theatre Supply Company in Charlotte, has joined the staff of the Plaza Theatre as projectionist and engineer, it was announced last week by Manager A. B. Craver. Mr. Chastain's daughter and Sergeant Chester Lorenz of Rogers Field, Okla., a veteran of the Aleutian Islands campaign, will be married in Charlotte on January 8.

For Mr. and Mrs. Rovy F. Branon it's a daughter, Martha Caroline, born on December 27. This is their second child, and first daughter. Mr. Branon is manager for RKO in Charlotte.

Corporal Jack Webb, former booker for RKO, was a visitor at the exchange this week from Fort Bragg.

Harry Kerr is back at his post as head shipper for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Charlotte, after serving for more than a year in the Army. He received a medical discharge.

Catherine Bell of the contract department of MGM has moved to Florida.

Jean Hendrix, former director of publicity for the five Wilby-Kincey theatres in Charlotte, who recently moved with her family to Washington, spent the first of the week in Charlotte.

Mrs. Jack Dowling of the Broadway Theatre, director of publicity since November 1, is back at her desk after a bout with the flu.

CHICAGO

The Reelfellows Club will induct officers for the new year on January 16 at the dinner meeting to be held at the Blackstone Hotel. Frank Flaherty of Columbia Picures will preside. Three members of the club who are now in the armed services, Lt. Howard DeTamble, Corp. Harry Golden, and Staff Sgt. Bill Levy will be honored at the get-together.

The old State Theatre building in Hammond, Ind., was destroyed last week with a loss of $50,000. Because of materials shortage the house cannot be rebuilt at this time.

The DeForest Training School, subsidiary of the DeVry Corporation, plans courses for returning soldiers in electronics, optical work, and mechanical engineering as part of the general rehabilitation program.

The Dennis Film Bureau of Wabash, Ind., reports a heavy demand for OWI films. The average attendance at OWI showings booked from the bureau runs to 2570 per print each month, as compared with a national average of 960.

Lawrence Whittaker has been named manager of the B & K Tower Theatre.

W. L. Schulze and E. J. Metzdorf have organized the Professional Studios, with offices at 100 East Ohio Street, to develop and distribute prints.

CINCINNATI

Mrs. Mary Kelly Hope, former head of the inspection department at Universal, died last week after a 15-month illness. Mrs. Hope was with the company for 25 years.

A private preview of "The Story of the Vatican" was held for priests and nuns, Tuesday afternoon, at the Twentieth Century Theatre through courtesy of the management. The regular showing will be January 11, 12 and 13.

The pictures taken by crews of Warner Bros. and RKO of the one-day Waste-Paper Drive, which was a huge success, will be shown throughout the country in the hope that it may be used as a model for other cities to follow. So much paper was contributed that the drive had to be placed on a two-day basis.

Charles Howard Coldiron, motion picture machine operator at the Dayvue Theatre, Dayton, Kentucky, is believed to have set a record for draft fathers, in the opinion of medical officers at the Cincinnati induction center. Coldiron and his wife have seven children. He was registered in Covington City Hall and reclassified 1-A by the board, and was called up to report to the Navy on Tuesday.

William P. Hastings, manager of the Grand Theatre, suffered a double fracture of the left arm when the automobile in which he was riding skidded from the road and overturned near Williamstown, Kentucky. Hastings' companions, Cliff Redman, electrician at the Paramount Theatre, and Eddie Riesenberger, manager of Keith's, were not injured.

George Daumeyer, booker at Warners and also secretary of Film Local No. 37, is ill with the flu.

A special publicity campaign is being waged by Warner Exploiteer Bill Blumberg for "Destination Tokyo."

Bob Langer, Universal booker, has received notification to report for service.

Metro has added Bette Hill to its staff.

Among guests this week on the Row, were Frank Ferguson, Columbus; Roy Wells, Dayton, Ohio; Herbert Byrd, Dayton; and G. J. Thomas, Fayetteville, West Virginia.

Added to the MGM flu absentees were Ruth Mueller and Geraldine Jones.

Mauries White, new chief barker at the Variety Club, presided at the gala New Year's Eve party at the club quarters. The new chief barker is of the White-Lisbon chain.

Leavit Bugie, 20th-Fox branch manager, spent the New Year holiday in Chicago.

Sgt. J. Goldberg, son of Lee Goldberg, whose new Popular Pictures exchange will open on January 15, will be married to Miss Betty Boller.

CLEVELAND

Bernard Kranze, RKO branch manager, will officially assume his duties as chief barker of the Variety Club on January 22—the date when the new officers will be installed.

William Smith, one-time manager of Loew's Stillman, later manager of the Terminal and the Ridge, died suddenly last week of a heart attack. He is survived by a son, Thomas, and a daughter, Alice.

Russell Suchy, doorman at Warner's Hippodrome until he was inducted into the Army, is reported killed in action in Bougainville. He was 20 years old.

Nat Fellman of the Warner home office theatre booking department paid his first visit to Cleveland since his promotion from head of the local Warner theatre booking department.

Lester Zucker, Columbia branch manager, has been appointed chairman of the theatre division for the March of Dimes. I. J. Schmertz, 20th-Century Fox branch manager, was chairman last year.

Mark Larkin of the Hays organization states that all reservations for the Charles Francis Coe talk here on January 10 have been taken. The event, sponsored by the Cleveland Advertising Club, has been made the occasion of Ladies Day. This permits the presence of representatives of the Cleveland Federation of Women's Clubs, the Cinema Club and the Motion Picture Council of Greater Cleveland. The luncheon will be held at the Cleveland Hotel.

W. D. Ward reports that work of rehabilitating his Ohio Theatre in Kenton, damaged last summer by fire, is going along so well that he expects to open within ten days.

Edwin Brauer, Republic salesman, celebrated the new year by buying a new home.

M. M. Jacobs, who operates Imperial Pictures exchange, goes to New York on January 9 on a business trip. Nat L. Lefton, PRC franchise owner, will also be in New York next week to complete some business negotiations.

Jack Walsh, MGM salesman, and Mrs. Walsh welcomed in the New Year with a new son, making it three of a kind.

Sid Zins, in charge of Columbia exploitation out of the Cleveland office, was working in the Buffalo territory last week.

New Year's Eve business on Film Row was excellent the early part of the evening, theatre managers report, but it fell off for the midnight show everywhere except at the RKO Palace where a special stage-screen show was presented under a reserved seat policy. The late drop in business at other houses is attributed to the shortage in manpower. The girls did not want to stay out late without escorts.

Morrison Orr, United Artists branch manager, is back from Florida where he went to shake off the tag end of the flu. J. Knox Strachan, head of the Warner theatre publicity staff, was a flu victim last week.

A fire in the rear of the Carter Theatre Saturday morning, caused estimated damage of $10,000 when curtains and electrical equipment were injured. Origin of the fire was reputed to be sparks from a rubbish pile burning in an adjacent alley drawn into the theatre through an air intake fan.

DALLAS

Wallace Walthall, NSS branch manager, inducted both L. C. and R. E. Griffith into Masonry in Oklahoma City during his residency there. Because of this personal relationship he was delegated to prepare an encomium to R. E. which will be framed and hung in the Variety Club at Oklahoma City.

Buying and booking along the row: Billy Arthur, Granger; Buck Morgan, Grand Prairie; Hans Smith, Irvin; Lester Dollison, Sherman; J. B. Crow, Leonard—who has just completed rebuilding a house after a fire; Leon Lewis, Fort Worth; Jack Groves, Houston—on his way home from a visit to California; John Stewart, Kaufman; U. S. Usry, Decatur, who returned this correspondent's overcoat, picked up at the Allied convention.

Disaster has piled on disaster in Texas during 1943. There was the worst polio epidemic in history; there was a severe drouth over most of the state; the gulf storm did immense damage in a restricted area, and now flu is cutting a ravaging swath throughout the territory. Boxoffices have felt the impact and will continue so to do until recession sets in. In many places public health officers have cautioned against crowds and the newspapers have featured the cautions. But as dark as this picture seems, most houses have continued to do good business as a result of general prosperity.

The father draft is digging in on film row and the theatres pretty heavily. More than 20 persons have received their induction notices or orders for physicals. Many of the men have prepared to leave right away.

James O. Cherry, Interstate Dallas city manager, and Variety Chief Barker, has been named on a committee of the Dallas Junior Chamber of Commerce to select the young man who has been of most service to the society during 1943. This is an annual selection of the Chamber and carries a certificate. Cherry's nomination as a judge is a distinct honor.

Allied Theatre Owners of Texas will use the tried publicity form of the testimonial in urging closer use by members of Association services, and particularly the functioning of the Caravan plan. Members will testify on their own letter heads, and in their own words, to the benefits they have gained. Letters will go out weekly for 15 or 20 weeks.

Beryl Warner will resign as NSS booker and join her husband, Ralph, who is an aviation instructor at the WNB Flying School at Chickasha, Okla.

DES MOINES

Iowa's senior theatre manager, E. S. Ellsworth, has observed his 44th anniversary in charge of the Metropolitan Theatre at Iowa Falls. The theatre is also 44 years old. Ellsworth is believed to have the longest record in the state as a manager. Constructed by his father in 1899, the house was considered the finest in the middlewest.

Film exchange salesmen and managers met with A. H. Blank, Iowa Chairman of WAC, to make plans for the Fourth War Loan Drive and to discuss special events to be set up for the event. The salesmen will relay the information to theatre exhibitors over the state.

The Three Ames theatres, the Collegian, New Ames and Capitol, have installed new plastic molded screens, according to Goe Gerbracht, manager of the Ames Theatre company. The new screens are intended to eliminate distortion and distribute sound over a greater radius.

The Victory Theatre at Fontenelle is scheduled to open this month. The owners of the new house are Orville Dunkerson and Gaylord Tannatt. The Victory will be Fontenelle's only theatre.

Otto Reinke has sold the Avon Theatre at Dysart to enter another business.

Dolores Whistler of MGM exchange in Des Moines will be married in Davenport, Iowa, January 9 to Col. Vernon Hintze and will leave film row to accompany her husband to his Army station in Santa Rosa, Calif.

Des Moines faces a possible curfew law, with safety commissioner Clarence Koenigsberger announcing he is studying several ordinances with a view of asking the city council to adopt one. He favors curfew laws similar to those adopted by St. Paul and Cedar Rapids.

The flu ban has been lifted at Humboldt after two weeks of public gatherings prohibited because of the epidemic. The ban was ordered on December 17, with the Humota Theatre forced to close. The ban was removed in time for the theatre to hold its annual New Year's eve show.

The Des Moines city council is now drafting an ordinance which would permit theatres to leave their poster stands on the sidewalks on payment of an areaway tax. Removal of the stands along with newsstands had been ordered previously.

INDIANAPOLIS

Shirley Wilcox, city manager for the Switow Circuit in New Albany, Ind., is recovering from an appendectomy.

Mrs. Ethel Luckett Walsh, who operates the Indiana Theatre, Scottsburg, and the Austin Theatre, Austin, spent the holidays with her husband stationed in one of the Army camps in Louisiana.

Lieut. Charles M. Baer, former employe of the RCA-Victor division plant here, was reported killed in action, according to reports from the War department.

Andy Anderson, Kentucky Circuit operator, spent the holidays in Chicago.

Employes of the Universal exchange accepted an invitation from the Masonic Temple, their neighbor on the north, to visit the temple and behold the Christmas decorations, the day before Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Moritz, Columbia exchange manager, Cincinnati, O., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Marc Wolf over the Christmas holiday.

L. J. McGinley, Universal manager, spent several days in Louisville, Ky. on business.

Joel Golden, Universal sales representative in Kentucky attended the Cincinnati Variety Club New Year's eve party accompanied by Mrs. Golden.

Fred Roahrs, PRC division manager, paid a visit to the local exchange January 3.

The Indianapolis Council of Social Agencies will sponsor a special screening January 8 in the War Memorial auditorium of "Children of Mars," one of the This Is America subjects dealing with child delinquency.

Tony Roskin, who before his entry into the armed forces directed all publicity for the Connors Theatres, Marion, Ind., has been heard of by his friends, and is now stationed somewhere in England. He is a pilot in the air forces.

With the exception of "This Is the Army" that topped all former box office records at the Indiana Theatre, "Destination Tokyo" is running close.

Allan Berkowitz, Warner Bros. booker, who was inducted into the Army recently, has been honorably discharged because of physical conditions.

Albert Blankenbaker, Warner Bros. head shipper, who reported for induction into the Army, also received a medical discharge.

The Warner Club, composed of employes of the local exchange, sent all the men in service from the local exchange $15 for Christmas.

The local Universal exchange is now in fifth place in the Bill Scully anniversary drive.

Pauline Neese, secretary to Otto Ebert, RKO office manager, is a victim of influenza.

Charles Boasberg, captain of the Ned Depinet drive, RKO pictures, and Harry Gittleson, home office representative, arrive in Indianapolis today to unfold the plans for the annual drive.

Visitors on Filmrow during the week were: Bob Hudson, Richmond; D. J. Abbott, Crothersville, and Joe Schiling, Connersville.

NEW YORK

The holidays brought in some visiting firemen on vacation who called on their New York outfits. There were Eddie Renick and Charlie Repec, MGM salesmen from Boston, and from Buffalo came John Strauss, city salesman for Warners, and Manny Woronov, salesman for MGM.

Mrs. Rose Epstein, widow of the late Republic branch manager, Morris Epstein, traveled to San Francisco this week to oversee the interment there. Masonic rites are being held.

Before the election of officers was held Wednesday by Motion Picture Associates one of the nominees for president, Dave Levy, dropped out of the race. Dave said he did not choose to run.

Bob Wolff, RKO Radio division manager, is back at the office looking somewhat peaked after a minor operation. It was an abscessed ear, and very painful.

Cpl. Herbert Richek, former UA office manager, and his brother, Top Sgt. Irving Richek, formerly with Brandt, came on from Miami Beach and Camp Shelby, Miss., respectively, to attend their sister's wedding.

Harry Hummel, WB cashier, at last reckoning had been out 12 days with pneumonia. No word on how serious the situation is.

Harry Rosen of the Inwood, Forest Hills and the Nassau, Brooklyn has been inducted and expects to report this week-end.

Charles Boasberg, captain of the RKO Radio sales drive, and his lieutenant, Harry Gittleson, left Monday on a coast-to-coast tour of exchanges. They'll be on the go until February 10.

Bill Moses, UA upstate salesman, has gone on a hunting trip to Lake George for his vacation.

Norman Ayers, Warner district manager, is back from a long confab with the Schine circuit at Gloversville, N. Y.

Two of the MGM younger employes enlisted for service and have been accepted. They are W. A. Panzella, Jr. of the booking department, who goes in the Navy as a Hospital Apprentice, 2/c, and William T. Brenner, also of the booking department, who becomes a flying cadet in the Army Air Corps. Both expect to leave the middle of this month.

RKO's S. Barret McCormick is now on the coast for his annual studio "look-see" at new product. Be gone about six weeks.

A request recently came to the UA exchange from an exhibitor in Callicoon, N. Y., to please tell him the name of Hopalong Cassidy's horse. Seems a patron demanded the name and got sore when it wasn't forthcoming. The joker is that nobody in New York knows the horse's name either. Suggestions are in order.

Joe Simon, formerly part owner of the Rex Theatre, East Rutherford, N. J., sold out when he was inducted. He's been discharged since, and now he's looking for another theatre.

Marion Krieger of the RKO home office advertising department has announced her engagement to Sgt. A. I. Lang.

Sgt. Johnnie Hogan, former assistant shipper at UA, was in last week on furlough from Camp Pickett, Va.

Head Booker Jen Dennett of Republic is off on a vacation for a week. Won't say where she's going.

In sick bay: Clarence Eiseman, Warner branch manager, and J. J. Bowen, MGM district manager. Both expect to be back in a few days.

Big news of the week: nobody has been ill at Republic for the past month.

MIAMI

Hal Kopplin, advertising director of Wometco Theatres, turned detective here last week and furnished the newspapers with a good human interest story. A wallet found in Wometco's State Theatre showed up in Kopplin's "lost and found" office sans any Miami address. Only clues to the loser's identity were the birth certificate and marriage license of Leonard Allen Bridwell. Kopplin contacted Bridwell's mother in Chester, Pennsylvania, and learned that the wallet was the first clue to the whereabouts of her son, who had left home suddenly nearly three years ago. Miami police located the 17-year-old Bridwell working in a local restaurant and summoned the mother for a happy reunion. Now young Bridwell is en route to Chester to work for his father, his wife and parents are reconciled, and super-sleuth Kopplin is back at his advertising.

Mark Chartrand, popular manager of Wometco's first-run Miami Theatre, has been accepted by Uncle Sam and goes into the armed service soon. "Sharkey" points with pride to the fact that the Marine Corps grabbed him at Camp Blanding.

New Year's Eve midnight shows at thirteen theatres here accounted for capacity business, with a minimum of rowdyism.

Floyd Peters, former office manager of National Screen Service in Memphis, has joined Wometco's booking staff as assistant to Herman Silverman.

Other additions to Wometco's home office gang include Mrs. Marjorie Sanderson in the purchasing department, and Ethel Wood in the payroll office.

At Paramount, Austin Moon has been named to handle the Dade and Regent theatres, with Mary Tingle as assistant in both houses.

Al Weiss, Jr., manager of the Olympia has returned from a five-day siege of the flu.

OMAHA

North Platte, Neb., has joined the list of Nebraska cities that have special curfew ordinances. The city council has decreed that there will be rigid enforcement of the new curfew law, which forbids youngsters under 16 being on the streets after 10:30 p.m.

Fire which originated in a popcorn machine early Wednesday caused five hundred dollars damage to the Clay Center, Neb., theatre building owned by Fredrick Anderson. The blaze was confined to the lobby. Picture service was not interrupted.

F. A. Van Husen, owner of the Western Theatre Supply Company of Omaha, has returned from a trip to Shenandoah, Ia., where he inspected the Iowa Theatre, owned by B. B. Holdridge. It suffered damage from an early morning fire last week and Van Husen estimates at least $30,000 work will have to be done on the house. All the Holdridge's personal effects also were lost in the fire. Mr. and Mrs. Holdridge, who lived above the theatre, barely escaped safely in their night clothes. Cause of the fire is undetermined, but it followed an explosion in the basement.

Kenny Holcomb, former Fepco employe, now stationed with the Army in Iceland, has been promoted to staff sergeant. Holcomb has now been there for 18 months.

Ida Epstein of the Scott-Ballantvne Company had a birthday on Christmas Day.

Cpl. Max McCoy, former Paramount exchange employe, was the subject of a front-page Christmas story and picture in the Omaha World-Herald on December 25. McCoy arrived home for Christmas from an Army hospital at White Sulphur Springs. During action as a paratrooper in Italy, Sicily and North Africa, McCoy, member of an intelligence unit, was twice injured and had his share of experiences for one war.

As per schedule, Bernard Mariner, PRC chief here, entered the Marine Corps a few days before Christmas. No new manager has been appointed. Sol Reif was left in charge.

Bill Sokolof, former National Screen employe and brother of Iz, the manager here, sailed a month ago from an eastern port and word of where the Army sent him has not yet been received here.

Mrs. Clyde Cooley, wife of the operator of the Twentieth Century-Fox Screening Room, died Christmas eve.

Universal Salesman Phil Monsky was beaming this week as word reached here that his nephew, Lt. Hubert Monsky, ferried the ten thousandth plane to England Christmas Day.

E. A. Van Husen and E. N. Epley of Western Theatre Supply have received certificates from Skagway, Alaska, informing them they have been granted membership in the "Mystic and Auroral Order of Alaska Cheechakos."

Charles Anderson, father of Lucille Clow of the Paramount exchange, passed away on Christmas Day.

J. M. Sutherland of the Eldorado Theatre at Ewing, Neb., spent Christmas with his wife, who is taking care of the theatre during his stretch in the service.

Pvt. Dick Beckman, former Fepco employe, is stationed in England.

Mildred Williams of Twentieth Century-Fox spent Christmas with her parents at Mason City, Ia.

C. C. Moore was the only film row visitor sighted the Monday following Christmas.

PHILADELPHIA

Iz Wiernick, manager of the Strand Theatre, was the victim of a holdup man who forced his way into the mezzanine office last Saturday night, forced him to open up the safe, and escaped with more than $700. The man had apparently followed Wiernick upstairs after watching him collect the money from the candy counter, empty the candy machine, and go up to his office.

BEFORE LEAVING LONDON. Received here by Clipper, above photo shows Managing Director Bob Harley, in appreciation and on behalf of the home office executives and sales force of 20th Century-Fox in Great Britain, presenting Murray Silverstone, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution, with an antique Silver Salver, George III (1780) and a pair of George the Second Sauce Boats (1744).

The Strand and Virginia theatres in Atlantic City have closed until further notice.

Esther Diamond, secretary to Edgar Moss, 20th Century-Fox district manager, was married New Year's Day to Corporal Frank Mesman of Camp Mead, Md.

Bob Pryor, RKO exploiteer, was laid up with the grippe.

All the film people in town received post cards announcing the mass meeting to be held at the Broadway Hotel on Monday, January 10, for the opening of the Fourth War Loan Drive, and the fact that William F. Rodgers, vice-president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, would be the one of the chief speakers.

Earle Sweigert, Paramount district manager, will head the motion picture committee for the Red Cross Drive in March.

George Reinert has been named manager of Wilmer and Vincent's Rialto Theatre in Allentown.

Charles Segall is off to Florida.

Mae Finlayson, booker at Monogram, was married on New Year's Day to Lt. William Eugene Bannon.

Herb Gillis, booker at 20th Century-Fox, became a father last week. The new child, a son, was born in the Lying-In Hospital and is named David Lee.

New Year's Day started off with a bang for Milt Young of the Warner publicity staff. Riding home from a friend's house, the car in which he and his wife and sister-in-law were passengers was in a collision with another car. Milt's wife and sister-in-law were hurt, and Milt's wife is in the hospital under observation and x-ray examination for head injuries.

Ulrich Smith, Paramount branch manager, just finished 30 years with the organization. Starting with the company in 1913, Ulrich is said to be the oldest continuously employed person with Paramount.

Evelyn Gray of the 20th Century-Fox contract department has returned to work after a seige of illness.

Joe Titleman, brother of Dave Titleman, manager for Harry Fried, writes from Australia that he saw Gary Cooper in Australia and had his picture taken with him.

Charles Harris, former checker for MGM, died last Thursday after a long illness. His death occurred in the Philadelphia General Hospital.

Joe Rossheim of the Midway in Allentown and the Lehigh in Bethlehem is Florida-bound in two weeks.

Dave Barrist of Quality Premiums, has bought the property at 1309 Vine St.

Ted Schlanger, Henry Friedman, and Isidore Epstein are actively working on a stunt to tie the American Legion Posts in the city and surrounding area with the Fourth War Loan Drive, in which the Legion will award prizes to children selling the most bonds during the drive. The plan calls for the children to register at the individual theatres, turning the record of the bond sales over to the manager, and the boy or girl in each theatre who sells the most bonds will receive from the local American Legion Post Commander a Legion Award Merit Medal.

PITTSBURGH

Local unions have elected and will install the following officers for the year 1944 at their next meetings:

Filmrow Exchange Employes Union, Local B-11: president, Ted Tolley; vice-president, Sara Kells; secretary, Mildred Kindlin, and Treasurer, Alfred Kuhn. Ellwood Ohleger was named business agent, succeeding Frank Silverman.

Filmrow Office Employes Union, Local F-12:

timore, made his semi-annual visit to Film Row to extend his New Year's greetings.

Mrs. Joseph Kun, daughter of Max Cohen, Universal branch manager, is back in Washington for the duration, while her husband is overseas. The office Xmas party was a huge success, with exhibitors from Washington and Baltimore dropping in for refreshments. The party finally congregated at the Variety Club. F. T. Murray, manager of branch operations, was in Washington for a couple of days. Margaret Foster, recent flu victim, is now back at work again.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gill entertained a number of people at a get-together in their home. Among them were: Mr. and Mrs. Clark Davis, of Lichtman Theatres; Mr. George Wheeler, also of Lichtman Theatres; Miss Margaret Foster, of Universal; Mr. and Mrs. Danny Rosenthal; Mr. and Mrs. Fichelman; Mr. and Mrs. Rohrs, of PRC; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Epstein, of Fox.

At the office Xmas party, Republic employes gave Mr. Flax a leather brief case. Everybody received gifts, with each employe drawing the name of the person to whom he was to play Santa Claus. Recent visitors to Republic: Mr. Goodman, Ideal Theatre, Baltimore; Mr. Tunick, Brooklyn Theatre, Baltimore; Mr. Leon Bach, Rome Circuit, Baltimore; Mr. Flaks, Lincoln Theatre, Baltimore.

The 20th Century-Fox offices are being remodeled, and although it is somewhat of a nuisance having the offices upset, the results will be well worth the inconvenience; the Yuletide spirit prevailed at the annual Christmas party, at which gifts were exchanged.

The regular monthly meeting of Local F-13 AFL, of which Mrs. Sara Young is president, took place on January 5, at which time installation of officers were made.

Sam Jack Kaufman, leader of the orchestra at Loew's Capitol Theatre, is the father of a brand new baby boy.

Irene Weber of Carter T. Barron's staff underwent a serious operation, and is now at Doctor's Hospital, Washington.

Carter T. Barron has been appointed chairman of the War Activities Committee 4th War Loan Drive. A native of Clarksville, Georgia, Mr. Barron has since 1934 been eastern division manager, covering theatres in Washington, Baltimore, Wilmington, Harrisburg, Reading, Norfolk and Richmond.

United Artists salesmen sponsored a Christmas party for the office. Mildred Footer is very proud of her husband, Morton K. Footer, who has just been made a Sergeant. Sgt. Footer is stationed at Camp Edison, New Jersey. Another proud wife is Margaret Stant, whose husband, Ashton Stant, was also promoted to a Sergeant's rating. He is stationed in the Marine Corps at Quantico, Virginia.

Betty Kaylor is leaving Vitagraph to join her husband at Richmond, Virginia. Sgt. Jim Kaylor, formerly stationed at Walter Reed, was recently transferred. The office force will give her a little farewell party with all the trimmings.

At Monogram, Gladys Murray was out ill; Harry Brown reports that his daughter, Miriam, has been visiting with Capt. Yale Cohen and Mrs. Cohen, at Ft. Benning, Georgia. Mrs. Cohen was the former Janet Brown. Both girls worked at Monogram, and daughter Janet also worked at the Variety Club.

Ted Lohmeyer, former manager of the Avalon Theatre, and son of Harry Lohmeyer, Warner Theatres Washington district manager, was in to say goodbye. He reports next week to Hammer Field, Fresno, California, having completed special studies at the Army Finance School.

The Metropolitan Theatre lobby was the scene of a special scrap drive display. All of the vital materials made from scrap paper were in evidence, among them cases for shells, shipping boxes, primers, etc. The display was titled "Mark Your Scrap—Destination Tokyo."

The Earle Theatre Roxyettes, many of whom hail from far away states, celebrated their Christmas away from home with a party in their special recreation room backstage. A gaily decorated tree, lots of bright Christmas presents and refreshments helped give true holiday spirit to the event.

Girl Who Queried President About 'Fala' Guest at MGM Screening

Florence Hitchcock, the 13-year old girl from Hanover, Mass., who last week received a letter from President Roosevelt in reply to her query about the chief executive's dog, got an added thrill when she was guest of honor at a private screening of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pete Smith specialty, "Fala," in which the dog is starred.

The young lady was accompanied by her mother and a score of other youngsters. Prior to the screening, Miss Hitchcock was presented with a large-sized photograph of Fala by Congressman John W. McCormack, majority leader of the National House of Representatives. The showing was arranged by Maurice Wolf, New England district manager for MGM and Bert McKenzie, exploiteer.

NBC Cooperating With MOT in Exploitation of 'Youth in Crisis'

A new nation-wide series, "Here's to Youth," stressing problems of juvenile delinquency, and making its debut January 15th on some one hundred NBC national coast-to-coast outlets, offers exhibiors a timely tieup with NBC on March of Time's "Youth in Crisis."

Stressing the importance of the March of Time film in programs of youth guidance, NBC, in cooperation with ten national youth organizations with membership numbering into the thirty-one millions, is sending out a special Press Book which features the March of Time tieup. The organizations, moreover, have already sent out tens of thousands of "Idea Kits," all stressing the importance of exploitation tieups with "Youth in Crisis."

The series will be heard nationally from one to one-thirty on Saturdays.

Campaigns On 'Seventh Column' Getting Aid of Junior C. of C.

A screening of the MGM Pete Smith Specialty, "Seventh Column," arranged with the Junior Chamber of Commerce and National Safety Council, resulted in an editorial and stories in Chicago newspapers. Screening was held at the Hotel Sherman.

In Columbus, Neb., Manager Burns Ellison of the Columbus Theatre inaugurated a "Safety Week" under the sponsorship of the Junior Chamber, arranged window displays in six downtown stores and sold blocks of tickets to local industrial outfits.

In Des Moines, Eddie Forester of the Des Moines Theatre arranged a talk at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon and also had the Junior Chamber mention "Seventh Column" in its mailings.

Short Subject Reviews

Flicker Flashbacks No. 5 (Good)

RKO-Pathe 9 mins.

Charlie Chaplin in "Police" leads off this two-part subject with all the fun of his early pantomime slapstick. Charlie is seen in the role of a burglar's assistant, and they are just about to walk out with the widow's kitchen sink when Charlie's inner self revolts. The widow, in gratitude, saves him from the cops and all ends happily. The latter half of the short is devoted to D. W. Griffith's production, "Lonely Villa," which stars Mary Pickford and James Kirkwood. This is charged with melodrama, also dealing with cops and robbers who tackle the wife and kids while hubby is away . . . ah, but pappy gets back in the nick of time. You can rate this right up there with the best of this series, with lots of laughs for the youngsters and oldsters.

Tails of the Border (Tops)

Paramount (Y3-1) Speaking of Animals 8½ mins.

Jerry Fairbanks begins his new season in this series with a departure in form. There is no narrator and the film carries a story of sorts. The actors are a trained dog group and they walk upright, wear clothes, and speak dialogue via the Fairbanks method. The effect is quite laughable, and an improvement on last year's output. The big point about this short, however, is that it should prove to be a classic for the kids. They will simply laugh themselves into hysterics. Book it if for no other reason than to hear the kids let go. Should be spotted on a light program where it will be most appreciated.

Four Two-Reel Comedies on Columbia's Slate This Month

Jules White and Hugh McCollum are producing four two-reelers at Columbia this month. Jules White's schedule for January includes a Hugh Herbert comedy, "Oh Baby," written by Jack White, and a Billy Gilbert short, "Blitzed by a Blonde," written by Edward Ullman. White directs both.

McCollum's first will be a Hugh Herbert comedy, written by Harry Edwards, with Edwards directing. This will be followed by a Una Merkel-El Brendel comedy, also written and to be directed by Harry Edwards.

Three New Shorts Added to Hollingshead's Schedule at WB

Three new short subjects have been added to Gordon Hollingshead's 1944 schedule at Warner Bros.

They include "The Life and Music of Stephen Foster," being written by Jack Scholl; "The Trial in Tom Belcher's Store," based on the prize-winning O. Henry story, and "Don't Sell 'Em Short," which will show many stars who first appeared in shorts.

PRODUCTION NOTES FROM THE STUDIOS

Esther Williams Groomed Further for Stardom; Comedy is Purchased for Ida Lupino; Bernerd to Do 'Right to Live'

Setting a record for the company, PRC has paid $10,000 for "First Illusion," an original story by Fritz Rotter, author of "Letters to Lucerne" and "The Horn Blows at Midnight" Edgar Ulmer has been assigned by Leon Fromkess, PRC production head, to direct the picture. Also on the Ulmer schedule is "Bluebeard."

Gratified by audience reaction at the first public showing of "The Private Life of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels," producer W. R. Frank has given long-term contracts to Director Alfred Zeisler and Herbert O. Phillips, who wrote the script in collaboration with Zeisler. Frank has also given a term deal to Claudia Drake who plays the top femme role and who will be starred in "Springtime in Vienna." Fred Kane, associate producer, also continues with Frank.

Esther Williams will be further groomed for stardom when she steps into the leading role of "Thrill of a Romance" to be produced by Joseph Pasternak and directed by Richard Thorpe as her next picture for MGM.

Jeffrey Bernerd has been set by Monogram to produce "The Right to Live," based upon an original story by James Fielding, as his next picture, following "Where Are Your Children?" Bernerd plans to start shooting on January 24.

Paramount has purchased "Make Way for O'Sullivan," an original screen story by Myles Connolly, and Joseph Sistrom has been assigned to produce it. Sistrom, who currently is producing "The Hitler Gang" and the Technicolor musical "Incendiary Blonde," also is preparing "Girls Town."

Tommy Bond will have the third most important role in the million-dollar picture, 'Man from Frisco," which is being produced by Albert J. Cohen for Republic. Robert Florey will direct the co-starring team of Michael O'Shea and Anne Shirley.

Maria Palmer, young Broadway actress who has the second feminine lead in Casey Robinson's production of "Days of Glory," has been placed under long-term contract by RKO. The picture, directed by Jacques Tourneur, will be shown to the trade in the early part of the year.

"Destiny," a Universal story property formerly on George Waggner's production list, was handed to Paul Malvern for early spring work. The switch was necessitated as Waggner is slated to start the Susanna Foster-Turhan Bey starrer "The Climax," which he will direct as well as produce.

Monte Blue, currently playing his largest role in years as the informer in "Mask for Dimitrios," has had his contract renewed by Warner Bros. The picture is being directed by Jean Negulesco for producer Henry Blanke.

John Stone has assigned Jack Fier to produce a filem based on Raoul Marlow's original recently purchased by Columbia which is tentatively titled "Forever Art." It is a mystery and horror tale.

Martin Mooney and Ray Schrock, PRC producers, have purchased "Bluebeard," psychological horror story, as the first of a number of pictures to be made by the Mooney-Schrock team. Picture is set for a March 15 starting date.

Clarence Brown is winding up final tests for supporting players for "National Velvet" starring Mickey Rooney, with Elizabeth Taylor, and Jackie Jenkins. The picture is to be filed by MGM with Pandro Berman as producer and gets under way within the next two weeks.

"Water Amazons" has been set as the new title of the forthcoming Monogram comedy formerly known as "Aquacade." Frank Wisbar wrote the story and Lindsley Parsons will produce.

Hitler has been given a term contract by Paramount, or at any rate, Robert Watson, who plays Adolf Hitler in the studio's "The Hitler Gang," got the new contract. Joseph Sistrom is producing.

Dorothy Christie is playing the comedy role opposite Big Boy Williams in the Roy Rogers Starrer, "The Cowboy and the Senorita," which started to roll January 5th at Republic. Mary Lee and Dale Evans appear opposite Rogers.

Frank Sinatra, RKO's singing star, has arrived here for preliminary work on his forthcoming starring picture to be produced by Robert Fellows and as yet untitled.

"South of Dixie," an original by Sam Coslow, has been assigned to Universal associate producer Jean Yarbrough, who will also direct. Production is slated to start the latter part of January.

"Meet My Friend," a Dalton Trumbo comedy, has been set by Jack Warner for Ida Lupino's next starring Warner Bros. picture, Jack Chertok, who produced "Northern Pursuit," has been assigned to handle production. Picture will precede "Made in Heaven" on the star's schedule.

Wallace Fox has been signed by PRC to direct "Minstrel Man" starring Benny Fields and Gerra Young, which is set to start January 22. In addition, Johnny Boyle has been assigned to stage the dances. It will be PRC's second production on it's own, with Leon Fromkess and his associate producer Harry Revel in charge. Filming is set to start January 24th.

Marine Tim Murdock, recently given a medical discharge, has been signed by MGM to portray Lieutenant Dean Davenport, Lt. Ted Lawson's co-pilot, in "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo." Director Mervyn LeRoy and Producer Sam Zimbalist set him for the role after exhaustive screen tests. Van Johnson will play the lead.

Tim Ryan is collaborating with Victor Hammond on the writing of a Monogram mystery comedy tentatively titled "Accusing Corpse." The film will be included in the 1943-44 program, with Lindsley Parsons as producer.

Darryl Hickman and Conrad Binyon, two of Hollywood's most talented boy actors, have been added to the cast of Paramount's "And Now Tomorrow," which Irving Pichel is directing with Loretta Young and Alan Ladd co-starred.

Dembow Visits Story Conference

While Sam Dembow (left), Paramount theatre executive who happened to drop in, looks on, Producer Jules Levey (seated) holds a story conference with stars William Bendix and Susan Hayward and Director Alfred Santell on Levey's forthcoming production, "The Hairy Ape." It will be released through United Artists.

Four Features Start Production This Month at Monogram Studios

Four new Monogram films will go before the cameras this month.

First to go into production, on Jan. 5, was "Trail of the Yukon," Jack London story adapted by George Sayre, with Lindsley Parsons producing.

"Law Men," western drama starring Johnny Mack Brown with Raymond Hatton, went into action on the 7th, with Scott R. Dunlap producing and Lamber Hillyer directing.

Twelfth of the month marks the start of "Murder in the Fun House," second in the Charlie Chan detective series starring Sidney Toler, and directed by Phil Rosen for Krasne-Burkett Productions.

Final production of the month, on Jan. 25, is "Black Beauty," Anna Sewell's famous novel adapted by Frank Bentick Wisbar, and directed for producer Lindsley Parsons by William Beaudine.

To Assist on Technicolor Musical

Raoul du Bois, stage and screen set designer, who recently returned to Hollywood from New York after doing the sets for Broadway's "Carmen Jones," has been assigned to work as art director with Hans Dreier on Paramount's Technicolor musical, "Bring On the Girls," which will star Veronica Lake, Eddie Bracken, Sonny Tufts and Marjorie Reynolds. The production will contain numerous colorful sets for various musical numbers.

Stoltz Scoring Clair Film

Robert Stoltz, famed Vienesse composer-conductor, with a 100 piece symphonic orchestra this week began scoring the background music for Rene Clair's "It Happened Tomorrow," a United Artists release. Stoltz has just completed in four weeks, a musical composition which will run on the screen for approximately fifty minutes.

HOLLYWOOD STUDIO ROUND-UP

From Santa Fe to Washington, from outdoor action to musical gaiety and hilarious comedy, extend the themes in the five pictures getting under way this week:

REPUBLIC

OUTLAWS OF SANTA FE—Principals: Don "Red" Barry, Helen Talbot, Twinkle Watts. Director, Howard Bretherton.
COWBOY AND THE SENORITA—Principals: Roy Rogers, Mary Lee, Dale Evans. Director, Joseph Kane.

20th CENTURY-FOX

LADIES OF WASHINGTON—Principals: Trudy Marshall, Ronald Graham, Sheila Ryan, Anthony Quinn. Director, Louis King.

UNITED ARTISTS

SENSATIONS OF 1944—Principals: Eleanor Powell, Dennis O'Keefe, W. C. Fields, Sophie Tucker. Director, Andrew L. Stone.
HAIRY APE—Principals: William Bendix, Susan Hayward, Dorothy Comingore, John Loder. Director, Alfred Santell.

TITLE CHANGES

"Heroes of the Sagebrush" (Col.) now SAGEBRUSH HEROES.
"America" (MGM) now AN AMERICAN STORY.
"Johnny Doesn't Live Here Any More" (Mono.) now JOHNNY DOESN'T LIVE HERE.
"Murder in Bermuda" (Fox) now BERMUDA MYSTERY.

Jon Hall Again Set as the Invisible Man in New Film

Once again Jon Hall will play the "Invisible Man" in Universal's continuation of the popular characterization, "The Invisible Man's Revenge," which is scheduled to start production on January 10th.

Claude Rains originated the character. He was followed by Vincent Price, then there was the "Invisible Woman" played by Virginia Bruce. Hall was the fourth person to enact the person of dim visibility. He will also be the fifth.

Supporting Hall will be a cast which includes Alan Curtis and Evelyn Ankers in the domantic leads. Gale Sondergaard and Edgar Barrier are set for more sinister roles.

Zanuck to Produce 'Victory'

Darryl F. Zanuck will personally produce the filming of "Winged Victory," the AAF hit show by Moss Hart now currently running on Broadway, when it is filmed by 20th Century-Fox on or about June 1, 1944. It was also announced that author Moss Hart will prepare the screenplay.

Woolley to Portray Bandmaster

Monty Woolley will portray John Phillip Sousa in "Stars and Stripes Forever," a biography of the late band master, to be produced by William Bacher for 20th Century-Fox.

Smith's 52nd Year

C. Aubrey Smith will celebrate his 52nd year in show business today when he takes his place before the cameras in Andrew Stone's United Artists release "Sensations of 1944."

Cummings to Direct Dunne

Irving Cummings will direct the Irene Dunne picture, "Road to Yesterday," for Columbia.

Proof That Directors Relax

When a director relaxes during production, it's news. But that's precisely what Fritz Lang is doing here. And what a lovely subject he is talking to: Marjorie Reynolds on the set of "Ministry of Information" at Paramount. Ray Milland plays the masculine starring role in film.

Mrs. Showman Goes Studio Strolling

Dear Mr. Exhibitor's Wife:

Today we're invited over to MGM to see them do the Dream Sequence for the picture, "Two Sisters and a Sailor," with June Allyson, Van Johnson, Jimmy Durante and Harry James and Xavier Cugat and their bands.

The place we enter is called "Dreamland" and it is certainly the personification of what Dreamland might be like. It's a huge all-white set; even the ground and trees are white. Background curtains are clouds and over to one side is a white bandstand with two huge Nubian slaves flanking it.

Facing us is the doorway through which the lovers must go. It's a large white heart, edged with lace like an enlarged valentine. In the centre hangs a white birdcage, and the sign inside the gate reads "Reserved for Patsy and John."

Behind us is a tiny brook under a tiny foot bridge, with a gas-filling tank to one side, and perched up high, on an angle, is a house that looks like it came out of "Mother Goose."

By listening to the dialogue we learn that Durante is a cop and is trying to give the two lovers, June Allyson and Van Johnson, a ticket. He wears a regular uniform, but he carries a pencil about six feet long and the book in which he writes, is so large that a youngster must hold it up for him.

Director Richard Thorpe has just ordered "quiet," for they are ready to shoot the scene. Durante starts talking, with Johnson off to one side out of range of the camera answering him; but his way of expressing himself is so fast that he fluffs over and over again.

We stand quietly by until Director Thorpe okays the "take" and then are taken over to meet everyone. On closer inspection we find that the dress June Allyson is wearing is a very wispy pale blue chiffon, with full skirt and long sleeves tied at the wrist. In discussing Johnson's regal getup, she tells us that it's supposed to be her idea of what an Admiral's uniform should be like: all white with lots of gold braid and medals and fancy epaulets on the shoulders.

Over to one side we see Harry James very busily engaged in conversation. Without disturbing him, we walk all around, before we bid adieu to those we've met. As we walk out we feel as though we were really just coming down to earth . . . the illusion was so perfect.

We pass Johnson's dressing room and note that his Admiral's hat is lying on his dressing table . . . it's a big black satin Napoleon-shaped one with lots of gold braid and a huge white plume.

Back on earth again, we find it's lunchtime, so off to the commissary we go.

Until next week. Ann Lewis

'Prison Babies' for Monogram

"Prison Babies," an original story by John Faxon, has been purchased by King Bros. as their next production for Monogram.

WANDERING AROUND HOLLYWOOD

with Ed Raiden

Gremlins have been blamed for a lot of things, but the newest and the most reaching-for-an-excuse one is Monogram's story that the Gremlins which play some of the speaking roles of "Johnny Doesn't Live Here" are responsible for the attacks of flu which have hit Simone Simon, James Ellison and William Terry successively. Maybe the doctors told them that flu germs under the microscope look like the fanciful cartoons of Gremlins. Or maybe they just spell them Germlins?

Reindeers have been so uniformly connected with thoughts of Christmas and Santa Claus that when the Canadian Government scouts for some of them to help Paramount out, you can almost guess without being told that they're wanted for "The Road to Utopia." Who will be Santa Claus—Bing Crosby or Bob Hope? Or will they decide that Dorothy Lamour could do it better?

This week was Angels Week at Warners. Jack Benny, who has been walking around the lot for a couple of weeks wearing wings for his part in "The Horn Blows at Midnight" which Mark Hellinger is producing, was joined by other "angels" named Alexis Smith and Dolores Moran, which makes "heaven" an attractive spot. The "Chief" angel is Guy Kibbee. Bet he needs heavier wings than Benny.

The housing shortage is affecting Andrew Stone's "Sensations of 1944." Actors and actresses, it seems, have become smarter than they were in the past when they built up a reputation for living in any old place and being evicted most of the time. Nowadays they want to know that they will have a roof over their heads when they come to work in pictures. So Stone has had to hire a red-headed apartment hunter, and whenever he wants to sign an act for his picture, he sends the red-head out a-hunting so he can offer the apartment as part of the compensation. Maybe he'll put up a tent city on the set to be sure the actors are on time.

When you catch pictures for review, you usually assume you've seen everything, but every now and then something else takes your time and there is a picture you didn't see. One such was "Pistol Packin' Mama," which Eddy White made for Republic from the song title. When I ran into an opportunity to see the picture I grabbed at it, curious as to what had been done with just a song title. I was pleasantly surprised, because White had taken the title and had a story written around it that seemed to carry punch and entertainment.

The lives of Madame Dubarry, Marie Antoinette and Catherine the Great have all been extremely popular with producers as sources of story material, but "Cagliostro," the Edward Small production, will be the first to present all three of these colorful ladies of history in one picture. Script calls for the trio of famous females as leading characters.

Zero Hour Is Here!
A Smashing Offensive!
Achieve Our Goal!
Galvanize Into Action!
We Dare Not Relax!
This Is The Time!
Action, Stamina, Showmanship!

THE forces of showmanship are poised—the zero hour is here! From every corner of the nation, once again our great industry—production, distribution and exhibition—is girded for a mighty effort, a smashing offensive towards the most important goal of our history: a bond for every seat in every theatre in America! Together with the other major bond selling agencies of the U. S. Treasury Department, our powerful forces will drive ahead for a national over-all objective of 14 billion dollars in bond sales. To successfully achieve our own industry goal—and to contribute even more than our share to the 14 billion dollar national objective, we must galvanize into action every single ounce of showmanship, salesmanship and merchandising ability we possess. And we must do it now . . . today. The motion picture industry has done a brilliant job of bond-selling in the past as evidenced by statements from Washington officials. We have set, through our many activities since Pearl Harbor, an exceedingly high standard and today, more than ever, the eyes of the nation are upon us. Every war effort we have undertaken thus far has been bigger and more successful than the one before it and now, on the eve of our participation in the Fourth War Loan Campaign, we dare not relax. We must not lose even one single step in our march forward. If we have ever dug into an assignment with a will to win against all obstacles, this is the time. A bond for every seat in every theatre in America means work, contact, action, stamina and showmanship.

16,000 Theatres Await Drive 'Go' Signal

Exhibitors in All Situations from City to Hamlet Complete Plans for Big Campaigns

The motion picture industry this week mobilized its forces and made ready for the opening gun of the 4th War Loan Drive next Tuesday. Every branch of the business, every key center, and every town, down to the smallest hamlet, was completing preparations for special campaigns.

Film and theatre men were working hand-in-hand in every part of the country to make this the biggest and best campaign of all. Plans were rounded out, committees were designated to special jobs, and personnel were familiarized with their roles in the drive. While the general plan of backing the attack was the same throughout the nation, local drives took on local characteristics. Sixteen thousand motion picture theatres are ready.

Washington Theatres 100%

The War Activities Committee's plans for the Fourth War Loan which were formulated at four special meetings in the Washington, D. C., area, are so complete and enthusiastic that a full quota of "A Bond for Every Seat" is assured. For the first time in any War Loan Drive, every theatre in Washington, D. C., is cooperating. This means that instead of the 36 theatres which took part in the last drive there will now be 62 theatres which will sell bonds.

In order to spur activity in each district, the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of D. C. have appropriated $500 in war bonds as prizes.

Instead of one Bond Premiere as used during the last Three War Loan Drives, Washington will have three mammoth premieres during the Fourth War Loan Drive.

A distinct activity of the Washington campaign in the neighborhood theatres will be "Every Day Is Free Movie Day." All 53 neighborhood theatres have arranged that throughout the drive, from January 18 through February 15, a free pass to a subsequent show will be given any patron who purchases a bond at a given theatre.

In cooperation with the Variety Club of Washington, the Ice-Capades Revue management, and radio station WRC, one performance of the "Ice-Capades Revue" will be sold as a Bond Premiere.

Chicago Steamed Up

Chicago theatre owners, both circuit and independents, are going ahead with preparations for the Fourth War Loan with much energy. Balaban and Katz circuit managers and theatre personnel laid campaign plans at a luncheon meeting at the Drake Hotel, under the direction of John Balaban, on January 12. The Great States circuit is meeting at Springfield January 14 with Jules Rubens, John Balaban, Henry Stickelmier, M. M. Rubens and other Chicago executives on hand, including a short booster talk from Governor Dwight Green.

Jack Kirsch, Allied prexy heads the Chicago independent theatre owners' campaign and all have set a quota above that of previous drives.

Tom Gillian heads the exchange managers' committee, and salesmen are contacting the theatre owners who have not yet ordered their War Loan supplies.

John Dromey, Great States chief booker and Mayor of North Chicago, heads the drive in that district and James Stiles is in charge in Lake county with headquarters at Waukegan, Ill. Emil Stern and Eddie Silverman head the Essaness circuit drive, while Henry Schoenstadt heads that circuit's war loan crew. S. J. and James Gregory, with Pete Panagos and John Doerr are fronting the Alliance Theatre Circuit organization.

Detroit Beats the Gun

With all Detroit motion picture houses pitching into the Fourth War Loan Drive, which started in Detroit Jan. 11—one week ahead of the official opening of the national drive—three downtown theatres helped local merchants stage big bond rallies for their employes Monday. Twenty thousand downtown store workers attended the mass meetings at the Fox, Michigan and Broadway-Capitol theatres.

Also cooperating with the city's retail merchants in their drive were the neighborhood theatres. Employes in outlying sections gathered at near-by theatres to view special films and hear the addresses carried from the downtown shows by direct wire.

Michigan's goal in the drive has been set at $440,000,000.

Big Rally in St. Louis

Walter W. Head, general chairman for Missouri in the Fourth War Loan Drive, and Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel were the principal speakers at a War Bond rally for the motion picture industry held at the Coronado Hotel last week. Harry C. Arthur, Jr., head of the Fanchon & Marco-St. Louis Amusement Company circuit, presided as Missouri Chairman for the Motion Picture Industry. The gathering was attended by 150 theatre owners, managers and exchange personnel.

St. Louis territory theatre folks under the leadership of Mr. Arthur are girding for their most ambitious undertaking in the new campaign. It is planned to hold a Bond Premiere in each theatre that has the facilities to handle such an arrangement, while in the other theatres there is to be at least one "Free Movie Night."

Each of the salesmen traveling out of St. Louis will be supplied with special exhibitor kits containing plans for advertising, lobby displays, etc., which will be made available to exhibitors.

Three War Bond trailers are being made available through National Screen. One features Ginger Rogers, the second Ann Sothern and the third Bob Hope. In addition a film bulletin will be attached to all newsreels every other week.

The exhibitors' committee for Eastern Missouri follows: Mr. Arthur is the chairman. Vice-chairmen are Louis K. Ansell and Fred Wehrenberg; Secretary, David E. Arthur; Treasurer, Joseph C. Ansell; Public Relations Directors, Les Kaufman and Rex Williams.

Military Show for Colorado

Campaign plans for the 4th War Loan Drive, submitted by the Colorado War Finance Office, calls for a drive that misses no bets. A quota has been set for every firm based upon the amount they are already investing via the payroll plan plus the purchase of a $100 bond for each employe.

The schools will set up a treasure hunt which is designed to turn into bonds over 1,000,000 unfilled stamp books.

A statewide retail program is set up on the basis of each employe selling $200 in bonds and stamps. Women have been enlisted for a house-to-house canvass.

But the topper is to be an All-Military Show in as many situations as transportation facilities will allow.

N.E. Expects to Break Records

In New England the drive for the Fourth War Loan will be extended to a point where the motion picture industry confidently expects to break all records.

It has been announced there will be individual stars instead of the former Hollywood Cavalcades, and these groups will be making their first appearance in New England at Fall River and New Bedford on January 21 and will then proceed to other towns in this territory. War heroes, actual heroes from the battlefronts of the world, will be here to participate and they will cooperate with the stars in personal appearances.

Booths will be maintained in every theatre and every house also will hold a Bond Premiere.

Governor Leverett Saltonstall, himself a possible Presidential candidate, will aid in launching the drive, as will Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston.

Carolinas Ready to Go

Theatre owners, film salesmen and branch managers of the Carolinas completed their organization for the Fourth War Loan Drive here Monday. Emphasis is being placed on Bond Premieres and Free Movie days, with a goal of at least one for every theatre. More than 125 theatres already have pledged support, with additional houses reporting daily. In addition industry committees in Greensboro, Durham, Fayetteville, Columbia, Wilmington and Spartanburg are working up "G.I." performances

Exhibs Warned About Selling Only $25 Bonds

Faced with the possibility that overzealous exhibitors in their efforts to make the "Honored Hundred" might have a tendency to sell as many lowest-priced bonds as they can regardless of the purchasers' wishes, Charles P. Skouras, National Chairman, this week explained the stand of the Treasury Department in this respect.

"We were specifically asked to concentrate on the sale of 'E' bonds," said Mr. Skouras. "But this does not mean that 'F' and 'G' bond sales should not be solicited, nor turned down. The Treasury still is interested in the dollar value of ALL BONDS. No publicity, however, should be given to 'fabulous' figures of bond sales.

"In setting up our campaign we anticipated that some overzealous exhibitors, in isolated instances, would sell four $25 bonds when the purchaser prefers a $100 bond. But we relied upon every exhibitor to sell a bond for every seat in the denomination requested by the purchaser. Any exhibitor doing otherwise is certainly out of step with the home front campaign for victory. If an exhibitor sells a patron four $25 bonds when he might have sold him one $100 bond the fact will be evident immediately in the Treasury record. Naturally it will be taken into account in awarding the citations for the 'Honored Hundred'."

Manager Gets Credit

At a recent meeting of the Theatre Owners of the District of Columbia the question arose whether bonds sold by a theatre manager for a bond premiere or on Free Movie Day would be credited to the manager in the "Honored Hundred" national contest and also in the local theatres. Carter T. Barron checked with Charles Skouras, National Chairman, and was advised that all bonds, whether sold in Bond Premieres, Movie Day or in the regular bond sale, would be credited to the theatre manager.

Reissue Has Same Status as New Film in Bond Premiere

"A reissue will be considered the same as a new picture in respect to a bond premiere," Ned E. Depinet, National Chairman of the Distributors' Committee, stated this week. The exhibitor must have the picture under contract, and cannot play it more than thirty days in advance of its availability for booking at his theatre.

Also any exchange furnishing a feature to a theatre gratis for a war bond premiere or at rental for a Free Movie Day must obtain a prompt report from that theatre as to the number of bonds sold and the total dollar amount, and must then immediately transmit that information to the Local Chairman.

with military talent for nearby towns. A big "kick-off rally" will be held by exhibitors of the Carolinas in Charlotte on January 17.

Soldier Show in Ohio

According to an announcement by Arthur Frudenfeld, Chairman of the 4th War Loan Drive, six cities in Southern Ohio will kick off the Drive with an all-soldier show at Bond performances. A cast of 70 service men, all of whom have had theatrical experience, will tread the boards on behalf of "E" bonds, with the presentation being under the aegis of the Air Service Command, Patterson Field, Dayton.

In all cities the Air Service Command show will be presented in conjunction with a new feature picture. Capt. Goet, Capt. Rambeau and Capt. Rich of the ASC have been assigned to produce and direct.

Buffalo to Use Seating Chart

From J. Myer Schine, up-State New York Chairman of the 4th War Loan Drive, comes word that last Friday's meeting in Buffalo climaxed a series of state-wide conclaves which for attendance, enthusiasm and interests tops any industry project in the past.

Shown at the meeting was the new seating chart accessory that the WAC is sending out. Every theatre will use either one of these or a standee. County officials are holding their own meetings this week to lay out elaborate plans to dove-tail with the Buffalo agenda. A large number of Bond Premieres and Free-Movie-Days are scheduled, based on exhibitor reaction.

Iowa Plans Contest

A virtual block-by-block organization by film salesmen and managers for the Fourth War Loan Drive in Iowa and Nebraska has assured leaders the campaign will be a success, according to A. H. Blank, WAC chairman for Iowa and Nebraska.

Every town of any size in the two states will hold at least two premieres. A total of 479 theatres are expected to hold premieres during the drive. Special events will also be staged during the campaign, with Iowa to hold a Liberty Belles contest through an arrangement with local retail merchants.

450 Meet in Philadelphia

William F. Rodgers and Tom Connors, vice-presidents of MGM and Twentieth Century-Fox, were the principal speakers at the huge meeting held for the inauguration of the 4th War Loan Drive at the Broadwood Hotel in Philadelphia on Monday. With more than 450 exhibitors, circuit representatives, distributors and Treasury Department men in attendance, it was the largest exhibitor meeting ever held in the State of Pennsylvania for the purpose of discussing ways and means of helping a Government effort.

Iz Epstein, general manager of Atlantic Theatres, and Commander of Variety Post of the American Legion, presented a plan whereby the aid of young boys and girls would be enlisted to aid theatre managers to help in the sale of bonds. The plan has been accepted by the state and county organizations of American Legion, with full cooperation promised.

Seating Chart for N. Y.

A gigantic seating chart which will be from three to five stories high is being planned by Broadway theatre managers for erection in Times Square to record the Fourth War Loan bonds sold in Broadway theatres. This seating chart will contain approximately 100,000 squares, each of which will denote a theatre seat. The blocks will be printed on both sides of the sign.

Century Projector Corp. Moves

The Century Projector Corporation is moving its factory from One Junius Street, Brooklyn to larger and better equipped quarters at 32-02 Queens Boulevard, Long Island City, it was announced this week.

Dimes Squadron Sets Stage for 1944 Drive

The March of Dimes national executive committee's "flying squadron" wound up a tour of key city meetings on Monday in Dallas. With all of the big circuits and independents pledged to take up auditorium collections, Oscar A. Doob, campaign director, predicts $250,000 additional collections in the theaters of the southern states in the 1944 drive.

This prediction followed a meeting in New Orleans Saturday in the office of E. V. Richards, when it was decided by Louisiana exhibitors to make audience collections at all shows during the drive, January 24-30. At the New Orleans meeting were exhibitors representing some 300 theaters, including Mr. Richards, Maurice F. Barr, Norman Carter and Gaston Dureau of the Paramount-Richards and Saenger interests; Manny Jacobs of United Theatres; Rene J. Brunet, chairman Independent Exhibitors; Rodney Toups, Loew's State, March of Dimes State Chairman, and C. J. Briant of MGM, co-chairman.

At Monday's meeting, held in the Hotel Adolphus, Dallas, state chairman Bob O'Donnell, 300 circuit and independent exhibitors, representing 1,200 theaters in Texas, pledged their full support to the campaign. O'Donnell promised that Texas theaters would top all previous drives and that over $100,000 will be reported by the Lone Star State.

Attending the Dallas meeting were: Harry Brandt, E. L. Alperson, Oscar A. Doob, of the theaters' committee. Dr. John L. Lavan, Research Director of the National Foundation, spoke and directed a demonstration of the Sister Kenny method of treating polio cases. Also present were "Dimes" State Chairmen L. C. Griffith, Oklahoma; Julius Gordon, Texas; Milas L. Hurley, New Mexico; M. A. Lightman, Arkansas. Among the National Foundation representatives were: William L. Clayton, Texas; Hon. Clyde Tingley, Mayor, Albuquerque, N. M.; and Allen Street of Oklahoma City.

Theatre Artists to Help Small Exhibitors With Exploitation

For the first time theatre artists throughout the industry are being marshalled to aid the Fourth War Loan Drive with ideas and suggestions to assist in exploitation. An appeal has been made by the National Committee to all theatre artists to come to the aid of the campaign so that the entire industry, and particularly the small exhibitor, may have the benefit of their professional advice.

The committee is now preparing a bulletin which will contain plans and designs as suggested by the various artists and which will be mailed to all showmen.

First to Enter '100' Contest

To William K. Saxton of Loew's Century Theatre, Baltimore, goes the honor of being the first manager to send his entry blank into the Fourth War Loan Campaign headquarters of the motion picture industry in New York, it was announced this week by National Chairman Charles P. Skouras.

WAC Announces 2 Films

The War Activities Committee announced Tuesday the release dates of a new film bulletin and a War Information Film. The Bulletin, entitled "Help Save Fighting Fuel" was made by Pathe and will be attached to all newsreels issued on January 20.

Condon Joins WAC

Robert Condon has joined the War Activities Committee staff on a permanent basis, as assistant to Francis S. Harmon, executive vice-chairman, it was announced Tuesday.

Disney Net $431,536; 94 p. c. War Output

Although only 6 per cent of the year's total footage output was devoted to entertainment, Walt Disney Productions turned in a net income for the year ended October 2, 1943 of $431,536 as compared with a loss of in the preceding fiscal year of $191,069. Before provision of $250,000 for possible inventory losses, the total net income was $681,536, as compared with $308,930 for the preceding year. Current and working assets at the close of the vear amounted to $4,916,635, while current liabilities amounted to $2,428,454, leaving an excess of current and working assets over current liabilities of $2,-488,181 as compared with $1,875,907 for the preceding year.

The fact that 94 per cent of the Disney production was non-commercial reflects the part the organization has been playing in the war effort. This footage was made for the Army and Navy and other Governmental agencies on a non-profit basis, with the result that entertainment shorts had to be sacrificed. Only 9 single-reelers were completed against the customary 18 to 20. Only one feature, "Victory Through Air Power," a documentary, was released. The war output was attained despite a 27 per cent loss in personnel to the armed forces.

Clifford Work and W. J. German Elected to Universal Board

Universal Pictures, through J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the Board of Directors, this week announced the election of Clifford P. Work and William J. German to its Board of Directors.

Mr. Work has been vice-president and general manager of Universal's coast studios since May 1938. He came to Universal from the division directorship of RKO Theatres' western theatre group, a post he had occupied with success for many years. German is vice-president of Jules Brulatour, Inc., distributors of Eastman Kodak motion picture film.

Dominion Picks Paramount News

Paramount Canadian News will be shown in every armed service camp in the Dominion of Canada as the result of a recent survey of all newsreels made by members of the War Services Committee in Canada, it was announced by Oscar Morgan. The choice of the committee is a tribute to the initiative of Paramount News in creating a newsreel edited especially for Canadian audiences.

Silverstone Off to London

Arthur Silverstone left Monday night for London on a special mission for 20th Century-Fox. He is taking with him a print of "The Song of Bernadette." Prior to his departure, Silverstone was tendered a luncheon at the Hotel St. Moritz, New York. Among those present were executives and departmental heads of the 20th Century-Fox International Department.

WB Man Missing in Action

Lieut. Sidney Edelstein, who was a member of the publicity department at Warners before going into the Army more than two years ago, has been reported missing in action in the European Area.

'Our Time' Tradeshown Jan. 31

Warner Bros. will hold national tradeshowing of "In Our Time" on Monday, January 31.

Dubbing Out in S. A.

American pictures with dubbed-in dialogue for Latin American countries are out for good, according to Alfred E. Daff, Universal foreign sales supervisor, who has just returned from a three-month tour of Central and South America. The South Americans prefer them as they are made, with superimposed titles. The reason for this seemingly contrary state of affairs is that the Latin American patrons want to hear the actual voices of their stars, regardless of the use of the English tongue, says Mr. Daff. Also, they are so accustomed to the superimposed titles that they follow the dialogue as well as they do Spanish and Portuguese-speaking films.

Wilson Takes Over at Republic Studio as Siegel Goes to MGM

Allen Wilson, formerly general manager of Republic Studios, has been appointed vice-president in charge of studio operations, it was announced Tuesday by Herbert J. Yates, Sr. Wilson will have four key men supervising the various departments, Howard J. Sheehan, Charles Lootens, Armand Schaefer, and William J. O'Sullivan.

Wilson takes the place of Moe J. Siegel, president of Republic Productions in charge of all production, whose resignation Republic accepted with regret, as announced by Herbert J. Yates, Sr. Mr. Siegel will report to MGM about February 15 in a high executive capacity. Mr Siegel has been associated with H. J. Yates enterprises for the past nineteen years.

Devaney Heads Canadian MPDA

Leo M. Devaney, Canadian division sales manager for RKO Radio, has been elected president of the Canadian Motion Picture Distributors Association for the ensuing year. Devaney succeeds the late James P O'Loghlin. At the same time, Col. John A. Cooper was re-elected chairman of the board of directors.

Sinatra Dimes Campaign Official

Frank Sinatra, now preparing for his second RKO Radio film, has been appointed chairman of the youth division of the 1944 campaign of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis.

PCA Promotes J. H. Steele

A new contract and appointment as executive assistant to the president were given Joseph H. Steele Monday, it was announced by Ben A. Englander, vice-president of Producers Corporation of America. Steele has been functioning as publicity director for "Knickerbocker Holiday," a United Artists release

'Lady in Dark' Tradeshow

"Lady in the Dark" will be trade shown at Paramount exchanges throughout the country on Feb. 3, Neil Agnew announced this week.

Republic Sales Heads Meet in Mid-West

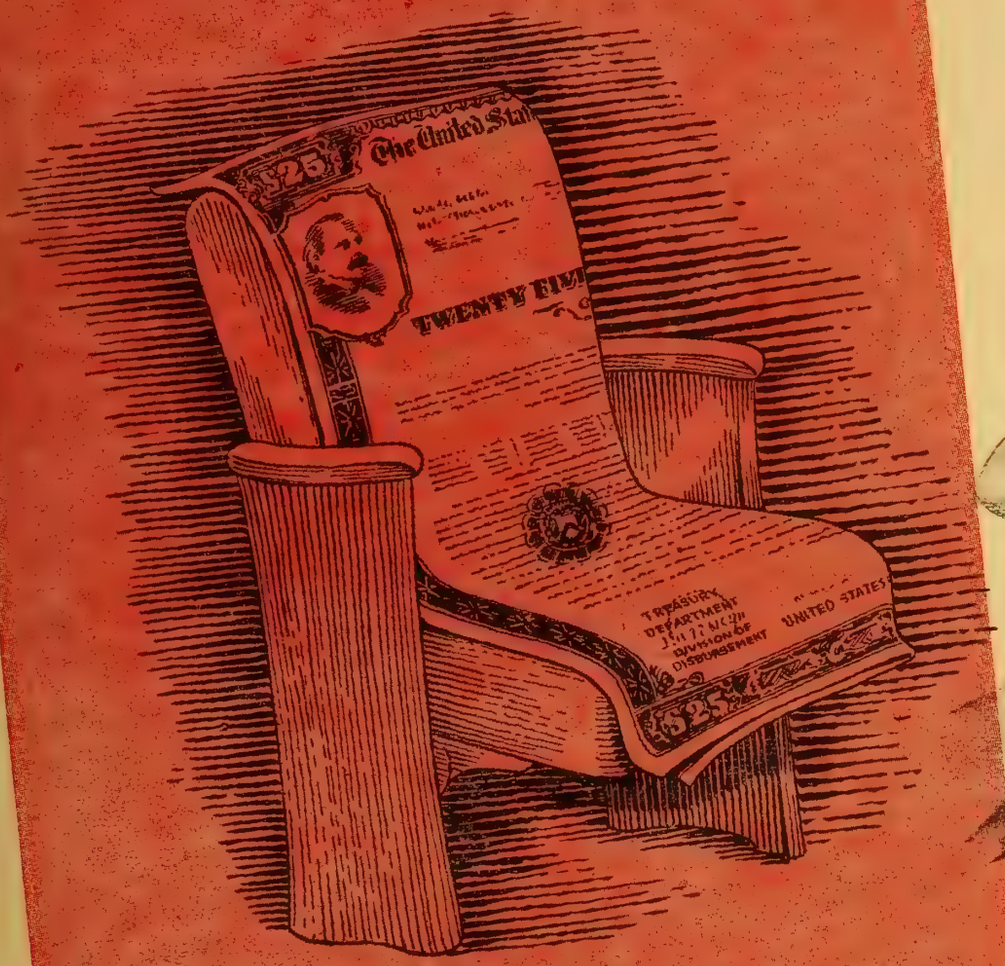
James R. Grainger, president of Republic Pictures Corporation, presided at the second of Republic's series of sales conferences, held last Friday and Saturday at the Drake Hotel in Chicago. Midwestern district sales manager Edward Walton and Southern district sales manager Merritt Davis headed a contingent of men. Francis Bateman, Western district sales manager, was also present.

It was announced that, through the cooperation of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, U. S. N., simultaneous receptions and previews will be held in New York City and Hollywood on Monday, January 17, to launch "The Fighting SeaBees." Members of the United States Naval Construction Battalions, popularly known as SeaBees, will be guests at the receptions. In New York, twenty-six SeaBees will be present at an afternoon reception in the North Ballroom of the Hotel Astor. In Los Angeles, six SeaBees from the Pacific Coast will be honored at a reception at the Ambassador Hotel.

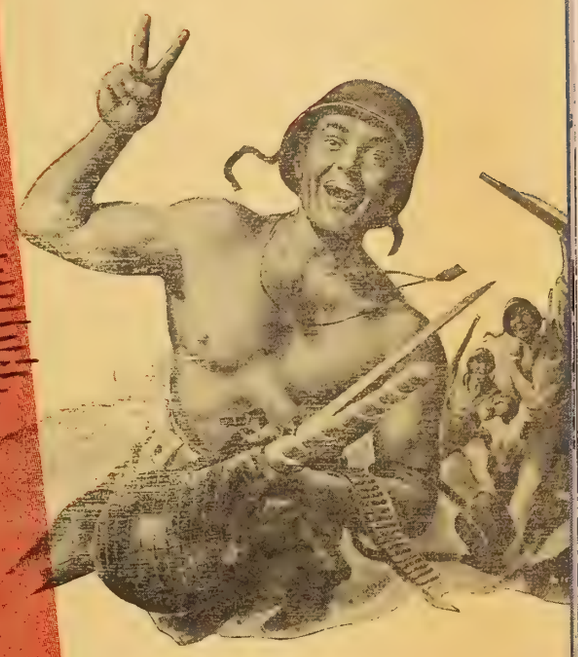
The midwestern district was represented by branch managers Will Baker, Chicago; William Feld, Des Moines; J. G. Frackman, Milwaukee; W. M. Grant, Minneapolis; Harry Lefholtz, Omaha; Nat Steinberg, St. Louis; and Franchise Holder Robert F. Withers, Kansas City. The southern district group included branch managers Winfield Snelson, Atlanta; Harold Laird, Tampa; J. H. Dillon, Charlotte; L. V. Seicshnaydre, New Orleans; N J. Colquhoun, Memphis; Lloyd Rust, Dallas; and Glen Alt, Oklahoma City. The home office was represented by William Saal and Walter L. Titus, Jr.

'Song of Bernadette' to Have Eastern Premiere on Jan. 25

"The Song of Bernadette," 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation's picturization of the Franz Werfel novel, will have its eastern premiere at the Rivoli Theatre, New York, on Tuesday evening, January 25. Beginning Wednesday a continuous performance policy will go into effect



Tom Connors, vice-president in charge of world-wide distribution of the company, in setting the date announced that one of the most comprehensive advertising, publicity and exploitation campaigns in the company's history is now being conducted under the personal direction of Hal Horne. The campaign will make use of every known avenue of publicity, especially the press and radio, and for the first time upright 24-sheets are being posted in over 200 vantage points throughout New York and New Jersey.



Odeon Acquires 7 Theatres

Paul L. Nathanson, president of Odeon Theatres of Canada Limited and vice-president of Manitoba Theatres Limited, has announced the acquisition of an equal interest for his company in the Rothstein Theatre circuit, consisting of seven theatres in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

Choke on Revivals

The first adverse audience reaction to the flood of reissues and revivals was reported this week from Vancouver, B. C. Both exhibitors and distributors say the public is beginning to stay away from the old pictures, especially when double bills list two oldies. The practice has been prevalent in the Vancouver district for some time. Last week ten theatres were offering pictures made from five to seven years ago.

Set one to open and close drive.	Your 13 Contact your newspaper's ad dept. for co-op Bond page or double truck or section to open drive. Break Monday.	Mark! 14 Organize staff as Bond Sales Crew. Have each employe form team of friends for away-from-theatre sales.	15 Set radio contest or tie-ups to start Monday. Buy spots or promote them. Offer guest tickets to encourage sponsors.

How To Organize a Successful Bond Drive

1. Let's start with the reminder. . . . We are not asked to spearhead the drive but to ACTIVELY PARTICIPATE! To PULL our oar! The first move in cooperation is to get together (a) with your War Finance Committee chairman, (b) with your WAC chairman, (c) with your fellow exhibitors, (d) with your local leaders, merchants, newspaper and radio representatives . . . and PLAN COLLECTIVELY and INDIVIDUALLY a day-by-day campaign that will knock the spots off anything you've ever attempted to date WITHOUT conflict with the other fellow's plans. This is the fundamental attitude of good-neighborly showmanship.

2. Check or set your bookings for the drive period, January 18 to Feb. 15, taking pains to plan appropriate features and short subjects to back up or complement the events you are planning for certain days.

---

3. Order accessories you think you can use; plan a real knockout lobby flash that will pack a punch from every approach; make or have an art shop prepare a giant layout of your theatre's floor plan as a lobby board, standee or set piece (there are no limits on the simplicity or elaborateness of this gag) as described elsewhere in the STR Bond Issue. Build or redecorate your bond booth and promote a wagon, bus or street car to be known as the Theatre's Bond Wagon, etc. Get enough accessories for window displays, lobby cut-outs, stage decorations, etc. Build a thermometer to record sales on front of theatre.

4. Set up Bond Premieres to open and close drive. Arrange military tie-ups for equipment, personnel for appearances, parades, window and lobby displays, etc.

5. Appoint livewire citizens to your 4th War Loan Campaign Committee. Choose the people with reputations for getting things done, men with parade experience, reporters to cover drive news, radio men to handle broadcasting, speakers procurement committee, members of your staff to head away-from-the-theatre sales committees of their friends.

6. Get your trailers on the drive lined up and start running them. Place ads prepared by WAC headquarters and use slugs in regular ads. Get local merchants to use them also.

---

7. Contact every previous bond purchaser whom you have sold at your theatre in the past for a repeat sale. This is your best prospect list for the drive.

---

8. Get youth organizations back of your sales effort. Tie up schools, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Newsboys, etc. with competitive offers.

---

9. Plan your "Honor Our Heroes," "Honor Service Parents" nights. Keep your eye on that seating chart in the lobby. It will tell you how you stand.

---

10. Have the Mayor change the name of the main "drag" to Bond Street or Bond Drive and you're off to a successful campaign, and for those who produce the top results . . . Salute THE HONORED HUNDRED!

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SATURDAY
Get 16 Pull together the loose ends. Have you prepared giant seating diagram for lobby? Talk to your team. Check lobby display. Ad slugs to theatre and merchant ads starting Tuesday	Set!!! 17 Tomorrow's the big day. Start plans for "Honor Our Heroes" celebration next week. Get military co-operation through WAC chairman. Line up prominent speakers. Book appropriate shorts.	18 ★ GO It's here! 4th War Loan Drive starts today. Check P A system before house opens. See that lobby looks a wallop. Check supply of bonds or have Postmaster on hand to assist.	19 Plan a Ladies' Night, free movies for ladies who buy bonds. Set for Feb. 1, and remind 'em it's Leap Year. This should be good for plenty of press stories and co-op ads from ladies' shops	20 Run those bond trailers at every performance. Sell them a bond as they leave the theatre, at your box-office or bond booth. Put a bond wagon in front of theatre to sell pedestrians	21 Tie up the school teachers and students to sell stamps and bonds for theatre. Make it a contest with tickets as prizes and set a special bond jamboree for your kiddie matinee	22 See WAC chairman to arrange stage presentation of honor scroll for theatre's part in 3rd War Loan if you made your quota. Line up speaker to accept for theatre and sell bonds from stage
23 Phone, write, or call upon every purchaser of bonds from theatre during past drives for repeat sales. Here is your best source of sure-fire customers. Keep the thermometer going up. Check staff sales.	24 ★ Remember! THE MARCH OF DIMES [illegible] Start planning a big parade to wind up drive. Look ahead so it takes time to organize a good one. Keep the bond wagon circulating around business section. If you don't have one promote bus or street car	25 Set a day with special award for exchange-ing full stamp books for bonds through theatre. Encourage sale of stamps to fill books at your bond booth. Give each purchaser a shield sticker with each bond.	26 Place a good, live newspaper contest tied up to your attraction using bond-selling theme. Keep your ads selling bonds with slugs and slogans. Line up newsboy stamp-bond sales contest through theatre	27 Get a good street ballyhoo in action plugging 4th War Loan and your attraction. Promote War Bond Auction with merchant prizes auctioned to largest bond purchasers. Get prominent auctioneer	28 Plant a 4th War Loan poster contest with art dept. at local high schools. Newspapers will reproduce winners. Good for lobby display. Cartoon contest on Hitler-Hirohito tape handled same way	29 Get a good radio contest built around your screen show to promote theatre bond sales. Line up one-minute interviews over air with mothers of service men to plug bond sales on contest program. Get sponsor.
30 How are you and your staff backing the drive? Can you shout that your theatre is 100 per cent sold (every employee and executive has bought at least one bond, as an example)? Make sure you hit this mark.	31 ★ MARCH OF DIMES [illegible] Report Promptly Plan a Bond Luncheon for the final day of the drive. Get a personality (military, screen or stage) to be guest speaker at luncheon and at theatre bond rally. Add cost of luncheon to bond price.	FEBRUARY 1 Have the mayor change the name of the main stem by official proclamation to 'Bond Street' or 'Bond Drive' for the final week of the campaign. Keep stories on your activities breaking in press.	2 Are you changing trailers every nine or ten days? National Screen Service has the prints. Keep your screen message fresh. Get mats of bond trailer stars from NSS free and plant with story in newspapers.	3 Do you need more 4th War Loan shield stickers? Are the windows around town displaying them? Promote some snappy windows tieing the shield and WAC posters in with your attraction.	4 Freshen up your outdoor posting of 4th War Loan bills with fresh paper. Look around for extra locations for the final week. If it snows, scrape theatre bond message on snow banks in red and blue color	5 Plan a radio broadcast from your stage of one of the more outstanding local programs. Build a bond rally around it with the local cast making the appeal. Plant service men in the show.
6 How are those bond seats filling up on the 3 d sealing plan of your theatre in the lobby? You should be nearing a sell-out. If there are a flock of unsold spaces, get busy and fill 'em	7 You're in the stretch. Just a week to go. Recheck plans with your committees, employees teams. Plan to finish a bond fire of activity. Make Lincoln's Birthday a Freedom Day, St. Valentine's Day, Feb 14.	8 Still time to jam through a Service Mothers', Navy Mothers', Air Corps Mothers' or Army Mothers' Night to honor the parents of our fighting heroes. Use Vets organizations to add color to event.	9 Is your scrapbook up to date? Don't let clippings, photos, programs, etc., get lost in the bustle. Keep sending in the news of your activities to STR so that we can pass the ideas along.	10 How about a Free Movie Day to precede the finals of the drive? Arrange with film company for picture credit through WAC office. Give free admission to all purchasing Bonds at theatre	11 Watch your mail from national WAC headquarters for last-minute plans should they develop. Put finishing touches on arrangements for drive wind-up. Remember, you're playing for big stakes	LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY 12 Make a final appeal at your kiddies' matinee for filling up stamp albums for conversion for bonds at the theatre. Have children report the f sales and give them a b g hand for helping.
13 Make final round of phone calls to previous war loan bond buyers for resales. Start shouting about topping quota, local, county, your also high to win.	14 Tomorrow is the pay-off, it's the Honored Hundred or Bust. Make tomorrow's finale a grand slam. Is your parade set? Check speakers, military participation, theatre decorations, floats, music, radio, press, etc	DRIVE ENDS TODAY 15 This is IT! It won't be what you've failed to do but what you have done that will measure your degree of success. Let's hope that this will be a day that lives in history for you, your theatre, your industry.	16 PREPARE your REPORT	17 COMPLETE SCRAPBOOK	18 MAIL Report NOW!!!	19

THE BIGGEST CONTEST IN MOTION PICTURE HISTORY STARTS JANUARY 18

One hundred American showmen will be honored by the motion picture industry and our government as winners of the biggest talent search ever undertaken in show business. These Honored Hundred will be the top War Bond salesmen during the 4th War Loan Drive, chosen strictly on the basis of their achievements in cities and hamlets from coast to coast. Each winner will travel to the nation's capital, ALL EXPENSES PAID, to confer with Secretary Morgenthau on plans for the 5th War Loan. Other honors will undoubtedly be added as plans progress but the real stake we all have in this contest of contests remains the same . . . VICTORY. Give your best in this worthy test of showmanship. BE A WINNER!

★ ★ ★ ★ HERE ARE THE RULES ★ ★ ★ ★

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

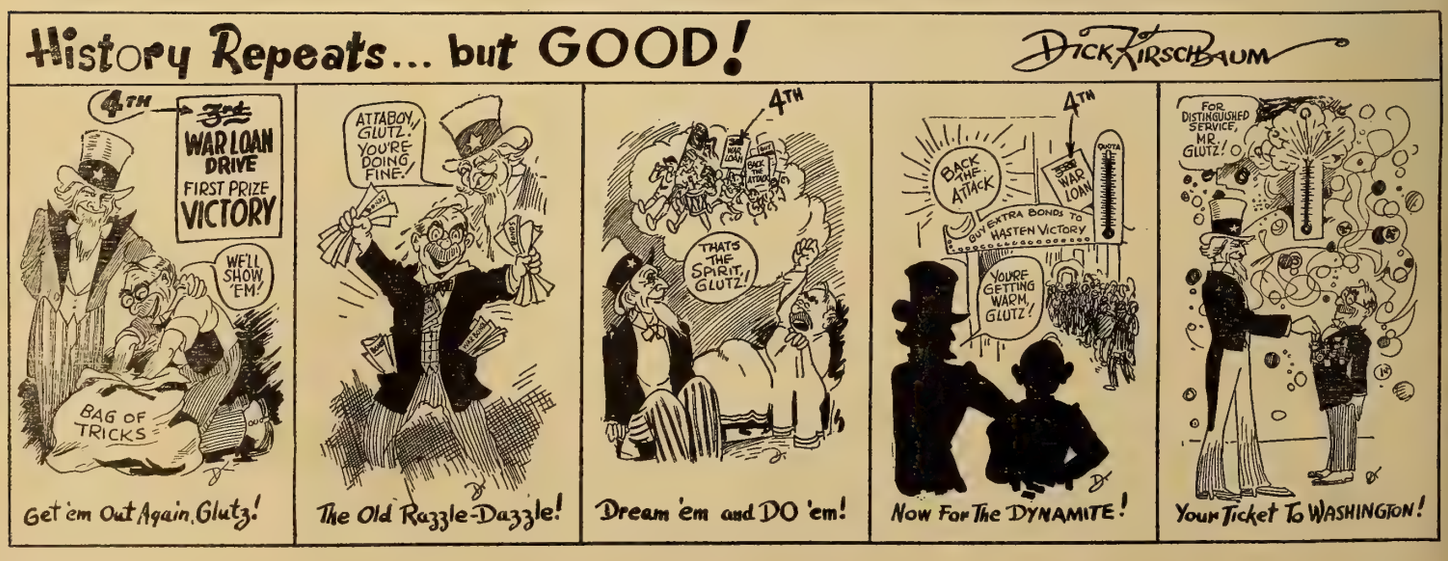
Every live wire theatre manager in the United States, Alaska and Hawaii who is willing to knuckle down to the job of selling "E" bonds to the rank and file of his or her community. You do not need be an official issuing agent to compete. Any manager can compete but the fellows who turn in the best results will be the ones who wind up in the Showmen's Hall of Fame.

HOW WILL HONORED 100 BE SELECTED?

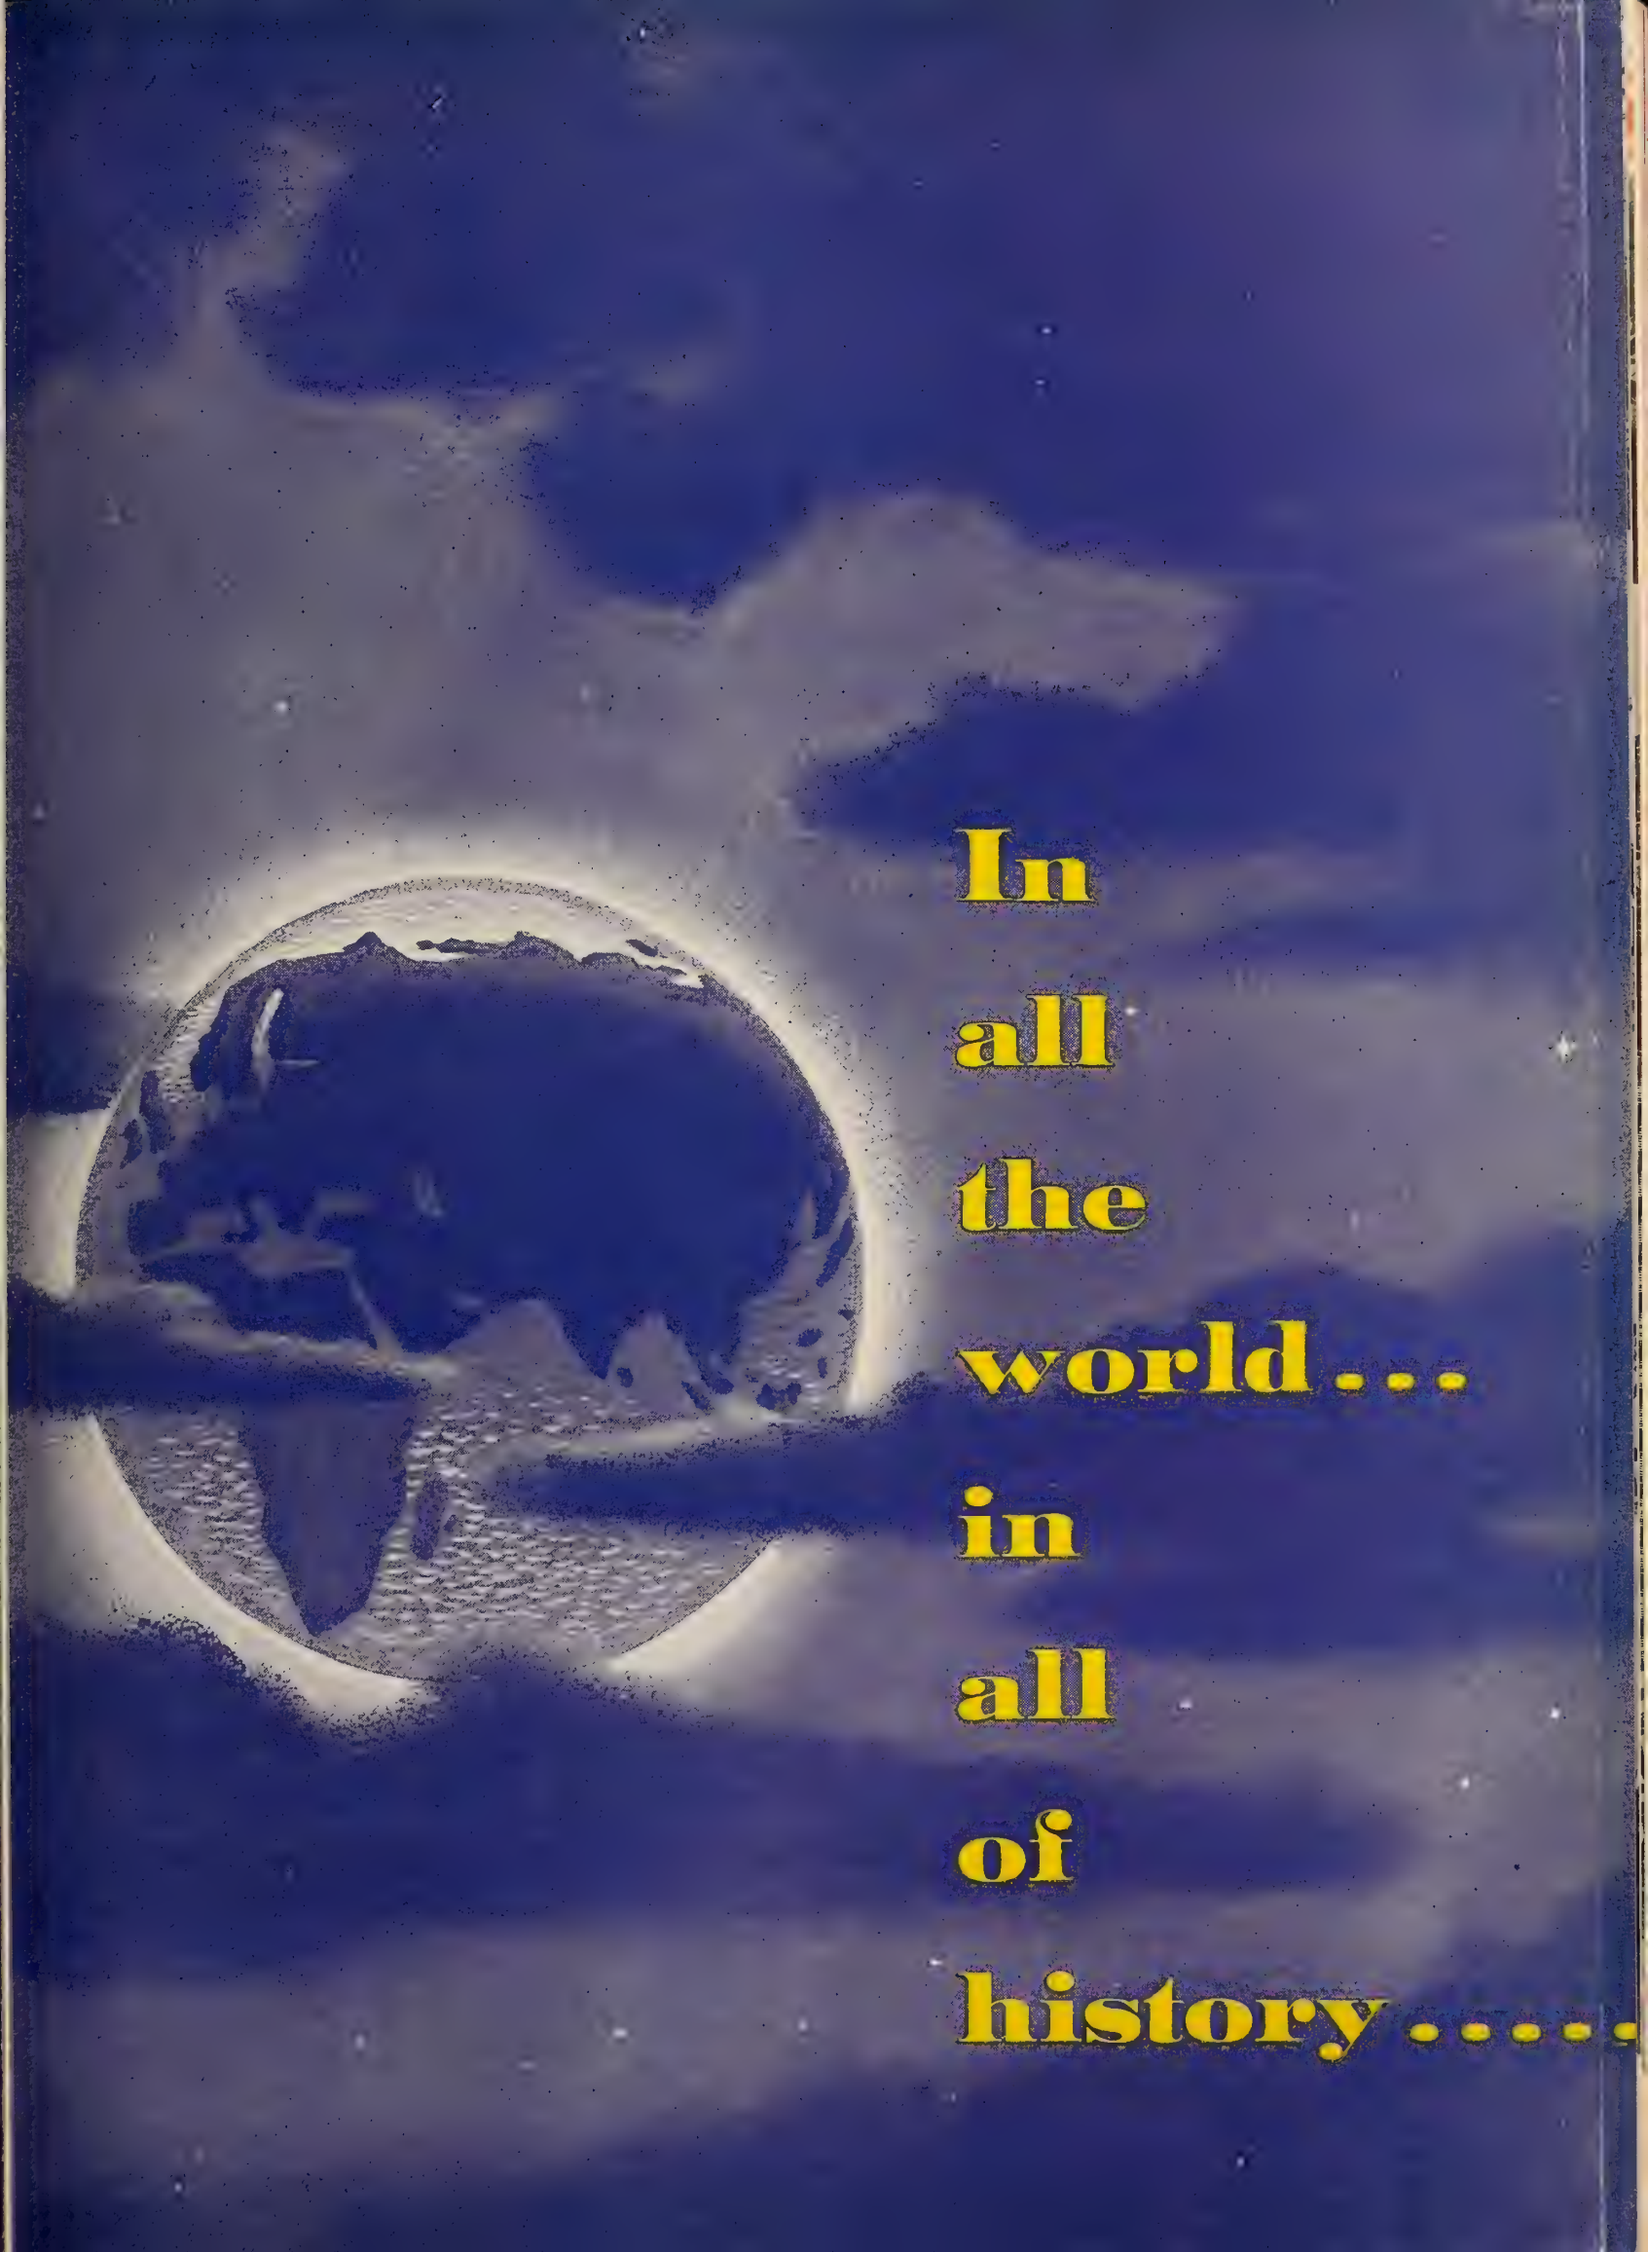
The winners will be the men who sell the most "E" bonds in ratio to the number of seats in their theatre. The size of the theatre or the number of seats will have no bearing on deciding the winners. No man can win two awards. Your WAC State Chairman and Treasury State Chairman will check all theatre reports for "E" bonds sold against the number of seats in each theatre. These chairmen will then nominate the candidates from their State for the Honored Hundred awards. The national WAC headquarters will pick the Honored Hundred and make arrangements for the awards.

WHO WILL THE WINNERS BE?

There will be one champion from each state, Alaska and Hawaii. These fifty will be chosen on the basis of the largest number of bonds sold in ratio to the number of seats in each competing theatre.



Ten champions will be selected on this same basis from cities under 5,000 population. Ten from cities between 10,000 and 5,000. Ten from cities between 25,000 and 10,000. Ten from cities between 100,000 and 25,000. Ten from cities of over 100,000 population.



WHAT THE WINNERS WILL RECEIVE

The Honored Hundred will travel to Washington, D. C. with all expenses paid as guests of the Motion Picture Industry where they will confer with Secretary Morgenthau and Treasury officials in formulating plans for the 5th War Loan. They will be feted in the Nation's Capital by industry and government leaders. Each winner will receive a personal letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, recognition in the industry trade press, a tribute scroll for framing on illuminated parchment, a special medallion with the winner's name engraved thereon, "E" buttons for each member of the winner's staff and the satisfaction of having contributed handsomely to a most worthy activity. Other awards are to be expected as plans progress and the final awards will be made a local event that will long be remembered.

WHAT ARE "E" BONDS?

The main effort of this 4th War Loan Drive will be directed toward selling "E" bonds which sell from $18.75 to $3,750.00 with maturity values ranging from $25.00 to $5,000.00. These are the bonds sold to individual investors, movie-goers in particular. These bonds are our best weapons against inflation and are gilt edge securities backed by the stability and resources of The United States of America. They are the best investment in the world today and for the world of tomorrow.

In

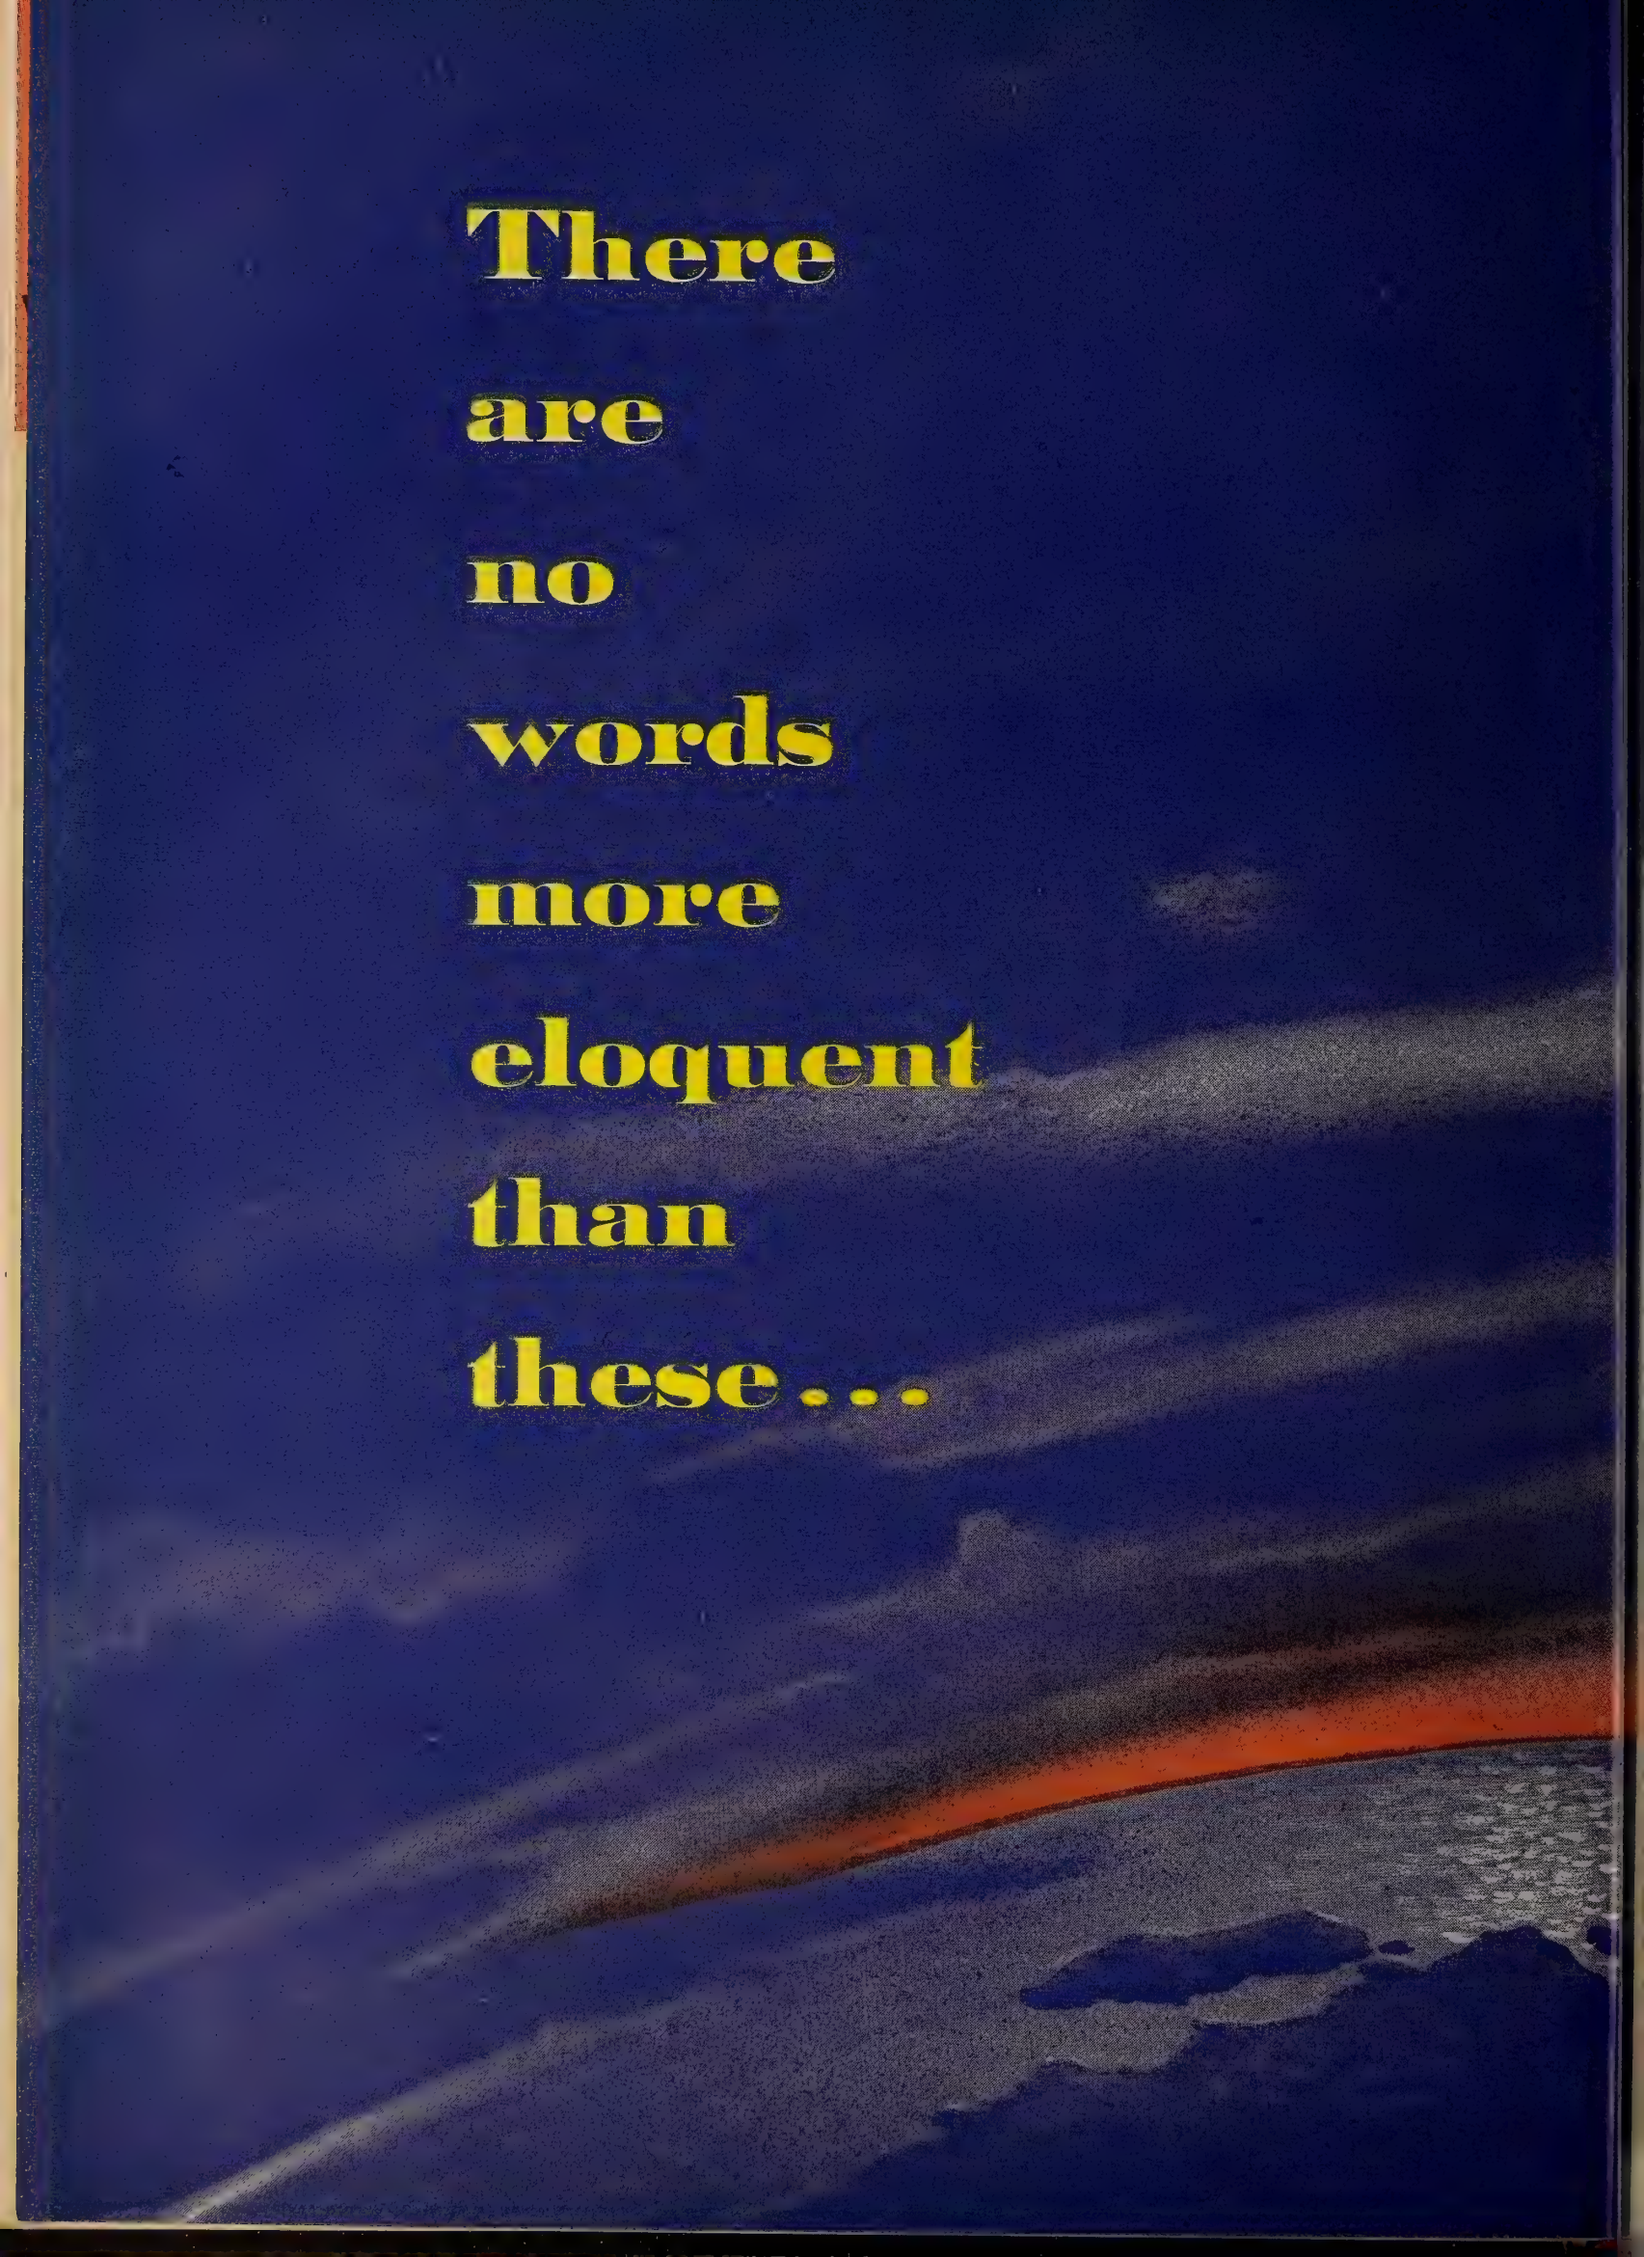
history.....

There are no words more eloquent than these . . .

...od intolerance. We will welcome them as they ...may choose to come into the world family of democratic nations.



No power on earth can prevent our destroying the German armies by land, their U-boats by sea, and their war plants from the air. Our attacks will be relentless and increasing.

Emerging from these friendly conferences we look with confidence to the day when all the peoples of the world may live free lives untouched by tyranny and according to their varying desires and their own consciences.

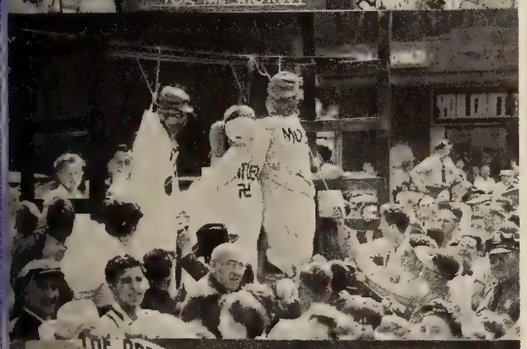
4th WAR LOAN

Our goal: A bond for every seat!

THIS ADVERTISEMENT CONTRIBUTED BY 20th CENTURY-FOX

It Ain't What You Do...



EVERYTHING'S BEEN DONE BEFORE . . . and so can YOU!

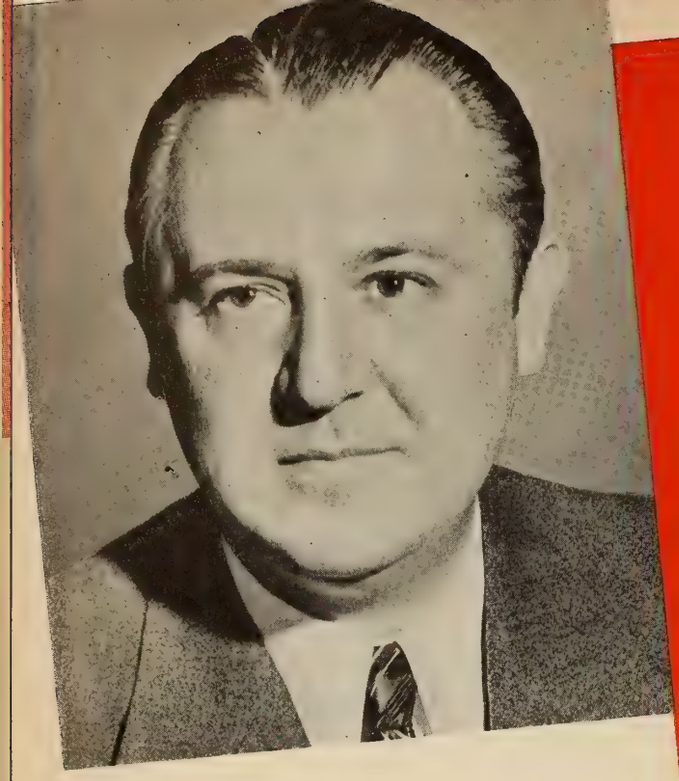
All of these stunts, and those reproduced on Page 41, could be adapted for current drive.



It's The Way You Do It!

"A Bond for Every Seat is a high goal for which to shoot. I am told that there are 11½ million movie seats and the sale of more than 11½ million bonds will be a lengthy stride toward Victory."

"No more difficult a task has an industry ever undertaken, and yet it is with confidence in your success that I appeal to you. The movies will do their job. They always have."

DO At Least ONE Thing!

A Personal Message to STR Readers
by the 4th War Loan Campaign Director

There have been Bond drives in the past. There will be Bond drives in the future. The biggest and most important one is now "in the works." American showmen, true to the traditions of our business, are neither content nor satisfied with past results. In this industry it's a case of "Bigger and Better." That is the only yardstick by which we gauge our success or failure. The difficult has been accomplished before but this time let us do the impossible, if there is such a word.

The enthusiasm of the organizational meetings is contagious and the spirit is spreading out over the entire country. We, who have been chosen to help coordinate this vast undertaking have tried to approach the subject in a truly showmanlike manner. In our home communities we have lived with the previous bond drives and it has been our goal to prepare the groundwork of this Fourth War Loan campaign on the basis of past experience. The tools which have been created for your skillful hands have been fashioned by handy men who realized that they must be used with equal success in the cities and villages of America.

The most important point I wish to make is that while there are a thousand and one things which you can do to promote the sale of bonds, the only thing which counts is that YOU AT LEAST DO ONE THING WELL. Do as many things as your circumstances and patriotic zeal permit but at least do ONE thing. This and this alone will measure the success of this, the least we can do for our nation in time of war.

Initiative, Imagination, Showmanship as Team

By Seymour Peiser
Publicity Chairman

Publicity alone will not sell bonds!

But Publicity as applied to Showmanship . . . plus Initiative and Imagination will!

So make the most of the extensive facilities available to you through the trained and expert assistance of your Public Relations Chairman and the statewide system of local publicity directors associated with him.

They're there to help you "put it over." They're there to "beat the drum" with your message to the public; to get the ball rolling . . . and keep it rolling across the pages of your newspapers, through your radio broadcasting channels; and to take the fullest and most showmanly advantage of every medium of communication between your theatre and the public.

Keep your Publicity representative informed. Keep him up to date on every activity and plan. Call upon him for advice, for ideas, for planning, for immediate action!

He is an important part of your statewide 4th War Loan Campaign organization, so call upon him to help you Show the Way with Showmanship to sell A Bond for Every Seat!

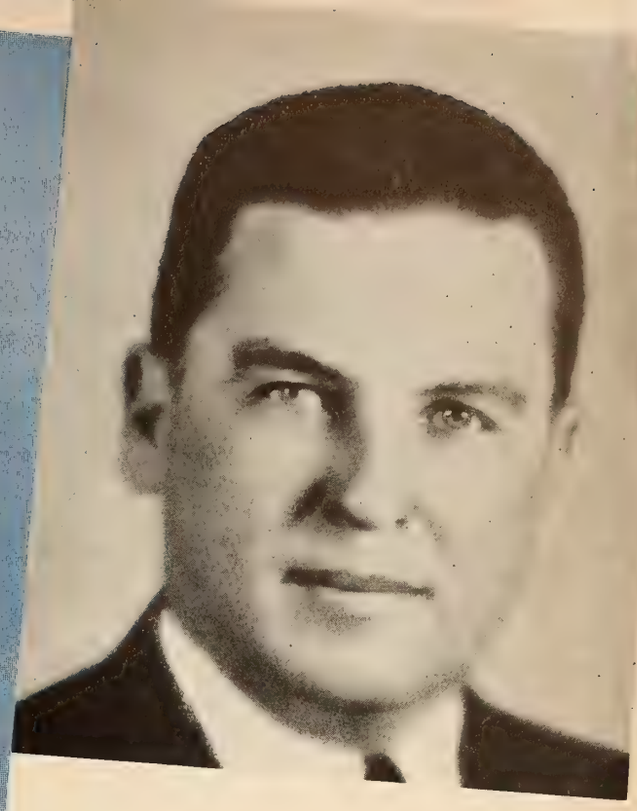
"E" Bond Sales Our Aim

A Personal Message to STR Readers
by 4th War Loan Vice Chairman



The exhibitor who counts, and counts big in the Fourth War Loan Campaign, is the one who walks up to his own box-office of January 18 and purchases an "E" Bond in his name and one for each member of his family and then invites every member of his organization to follow his example.

Certainly we are going to showmanize and glamorize the Fourth War Loan Campaign in cooperation with our local War Finance Committee, but we are going to do more. Every exhibitor and every exhibitor's friend and employe is going to buy a bond and then begin selling "E" Bonds for twenty-eight days. In this campaign nothing counts but sales. Our objective is an "E" Bond for every theatre seat.

The Treasury Department recognizes that there is a theatre at every crossroad gauged to the pocketbook of its patrons and has asked the industry to concentrate on "E" Bond sales. We have set our own goal, and with the all-out effort of 16,000 exhibitors in the country, we shall surpass it.

On our screens we will be running trailers made by the greatest artists in the world. Between shows we will be showing the finest natural color intermission flashes the industry has ever seen. A fine theatre staff will offer the patrons an investment in the greatest bond in the world. It stands for Liberty and Victory. We will all be working together and we won't fail each other. We will not stop until we reach our goal and sell an "E" Bond for every theatre seat.

Rick Ricketson

"Bond veterans in the industry will do a job in the coming War Loan the likes of which the country has never seen."

"We in Washington expect big things of you. We are looking forward to your reaching, and exceeding, the tremendous goal of 'A Bond for Every Seat.' We are eagerly looking forward, too, to meeting in Washington the 'Honored Hundred.'"

Enthusiasm Keynotes All Out Drive Effort

By Sam Shain
Director of Trade Relations

If only it were possible for every theatre man from Maine to 'Frisco to have sat in with us and shared the thrill, the enthusiasm, the grind of the past two weeks here in WAC Headquarters in New York, what a Bond Drive this Fourth War Loan Campaign would be. It is only natural that some of this enthusiasm has "spilled" over into the larger cities where major exhibitors' organizational meets have been held. Unless we miss our guess by a mile, this enthusiasm will keep on spreading like wild fire. The theatre world is aflame with tried and proven but none-the-less FRESH ideas that will make industry history when they are put into play across the nation.

I want to tip my hat to the trade press of the industry for the splendid assistance they have given in past Bond Drives, but if the sneak-preview we have just seen for the Fourth War Loan gets full reading time in your theatre, gentlemen, this is IT!

We will all be watching eagerly to see our spade work bear fruit by your skillful handling, planting and pruning. Naturally there are some ideas which have been advanced which do not fit all situations, but from a national point of view they are all practical for planting even with pruning or grafting. We all have a common stake and that is that our mutual effort bears fruit to the credit and honor of the industry.

Show The Way with Showmanship!

Entire Industry Mobilized for Fourth War Loan Drive

With 'Bond for Every Seat' As the Goal, Theatremen of Nation are Ready for Action

The entire motion picture industry is mobilized and ready for action in the Fourth War Loan campaign, January 18 through February 15. Every branch of the business stands ready to do its greatest and most important job of bond selling.

American men and women on fighting fronts all over the world need support and the industry intends to give this support by doing the greatest job of bond selling the country has ever seen.

These are crucial times. The United States Treasury needs dollars just as our fighting men need bullets and together with the press, the radio, retail merchants and outdoor advertisers the motion picture industry joins in the gigantic task of selling $14,000,000,000 in war bonds during this Fourth War Loan Drive.

With the slogan, "A Bond for Every Seat," the principal job in this campaign falls on the shoulders of theatre men throughout the nation. They will carry the campaign to the public, day and night, from the opening salute, which will be held simultaneously in the 16,000 motion picture theatres of the nation, until the last bond sale is registered at midnight on February 15.

It will be thirty days of constant action on the theatre front and from this important war activity 100 showmen will emerge as master salesmen, to have their names go down in the annals of our industry as champion bond sellers.

All of this will be made possible by the giant bond sales contest which National Chairman Charles P. Skouras and his committee of advisors, made up of leading theatre men from every state, have set up to spearhead the bond

The Honored One Hundred

By Robert Selig, Assistant Campaign Director

One hundred "Behemoths of Bondsmanship" on January 18 will start their big push towards Washington as a nation of showmen unleashes a furious assault on their mammoth objective of "A Bond for Every Seat!"

The "HONORED HUNDRED" who crash the inner-ring with their bond-bardment of quotas immediately will take posts of honor as members of the Executive Advisory Committee for the Treasury Department's next war loan.

And that's not all!

In the "HONORED HUNDRED" contest, designed by Treasury and War Activities Committee heads to bring to the surface the cream of America's bond-bartering blitzkriegers, the winners will be given an all-expense trip to Washington, plus honor-scrolls, engraved medallions, letters from Secretary Morgenthau, together with Treasury "E" buttons for each of their theatre staff members. Formal ceremonies in each state, enhanced by broadcasts, fanfare and officialdom will highlight the presentation of awards.

Simplicity marks the competition. The only basis for winning is by selling the greatest number of "E" bonds in ratio to the number of seats in your theatre. This means the hinterland may knock the hubs into the proverbial bond-basement.

With the cross-roads cinema competing on a fair-and-square basis with the plush palaces of the population points, already interest is steaming as entry blanks pile into the War Activities Committee headquarters in New York.

To clarify in the mind of any theatre manager questions or misunderstandings which may be puzzling him, a special brochure has been mailed which, among other information, contains a question-and-answer column as well as complete listing of the rules and regulations governing the contest and the awards.

Entry blanks for the competition already have been sent to all theatres. Another is being included with the brochure. Once you receive your "passport" to the nation's capital, fill it out and send it in!

You can win! And by winning, you are BACKING THE ATTACK! You are selling the vanguard of Victory! So, sell a bond for every seat—and then some!

Hitch your hopes to the "HONORED HUNDRED!"

Complete Plans for Launching of S.S. Carole Lombard January 15

Motion picture industry leaders, headed by Louis B. Mayer and Charles P. Skouras, National Chairman, Fourth War Loan Campaign Committee, film stars, Treasury Department chieftains, Army and Navy dignitaries and U. S. Maritime officials, will assemble on January 15 at 12:30 p.m. at Calship, San Pedro, for the launching of the new Liberty ship, SS. Carole Lombard. From bow to stern the ship's overall length is 441 feet.

This launching is part of the motion picture industry's Fourth War Loan drive, and the naming of the ship is in commemoration of the famous actress who lost her life in a plane crash while on a voluntary bond tour January 16, 1942. The committee of motion picture industry executives who will attend the launching is headed by Louis B. Mayer, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer chieftain. Jerome K. Doolan, General Manager of Calship, is in charge of arrangements for the event.

FDR Praises Industry Efforts in Dimes Drive

President Roosevelt praised the efforts of the motion picture theatres in fulfilling the 1944 March of Dimes campaign slogan, "Make It More in '44" in a letter to the Motion Picture Theatres' Committee, received Monday.

Said the President: "Today, Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, told me of some of the many things you are doing in the motion picture industry's 1944 March of Dimes drive, which means so much in the fight against infantile paralysis.

"I was anything but unaware of the time and effort a cause like this demands of you—and the thousands of men and women in the motion picture business who serve with you—and yet I can tell from the conversation with Mr. O'Connor, that the real size of this job is never fully understood, unless one has the time to learn of the incredible number and kind of things that have to be done to bring such an effort to complete success.

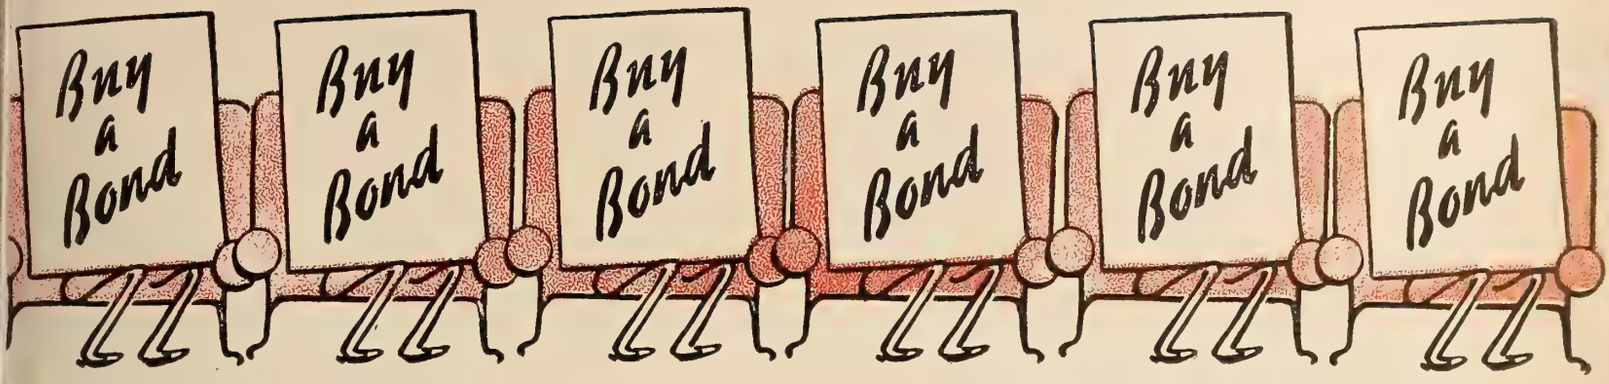
"With the magnificent performance of your group last year very vividly in my mind," continued the President, "I am confident that you and your co-workers will live up to the campaign slogan you have chosen for the motion picture drive—'MORE in 1944.'

"I convey my deep appreciation to you and every one of the thousands of motion picture men and women who serve so well in this cause."

Denver 4th Loan Drivers Meet

Fourth War Loan drivers in the Denver district teed off with a meeting of the service staffs of all Denver theatres on Saturday, January 8 at which over 400 attended. A standing pledge to get a bond for every seat was the unanimous determination of the 400.

Only Drive Date Sales To Count in Contest



Charles P. Skouras, National Chairman, Fourth War Loan Drive, Motion Picture Industry, announced this week that "all bonds sold by theatres since January 1 and through February 29 will be credited toward the motion picture industry's patriotic effort in behalf of the Fourth War Loan."

However, because of the mechanics involved in judging fairly the "Honored Hundred" Contest, only those bonds sold between midnight January 17 through February 15 and supported by special Treasury Department bond applications, which are now on the press and also being shipped by the Treasury to all theatres, will count in the competition.

The special brochure containing rules, regulations and complete information on the "Honored Hundred" Contest are being mailed to all theatres in each state.

48 States Lined Up For Drive

Upon his return to New York this week, after a flying tour of the south and middlewest, National Co-Chairman Harry Brandt of the 1944 March of Dimes drive gleefully reported that the theatres of 48 states were now solidly lined up to take audience collections during January 24-30. He reported that pledges were flooding drive headquarters. Many pledges are from theatres which never before have participated in the drive.

LET'S GET THE "Bugs" OUT THIS TIME

★ Experience Spotlights Weak Points ★

From general observations and correspondence with exhibitors we have tried to assemble the stumbling blocks of previous War Bond Campaigns in an effort to pave your way in this 4th War Loan Drive.

Many theatres have neglected using the trailers at each performance, thus missing out on promoting sales at the theatres bond booth as they leave the theatre. Some men have tried to be one-man whirlwinds with the result that their efforts have not proved as effective as would have been the case had they lined up an organization of helpers to share the burden.

The most important thing to avoid in these drives is that letdown near the wind-up of the campaign. Start off like a house afire, but keep pouring on the fuel so that you wind up with a Bond-fire. Space your events and have enough exciting things planned to keep enthusiasm at fever pitch right down to the dessert course. The finale is more important than the opening act.

Keep a scrapbook of your stunts, publicity, etc. for future reference and include a list of all bond purchasers with their names and addresses. Send in to STR pictures and stories on your activities, as well as advance plans so we can pass them along to the other fellows in time to be of value. Good stunts bear repeat engagements.

The Treasury appeals for more theatres to become issuing agents and it is a local honor to be so designated. Just contact your state War Finance Committee Chairman. Another item that cries out for attention is the need for more parades. The smallest town can easily organize a humdinger.

Just remember that there will be a Fifth and Sixth War Loan coming up. That does not mean you should save any steam for future runs. Give this all you've got, but plan to keep thinking ahead. These are the "Bugs" to get out, overcome, anticipate.

JANUARY 19: ROBERT E. LEE, born 1807 (LEGAL HOLIDAY IN THE SOUTH)

Throughout the southern states, this holiday should provide an opportunity to boost the sales of war bonds. The day could be set aside for special tribute to this military hero of the South, with the public urged to honor him by buying extra bonds on that day. All persons whose surnames are Lee who purchased bonds on this day would be your guests to see your current attraction.

JANUARY 21: THOMAS J. ("STONEWALL") JACKSON, born 1824

Bond activities for this day might be handled somewhat in the manner as outlined for Robert E. Lee, above.

JANUARY 30: FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT (32nd PRESIDENT) born 1882. ANNUAL BIRTHDAY BALL. ADOLF HITLER BECAME CHANCELLOR OF GERMANY, 1933

This will be a Red Letter Day, not only in connection with the bond activities, but also as far as the March of Dimes Infantile Paralysis campaign is concerned. For showmen, it will be a busy day. For, aside from aiding in arrangements for the President's Birthday Ball in your community, you'll be actively engaged in urging the public, through newspaper advertisements, cooperative advertising, and other selling media, to buy war bonds in honor of President Roosevelt's birthday. Pictures of the President should be prominently displayed. As for celebrating the eleventh anniversary of Adolf Hitler's rise to the Chancellor of Germany, that can best be done by using slogans urging people to "celebrate Hitler's anniversary as Chancellor of Germany by Buying More War Bonds to Make This His Last Year."

FEBRUARY 1: GEORGE WASHINGTON, ELECTED FIRST PRESIDENT OF U. S., 1789

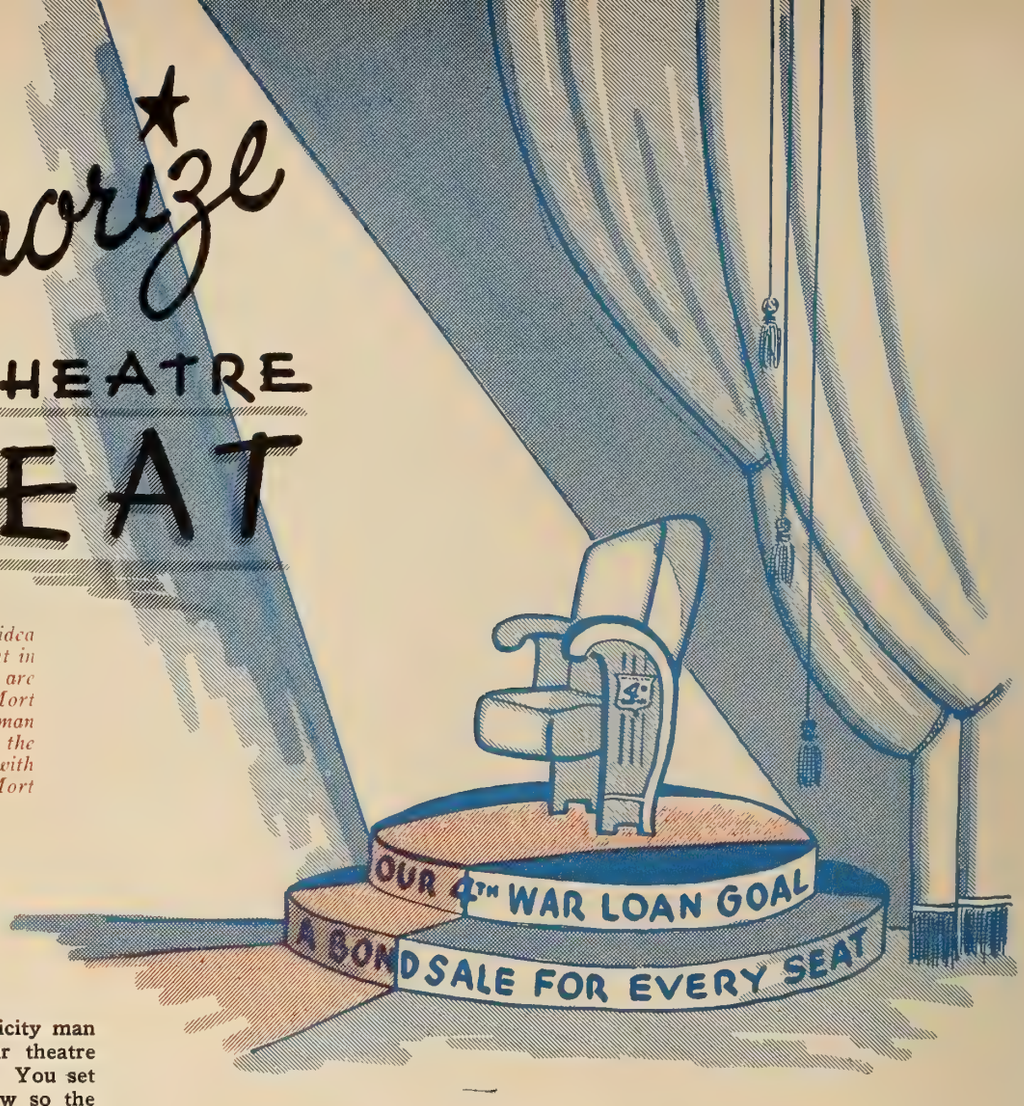
Bear in mind that this is the anniversary of Washington's election as the First President of the U. S., and not a birthday anniversary. "Honor the Father of Our Country by Buying Bonds" could be your slogan for this day.

FEBRUARY 2: GROUNDHOG DAY

Some suitable bond-selling slogan tieing in with this day might be incorporated in your newspaper ads.

FEBRUARY 8: BOY SCOUT ANNIVERSARY WEEK

On this day the anniversary begins, and it ends on February 14. During this time, you could hold Boy Scout exercises on your stage, enlist the aid of the Scouts in selling bonds by organizing them into teams to promote competition, and otherwise tie in with this anniversary.



FEBRUARY 12: ABRAHAM LINCOLN, born 1809

The week in which the anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birthday falls might be designated as "Freedom Week," with all bond-selling activities centered around that theme.

FEBRUARY 14: ST. VALENTINE'S DAY

On this day urge everyone to buy bonds for their Valentines. Place heart-shaped valentine cutouts around your marquee, each to be imprinted with the words, "Buy a bond for your valentine." Get merchants to suggest bonds as the ideal valentine gift. You might hold a Valentine Night, and offer guest tickets to all men in the audience who buy bonds for their wives or sweethearts.

Glamorize A THEATRE SEAT

So impressed was STR with the idea of dressing up an old sure-fire stunt in 4th War Loan raiment that we are passing it along to our readers. Mort Goodman, Public Relations Chairman for Southern California, submitted the plan and we have embellished it with a few added angles. We hope Mort recognizes it and likes it too.

Remember what a hot shot publicity man you were when you reseated your theatre with those pink plush opry chairs? You set one out in the lobby for a preview so the folks could get their hands on it and feel how comfortable they were going to be in your movie when they got them all in place. Yes, you would stand around as cocky as you please and say to Mrs. Wilmerfingle, "Just sit in that thirty-two seventy-five-and-a-half special I bought because I want my customers to have the best." Those were the good old days that we want to hurry and get back.

It's a long time since you and Mrs. Wilmerfingle had such a conversation. As a matter of fact it's a long time since your Louie and Mrs. Wilmerfingle's Roger were drafted on the same day and went overseas together in the same outfit.

Well, here's one way you can help hurry Louie and Roger back home and maybe even speed up some of those post-war thirty-two seventy-five-and-a-half specials to reseat your theatre. All you have to do is to get out one of those old seats you had left over which you have been using for spares. Paint it all up with gold bronze from the five-and-dime. Cover the seat with an American flag or some bunting and make some glorified cheese-box pedestals several steps high to mount the chair on. Then knock yourself out a sign or two telling all the Mr. and Mrs. Wilmerfingles of your town that you've got a quota for the 4th War Loan Campaign. Tell 'em you're going to sell an "E" Bond for every seat in your theatre, and brag a little about how many there are.

Plaster that special 40 x 60 which the WAC Headquarters mailed you from New York, on a piece of wall board or put it in an easel frame (if you didn't get one call your state WAC chairman and raise cain) and start to sell that bond for every seat. The 40 x 60 is a seating plan shown on the accessory page in this issue of STR and if there are too many spaces for your house just paint some out. Have Mrs. Wilmerfingle buy a bond to honor her Roger, yes, and you buy one to honor Louie. Each of you should write your son's name in one of the squares denoting a seat.

Now let's get back to that spic and span chair with the 250 watt flood lights making it sparkle. Well, that will get attention, but you will still have to stand out there in the lobby just like the good old days and be just as cocky (this time over Louie's promotion over Roger) and tell 'em how you plan to be one of these lucky Honored Hundred who are going down there to Washington to tell Uncle Sammy's boys a thing or three about the 5th War Loan plans. But Good!

After you get tired standing with your $32.75½ glamorized lobby display, take it around town to stir up a little excitement. We forgot to say that we liked that speech the Mayor made in front of your theatre the day you unveiled the seat and how we were thrilled to see those bonds go like hot cakes when that soldier boy with one leg shot away told about Tulagi. Yes, we even saw a tear on Mrs. Wilmerfingle's face. You know, I'll bet she was thinking it might just as easily have been her Roger . . . or your Louie. After a tour of store windows and the high school stage, that night in the ring at the prize fight and over at the Elks Club dance . . . what next?

Wipe that sparkle off your face; I know what you're planning, right in the public square on the 30th of January. Sure, I can see those phoney headlines you had printed across the local newspaper . . . Hitler Electrocuted on Rialto Theatre Chair! Boy, oh boy, if that were only true . . . and on the day he became Chancellor of Germany. That was some crowd you packed into the park for the event. Where did you dig up all that electrical junk? Seems I recognized that old stage switchboard and a bunch of those Xmas tree light sockets all wired up to make your $32.75½ chair look like the one at the state pen. The window dummy wasn't bad either.

Those usherettes looked pretty cute selling bonds through the crowd in those Uncle Sammy costumes you promoted, or did their mothers make them? Well anyhow, after you come back from Washington you'll kinda be a big shot around here. We'll be proud of you; well, you know how it is . . . local boy makes good and all that stuff. By the way if you will, I'd like you to tell Louie we're glad he got that promotion and we're mighty proud of him, too. So long M-I-S-T-E-R Movie Man. See you in Washington!

Exhibitors Urged to Go All-Out in Behalf Of March of Dimes

With the headlines hinting of imminent invasion of foreign coasts, the industry is busy planning its own two-front invasions of the home front. During January, the 16,000 exhibitors of America have been called upon to participate in two great campaigns One is the Fourth War Loan drive, starting January 18th. The other great offensive—the 1944 March of Dimes—must not be overlooked.

The industry's Fourth War Loan might be termed the opening attack on the home front to back the invasion on the battle-fronts. The March of Dimes is a behind-the-lines campaign against an insidious and deadly enemy—the virus of infantile paralysis.

It is not odd that these two great battles will be headed by almost the same general staff, who will command the same troops—the men and women of the motion picture industry, who will be working hard at selling extra bonds and collecting dimes and dollars.

Nicholas M. Schenck, who heads the industry's March of Dimes for the third successive year, pays tribute to those who are working so hard in behalf of both the war loan and the infantile paralysis crusades.

"I know of no other industry so crowded with big hearted men and women, so willing to undertake a double job for their country," said Chairman Schenck.

Virtually all of the larger circuits have held meetings of their managers and worked out more ambitious plans than ever to make sure that every possible dime marches into those collection baskets.

The Greer Garson appeal trailer—some 15,000 of them!—will soon be on their way to theatres sending in their pledges.

To assist short-handed theatres, the Women's Division of the National Foundation will have available volunteers in every county, in case they are needed to help make collections.

This year it is planned by many theatres to squeeze in extra collections even at the lightly-attended "supper shows." It is pointed out that if 10,000 theatres work in a third or fourth daily collection and only pick up a few dollars at each collection it will amount to a couple hundred thousand dollars.

Thousands of ushers, doormen and cashiers are volunteering to take two of the $2 coin cards and have them filled with dimes by their friends. This extra money—which might easily total nationally another $200,000—will be tossed into the theatre collections.

The theatre's part in the infantile paralysis drive will be emphasized in scores of spot radio announcements as part of the National Foundation's air publicity campaign.

With serious epidemics of infantile paralysis ravaging many sections of the country in 1943, the need for funds is greater this year. Optimistic campaign leaders are shooting at a $3,000,000 target.

Orchids to Press Book Workers In Fourth War Loan Campaign

Called by exhibitors the most practical and complete press book ever created for a war bond drive, the Fourth War Loan campaign book has brought unstinted praise for the editors and artists who put it together.

The orchids go to Charles Einfeld, vice-president of Warner Brothers in charge of advertising and publicity, who acted as counsel and adviser; Ed. Schreiber, publicity director of the War Activities Committee; to Marty Weiser, of Warner Brothers studio publicity department, who served as editor, and to John Wentworth, who did the designing. All of whom worked with Seymour Peiser, 4th War Loan publicity director, in assemblying material.

Lieut. Bernhard is a son of Joseph Bernhard, Warner Bros. vice-president.

Miss Pickford Aids Drive

Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, greets Mary Pickford, United Artists producer, upon her arrival in New York from Hollywood. Miss Pickford will shortly leave on a 15-day tour of the United States for the Foundation, starting with a broadcast from Washington January 15.

'Free Movie Day' in N. Y. to Aid Drive

With the slogan, "A Bond for Every Seat," the Fourth War Loan Drive in New York will get under way on January 18 with a "Free Movie Day," the War Finance Committee for New York has announced. Admission to all New York motion picture theatres on that day will be solely through the purchase of a war bond, in denominations of $25 and up.

Possibility of a new date for"Free Movie Day" loomed early this week when Sam Rinzler, Metropolitan New York area co-chairman, bond premieres, called an all-important meeting to be held at War Activities Committee headquarters on Thusday, at which time this question and other activities pertaining to the Fourth War Loan were to be discussed.

The Metropolitan New York Theatre Committee, headed by Edward L. Alperson, has agreed that in addition to the national awards as outlined in the Fourth War Loan press book, there will be four additional awards for New York metropolitan area showmen. The awards: First prize, $100 war bond; second prize, $75 war bond; third prize, $50 war bond.

The local contest will follow along similar lines to the national contest in that no theatre manager will be eligible for any bond award until he has first attained his quota which is "A Bond for Every Seat." The winning theatre manager, as well as the second and third winning theatre managers, will be judged by his pro rata percentage of bonds that he sells over and above his quota based on the number of seats.

In addition to the above, there will be a $100 war bond awarded to the Captain whose theatres collectively sell the greatest number of bonds over quota. No Captain will be eligible unless all of his theatres have at least attained their quota.

Conn. Ice-Capades Bond Show

From Harry F. Shaw, Connecticut State Chairman, 4th War Loan Drive, comes the news that the Ice-Capades show will turn over their Saturday matinee, February 12th, for a Lincoln's Birthday War Bond show. Admission will be by bond only.

Campaign Committee Coordinates Drive With Projectionists

The National Campaign Committee of the Motion Picture Industry for the Fourth War Loan Drive, under the direction of Charles P. Skouras, National Chairman, has issued an appeal for support to all projectionists in all theatres throughout the continental United States, Alaska, and Hawaii, appealing for their help in making the Fourth War Loan Drive the most successful of any yet attempted by the industry.

In a special message to projectionists, the National Committee salutes the past efforts of the projectionists in other drives and expresses the urgent necessity for closest coordination between the men in the booths and the theatre managers, if the fullest aims of the campaign are to be realized.

The committee is forwarding an appeal to all projectionists for support in getting campaign trailers efficiently and continuously on the screen.

In this communication, the committee is stressing the great importance of meeting the release dates on the four specially prepared trailers, as well as the footage, in the form of the U. S. Treasury's Fourth War Loan Technicolor Shield and an issuing-agent trailer.

In its appeal to projectionists, the National Committe, being mindful of the past efforts of the booth men, appeals to them to redouble their efforts in the forthcoming drive.

Hollywood Stars to Tour U. S. in Drive

Arrangements have been completed for top-ranking film stars to tour more than 100 key cities in the United States to stimulate the sale of bonds for the Fourth War Loan, Charles P. Skouras, national chairman, has announced. These celebrity tours will be conducted under the auspices of the Hollywood Victory committee.

The stars will be divided into groups. Ten pairs of stars will comprise ten teams that will spend two weeks visiting the largest population and industrial centers of the country. Each team wll make bond-selling appearances in industrial plants and attend large public rallies in a concentrated effort to sell "E" bonds to the small investor. These stars will not appear in theatres or any other places of entertainment. They will be used exclusively to glamorize civic and industrial bond-selling activities.

At the request of the Treasury department another group of stars will be assigned to nine Bond Battalions, one for each of the Army Service Command areas of the United States. On each of the Battalions there will be two screen stars accompanied by a group of war veterans. These Battalions will be transported over the country in Army transport planes.

These "Honored Hundred" will come from small towns as well as from the big metropolitan centers. Every showman will have a chance at this coveted prize. All they have to do is sell the greatest number of "E" bonds possible according to seating capacity.

While the "Honored Hundred" will stand as a symbol of the patriotic job the motion picture industry is geared to do in the Fourth War Loan, they will be backed by every man and woman in the film industry. Complete support for the Drive will come from the Hollywood studios, the Hollywood Victory Committee, the homeoffices of all distributors, and from exchanges throughout the country.

Every branch of the motion picture industry has its job to do and is prepared to do it: Sell a Bond for Every Seat!

BONDS OF FREEDOM . . . THAT'S WHAT WE'RE SELLING—

Lobby Smash

One sure-fire way to pep up theatre sales is to make every man, woman or child who enters the theatre, 4th War Loan conscious. Your lobby is the place to best achieve this result. Punch home the swell slogans at your command with rapid-fire repeater displays. No effect is so dramatic that it cannot be achieved by even the theatre with few tools to work with.

Sign cloth banners strung across the lobby overhead will not hide your attraction displays in wall frames but will demand every ounce of attention the patron can offer. If they are lettered on both sides, put them in the mood to buy going in and direct them to your bond booth as they leave. Be sure to display the Seating Diagram and the other fine accessories which have been provided to aid you. Don't miss a bet from the marquee to the screen.

Bond Premier

Make it your business to stage two Bond Premieres during the 4th War Loan Drive. The Distribution Committee of Producers are anxious to have double the number of these events staged during this campaign as against last time. It is an activity which has worked two ways with great results; sold millions in bonds and sold millions of tickets for the bond pictures through word of mouth publicity. Bond Premieres bring people into the theatres who seldom attend movies and the seed for future patronage is thus sown. Make your bond premieres events that the community will write to the boys about. Just a tip though . . . Don't forget to display your town's service flag as a back drop for the speakers on the stage.

Honor Award

If you made your quota during the 3rd War Loan Drive and your theatre did an outstanding job in putting it over you can build a little good-will by arranging to have your theatre cited by the Treasury Department or WAC of your state. Contact your state WAC chairman and make a date to have your theatre eulogized.

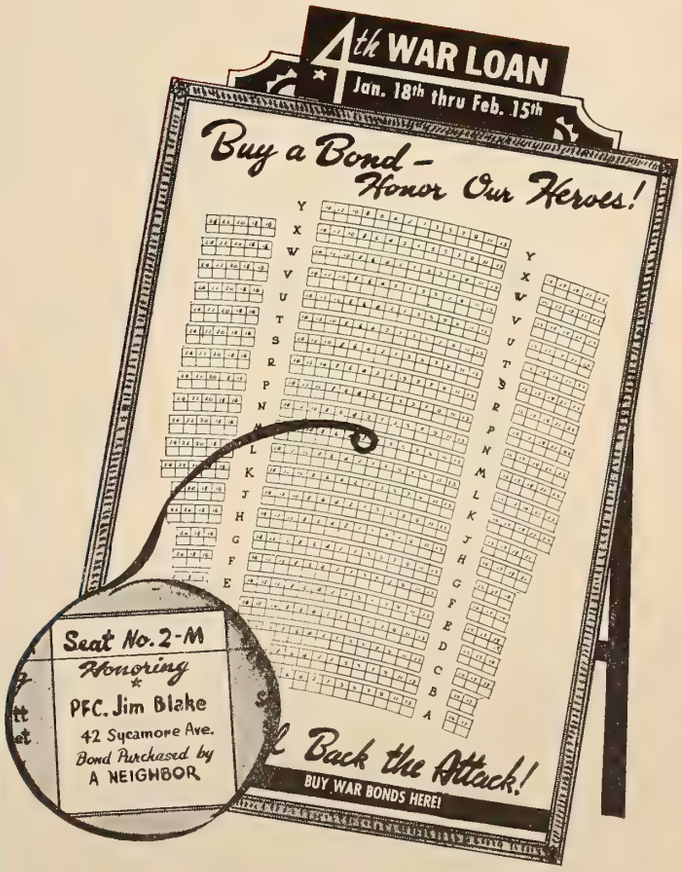
You can garner good publicity through press and radio, make it a stage event winding up in a bond rally for this drive and help swell the night's receipts too. Get a good speaker to accept the award for the theatre who can also make a stirring bond appeal. Have the mayor or public official make the presentation and have some of your local heroes on the stage to congratulate the theatre and its staff. All this takes is a little effort and it can be a really BIG event.

Repeat Sales

All those lucky theatre men who like to keep things and have saved a list of all previous theatre bond purchasers have in their hands the most potent lineup of prospects in the land. If they were able to buy before . . . it is a cinch they will buy again during the 4th War Loan Drive. It is up to you not to neglect them. Write each one a letter. Sign each letter personally even though the letters may, due to the number, be mimeographed.

Keep a close check on the new sales against the previous purchasers and either call on or phone those which do not "dig" promptly for an "E" Bond. Make your letters personal and appealing. Where large numbers are to be reached why not prepare special stationery with the drive slogans, etc.? Above all, don't neglect these swell leads.

Stickers



The window sticker shown above which is being distributed free in two colors by the millions from the Treasury Department is going to be the "pin-up" or "stick-up" of the 4th War Loan Campaign. You will receive an ample supply to give one to every purchaser of an "E" bond. They're for windows. windshields (where state laws permit), etc.

This attractive emblem should be very much in demand. Use it to decorate your box-office, bond booth, display frames. If you have art shop facilities, reproduce it on a large scale as the central motif for all your 4th War Loan displays. If you do not receive a supply of them promptly, contact the state chairman of the War Finance Committee. Another good use for the shield is in window tie-ups with military equipment.

Seating Plan

One of the most outstanding campaign plans of this drive is the scheme of dramatizing the slogan, "A BOND FOR EVERY SEAT." To bring this idea to its greatest degree of value and create a short cut in preparing such a display piece for theatres without art shop facilities a 40x60 poster has been designed and mailed to all theatres Free. This WAC poster provides for 1000 seats but anyone can paint out with water color the necessary number of seat spaces to make the chart conform to the individual theatre's capacity.

By all means make this a part of your campaign. Have each person buying a bond write the name of a service man or woman in one of the squares as shown in the illustration. Display it prominently. Spotlight it. Fill it with sales.

A CONDENSED REVIEW OF TRIED AND PROVED PROMOTION IDEAS

The idea which may appeal to you may not be worth a grain of salt to the other fellow and vice versa. It is with this thought in mind that STR offers this round robin of tested, proven and practical suggestions to aid you in making the 4th War Loan Drive a tremendous success. This service to our readers does not attempt to deal comprehensively with each promotional idea but rather to point out possibilities. If you have preserved your 3rd War Loan Edition of STR you may wish to use it for detail reference on many of these items.

FREE TO BOND BUYERS

The Treasury's War Finance Committee is printing millions of duplicates of these shields, in red, white and blue, which will be given to bond buyers. You can get all you want from your local War Finance Committee man.

Get 'em. Your patrons will want 'em!

1 Radio will play an important part in the Fourth War Loan. Arrange special broadcasts from the theatre bond booth, program covering bond premieres, celebrity appearances, spot announcements, contests, etc. Local radio entertainers and announcers, newspaper columnists, dance band leaders, business executives, amateur entertainers could all be lined up for a daily radio program from your bond booth.

2 If you can get a small motor blower, it would keep a fair-sized American flag blowing in the breeze for an impressive lobby or Fourth War Loan window display. Blower requires an initial investment, but you'll find it will prove a valuable accessory around the theatre.

3 For theatres of the larger size with more extensive facilities for art work and ballyhoo construction, there are unlimited possibilities for the development of attractive floats which could be used throughout the campaign. Perhaps all theatres could share the costs of such floats. Some suggested floats: floral insignia of the slogan, "Let's All Back the Attack"; costumed characters personifying the Spirit of '76; cut-outs of soldiers in action and reproductions of tanks, planes and guns. The sky's the limit for what can be done with this type of construction. Floats might be placed at prominent corners, where bonds and stamps would be sold from a bond booth.

4 Good adaptation of the Liberty Bell idea: obtain a real church or school bell and permit each bond purchaser to ring the bell for victory. Incidentally, bear in mind that church bells will ring and victory sirens will blow for five minutes at noon on Monday, January 18, throughout the United States, Alaska and Hawaii, signaling the opening of the motion picture industry's Fourth War Loan. Be sure all plans are in readiness for this occasion.

5 Through your chamber of commerce, have business leaders solicit all merchants to pledge that customers of their stores will buy a gun, jeep, or some other instrument of warfare through bond purchases. Theatres could group together to buy a bomber. Merchants could carry cuts of war implements they have pledged to buy in their ads.

6 Publicity for the Fourth War Loan is an absolute necessity. Problem of digging up and writing stories could be solved by getting your local papers to assign a reporter to cover all war bond activities and place your theatre on his beat. If you assume local leadership of the bond drive, you can set up a publicity committee of such reporters to cover the events.

7 A newsy flavor can be given theatre bond booths by tieing into the design a barometer, thermometer or symbol recording the sales results in your theatre during the course of the campaign. Create extra "pull" for your bond booth by having the local newspaper pick frequently during the day sheets from the teletype news wire machine carrying the latest war news and posting this in a prominent place on the outside walls of your bond booth. Newsreel theatres in the larger cities do this, and it is a no-cost proposition.

8 Members of your Kiddie Club can be enlisted to sell bonds and stamps in the Fourth War Loan. Form Commando or Junior Ranger clubs; give the kids membership cards and arm bands. Set a goal of so many bonds or stamps for each child to sell each week. Give them large cards on which patrons who buy a dollar's worth or more of stamps can sign their names. Completely filled-in cards could be displayed under this slogan: "These Are the Autographs of the Patriotic Citizens of Blankville. Each has purchased war stamps from the Commandos of the Blank Theatre." Clubs could be divided into teams to create spirit of competition and thus increase sales.

9 Hold a "Back the Attack Night." A dime war stamp is given with each adult admission, along with a stamp album. Where used before, stunt has filled houses to capacity, given patrons incentive to fill their stamp albums and thus by bonds. Prizes could be awarded to the first patrons who turn in completely filled albums, which have to be numbered or stamped for theatre identification.

10 If there's an Army camp near your town, you may be able to borrow a jeep or a tank in which purchasers of bonds could be taken for a ride.

11 Newsboys are potential war stamp salesmen. At a meeting, outline your plan to them. Give each boy a quota and offer guest tickets for every so many dollars' worth of stamps by which the quotas are exceeded. Hold weekly meetings with the boys to discuss the progress of the drive. Heighten incentive, if you wish, by playing the newsboys against other youth groups. A party could be promoted as the final payoff, with civic groups handling details and merchants supplying eats.

Sell That Bond for Every Seat!

12 Here's a suggested lineup for a parade: 1—Motorcycle police lead men. 2—Mounted police. 3—Parade marshal (civic or military dignitaries and aides). 4—Color guard of honor. 5—Band or drum corps, military groups. 6—Legion and Veteran groups. 7—Band led by baton-twirling majorettes. 8—Youth groups interspersed with floats. 9—Drill team and band. 10—Women's Auxiliaries, Red Cross, Ambulance Corps. 11—Fire engines, firemen, floats and band. 12—Citizen groups, business men, business women, etc. 13—Merchants' floats, newspaper trucks, bakery and dairy trucks, etc.

13 Get juvenile cooperation in your Fourth War Loan drive. Older children can staff war bond booths in the theatre lobby. Youngsters who specialize in dancing could perform specialties in honor of each person buying a bond. Games of baseball, darts or quoits might be set up, with children in charge urging the public to try to hit heads of Hitler and Hirohito. Throwing the ball would cost thrower a war stamp purchase.

14 Perhaps you can tie in with a local photographer to take pictures of all bond buyers. If famous people appear in your town during the drive, get them to pose with the bond buyers and then autograph the photos.

15 A radio program based upon two-minute talks by local bond buyers on the theme, "what I think of Hitler and Hirohito," would make a highly amusing topic for radio listeners. It might be worked out that each purchaser of a war bond at the theatre booth would be given an opportunity to state their opinion publicly of Hitler and Hirohito. Naturally, each person desiring the platform would have to submit the text of his broadcast in writing, confined to the number of words which could be spoken in two minutes. Theatre tickets should be given to each person selected for the broadcast.

16 Enlist the cooperation of educational groups behind a children's War Bond rally, with stamp purchases serving as admission for youngsters and adults. Merchants could donate prizes for humorous games. School bands could supply music. A patriotic program could be part of the activity, and a competent public speaker could emphasize the importance of the Fourth War Loan.

17 Have a recording studio set up in your lobby so that buyers of bonds of substantial size can have messages recorded to send to their sons or daughters in service.

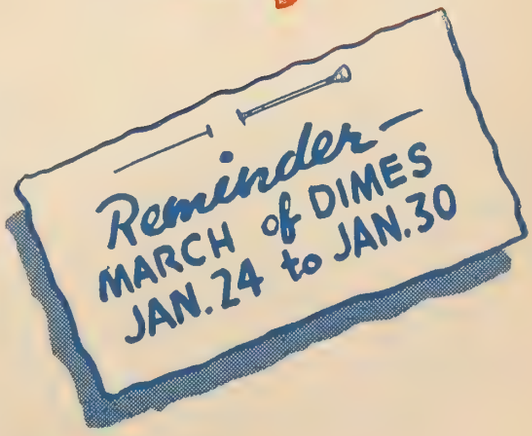
18 A successful form of radio entertainment has been the development of the children's broadcast from the theatre stage in which the children entertain, discuss civic affairs with prominent citizens, talk of their hobbies and sports, etc. Such programs have been titled "Junior Town," "Youth on Parade," etc. Why not arrange a Saturday morning kiddie bond carnival? Radio station might be able to get a sponsor for the program, and it would attract children to your theatre to see not only the show but to be organized as bond and stamp salesmen. Local heroes on furlough could tell kids of their experiences. Community sing would provide good broadcast material.

19 If you have local war industries, arrange an exhibit of their finished products in your lobby, together with plainly-marked price tags to give onlookers an idea of what it costs to produce the implements of war and why, therefore, it is imperative that we all buy bonds to buy the implements to "back the attack."

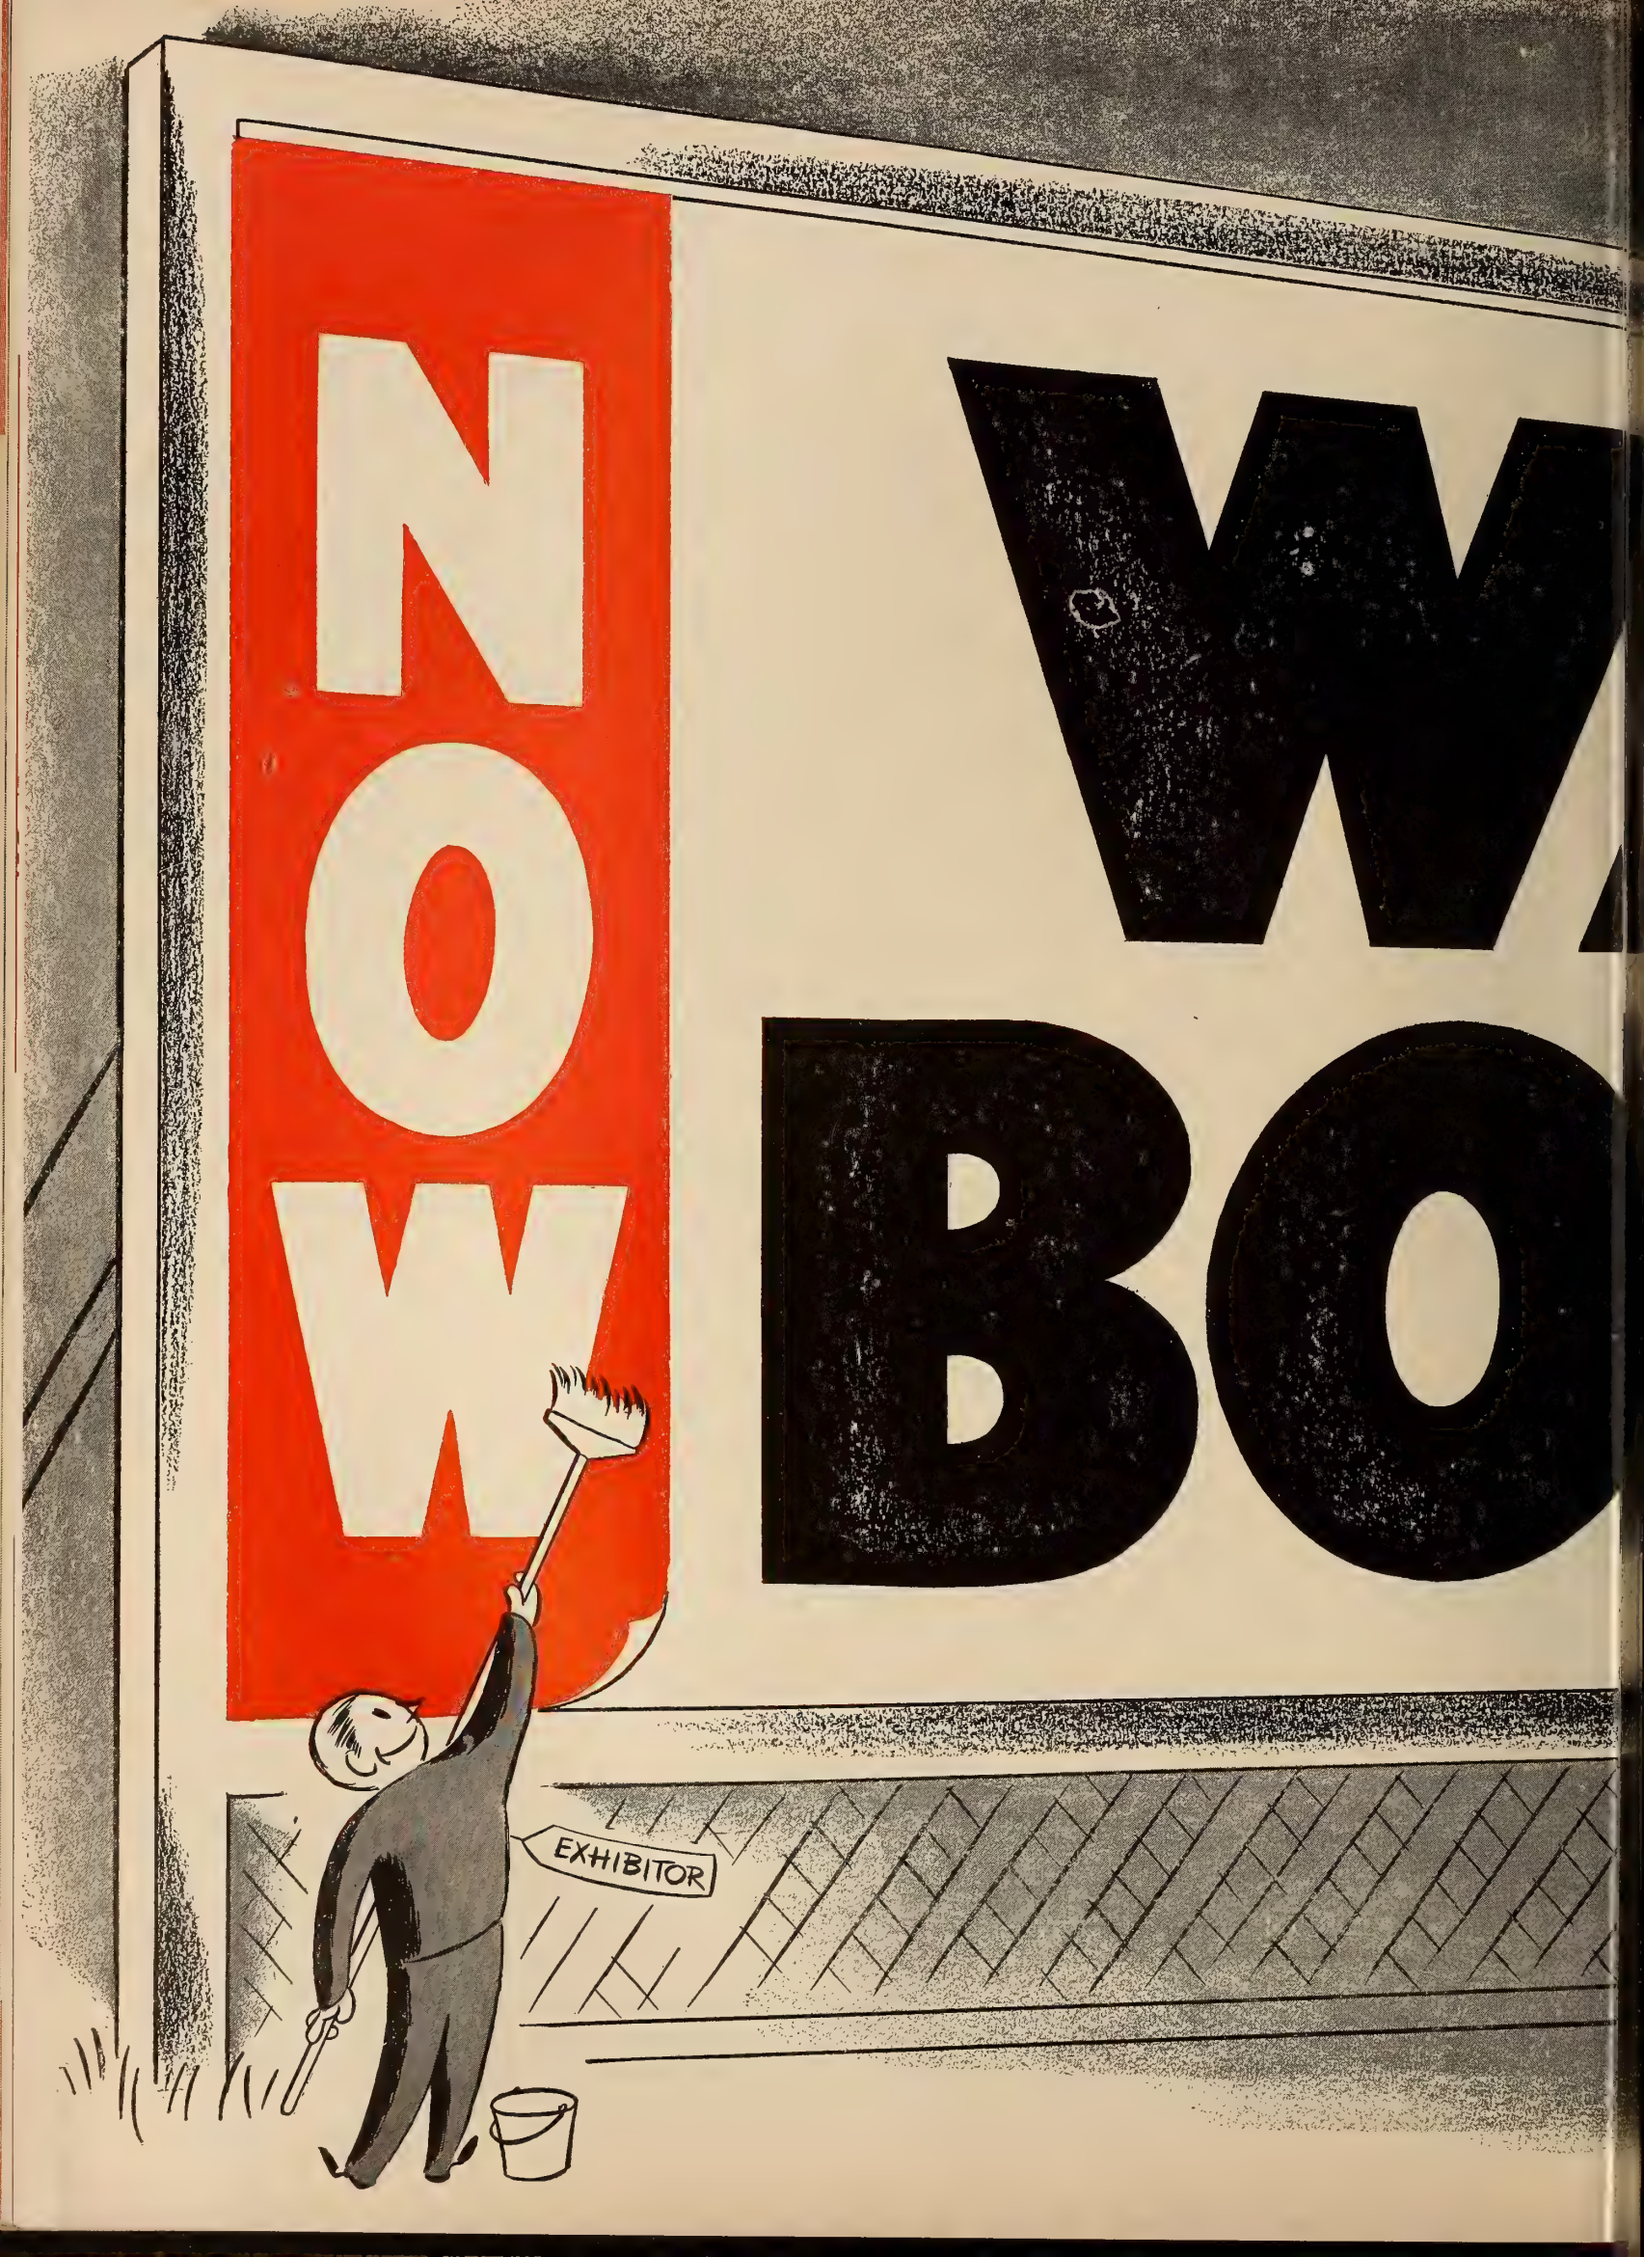
20 A display of war material which could include relics from the last war would make an interesting attention-getter in connection with a lobby setpiece selling the various events on your Fourth War Loan drive calendar. Each item should be identified by a small card explaining the item and crediting source of the material. If you are near an Army camp, try to arrange to have soldiers explain the significance of the items at certain peak hours.

21 Direct attention to your Fourth War Loan appeal by constructing a setpiece to serve as a "gallery of heroes" display. This calls for photographs obtained from parents of local service men, regardless of whether these men are in training camps or overseas. Special treatment should be given to pictures of men who have become casualties. Dedicative ceremonies could surround the unveiling of such a display, with civic officials and the parents of local heroes participating. Photos serve as a frame for changable poster space on which to announce your various war bond events. Get newspapers to cover the unveiling ceremony.

22 Arm-chair strategists should be given an outlet for their emotions. Plant a newspaper contest with prizes for the most cleverly conceived plan of "attack" on Germany or Japan. By permitting use of war maps, you should get some very graphic entries with which to create an "Let's All Back the Attack" window or lobby display. Local editors, military men and geography teachers could be induced to act as judges. This stunt could be tied in with a war picture you might be playing for added theatre publicity.



23 Why not try a Bond Auction. Solicit merchants for gifts to be auctioned off. Get a professional auctioneer to handle the event. Try to have celebrities present. Get newspaper photographer to cover for newspaper publicity.



24 Set aside a certain day of the week when every person buying a bond will be admitted free to the show that day. This stunt has been done in previous War Loan drives, and the results have been exceptionally good. Tie up with merchants for big-space ads announcing the offer, and permit merchants to give guest tickets to persons buying bonds at their stores.

It can be a bus, or a trolley, or a buckboard, or a hokey-pokey ice cream cart, or a surrey with a fringe around the top. It can be as rustic or as modernistic as your heart desires . . . but . . . the important thing is to go out TODAY and promote yourself a Bond Wagon from which to sell those "E" Bonds during the 4th War Loan Campaign.

Decorate your choice of a Bond Wagon with banners, accessories, bunting, flags and keep it parked in the busiest parts of town. Visit factories when the shifts change, cover schools. Keep it slugging away with those special "Honored Hundred" Bond Sales applications, for away-from-the-theatre sales. Put entertainers aboard the vehicle if you can. In New York a department store uses an old horse car. What's yours?

Stage activities are an ideal part of War Bond sales planning. These events help draw people to your box office and if well handled even the most homey amateur show will put the folks in a bond buying frame of mind. The more elaborate stage productions can be dressed up as a bond show with patriotic numbers and embellishments. A large dancing chorus wore capes tied about the neck and after doing their routine facing the audience they turned their backs to the audience with the letter on each cape spelling out a war bond message.

The old time grocery auction for war bond bidders with promoted groceries is still a good bet in nabes and rural theatres. Many local talent groups will welcome the opportunity to cooperate in staging a show for you.

One of the greatest incentives in the world is competition. Here is an opportunity to foster competition with plenty of team work on the side. Many theatres have met with great success in aligning the various civic groups and patriotic organizations as competing teams, with the theatre receiving credit for the sales. A line up of thermometers were painted and displayed in the lobby to show the progress of each group's sales. This was red hot competition.

Youth groups are equally enthusiastic teams to set against each other for bond sales. Newsboys will assure publicity in their papers. Offer guest tickets as prizes. Organize, hold meetings, and the place to start is with a team of theatre employes to captain teams of their friends.

Parades

Everyone loves a parade and it only takes an excuse to get them to grab a flag and march or watch. It takes both to make a success. There are surely enough reasons for a parade in your town during the 4th War Loan Drive. The best advice we can offer is to line up a local gent with plenty of experience in staging parades and let him go to town for you. It is a task of organization and you will have to sell plenty of other local leaders on participating. Encourage floats, school bands, patriotic groups, workers, school children, civilian defense, and military personnel to participate wherever these are available. Even a jeep will add sparkle to a parade these days. Wind up at a speakers stand in front of your theatre for a bond rally.

Military Co-op

If you are within range of a military establishment you will find that they have been instructed to go all out in helping you to make the 4th War Loan a bang-up success. They will supply equipment for lobby and window display, for outdoor display with men to give the stuff life, for parades and for stage dressing at bond rallies or premieres. The services will supply speakers with battle experience wherever possible and if you are near a base hospital you can have the services of some real heroes to tell an audience the importance of buying those bonds.

All this adds up to the greatest degree of cooperation your own government can offer in helping you help your government. They will not come looking for you. Go after 'em!

Bond Booths

If you lack the facilities to construct a fancy bond booth for your lobby don't go through this drive without one. Just promote a desk or a table and drape the front with some bunting or 4th War Loan displays from the accessory kit which film salesmen are taking with them on their rounds. Presto . . . you have a bond booth at little or no cost and you can always line up patriotic war mothers or brides or sweethearts to staff the booth during show hours.

For those theatres with art shops, take a good look at that old bond booth that has done its bit and either redecorate it completely or throw it away and get yourself a fresh one. A bond booth that doesn't get a beauty treatment becomes frowsy in time and lack pep. How about it?

Program Exchange

Make Your Program Work For You in 4th War Loan And March of Dimes Drives

Despite the odd weather we've been having, this is no time to talk about the elements. Everywhere, throughout the motion picture industry, the Fourth War Loan and the March of Dimes drives are the main topics and the principal activities of everyone. The bond drive, which lasts from January 18 to February 15, and the Dimes drive, which starts January 24, must have the full attention and efforts of every theatreman if each drive is to reach, and we hope exceed, its goal.

Of the many and varied angles that will be used by showmen to stimulate the public's interest in these drives, not the least is the theatre program. Through this medium can be purveyed news of various activities in conjunction with the drives.

We are, of course, principally concerned with the Fourth War Loan here, so we shall devote the major part of our discussion to ways and means of using the program to keep interest in the campaign at a high pitch for its duration.

Utilize Your Mailing List

Your program mailing list is a valuable source of prospective bond purchasers. To those on the list you might send a personal appeal to buy war bonds, this personal appeal to accompany the regular issue of your program. You might even enclose subscription cards, which the recipient sends back to the theatre after he has indicated the amount of his subscription.

If you pass out programs in the theatre, give a subscription card with each one. These cards could also accompany copies of the selling accessory distributed in stores, hotels, restaurants and other business establishments.

We hardly need tell you that color is most important in your programs during the Fourth War Loan. If your printing plant has the facilities, use red and blue on white paper, or some other combination, if white paper isn't used, so as to get a patriotic-colors effect. If you can't use two colors, perhaps you can use either red or blue to make your bond messages stand out. Where colors are not available, your choice of type and illustration, as well as the prominence you accord it, will determine just how much attention your Fourth War Loan bond appeal and news in your program will attract.

Outline Activities in Program

Of course you'll be putting on many special activities, such as war bond premieres, special war bond matinees and nights, etc. Set forth the news and details of these activities in your programs. We are taking it for granted, of course, that such mediums as the newspapers, your screen, your lobby, special posters, etc., will also be used, and that mention of the activities in your house organ will complement these other mediums. But do not forget, just in case you are assuming that program mention is not necessary, that there may be people who look solely to your program for news of your theatre, and that should you fail to use this medium in the Fourth War Loan, these people might not be fully informed.

We don't know whether you use art or not, but here is an instance where its use would be most advisable. At any time, of course, art will dress up an ad, or folder, or story, or whatever it may be; so now, when your job is to get across a most vital message, the use of art is doubly important. If your program is printed by the offset process, you'll find it comparatively easy to cull sketches and illustrations from the Fourth War Loan Campaign Book. On the other hand, you may have to use mats, or even have cuts made, depending on your printer's facilities. Look through newspaper mat services for appropriate illustrations. In any case, we are not advocating that you go to a lot of extra expense. You will have to determine for yourself just how effective your art layout can be at the most economical cost.

One of our Program Exchange members informed us some time ago that he reserves a column in his program for news of activities on the patriotic front, which he culls from the various trade papers. If yours is the newsy, tabloid style of house organ, you would do well to follow his plan. Throughout the drive STR will carry news of developments, some of which you may want to pass on to the public via your program. As a matter of fact, and deviating slightly from the Fourth War Loan for just a minute, week after week STR's "On the Patriotic Front" page features news that provides material for just such a column.

You might utilize your program for some sort of a contest in which war bonds and stamps would serve as prizes. For example, we are thinking of a coloring contest in which bonds and stamps would be offered to youngsters who best color a sketch of Uncle Sam, or perhaps a drawing contest for the best sketches of Uncle Sam. You might also announce prizes for the best essays on such subjects as "Why We Should Buy War Bonds" or "Why We Should Increase Our Bond Purchases During the Fourth War Loan," or some other subject closely akin to the purpose of the drive. Local merchants should be glad to underwrite the cost of the bonds and stamps offered in the contest.

And while we're discussing this aspect of program utilization, an appeal might be made to the poetically-inclined to write a poem using as the first letter in the first word of each verse that which appears in "Fourth War Loan Drive." Thus, the first line of the poem would start with "f," the next line with "o," the next with "u," etc. In case this contest might be considered too difficult (amateur poets relish the opportunity to try the almost-impossible), perhaps a slogan contest might be better, again using the letters of "Fourth War Loan Drive" in constructing the slogan. You will perhaps think of other contests embodying the spirit of the campaign which you can introduce to your patrons through your program.

Your War Loan Program Cover

With several ad slugs and other elements available for spoting, many attractive styles of program covers for the Fourth War Loan drive can be effected. As an example, the suggested cover above features the Fourth War Loan shield, which you'll find in the campaign book, and an eagle which you should be able to duplicate. Perhaps you can have the above cover, with copy changes, enlarged for your own use.

Statements From Localites

An idea which not only would help the drive but also build goodwill between your theatre and the public, and your theatre and prominent civic officials, would be to seek statements about the campaign from leading localites and publish these statements, along with pictures of the leaders, in various issues of your program. It is human nature for one to be proud to see his name in print, and when it is linked with a cause so worthy and vital as this, it is quite likely that there would be no hesitation—on the contrary, there would be eagerness—on the part of those sought out to lend their endorsements.

One of the suggestions in the Fourth War Loan campaign calendar, which leads the special Fourth War Loan drive section in this issue, is that the week during which Abraham Lincoln's birthday falls be set aside as "Freedom Week," with a special effort being made at that time to stimulate bond sales. In this connection, you could run a picture of Lincoln on the front cover of your program, together with a message beneath the picture or somewhere inside the house organ, with reference made to the message on the cover, stating the activities that will take place during "Freedom Week." Other special weeks or days commemmorating important personages or events would also call for similar cover treatment.

March of Dimes Important

While you will be concerned principally with the Fourth War Loan, remember that the March of Dimes drive, January 24-30, is also dependent on your showmanly support for its success. Be sure to remind your patrons of the audience collections through notices in your program. Let them know of the great humanitarian importance of this drive. Let them know that there could be no greater tribute to President Roosevelt on his birthday January 30 than the fact that the March of Dimes drive has gone over the top; that the campaign against the deadly enemy on the homefront, the virus of infantile paralysis, has been won. It would be wise to use the illustration of the little girl in the wheel chair, so widely used in last year's campaign, as the principal illustrative theme of your program March of Dimes appeals, messages and news paragraphs.

For the period of the Fourth War Loan, and during the March of Dimes drive, these activities should overshadow news of your regular attractions. This does not mean that regular attraction-plugging in your program should be dispensed with, but it does mean that, for a while at least, the prominence of your attraction advertising will be decreased somewhat to permit heavier play to the Fourth War Loan and the March of Dimes.

That's all for this time. We'll see you next week. Meanwhile, we should be interested in seeing how you treated these two drives in your programs. So send us copies, won't you, please?

Ads and Accessories—Use 'em!

An impressive array of showmanship ad mats, slugs, and accessories have been created by the national committee working with National Screen Service. The exhibitor aids are very flexible and lend themselves to lobby, marquee or window display functions. Not shown are the burgees and valances, also the special bond application form which is being supplied by the Treasury Dept. Most of these items are included in a "Below Cost" 4th War Loan Kit from NSS.

Exploitation Brevities

The spirit of the "Honored Hundred" is exemplified by Glutz who, having expended his strongest efforts in putting across the Fourth War Loan Campaign through smart showmanship, has become one of the "100" and is ready for that Washington trip.

25 Try a street stunt along the lines of the roving reporter or mystery man idea. Have a man dressed as Uncle Sam, and announce that "Sam" will be in town and will give guest tickets to all who identify him and gives him the slogan he wants to hear.

26 Bondball is a game designed to sell war bonds and has produced worthy results. It is an adaptation of the play-by-play baseball stunt. Essential item is a large board with electric lights to indicate runs and keep the score. Board should be placed in a prominent spot, in front of the theatre, if possible, and consist of a painted baseball diamond covering most of the board, with cards to indicate the competing teams and the number of runs scored. Scheme can be adapted to an Army-Navy competition or localized to employes of industrial plants in team playoff. Barker encourages patrons to buy stamps and bonds, thus helping the team of their choice win the day's game. Stamp produces a single run, while a bond purchase brings in a home run.

27 An all-request program could be developed for your local radio station in a tieup with the theatre bond booth. Radio fans could leave their request accompanied by the purchase of a certain amount of war stamps or a bond, and the radio station in turn could announce the purchaser's name at the time the selection is played. You could make it a contest by not announcing the numbers played, then giving guest tickets to first so-many people who correctly name the numbers.

28 Try the "Buy a Bond and Help Hang Hitler" gag as a lobby stunt, with each bond purchaser entitled to pull on the rope, which can be rigged to a miniature block-and-tackle, regulated so that it will require a number of pulls to bring the effigy of Hitler to the top of the scaffold.

29 A bond luncheon should get your drive off to an enthusiastic start. A celebrity, stage, screen or radio star, could be guest of honor. Persons sitting nearest to honored guest would buy larger denomination "E" bonds. Cost for luncheon (or breakfast or dinner) could also include bond. Thus $20 would buy an $18.75 bond, with $1.25 to pay for the luncheon.

30 Where ample outside lobby space is available, larger theatres might be able to either construct or purchase a papier-mache Liberty Bell which, when hooked up with an animation device, could appear to be ringing. A sound effect record of ringing bell could be playing through a p.a. system, giving a realistic effect and attracting much attention to your war bond booth or display setpiece.

31 Here's a contest to build goodwill between industry, merchants and theatre. Appoint teams from department stores, war plants, utilities, etc., and have them compete for the largest purchases of war bonds. Team exceeding its quota would receive a loving cup, plaque or other suitable trophy. Scoreboard at the theatre could reveal the progress of the teams. Dutch treat luncheons for the team chairmen would build interest, and theatre party for the teams could wind up the event.

32 It would be wise to create a new and different war bond booth for your lobby. The Fourth War Loan campaign book features a sketch of a booth which plays up the "4"; use that as the basis for yours.

33 Develop a press or radio contest. Suggested topic: "What the Purchase of a War Bond Means to Me." Interest might be heightened by creating a preliminary elimination, setting aside one day for war plant workers, another for utility employes, another for students, etc., with the daily winners competing for a grand award. Judges should be chosen from leading civic and literary circles. A variation of this contest may take the form of limericks, with a winning line to be added to three lines furnished by you.

34 Have a town crier dressed in colonial costume, with the wig and dinner bell, walk around town shouting a war bond message such as this: "Hear ye, hear ye, hear ye. Let's all back the attack by buying extra bonds at the Blank Theatre. Fourth War Loan drive."

35 Your art department could build a large imitation block-buster bomb which could be placed in the lobby, with the public invited to "sign a bomb when you buy a bond."

36 Cooperative page ads stressing the patriotic angle should be promoted. Try a Scrambled Slogan Contest using "Let's All Back the Attack." Letters comprising this slogan can be mixed through the ads or jumbled in one group, with merchants donating prizes for the most artistic arrangement of the unjumbled letters featuring a patriotic motif. Each entry would have to be accompanied by the purchase of a dollar's worth of war stamps at the theatre bond booth in order to be eligible for prizes. A display of the entries could be used in lobbies and merchant windows. Try a Word Contest in which prizes are awarded for the greatest number of words assembled from the slogan referred to above. Try also a contest in which insignia or emblem cuts are spotted throughout the page, with prizes going to readers who correctly identify them and submit the most artistic arrangements.

Let's All Back The Attack!

37 Patriotic music builds the bond-buying urge. Therefore, play such music on your non-sync before and after the show, during intermission, and on your sound truck street ballyhoos. If your local radio station has a good singer who could record brief singing spot announcements to be rebroadcast, old favorite tunes with patter built around theatre bond sales and your show should get good results.

38 Prizes could be awarded in a contest for the most unusual signatures of persons buying war bonds. If there is a handwriting expert in your community, induce him or her to serve as judge of the contest, and such an expert might supply an interesting subject for personal broadcasts to lend pep to the contest.

39 Theatres are frequently called upon to supply talent and entertainment for civic events, benefits, etc. You could set war bonds as the price for such talent. Thus a band that would usually be supplied gratis for some charitable event might be "sold" to the organization for, say $25,000 in bonds purchased through the theatre. Idea can be applied to almost any situation in which talent is supplied.

40 Promote an amateur boxing match or wrestling bout on the stage of your theatre. Price of admission: bond and stamp purchases. Ringside seats could be scaled as high as the tariff would allow, and the tickets could be placed on sale in various stores for resulting publicity.

41 Popularity contests can be used as a money-getting stage event and a seller of bonds and stamps. Set up voting for most popular girl in war plants, most popular salesgirl, most popular high school or college girl, with each contest running a week, and have a grand elimination as a finale to select your city's most popular girl. War bonds would be a good prize for the winner. Voting could be on the basis of one vote for each war stamp purchased at the theatre bond booth or could be expanded to include issuance of votes by local merchants. Press and radio cooperation is certain. Winners could assist in war bond rallies throughout the community. Cooperative newspaper ads are assured, particularly if the contest is city-wide. In establishing candidates, seek entry of girls with speaking or entertaining ability plus good looks. Contact women's clubs and civic groups to get high type girls who will be a credit to your town.

42 Get model-building hobbyists to compete for prizes with miniature airplanes, tanks, ships, guns, etc. This type of contest can be equally good through either the press or radio, although the press is better able to cover the results with pictures. Models entered would make an excellent window or lobby display and attract no end of attention to your bond message.

43 Theatres could sponsor a radio record to the boys in the service overseas. This could be handled by a radio search for the largest family of a local service man. Undoubtedly a sufficient number of such families can be found to make this stunt worthy of a nightly radio feature. The thought would be to have the guest family broadcast a radio letter from the home town. A transcription which would include a very brief introduction by the mayor or some city official followed by informal gossip about what's going on back home under the direction of an M. C.

44 Let the old "Tall Story Contest" work for your Fourth War Loan drive. Through the press and radio, award prizes for tallest tale on "What I Would Do With $15,000,000,000." Limit number of words, and have literary and humorist personalities serve as judges.

45 Some good activities involving children: War bond for the first baby born after midnight, January 18. War bond for the prettiest baby, the most healthy baby, the most attractive blonde or brunette, etc. You might hold a Perambulator Parade, with war bond prizes for the most attractively decorated coach stressing the Fourth War Loan drive.

46 Hold an insignia contest for the artistically inclined. Children and grownups alike could compete and school art departments could be contacted for judges and cooperation. Suggest that designs follow the "Attack" theme. Stunt should bring in some excellent display material.

47 Using the line, "Fourth War Loan—Let's All Back the Attack," run a jumbled words contest in merchant cooperative ads or scattered through the newspaper's classified columns. Set a reasonable deadline for returns and make the prizes attractive. Another sure-fire classified page gag is to scatter the names of local citizens through the columns with the tag that "If Mrs. So-and-So will call at the bond booth of the Blank Theatre and buy one dollar's worth of war stamps she will receive a guest ticket free to see (name of attraction)."

The Box Office Slant

Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves

(Technicolor)

Universal Drama 87 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 14th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Has excitement and entertainment for all, and will particularly attract the younger patrons.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Suited for any situation and will pay handsome dividends if backed by vigorous exploitation.

Cast: Maria Montez, Jon Hall, Turhan Bey, Andy Devine, Kurt Katch, Frank Puglia, Fortunio Bonanova, Moroni Olsen, Ramsay Ames, Chris-Pin Martin, Scotty Beckett, Yvette Duguay, Noel Cravat, Jimmy Conlin, Harry Cording. Credits: Produced by Paul Malvern. Directed by Arthur Lubin. Written for the screen by Edmund L. Hartmann. Directors of photography, George Robinson and W. Howard Greene. Technicolor director, Natalie Kalmus. Associate, William Fritzsche. Special photography, John P. Fulton.

Plot: When the son of the Caliph of Bagdad escapes the Mongolian conquerors who wiped out his family, he joins a horde of bandits. Grown to manhood, he becomes their leader. As such they prey on the thieving Mongolians and after each raid return the loot to its rightful owner. He eventually saves his childhood sweetheart from marrying the cruel ruler and then, when a revolt disposes of the conquerors, marries the girl himself.

Comment: This spectacular picture is money in the bank and is suitable for any situation. The well-known story of Ali Baba is given a neat twist to make him not only a gentleman thief, but the Caliph himself, fight against enemy aggressors. Dressed up magnificently with color, the Arabian Nights background is vivid and impressive. The costumes, palaces, gardens, and the market place, are like lurid flashes of the rainbow splashed on a setting both fantastic and real, for the familiarity of the story to the American public makes it seem real. Maria Montez looks beautiful as the harem-sought prize of the Mongol conqueror Hulagu Khan, although the faulty slide of her diction makes her words difficult on occasion. Jon Hall as Ali Baba, a combination of thief and Caliph, carries the picture along through most of the many horse chases and the sword fights. The work of three men stand out in the picture, Turhan Bey, Kurt Katch and Frank Puglia, the latter two doing excellent jobs of the Khan and the villainous Prince, respectively. The gravel voice and face of Andy Devine and the well-known voice of Fortunio Bonanova are a little difficult to take in that period as we are so familiar with them in other surroundings. Considerable credit should go to Producer Paul Malvern for the adroit way the original tale was manipulated to get this story, and for the masterful settings and scenery. Direction by Arthur Lubin is that of the practiced artist who maintains continuity while keeping the actors natural to the time. Some of the mob scenes, with swords flashing, shot from unusual angles show well-thought-out efforts to get striking effects. Sell this in cooperation with bookstores. Run your advertising and herald campaign with a teaser on "Who Were the Forty Thieves of Bagdad?". Rig up a float resembling the cave they lived in, and have a man inside open the door when a voice outside calls "Open, Oh Sesame." Have the man hand out heralds to each one for whom the cave doors are opened, with a pass included occasionally to sustain interest.

Legion of Decency Ratings

(For Week Ending Jan. 15)

Legion of Decency ratings for this period were not available at press time. Therefore, these ratings, combined with those for week ending Jan. 22, will appear next week.

Raiders Of The Border

Monogram Western 53 mins.

(Nat'l Release, January 31)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Should click with the action fans and others looking for red-blooded entertainment.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: A better-than-average program feature. Good enough for any spot.

Plot: Two United States Marshals are sent to catch a gang of cattle thieves, who are also smuggling jewels across the Mexican border. They find that a young lady in charge of a trading post has unwittingly become a foil for the crooks. After plenty of fist-slinging and double-dealing, they round up the villains and straighten the whole mess out.

Comment: A better-than-average western with some good story twists, plenty of action and other elements, that will be enjoyed by all the patrons of outdoor films. Under the direction of John P. McCarthy, the picture moves along speedily, with some excellent gunplay and the type of riding that will click with the followers of red-blooded entertainment. The production values by Scott R. Dunlap show the extra care taken to make these Johnny Mack Brown-Raymond Hatton series better than the standard sagebrush dramas. Both Brown and Hatton deliver fine performances, aided by good troupers, including Edmund Cobb, an old-timer. Where this series has a following, you have a ready-made audience, but this one is worthy of extra selling effort to develop new patrons for western fare.

Lifeboat

20th Century-Fox Drama 96 mins.

(National Release, January 28)

AUDIENCE SLANT: A moving and engrossing picture with that Hitchcock suspense, unusual direction and production treatment that should make it a subject for wide discussion and consequent strong attendance in most situations.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: The combination of Hitchcock and Steinbeck should have "Lifeboat" riding in with the record-breakers.

Cast: Tallulah Bankhead, William Bendix, Walter Slezak, Mary Anderson, John Hodiak, Henry Hull, Heather Angel, Hume Cronyn, Canada Lee. Credits: Produced by Kenneth Macgowan. Directed by Alfred Hitchcock. Screenplay by Jo Swerling. Original story by John Steinbeck. Director of photography, Glen MacWilliams. Special photographic effects, Fred Sersen. Art direction, James Basevi and Maurice Ransford. Music, Hugo W. Friedhofer. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Technical Adviser, Thomas Fitzsimmons of the National Maritime Union.

Plot: This is the story of three women and six men—adrift in a lifeboat after the sinking of a freighter by a German submarine—living, loving, hating, hoping; and of their eventual rescue by an Allied cruiser.

Comment: With only the corner of a hat-check room as his background, Director Alfred Hitchcock could undoubtedly fashion an interesting and absorbing story within that small space. Of course, there's a little more room in a lifeboat, to be sure; but even the limits of such a vessel would tax the imagination and ingenuity of any writer and director to confine the action of a picture to that space and keep the picture moving for an hour and a half. Such a problem has been successfully solved in "Lifeboat," thanks to John Steinbeck, who wrote the original story, and Director Hitchcock. From beginning to end, this picture holds one's undivided attention. That seat-squirming suspense, for which Hitchcock is noted, is perhaps a little more subtle here, but it is present, nevertheless. Essentially, there are few new twists to the story: what happens to the characters in the lifeboat is more or less what one would expect to happen to characters thrown together in such a situation. And then, too, on several occasions, the actions of these characters—at least during the early moments of the film—seem somewhat trite; there is a lack of sincerity. But as the picture moves along, this fault gradually vanishes. "Lifeboat" cannot be termed entertainment in the general sense of that word, for its atmosphere is depressing, despite the moments of humor; but it is still so engrossing and moves along so smoothly that one can't help but be impressed with the results. It is a picture which should receive wide discussion—and this should tend to stimulate interest on the part of those who have not seen it. Tallulah Bankhead is just as those who have followed her career would expect her to be, and for those who will be introduced to her acting for the first time through this picture, she presents a talent that's refreshing and invigorating and possessed by few, if any, other actresses. Performances are uniformly good. The combination of Hitchcock and Steinbeck should have "Lifeboat" riding in with the record-breakers at the box-office, and it is so unusual in directorial treatment and production values that it will have everybody talking. It is a highly exploitable picture, with excellent returns in store for the showman who gets behind it and sells it for the unusual and absorbing picture that it is.

Gerald Ulion, Miss Seas' predecessor at the Stillman is now manager Howard Burkhardt's second assistant at the State, the first assistant being Don Abeles.

Frank Greenwald, who deserted the film business three years ago to operate a bowling alley, is back again in the fold. He has been appointed manager of the Jewel, an Associated Circuit house.

Max Jacobs, who operates the independent Imperial Pictures exchange, is distributing an Amkino subject, "Black Sea Fighters." The picture played its first territorial engagement at Loew's Valentine Theatre Toledo, where it was so well received that it was moved over to Loew's Esquire for a second week.

DES MOINES

The March of Dimes campaign is being set up with the most enthusiasm the drive has ever received in Iowa and Nebraska, A. H. Blank, chairman for the two states, reported. At the present time a total of 390 theatres in the two states have sent in their pledges, which compares with 289 taking part in the drive last year.

The city council at Charles City has passed a curfew ordinance requiring all children under 17 years of age to be off the streets at 10:30 p.m. at night. Violators face fines up to $10, but the new law states no child may be placed under confinement until the parent or guardian shall have refused to be held responsible.

Plans are under way to rebuild the Iowa Theatre at Shenandoah, which was virtually destroyed by fire last month. Frank A. Van Husen of the Western Theatre Supply Company estimated it would take at least $30,000 to put the house back in order. The house was remodeled five years ago, making it one of the finest for its size in the state. Owners are Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Holdridge, who also operate the State Theatre at Shenandoah.

Earl Kerr, who operates theatres at Council Bluffs, Vinton, and Bedford, Iowa, has opened a theatre at Caledonia, Minn. The Manson Theatre at Manson has been sold to G. H. Partlow by Bill McGraw, the former owner.

Joe Davidson, booker at the 20th Century-Fox exchange at Des Moines, has been transferred to the Cleveland, Ohio, Fox office as a booker. The Des Moines staff presented Davidson with a leather traveling bag as a farewell gift. Eddie Jacobs, former salesman, will come into the Des Moines office as head booker and city salesman.

Forrest Judd, former Des Moines Monogram manager, spent several days visiting his friends in film row after an absence of more than a year. He is now a technical sergeant in the Signal Corps and stationed at New York.

Other Des Moines visitors included Woody Sherill, former MGM office manager, and Bob Johns, a booker formerly with MGM.

DETROIT

Mrs. Alice Gorham of United Detroit Theatres Corp. has been named chairman of the theatres section of the special Advertising Committee for the Fourth War Loan Drive. Her appointment was announced by Frank N. Isbey, chairman of Michigan's War Finance Committee.

Dave Idzal, manager of the Fox Theatre, is turning over the vast seating capacity of that house for the big midnight show of Jan. 28 for the benefit of the Infantile Paralysis Fund. It is the second straight year the show has been given at the Fox.

Detroiters, who have laughed themselves sick at the antics of Olsen and Johnson and their zany entertainers in the flesh during the two-week appearance of the comedy duo at the Cass Theatre, continued their shrieks at the Fox Theatre last week, where "Crazy House" was showing. Olsen and Johnson broke attendance records at the Cass with their "Sons O' Fun," and the Fox was expected to profit heavily from the thousands who were unable to get tickets for the personal appearance of the comedy team.

Although three legitimate theatres are drawing the crowds, the motion picture houses in Detroit do not seem to be suffering from lack of attendance. "What a Life," the Henry Aldrich comedy, continued at the Lafayette and "Maid in the Ozarks" was held over at the Wilson.

Detroit will get the first showing of RKO's "Tender Comrade" anywhere outside of Los Angeles. The picture will open at the Michigan Theatre Jan. 28 in a pre-release premiere.

W. J. Carroll, 67 years old, one of the pioneer motion-picture theatre owners in Jackson, Mich., died in that city recently after an illness of a year.

INDIANAPOLIS

Carl Shalit, Columbia district manager, was a visitor at the local Columbia exchange Tuesday and Wednesday.

Harvey Cocks, general manager of the Quimby Theatres, Ft. Wayne, spent several days in Chicago recently, selecting talent for stage presentations.

Kenneth Collins, manager for the Dolle-Katz Theatres here, spent Friday in Chicago attending a regional meeting on the 1944 "March of Dimes" campaign.

Burdette N. Peterson, manager of the National Theatre Supply Co., has been granted an extension by his draft board until March 1.

Herbert Boss, Paramount booking department, was inducted into the armed forces Saturday, January 8. His successor has not been named.

It is reported on Filmrow that the Dreamland Theatre, Fowler, Ind., was sold to J. Levy of Chicago by the operators, Mr. and Mrs. Griffis.

Moyne Griffiths of the Columbia exchange office staff, and John W. Maroetta, aviation cadet stationed at Youngstown, Ohio, were married January 8.

Sam Switow, of the Switow Circuit, Louisville, Ky., is all smiles. He is now a proud "grandpa," according to the Filmrow gossip.

CONNECTICUT PLANNERS. Theater men throughout the Nutmeg state meet in New Haven to discuss plans for participation in the War Loan Drive. Left to right, seated: I. J. Hoffman, Warner Bros. Theaters and state chairman of the WAC; Mayor John W. Murphy of New Haven; Si Fabian of New York, WAC chairman of the theater division. Standing: Ed Schreiber of New York, member of the national WAC; William Falsey of New Haven, local WAC chairman, and Harry F. Shaw of the Loew-Poli New England Theaters and state chairman for the War Loan Drive. They are studying the press book.

Harrold Lloyd Beecroft has been sent here as a temporary manager of the 20th-Fox exchange during the illness of George Landis, manager.

Doyle Carter, who operates the Roxy Theatre, Bloomington, is rapidly recovering from a severe attack of influenza.

E. L. Orenstein, who is reported to have very large feet, is driving a new Buick Car. He says it was a present from Santa Claus. Filmrow is asking what size sock does E. L. wear?

Mrs. Barbara Boll, wife of K. H. Boll, manager of the Royal Theatre, Brownstown, has returned from the east, where she spent three weeks vacation with her husband, who is in the service of the Merchant Marine.

Box office receipts have been adversely affected by inclement weather conditions in all parts of Indiana, and new all-time low records are reported. Influenza, an epidemic of severe throat infections and, more recently, scarlet fever and meningitis. Two more meningitis cases hospitalized Saturday brought the total number of persons stricken during the week to 17 in Indianapolis.

MEMPHIS

The population of Memphis has increased so rapidly with the addition of the Second Army Headquarters, the Army Services Forces Depot, the Fourth Ferrying Command and the Naval Training Station at nearby Millington—to which is added visitors from Army camps throughout the Tri-states area and visiting relatives of the men and women—that even though the flu epidemic struck here as hard as elsewhere it made little noticeable inroad on theatre attendance, according to loop and neighborhood managers. Film Row probably suffered more, with employes absent in great numbers because of illness than any other division of the theatre business.

New employes at Universal exchange are: Corlene DeLoach, who replaces Marelena Scruggs in the booking department, and Mrs. Kathryn Cagle, cashier.

Cupid staged a blitz through the offices of Columbia exchange with officers from the Fourth Ferrying Command carrying off prized employes. First to succumb to the arrow was May Evans, inspectress, who married Lieut. Wiltgen, of the Ferry Command. She has been replaced by Mrs. K. Gibbs. June Paschal, postal clerk, was the next one to become a casualty. She turned over her desk to Melba Driver. A new contract clerk, Joyce Camp, has taken over the duties of Mrs. Margaret Morgan, who takes up the duties of motherhood.

Ophelia Gaulding has been appointed secretary to the branch manager at MGM exchange.

Jimmy Sharrum, of the Shendal, Walnut Ridge, Ark., was visiting Film Row last week.

J. J. Donahue, Paramount district manager, Dallas, conducted a sales meet at the local exchange last week.

The Clay Theatre, Hackett, Ark., has been sold to Spencer Kyle, Pateau, Okla. It was formerly owned by Clay Gorman.

Corp. Richard Bryant, booker for Stand Enterprises, is home on sick leave. He is with the Air Corps.

Lt. Frank Heard, former MGM salesman, was visiting Film Row last week. He is stationed at Jacksonville, Fla.

Ward Carpenter, Lieut. (JG) and former booker at Warner Bros. exchange, was home on a visit last week.

MIAMI

The Fourth War Loan Drive is under way in Miami, with all theatres cooperating in the "bond for every theatre seat" campaign. Publicity Director Jack Clark is heading the activities at Paramount Enterprises, and Leslie Swaebe, manager of the Rosetta, is handling Wometco Theatres' program with publicist Charlie Shaw.

The War Chest Drive has also started here. Advance gifts of $2,500 each from Wometco and Paramount started off the drive.

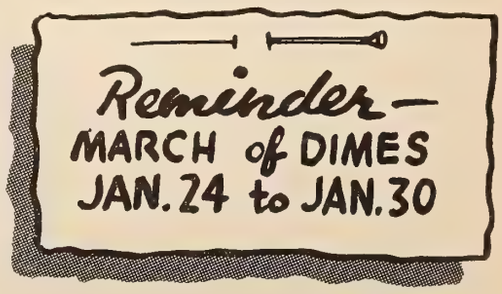
The parade of Hollywood personalities to Miami Beach continues, with Orson Welles and wife Rita Hayworth much in the news. Noel Coward stopped at the Tatem for a few days last week, and Frances Dee was also here entertaining for the USO.

Gerry Sparks, advertising artist at Paramount, resigned this week. Her position will be filled by Eleanor Morgan, former Fleischer Studio artist.

Another Paramount employe, Katharine "Tattee" Somma, is in San Francisco for a month visiting her sea-going husband. "Tattee" is secretary to Al Weiss, Olympia manager.

Earl Potter, Wometco's relief manager, is handling the Mayfair temporarily, replacing Army-bound Claude Norton. Bill Bozarth, assistant at the Miami Theatre, has been moved up to the top spot, replacing new-Marine Mark Chartrand. Jimmy Draughn is his assistant.

NEW YORK



Lee Mayer, New Jersey salesman for Warners, is in the first ten among salesmen from all Warner exchanges in the Round-Up Drive. Following his line of action, Lee has spent the past week in the outlying portions of his territory.

Edward Hausmer has joined the 20th Century-Fox ad sales department.

All those at Monogram who were in sick bay are back at work. Maybe that big New Year's Eve party had something to do with getting them feeling better.

United Artists, has been transferred to the Philadelphia office. At last word, his place was to be taken by Richard Perry, formerly with the Monogram outfit in Albany.

Jack Bowen, MGM district manager, returned to his desk last Friday after a 10-day siege with the flu. Mrs. Bowen is in the hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Ann (Moe) Levy, Bob Wolff's secretary at RKO Radio, was forced to take a week off because of illness. This is quite a statement when it is remembered that it was the first time in 14 years, since Miss Levy has been with RKO, that she has ever lost a day.

Clarence Eiseman, Warner branch manager, went to Lakewood last week for a rest, following flu-doings.

Madeleine Anderson, secretary to Ralph Pielow, MGM branch manager and new president of the Film Board of Trade, is confined to the hospital. It's pneumonia.

George Jeffries, UA representative at Albany, paid a visit last week to the local office for conferences.

The Manhattan Theatre at 213 Manhattan Avenue has changed hands.

John Dacey, shorts chief at RKO Radio, is insisting those trade showings of shorts he holds every Tuesday afternoon are worth seeing. That means you, says John, as he mails out a few million more announcements.

Bill Panzella of MGM's booking department was inducted recently by the Navy and reported for duty last Friday.

Bellmont Gottlieb, circuit salesman at 20th Century-Fox, finally passed all his exams and expects to go into the Army on March 1.

Warners' cashier, Harry Hummell, was still away from the office at last reckoning. He has been having a bout for the last month with virus pneumonia.

Gertrude Strull, assistant cashier at United Artists, gave a pint of her blood to the Red Cross last week. She's setting an example for the boys; get in line.

Walter Allen, Paramount shipper, has resigned.

Following the nose-dive in pre-Christmas theatre business, Omaha snapped out of it starting Christmas eve and the following week was one of the best in the history of the business.

Now they are telling that Louise Carter, Brandeis Theatre publicity chief who has plugged as many fright pictures here as anyone, woke up the other night screaming. It seems the gestapo suddenly burst into her room—during one of her dreams.

Mel Krouse has sold his theatre at Tilden, Neb., to M. T. Rethwisch and is moving to Washington.

PORTLAND

Oregon Motion Picture exhibitors and film exchange heads were guests this week of Governor Earl Snell at the Capitol Building. On the Oregon finance committee for the 4th Loan Drive were Louis Amacher, MGM; Albert J. Finke, Evergreen Theatres; Bob White of Oregon Independent Theatres Association; M. M. Mesher and Earl Hunt of Evergreen Theatres; and R. O. Wilson, Universal.

Vic Gauntlett, exploiter for Evergreen-State theatres, Seattle, is back at his desk after a siege of flu.

Archie Holt, eastern Washington salesman for 20th-Fox, is back to Inland Empire after a Seattle conference.

Mrs. Helen M. Lamond has been named as a member of the Portland Municipal Board of Review.

John Von Herberg, son of J. Von Herberg, of Jensen-Von Herberg theatres, has been made a Captain in the U. S. Air Forces.

A. Myer of Portland has purchased the Victory Theatre in Seattle from J. Knuth.

T. F. White and G. B. White have taken over the operation of the Almo Theatre in Poulsbo, Wash., from J. Almos.

ST. LOUIS

Rex Williams, resident manager for the Loew's theatres, is in the Deaconess Hospital as the result of injuries sustained several days ago when his automobile was struck by another machine. He probably will be bedded down for some time.

John X. Quinn, St. Louis manager for MGM, is a patient at St. John's Hospital. The m.ds. have prescribed absolute rest and quiet and the "No Visitors" sign is on the door.

Tilden Dickson, Crystal City, Mo., exhibitor, spent the Christmas and New Year's holidays with his wife and son who are in Arizona for their health.

The annual meeting of the St. Louis Amusement Company's stockholders will be held at the directors' room, 1304 Ambassador Building, on January 18, for the purpose of electing five directors to serve during the ensuing year. Thomas L. Farrington is president and Clarence M. Turley, secretary.

The Defense Plant Corporation has purchased the Hammer Dry Plate and Film Company's plant in St. Louis. The plant has been engaged 100 per cent in the production of plates and film for war purposes for some time. The price paid was $286,000.

Fred Kelsick of the Motion Picture Machine Operators Union, No. 143, is a vice-president of Central Trades and Labor Union, the city's central labor body.

Frank X. Reller, chief probation officer of the St. Louis Juvenile Court, has made a swell suggestion to aid in curbing delinquency among children. In a letter sent to all of the draft boards in St. Louis he has urged that the fathers of delinquent children be immediately inducted into military service if their wives also are working. He contends that the dads have no right to claim dependency deferments if their wives are working and their children are running wild and becoming public charges. Records of the Juvenile Court show that there is a definite relation between unsupervised homes and juvenile delinquency.

Fred Wehrenberg, head of the circuit that bears his name, is going around with his right arm in a sling. While skating at his suburban home he struck an air pocket in the ice and was thrown. He chipped his right arm near the shoulder. Film salesmen may have a tough time getting him to put his John Henry to a contract for some time.

Lieut. John H. Lashly, 27, son of Jacob M. Lashly, former president, American Bar Association, who was one of the counsel for the defense in the two anti-trust cases tried here in 1935 against Warner Brothers et al, is reported missing in action in the European theatre of war since December 11. The trade screening for MGM's "A Guy Named Joe" and "Broadway Rhythm" will be held at Ruby S'Rence's screening room Monday, January 17.

VANCOUVER

Ernie Sonsteby, recently manager of Monogram, Vancouver, is now circulation manager of the Vancouver News Herald.

Al Jenkins of the Plaza reported heavy business on a twin bill of "Pistol Packin' Mama" and "In Old Oklahoma," and it was held for a second week.

Reg Bisson is now manager of the Lonsdale North Vancouver, an Odeon unit. Reg was wounded in the Dieppe raid and received his honorable discharge. He succeeds A. Columbine, who retired.

Russ McTavish of the Cambie has been ordered by his doctor to take a leave of absence from his theatre. His wife will carry on at the Cambie. McTavish is the head of the Vancouver Theatre Assoc.

Harry Phillit, who runs the theatre at Dawson Creek, has taken over the Gem Theatre, Edmonton from Len Gooderich, who has operated it for the past 19 years. This theatre is across the street from the F. P. Dreamland and seats 550. Its chief diet is western and action pictures. Mike Phillit, a brother of Harry, resigned as Monogram manager at Calgary to take over the Gem. George Lynch, Paramount salesman, will follow Mike as Monogram's Alberta manager.

Stan Pooley, manager of the Strand, was a recent flu victim. Ivan Ackery of the Orpheum also away sick, but both now back on the job.

The Orpheum is holding a contest to find out if Vancouver has a Frank Sinatra in conjunction with the showing of "Higher and Higher." Finals will be held and the contest winners will be announced from the stage of the Orpheum January 21 with the opening of the picture. One hundred dollar prizes will be given in a tie-up with a local music store.

Among new companies incorporated in British Columbia last week was the Strand Theatre Co. (1944) Ltd. This is a unit of Famous Players.

The easing of restrictions on Canadians visiting the United States is announced by the U. S. Immigration Dept. In future persons born in Canada need not have a passport or visa to cross the border for a period of less than 30 days. Restrictions were relaxed similarly for persons born in the British Isles. This will affect British Columbia border towns such as Mission, Abbotsford, White Rock, Penticton and other places with theatres close to the line, for most Canadians go to the towns in the State of Washington to see the Sunday shows (none in B. C.). The Sumas, Washington State Theatre has been closed down since the ban on border crossings went into effect. It is now open again and takes Canadian funds at par value.

The Strand Theatre, a F. P. house in Chilliwack, was the victim of safe-crackers who got away with $1000. The Fraser, Vancouver, was also entered over Christmas and lost gift tickets and sundry goods.

A Vancouver visitor was R. R. Kiefer of Hardistry, Alberta, where he runs a four-town circuit (Hardistry, Irma, Viking, and Sedgwick). Kiefer has had a good season, but is now closed while he takes a well-earned rest on the Pacific Coast.

A high bonus to theatres, especially the Famous Players and Odeon Circuits, will result from the decision of the B. C. Utility Board, who have been investigating the B. C. Electric Corp. The decision gives all users of electric power a month's free power on the mainland, which includes the Vancouver district, and two months free electricity on Vancouver Island, including Victoria.

WASHINGTON

Charlotte Duncan, secretary to Warner Theatres' Frank La Falce, just gave her fifth blood donation to the Red Cross. Three more and she will be entitled to a red ribbon to attach to the silver pin she has already received.

Bill Brooker, Paramount exploitation man, was in town to pay a visit and to discuss his latest pictures, "No Time for Love" and "Riding High," which will play the Earle Theatre. C. N. O'Dell, of Paramount, was also a recent visitor.

Jack Forney, manager of the Tivoli Theatre, Frederick, and Ted Crowther, manager of the Opera House, Frederick, leave for the Navy and the Army, respectively.

Joan McNamara of MGM is being trained for the job of assistant to the branch manager's secretary. Betty Shaw, formerly employed at Metro, is leaving for California to visit relatives.

Visitor from the MGM home office, H. M. Richey, spent some time conferring with his Washington staff.

Mr. Al Burks, MGM exploiteer from Charlotte, was a recent visitor. While here, he entertained his son, 1st Lieut. George Burks, who is stationed at Ft. Meade.

MGM Salesman Paul Wall will journey to Charlotte to acquaint himself with the accounts formerly belonging to Pete Prince, who expects induction into the Armed Services very soon. Pete was formerly a booker for the Washington exchange.

John Flaherty of the Universal home office visited the exchange here last week. Dick Cohen, son of Branch Manager Max Cohen, has enlisted in the Army Air Force.

The new Universal Technicolor picture, "Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves," was screened for bookers and salesmen.

Fred Schuss of the Durkee Circuit and Lawrence Schanberger of Keith's in Baltimore, were film row visitors.

C. E. Peppiatt, 20th Century-Fox branch manager, spent a day in Baltimore.

Flora Cohn, former booker at Fox, is now connected with Prudential in New York.

Local F-13 had installation of officers last week, as did Local B-13. Pearl Torney, retiring president for B-13, installed the officers of Local F-13 and Sara Young, president of Local F-13, did the honors for Local B-13. The officers of Local F-13 are: Sara Young, president; Bertha Boyd, vice-president; Ida Barezofsky, recording secretary; Esther Katznewl, financial secretary; Agnes Turner, treasurer; Camilla Nau, guardian. On the executive board are Oscar Blumenthal, Ethel Risdon and Eleanor McKinley; and on the board of trustees are Helen Paulson, Ann Griffin and Jeff Smith.

Jack Safer, Monogram salesman, has been traveling a bit lately to Charlotte, and Roanoke, necessitating celebrating his birthday away from home.

Mark Friedland, exploitation man for Monogram's "Women in Bondage" and "Where Are Your Children?", has been a visitor. "Women in Bondage" played two weeks at the Maryland Theatre, and "Where Are Your Children?" opens in Baltimore.

Naomi Rich of Paramount went to Rhode Island to join her husband, who is in the Navy. Pvt. Bob Cummingham was in from Chicago on furlough, to visit the office.

Paramount District Manager Earl Sweigert was a recent visitor, and brought the girls of the office a very nice box of candy.

PRODUCTION NOTES FROM THE STUDIOS

RKO Borrows McGuire, Marshall from Selznick; Paramount Signs Brackett to New Pact; Story is Bought for Stanwyck

▶Switch in production schedule at Columbia has resulted in directorial assignment change for Lew Landers. His next picture, to be produced by Jack Fier, will be "Mission Thirty-Six," instead of "Girl in the Case," which Sam White will produce. Both will be under the supervision of John Stone.

▶Lionel Atwill and Jean Parker, latter playing the title role, have been signed to head the cast of "Lady in the Death House," Jack Schwarz production for PRC release which starts this week under the direction of Steve Sekely. Also set for featured roles were Marcia Mae Jones and Douglas Fowley.

▶Marking the completion of his tenth year in motion pictures, John Warburton, English actor, signed a long-term pact with MGM. The contract followed his performance as a British Officer in "White Cliffs," Irene Dunne starrer.

▶Complete cast has been signed to support Sidney Toler in "Murder in the Fun House," second in Monogram's new Charlie Chan detective series. Among the supporters are Joan Woodbury, Ian Keith and Mantan Moreland. Phil Rosen is directing for Krasne-Burkett Productions.

▶Paramount has signed Charles Brackett to a new two-year contract as a writer-producer. Brackett produced "The Uninvited" as his first production. He currently is preparing "Olympia," the Ferenc Molnar play which Billy Wilder will direct, and "To Each His Own," from an original story idea of his own.

▶First of three scheduled for Don Barry before he leaves on a camp tour got under way at Republic. Titled "Outlaws of Santa Fe," the Eddy White production will also feature Wally Vernon, Helen Talbot and Twinkle Watts. Howard Bretherton has been named as director.

▶Dorothy (Claudia) McGuire and Alan Marshall have been borrowed by RKO from D. O. Selznick to star in "I Married the Navy" which Richard Wallace will direct under the co-production of Val Lewton and Emmet Lavery. Sid Rogell supervises.

Discuss Script of New Film

Producer-Director Mark Sandrich discusses the script of his new forthcoming Paramount film, "I Love a Soldier," with star Paulette Goddard. The film's male star is Sonny Tufts.

Mrs. Showman Goes Studio Strolling

Dear Mr. Exhibitor's Wife:

Today we're off to Universal and the "Merry Monahans" set. We're going to watch Jack Oakie, Donald O'Connor and Peggy Ryan do a few numbers.

Our escort, Anne Meyers, tells us a little about the picture as she leads us toward the stage where they're shooting. It's about a theatrical family, their struggles and their eventual rise to fame.

We enter what is supposed to be the Colonial Theatre in Chicago in the year 1917. There we find the three principals rehearsing on the stage, under the supervision of Director Charles Lamont. Donald's in black-face, for he's going to imitate Al Jolson doing his famous number, Rock-a-Bye Your Baby. Peggy is all padded out and dressed up in a blue satin evening gown with a white ermine cape and all the necessary trimmings . . . plus a blonde wig . . . for she's going to imitate Sophie Tucker doing Some of These Days.

Jack Oakie, as the third member of the team, looks like an old-fashioned tintype with his grey, short jacket suit, bound in light blue to match the blue in his vivid plaid vest, and the grey derby in his rght hand.

As usual, Oakie is clowning and everyone is having a good time. When the director's order for silence comes, a whistle blows and the scene starts with Oakie and Peggy walking across stage from the right. Stopping in the centre, they point to Donald emerging from behind an arbor. He's singing, to the music of a playback. In exact imitation of Jolson, he drops to one knee, clasps his white-gloved hands together and swaying from side-to-side finishes the number.

There are many repeats of this, for each time there is some little thing that isn't in perfect accord with what is known of Jolson's style of delivery. Between each rehearsal, Oakie entertains and keeps everyone in a merry mood.

Lamont finally okays the "take" that has what he wants; then the stage is taken over by the technicians to make ready for Peggy Ryan's number.

Much excitement prevails during this time, for there's plenty of entertainment being thrown around. The only disappointing thing is that "lunch" is called before Peggy sings . . . so we leave with the thought in mind that we must catch the picture when it's released.

Until next week.

TITLE CHANGES
"Sonora Kid" (Mono.) now SONORA STAGECOACH.
"Outlaw Buster" (Rep.) now HIDDEN VALLEY OUTLAWS.
"Monster" (Rep.) now MONSTER'S CASTLE.
"Danger in Damascus" (RKO) now ACTION IN ARABIA.

To Film 'Strangers in Dark'

"Strangers in the Dark," dramatic story of a young girl's fight to overcome a great tragedy, is to be produced by MGM with Susan Peters in the feminine lead, Jules Dassin directing and Edwin Knopf producing. The picture is based on an adaptation of the novel "The Outward Room" by Millen Brand, which is in great part based on the life of Pauline Leader, Brand's wife and a writer herself.

Morris Joins Walter Lantz

George E. Morris, formerly secretary and treasurer for Walt Disney Productions, has joined Walter Lantz Productions as business manager and comptroller. Addition of Morris to his executive personnel allows Lantz to devote all his time to production and the personal direction of the Cartune training films he is producing for the U. S. Navy.

To Film Espionage Story

"Betrayal From the East," a non-fiction book written by Alan Hynd and which hit the book shops only a month ago, gaining quick popularity, has been purchased by RKO and is slated for early production. Crane Wilbur will do the screenplay, while production will be in the hands of Herman Schlom under the supervision of Sid Rogell.

24-Sheets to Blanket Country

One thousand 24 sheets on Monogram's Belita starring vehicle, "Lady, Let's Dance," will be posted on February 1 in the company's 31 exchange centers in the United States, as preliminary promotion for the Scott R. Dunlap production. This will give five weeks of advance institutional publicity prior to the picture's national release date of March 7.

Something Readable for All

Loretta Young, star of Walter Wanger's "Ladies Courageous," which Universal will release, finds something readable for all concerned when she scans the camp newspaper of a west coast air base where she worked recently on location.

McLaglen Signed by Goldwyn for Pirate Role in Bob Hope Comedy

Samuel Goldwyn announced last week that he has engaged Victor McLaglen for the role of the pirate known as "The Hook," for his Technicolor production "Treasure Chest," which will star Bob Hope. McLaglen is Hope's nemesis throughout the film in which Bob appears as the touring actor who becomes involved with a boatload of pirates. McLaglen recently completed "Tampico" for 20th Century-Fox.

David Butler will direct "Treasure Chest," which is based on a screenplay by Don Hartman and Mel Shavelson. Production is scheduled to begin early in April.

Production Notes From Studios

"Three Men in White," latest of the Dr. Gillespie series at MGM. Willis Goldbeck is directing, with Lionel Barrymore, Van Johnson, Keye Luke, Marilyn Maxwell and Ava Gardner.

▶Monogram's search for seven identically marked horses for use in "Black Beauty" representing the same horse at different ages, is encountering difficulties. Producer Lindsley Parsons has received snapshots from horse owners, but the problem is to test the candidates. Shooting is scheduled for this month, with William Beaudine directing the screen version of the famous novel.

▶Lucien Littlefield will have a featured role in the Pine-Thomas comedy mystery for Paramount "One Body Too Many," with Jack Haley, Jean Parker and Bela Lugosi heading the stellar cast. Frank McDonald will direct.

▶Felix Feist has been set by Associate Producer Bernard Burton to direct the next Gloria Jean picture for Universal, with production slated to get under way the first part of February.

Lamour as Indian Princess

Dorothy Lamour will star in "Princess on the Warpath," a Technicolor period musical, according to an announcement by Paramount. The story is an original by Sam Coslow who will produce and will be that of an Indian Princess in Oklahoma.

Lydon Signs With Republic

James Lydon, who has outgrown his Henry Aldrich roles, has been signed to a contract by Republic to play only leading romantic roles. Lydon, who is 20 and 4F because of an arm injury, has four brothers in the armed forces. His first picture under his new contract will be one of Republic's de luxe productions.

WANDERING AROUND HOLLYWOOD

with Ed Raiden

This is the season for Academy Awards in Hollywood, and all the movie-makers are busy pressing the claims of their favorite candidates and pictures for Oscars. And while they press, D O. Selznick stands by and grins. Or is that a snicker? Let the studios advance Ingrid Bergman for "Casablanca" and "For Whom the Bell Tolls," and Joan Fontaine for "The Constant Nymph," and Jennifer Jones for "The Song of Bernadette." Let them fight for the honor, and Selznick will stand by and pick up the marbles. Why? He holds the contracts of all three stars, as well as the contract of Dorothy McGuire, whose job in 'Claudia" may rate her some award.

Because famous artists of the past thousand years failed to agree on what Salome, charmer of John the Baptist, looked like, Producer Frank Ross will run a contest among 500 American art schools and advanced art classes for the best present-day conception of Salome. With a 2000-year spread between her time and ours, artists of different countries have different ideas of her. In spite of the jitterbug craze, it might be a good idea to put it up to the American exhibitor, or the American public; perhaps a teaser campaign revolving around the question "How Would You Like Your Salome?"

Republic is determined to move into the major studio class. Making million-dollar pictures, getting "name" stars to work in them, buying stories that have panoramic importance—all these are parts of the process. But the real step was taken with the announcement that Republic has carried onto its lot three swank colonial style, portable dressing rooms, equipped with radio, showers, chaise lounge, book shelf with books, wardrobe, breakfast nook, electric heater and all the other creature comforts. That is major studio stuff. They even have brass name plates, removable of course, and the first names are Michael O'Shea, Anne Shirley and Gene Lockhart, co-featured in "Man from Frisco."

Warners threw a massive party the other night at which many high government officials then visiting the Pacific Coast were entertained All the Warner talent, "names" and stock list, were present. But the only other studio player or representative was Lou Costello who said several times: "Be sure you mention Universal."

Korda Signed by Columbia

Zoltan Korda, who directed and co-authored "Sahara" for Columbia, has been signed by that studio to long-term contract as producer-director. His first assignment will be production and direction of the film adaptation of a successful Broadway play, "Counter-Attack."

PRC Signs Frank Craven

In an unusual deal, PRC signed Frank Craven to write the original screenplay for, and to star in "When the Lights Go On Again," one of the top-budget pictures of the company's program.

OVERHEARD ON THE SET OF M-G-M's "SONG OF RUSSIA"

ROBERT TAYLOR:

"Nice going Susan! They used to call you 'The Random Harvest Gal,' but from now on you're 'The Song of Russia Sweetheart'!"

SUSAN PETERS:

"You look mighty snappy yourself, Mr. T., as a Yank in Moscow."

ROBERT TAYLOR:

"Our international kiss gets its World Premiere at the Capitol, N. Y., February 3rd, following 6 weeks of 'A Guy Named Joe'. . . a good guy to follow!"

SUSAN PETERS:

"Wait till they get a screenful of our love affair, Bob, and the gorgeous music and the thrilling action."

BOB AND SUSAN:

"Here's a good spot to say thanks to our cast: John Hodiak, Robert Benchley, Felix Bressart and all the others. And to Screenplay Writers Paul Jarrico and Richard Collins and a special salute to Director Gregory Ratoff and Producer Joseph Pasternak. And of course a nod to the world's greatest studio—need we mention the name!"

Our Two Big Jobs In January: Fourth War Loan And March of Dimes!

The Editorial Page

Timely Topics

The Fourth War Loan Campaign is under way. From big towns and little towns, comes word of activity unprecedented in the history of any industry drive and with every indication that the original figures and predictions will be exceeded by a large percentage.

This is as it should be. Our industry hasn't let our Government down yet on any kind of activity. But to bring these thoughts to realization will require the untiring effort of every theatreman and woman in every theatre in the country.

Do not be satisfied with "a bond for every seat." You and we know that with proper backing and a good campaign, you can make it nearer to "two bonds for every seat," plus.

There is only one danger to as intensive a campaign as this. Towards the finish too many theatremen are apt to relax their activity and hope the campaign will coast along on its own momentum. This must not be. Plan now for new and even more aggressive activities for the final week or ten days.

And last, but by no means least, is your entry for the Honored Hundred Contest. If you make up your mind that you are going out after one of your state's winners for yourself and your theatre, you will be half-way to success at the start. Then if you are really putting showmanship into your bond campaign, you stand an excellent chance of emerging as one of the winners selected by your state organization and recommended to the WAC here in New York as a candidate for the final winners.

At the installation meeting of the Motion Picture Associates in New York this week, Jimmie Walker sounded a note that appealed to us more than anything said by anyone in or out of the industry in the past few years.

Walker paid a magnificent tribute to the tremendous job our industry was doing on behalf of the war effort on the home front and asked why the public is not being told about what we are doing.

He was absolutely correct. We take the knocks, the mud-throwing, the unwarranted attacks on our industry in a manner that leaves millions of people the country over wondering whether we are as bad as some people and some writers like to paint us.

But if these same people knew just a little about what this industry is doing, has done, and will continue to do until this war is won, they might develop the habit of sticking their tongues in their cheeks the next time somebody takes a crack at "the movie."

Into the current controversy about re-issues we, too, would like to throw in our two cents worth.

There seems to be an impression that re-issues have been getting a strong play only because of product shortages. This we do not believe to be true. In a check-up with some forty-odd exhibitors East of the Mississippi we got the reaction that the vast majority of them booked re-issues because they felt they could make more money with them than they could with some of the current, weaker product.

However, it is no surprise that the distributors have gradually increased their rental demands for this kind of product as its use has spread. It would have been a surprise if they had not. But they might use a little judgment and remember that practically all of this revenue is found money and, thus, let the exhibitor make a few dollars, too.

But insofar as our information goes, very few theatremen went out and booked re-issues solely because they were so short of product that they had to do so to maintain their show schedules.

Apropos the item above about Jimmie Walker's comment, we find that there were others of the same opinion high in the industry and Government service.

Both Bill Rodgers of MGM and Postmaster General Frank Walker, speaking to a meeting of exhibitors in Washington, called on the industry to make the public aware of the extent of the contributions and efforts on behalf of the war by the motion picture industry.

These several expressions along identical lines on the identical subject serve to emphasize how important it is that some organized effort be made to carry on a campaign of education that would do justice to the position the industry occupies in these war times.

"Forward—March of Dimes." . . .

Mr. Theatreman, we sincerely hope you have completed all the necessary arrangements for audience collections during the March of Dimes week, from January 24th to 31st.

You can top any previous "Dimes" drive with very little effort although such effort as you do put into it must be properly planned and executed.

More Shows for Blind

Recent experiment by Warner Bros. in showing "The Desert Song" before a blind audience at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, with the use of a Braille program, has brought requests from T. L. Stelling, manager of Publix Bamford Theatres, Asheville, N. C., and the Asheville Citizen-Times, local newspaper, for copies of the Braille text to be used in a showing of the picture for blind persons of Asheville under auspices of the local Lions Club.

The innovation introduced in Brooklyn, and given national publicity through an article in Newsweek, was in the nature of a test, and reactions thus far indicate the idea will be adopted in many other communities.

Bank Loans Slow Up WB Dividend Chances

Because of bank loans outstanding after the refinancing operations of last year, Warner Brothers will be prevented from paying any cash dividend or buying up any of its outstanding stock until the loans have been reduced to $10,000,000, it was disclosed this week in the Warner consolidated balance sheet for the year up to August 31, 1943. Technically, the company is allowed to pay dividends or use cash from consolidated net earnings subsequent to August 31, 1943.

The refinancing included redemption of all preferred stock at a cost of $8,910,941, the calling in of $10,139,500 in 6 per cent debentures, and retirement of domestic bank loans approximating $5,500,000. The operation reduced the net funded debt of the company from $49,100,027 to $45,544,195. The unsecured bank loan used in the operation is for $15,000,000, and will be paid off at the rate of $2,500,000 per year, the first semi-annual payment having been made December 1, 1943.

The report was considered as showing a substantial improvement in the WB financial position, special interest being given to an inventory jump of more than $7,000,000 to all-time high of $31,475,338.

Bob Wolff Gets London Post As RKO Managing Director

Robert Wolff, branch manager of the RKO Radio New York exchange, has been appointed managing director of RKO in Great Britain. The announcement was made in London by Phil Reisman, vice-president in charge of the foreign department, and confirmed at the New York home office on Wednesday.

It has been known for some time that Wolff was being considered for the important London post, and Reisman's arrival in the British capital this week from New York gave him an opportunity to announce the change from Wolff's future seat of operations. Word of Wolff's successor at the exchange has not as yet been released.

Efforts for Lower Tax Fail in Senate

After rejecting a number of amendments, the Senate this week had apparently brought the 20 per cent admission tax closer to reality, despite the best efforts of film supporters in the upper house to offer less drastic measures. The hopes of the theatremen rested on amendments proposed by Senator James Mead, D., N. Y., and Senator Chapman Revercomb, R., W. Va.

Mead's proposal was an out-and-out killing of the 20 per cent feature, and called for the retention of the present 10 per cent tax. His amendment included all sections of the amusement business, including the legitimate theatre and baseball. In his appeal from the floor Mead declared to a rather slim Senatorial attendance that the theatre is a major sufferer from the war situation. After the New York Senator admitted to Senator Vanderberg that the amendment would mean a slice of $135,000,000 taken out of the anticipated new revenue, the proposal came to a vote. The result was a decisive defeat.

The second amendment was the proposal by Senator Chapman Revercomb, R., W. Va., which provided that the Finance Committee bill stand for all fields of amusement except films, where the present 10 per cent rate would be retained. This proposal was defeated during Wednesday's session, when the Senate apparently reached the point where further consideration of revenue matters was being discouraged because of a desire to get the Senate version of the tax bill into conference with the House.

The tax bill, which now calls for the 20 per cent admission levy, still may not go through, although the temper of the Senators this week suggested there might be a similar tendency in the House.

New Officers Installed by Motion Picture Associates

New York motion picture men reaffirmed the industry's devotion to the patriotic and humanitarian causes which claim its best talents and efforts at a luncheon of the Motion Picture Associates at the Hotel Astor last Tuesday.

James J. Walker, former mayor of New York City, acting as toastmaster, paid a stirring tribute to the industry's contributions to the war effort and its good works in behalf of humanitarian causes.

The new officers of the organization were installed at the event, which marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the MPA. Morris Sanders is the new president, succeeding Jack Ellis, who was elected to serve as vice-president. Other officers are: Matthew Cahan, second vice-president; Saul Trauner, treasurer; Moe Fraum, recording secretary; Charles Penser, financial secretary; Harry Furst, sergeant-at-arms; Seymour Schussel and Leo Abrams, trustees.

Chicago Theatres Close Down

Theatres in the Chicago district were showing a tendency to close down this week, faced with a box office slump. The Essaness circuit cut out weekday matinees at the Avon, Southern, and the Four Hundred. The Schoenstadt circuit closed the Home Theatre, but for a different reason: they were unable to get the theatre's boiler repaired.

'Lady in the Dark' Tradeshows

Although "Lady in the Dark" will be trade shown in New York and Los Angeles on February 3, as announced last week, Paramount points out that showings at all other exchanges throughout the country will take place on February 28.

Schine Suit Pin-up

Under an agreement reported in Washington this week, the Government anti-trust suit now pending in Federal Court at Buffalo against the Schine Circuit will be suspended until final action is taken with respect to theatre holdings by the five consent decree signatories.

Under the suit brought against Schine by the Department of Justice, the circuit was ordered to dispose of certain theatre holdings. The properties were offered for sale by Schine but purchasers were found only for a small proportion of those ordered to be divested from the chain.

Industry Rates Plaudits, Rodgers and Walker Say

Declaring that the film industry is much too modest and advising it to blow its own horn, both Postmaster General Frank C. Walker and William F. Rodgers, vice-president of Loew's, Inc., this week told 200 exhibitors at a Washington, D. C., luncheon that picture people should let the rest of the country know about the job they are doing on behalf of the Fourth War Loan Drive.

Walker, who was once an exhibitor official himself, declared that the nation has never been made aware of the fine unselfish job done by the industry in cases of emergency, whether local or national, and in helping to raise the cultural level of the country from day-to-day.

Following Walker, Rodgers declared that by now motion picture people should be sick of turning the other cheek. He pointed out that the industry has always been in the forefront of campaigns that were humanitarian. Personally, said Mr. Rodgers, he was tired of seeing publicity seekers attack the industry on almost any trumped-up charge and those in show business taking it on the chin.

The MGM sales head did not connect lack of "blowing the horn" with disunity among industry elements, but he declared he expected to see "a common understanding in this business" that would better conditions generally.

Clifford P. Work

(The Man on the Cover)

Vice-president and general manager of Universal's Coast Studios since May 1938, who was elected to the board of directors of the corporation last week. Previous to his association with Universal, Mr. Work was division director of RKO Theatres' Western Theatre Group, a post he had occupied for many years.

'Diary' Army Leader

The Army theatres have their box-office winners too, and the leader for 1943 is "Guadalcanal Diary," according to an announcement this week by the U. S. Army Motion Picture Service. Based purely on their draw, the ten most successful films were—besides "Guadalcanal Diary"—"Crash Dive," "Destination Tokyo," "Air Force," "Sahara," "Arabian Nights," "Desperadoes," "Happy Go Lucky," "This Is the Army," and "Hello, 'Frisco, Hello." Only three of the ten were purely escapist in the sense that the war was not mentioned.

'Random Harvest' First In Film Daily Poll

"Random Harvest" won first place in the annual Film Daily "Ten Best Pictures" poll this year, it was announced in Tuesday's issue of the paper, while the runners-up were "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and "Yankee Doodle Dandy." The voters were critics from 397 newspapers, magazines, wire services and syndicates plus film commentators from 42 radio stations.

The remainder of the "Ten Best," according to the number of votes they received were "This Is the Army," "Casablanca," "The Human Comedy," "Watch on the Rhine," "In Which We Serve," "So Proudly We Hail" and "Stage Door Canteen." FWTBT and "Yankee Doodle Dandy" were tied for second place on votes cast, each polling 285. "Random Harvest" received 305 votes. Among pictures on the Honor Roll was "The More the Merrier," which garnered only eight less votes than "Stage Door Canteen," No. 10 on the big list.

Arthur W. Kelly to Supervise UA's Television Activities

Arthur W. Kelly, United Artists vice-president and member of the board of directors, will supervise all television activities of the company, it was announced this week. Kelly will leave his post as supervisor of foreign sales, which he temporarily assumed following the resignation of Laudy Lawrence as executive in charge of foreign distribution.

Kelly is now in London conferring with British interests and is expected to return to this country soon.

Indianapolis Parents Protest City's New 10 p.m. Curfew

A flood of protests from parents against the new Indianapolis curfew law has brought a statement from the City Clerk that youths under 15 years are not prevented from attending movies or doing legitimate errands, but that they must have a note showing they received their parents' permission to be away from home.

Adopted in an effort to curb juvenile delinquency, the Indianapolis ordinance requires police to take children into custody if they are found on the streets after 10 p.m. without proper parental permission. The law also authorizes arrest of parents not keeping their children in line.

UA Sends Coplan to London

David H. Coplan, managing director of U. A., Ltd., in Canada, will leave Toronto in a fortnight to replace E. T. Carr, managing director of U. A. in Great Britain, resigned, it was announced at the United Artists home office this week. Coplan is being sent to London by Edward C. Raftery, U.A. president, to assume full charge of all activities previously under the supervision of Carr.

Stockholders Retain '43 Columbia Board

At the annual meeting of stockholders of Columbia Pictures Corp. held Tuesday the following members of the Board were re-elected to serve for the ensuing year: Harry Cohn, Jack Cohn, A. Schneider, A. Montague, N. B. Spingold, L. J. Barbano and Leo M. Blancke.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors immediately following the stockholders' meeting the following officers were re-elected: Harry Cohn, president; Jack Cohn, executive vice-president; A. Schneider, vice-president and treasurer; Sidney Buchman, vice-president; A. Montague, vice-president; N. B. Spingold, vice-president; B. B. Kahane, vice-president; L. J. Barbano, vice-president; Joseph A. McConville, vice-president; Charles Schwartz, secretary; Mortimer Wormser, assistant treasurer; Leo Jaffe, assistant treasurer; David Fogelson, assistant secretary; Duncan Cassell, assistant secretary; Warren Sharpe, comptroller.

Of the total outstanding stock of the company, over 80 per cent was represented by proxy, of which a majority voted to restore the salaries of Harry Cohn and Jack Cohn to their 1939 level and in favor of the issuance of stock purchase options noted in the proxy to A. Schneider.

The management indicated that the estimated earnings of the second quarter, which ended in December, compares with and possibly may exceed the earnings in the first quarter, which ended last September, which amounted to $1,500,000 before taxes and $480,000 after taxes.

Cleveland Exhibitors Re-elect Ernest Schwartz for 10th Time

At the annual meeting of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association held last week, Ernest Schwartz succeeded himself as president for the tenth successive time. In recognition of his long and splendid service to the association he was presented with a $500 war bond. All other officers were likewise re-elected by acclamation. They are Albert E. Ptak, now entering his eighth year as vice-president James E. Scoville, treasurer for the second year, and George W. Erdmann, who has just completed his seventeenth year as secretary. Five board members whose terms had expired, Meyer Fine, Henry Greenberger, John D. Kalafat, James E. Scoville and P. E. Essick, were also re-elected.

At the business meeting which followed election of officers, members voted to co-operate wholeheartedly with the War Bond Drive by establishing the week of February 6 as Free Movie Week. During that week any patron who buys a bond at the theatre will be admitted free. Local independent exhibitors favor this plan over the proposed bond premieres or free movie day.

3-Cornered Race in Chicago

Three tickets are running for office in the Chicago Operators' Union. Glen Sweeney of the Chicago Theatre is on one ticket for president, while George LeRoy from the Apollo and Smith King of the Granada are also candidates. For the office of business agent, Harry Ragan, at present acting agent, is one candidate, while running against him will be Glen Atkinson of the State Lake Theatre and Roy McCracker of the Terrace. The date of election will be set by IATSE president, Richard Walsh, who is expected in Chicago to supervise the election.

'Our Time' Pre-release in Buffalo

"In Our Time," Warner Bros. production co-starring Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid, will have a pre-release premiere in Buffalo on February 4.

One More Final

There will be one more final proposal by the producer-distributor companies who are defendants in the New York anti-trust suit before Assistant Attorney General Tom C. Clark presents the completed draft of a new decree formula for the industry, it was indicated in Washington Monday following a meeting between Clark and Robert L. Wright of the Department of Justice and representatives of the five film companies.

It was indicated by Clark that he expects to receive by the end of the week the compromise proposals by the distributors upon which the draft of a substitute for the now defunct consent decree will be based.

Limited Quantity of Equipment Available

A limited quantity of RCA equipment is being made available for civilian theatre purchasers during the first half of this year, it was announced by Homer B. Snook, manager of RCA's theatre equipment sales, in a letter to supply dealers. The means for obtaining WPB approval of such sales are provided under WPB Limitation Order L-325.

The equipment will include small and medium-sized RCA sound equipments, BX-80 Brenkert projectors, N-100 Enarc lamps, BX-12 bases, 5035-type tube rectifiers, and Pr-76 copper oxide rectifiers, according to Mr. Snook's letter to the dealers.

Exhibitors who may be eligible for such equipment purchases under Limitation Order L-325 are, roughly, those who can show that replacement of such equipment is necessary for the maintenance of civilian morale in their communities, or for other reasons related to the war program. Such necessity might be considered to exist where present equipment is completely worn out and beyond repair, or totally destroyed by fire, flood, or similar catastrophe, and where remaining facilities do not adequately meet the community's needs. In exceptional cases involving insufficient amusement facilities, an exhibitor may be eligible for equipment for initial installations rather than replacement.

Republic Concludes Current Sales Meetings in Hollywood

Republic Pictures this week wound up its current series of sales conferences with a two-day session at the Hollywood studio. The earlier meetings had been held in New York and Chicago. President James R. Grainger presided at all meetings and Herbert J. Yates, Sr., was a speaker at each regional gathering.

Personnel at the studio meeting included Western District Sales Manager Francis Bateman, heading a contingent of men including Franchise Holder J. T. Sheffield of the Northwest territory, Branch Managers F. M. Higgins, Seattle; J. H. Sheffield, Portland; Gene Gerbase, Denver; H. C. Fuller, Salt Lake City; and Branch Managers John Frey, Los Angeles, and Sid Weisbaum San Francisco.

Nat'l Allied Board Meets Feb. 2

When the board of directors of National Allied gathers in Chicago for its next quarterly meeting on February 2 and 3, it is expected the chief business to be considered will be acceptance or rejection of proposed changes in the New York consent decree as submitted by five major companies recently to Assistant Attorney General Tom C. Clark. Abram F. Myers, board chairman, called the meeting.

1,277 Bond Premieres Set at Close of First Day of Drive

A total of 1227 bond premieres had been set by theatres throughout the country by Tuesday of this week, it was reported by the WAC. This compares with 1473 bond premieres held throughout the duration of the Third War Loan Drive. Several territories already have exceeded last year's quota.

Reports from the field at the close of the first day of the drive, indicated that theatres in many localities had realized their "Bond for Every Seat." Among such reports were those from Kenneth Workman, United Artists Theatre, San Jose, Calif.; Vic Gauntlett, Moore Theatre, Seattle, and Cliff Tisseman, Golden Gate Theatre, San Francisco—all of whom reported a complete sell-out. Batchet wired WAC headquarters that he will try to double the quota.

Loew's Theatres reported the sale of more individual bonds on the opening day of the drive than during any previous ten days since the houses became issuing agents. C. C. Moskowitz and J. R. Vogel, receiving reports from theatres of the Loew circuit, estimated that the theatres had sold some 3000 bonds, or nearly ten per cent of the circuit's 312,000 seats.

Jump Gun in Dimes Drive

While high-pressure showmanship was being applied to the sale of War Bonds, theatremen also were scoring with their "double-feature" drive by launching campaigns for the March of Dimes. Headquarters of the Dimes Drive reported Tuesday night that close to 1500 theatres in New York, Detroit and other cities were set to "jump the gun" and open their drives Thursday and Friday of this week. Instead of making audience collections for only seven days, these houses will continue to January 30, making it a nine or ten-day drive.

Loew's and RKO theatres started their drives on Thursday because they had important attractions opening and wished to take advantage of the opening week-end crowds for making their Dimes collections. The Publix theatres in Detroit and Butterfield houses in Michigan launched their collections Friday.

It was announced by headquarters that the New York State exhibitors are aiming at a goal of $500,000 for the infantile paralysis fund as compared with a total of $366,863 last year. Texas is shooting at a $100,000 goal this year as against the $12,000 raised last year. Georgia theatres "guarantee" $36,000 as against $18,000 last year. Illinois predicts $150,000, $40,000 above last year. Minnesota promises close to $50,000 compared with $28,000 in 1943. Louisiana and Mississippi are confident of tripling last year's collections of $20,000.

Harris Joins STR

David Harris, former theatre operator and for the past seven years prominent in the trade paper field, this week joined Showmen's Trade Review in the capacity of business manager and manager of circulation.

David Harris

For the past seven years Harris has been associated with Quigley Publications, from which he resigned last week to assume his post with STR. For the past two years Harris was circulation and sales promotion manager of Quigley Publications.

Prior to entering the trade paper field, he was a theatre manager and operator of theatres in Brooklyn and upstate New York. His theatre background and wide experience in trade paper publishing in this field especially equips Mr. Harris for the executive duties he will perform for STR.

Columbia Sales Executives To Meet in N. Y. Feb. 1, 2, 3

Division and branch managers of Columbia Pictures will gather at the Hotel Warwick, New York, the first three days of February for a general sales meeting, it was announced this week. General Sales Manager A. Montague will preside. All territories will be represented except the Western division.

District Manager Sam Galanty will head the mid-Eastern division delegation, which will include the following branch managers: A. S. Moritz, Cincinnati; Lester Zucker, Cleveland; A. H. Levy, Pittsburgh; and Ben Caplon, Washington. The Southern Division will be headed by District Manager Sam Moscow, and will include R. J. Ingram, Atlanta; Joseph Gins, Charlotte; J. B. Underwood, Dallas; J. J. Rogers, Memphis; Huston Duvall, New Orleans; and C. A. Gibbs, Oklahoma City. The Central Division will be represented by District Manager Carl Shalit and W. Guy Craig of Indianapolis; B. C. Marcus, Kansas City; and C. D. Hill, St. Louis.

Present also will be New York District Manager Nat Cohn and Branch Managers Irving Wormser and Sol Trauner; H. E. Weiner, of Philadelphia; and these branch managers: Joe Miller, Albany; I. H. Rogovin, Boston; Phil Fox, Buffalo; B. J. Lourie, Chicago; M. H. Evidon, Des Moines; O. J. Ruby, Milwaukee; H. J. Chapman, Minneapolis; T. F. O'Toole, New Haven; and J. H. Jacobs, Omaha. Lou Rosenfeld will represent Canada.

Weshner Opens Publicity Office in New York

David E. Weshner, formerly director of advertising and publicity for United Artists, has opened his publicity and public relations office in New York.

Identified for many years with some of the major publicity and promotional accomplishments of the industry, Weshner's background includes a thirteen-year tenure with Warner Bros. as national director of advertising and publicity and subsequently operated theatres as zone manager in the New Jersey, Wisconsin and Philadelphia territories.

Most recently he is identified with the publicity and promotional campaign on Noel Coward's "In Which We Serve" for United Artists, and as publicity consultant for Walt Disney's "Victory Through Air Power."

Republic Honors Seabees Heroes At Reception in New York

Through the co-operation of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, a group of Seabees representing twenty-six cities throughout the country was honored by Republic at a reception to launch the company's elaborate production, "The Fighting Seabees," at the Hotel Astor last Monday.

Para. Sales Meet Postponed

The meeting of Paramount district sales managers and field exploitation men recently announced by Neil Agnew for January 21-22 has been expanded to a three-day session and postponed to February 3-4-5.

FILM TRAVEL LOG

Fred Lynch, publicity director at Radio City Music Hall, is making a business visit to Hollywood.

Edward Schnitzer, UA western division manager, has been rounding up an exchange tour that is taking him to Chicago, St. Louis and Omaha.

Warners' talent scout, Solly Baiano, came on to New York from the Coast this week for his annual once-over of local actor material. Mrs. Baiano is with him.

George A. Hirliman, Film Classics president, making the swing of Southern territory with stops scheduled at Charlotte, Atlanta, New Orleans and Memphis.

Sam Jaffe, producer of "The Sullivans" for 20th Century-Fox, is on from Hollywood for home office conferences.

Dave Lipton, Columbia Ad Chief, Inducted; Joins Army Feb. 8

David A. Lipton, director of advertising, publicity and exploitation for Columbia Pictures, was this week inducted into the United States Army. Mr. Lipton reports to Camp Upton on February 8. No successor has as yet been named by Columbia. Mr. Lipton was also vice-chairman of the National Public Relations Division of the War Activities Committee.

David Lipton

Before joining Columbia three years ago, Mr. Lipton was studio publicity director at Universal Studios and was previously employed as a press-relations counsel for the Columbia Broadcasting System. He also spent 13 years in the advertising department of Balaban & Katz Theatres in Chicago.

De Stefano Rejoins National As Manager in Kansas City

W. E. Green, president of National Theatre Supply, has announced that A. de Stefano has rejoined National's staff as manager of the Kansas City office.

Mr. de Stefano, who is well known to exhibitors in the Southwest, was formerly manager of National's Memphis, Los Angeles and Dallas branches.

PCCITO Condemns Theatre Deals by Distributor Employes

The alleged practice by distributors of acquiring theatre interests through purchase by employes was condemned recently in a resolution publicized by the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners. The resolution condemned "any practice or technique whereby persons employed by distributors or producers acquire directly or indirectly any interest in any motion picture theatre enterprise or in the profits or income thereof."

Moskowitz 31 Years at Loew's

Charles C. Moskowitz, vice-president of Loew's, Inc., and general theatre operator celebrated his 31st anniversary with the organization this week.

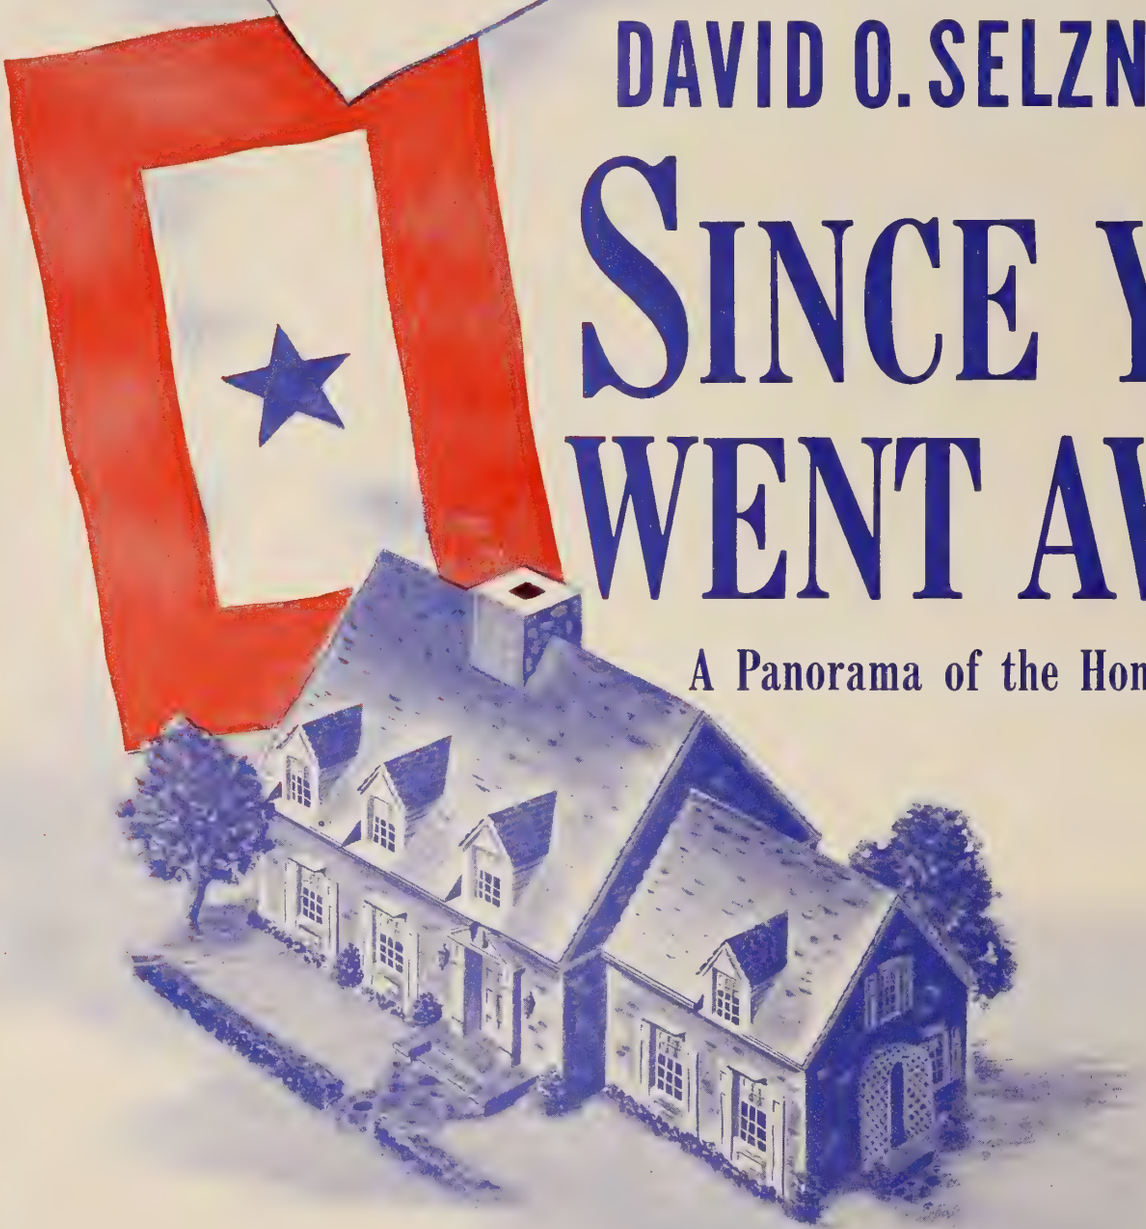
Report from UNITED ARTISTS

This is not a "product announcement for 1944", for among all companies United Artists alone knows no formal selling season. Rather, this is a report from the company and its producers setting forth facts on productions you will receive during the next months . . facts on pictures finished, pictures cutting, pictures ready to roll.

For today United Artists is making that sort of progress that will soon entitle it to its rightful place at the head of the industry. It is our firm belief that this can best be achieved by consistency of product, consistency of both quality and release. Toward this we are striving.

It is not necessary for us to make promises or claims. We are able to let the facts speak. You will find no factory-made, production-line pictures among these releases. Each is hand-tailored by its creator-producer, made to the best of his ability for the best box-office results possible.

And we will continue to sell these pictures as they are made — individually. The values of each production will be carefully assayed and it will be sold accordingly. Here, then, is the report from United Artists — to you.



MEMO
It will be ready for special engagements early this Spring.

Times Square Rally, Broadcast Launch 4th War Loan

Morgenthau, Eisenhower and Nimitz Sound the Keynote; 5000 at N. Y. Ceremonies

Keynote for the Fourth War Loan bond drive was sounded Monday night during an hour's broadcast over the four major networks by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Admiral Chester C. Nimitz.

In his radio remarks, Morgenthau cited the hanging by the Russians of four "ringleaders of hate" as the proper fate for all those guilty of starting the war.

Speaking from his headquarters overseas, General Eisenhower, referring to the Allies' invasion of Europe, declared:

"No hour in our history has called for the supreme endeavor that is demanded of all Americans now. Not only toil and sweat must be pressed into every minute of these fateful times, but every dollar that can be spared from actual living needs must go into war bonds to back the attack."

Said Admiral Nimitz, in part: " . . . When we have finished the European task we will come to the support of our Pacific forces to eliminate the last enemy in this great war. Remember these things and buy bonds to back the attack."

The motion picture industry "jumped the gun" in New York when, on Monday, one day ahead of the official opening date of the Fourth War Loan, motion picture stars and men wounded on the battlefronts took part in a noon hour rally in Times Square which drew a throng of 5000 people.

Among the celebrities present were Charles Bickford, Laraine Day, Lloyd Nolan, June Allison, Nancy Walker and Bill Robinson.

A United States Army band, motorized equipment and representatives of every branch of the military services including Waves, Wacs, Spars and Marines, lent their presence to this Fourth War Loan launching, staged on behalf of over 16,000 movie theatres throughout the nation.

Officiating as master of ceremonies, Ted Husing of CBS, unveiled the symbol on which the Motion Picture Industry is basing its participation in the bond campaign. Others present for the ceremonies included W. Randolph Burgess, Nevil Ford and John W. Richmond of the

K.C. Starts 4th Loan Drive With 'Meet Your Navy' Show

"Blow off" of the Fourth War Loan campaign for Missouri was a giant "Meet Your Navy" bond rally at Kansas City on January 14.

Taking over the Municipal Auditorium, the industry, with Elmer Rhoden, state chairman, at the helm, was in full charge of the function. Some of the Navy contractors in Kansas City put up ten G's to bring Commander Eddie Peabody and 150 entertainers from the Great Lakes Navy Training Station for the big show.

Skouras Urges Bondboard Display

(The following is a telegram sent out last week to all Fourth War Loan state chairmen by Charles P. Skouras, national chairman.)

Broadway theatremen in New York have today devised what I consider to be one of the most outstanding and showmanly ideas to come out of the campaign to date. Like all truly great ideas, it is so basically simple and at the same time attention-arresting that I am taking this means of flashing it to you without a moment's delay. I strongly recommend it being used in every town and city in a comparable local scale with its execution in New York. Here's what they will do:

In the heart of Times Square, busiest intersection in the world, a gigantic seating chart, representing the combined capacities of the thirteen first-run Broadway houses, will be erected. Copy atop the huge seating chart to read "Buy a Bond for every seat at New York's famous Times Square Theatres." On one side of the display is a huge 4th War Loan insignia. On the other is oversize barometer towering high above the display; marked off in thousands and graduating upward to the balloon which will read "37,665 Seats." Towering above Display to be theatre seat on pedestal representing industry goal of Bond for every seat.

Plans are to keep this gigantic Bondboard veiled in mystery in Times Square for several days and then unveil it with colorful and impressive ceremonies attended by Governor Dewey, Mayor LaGuardia, Army bands, military personalities and equipment in conjunction with broadcast. Each day during the drive the seating chart will be blacked out as the Times Square theatres make reports on their sales. Special activities planned for each day during the drive.

This is the type of showmanship that we all should get behind. It can be just as effective for you in your towns, and maybe more so than in busy Times Square. It also serves as real sales pressure on theatre managers to sell bonds and not just ballyhoo because their joint efforts are recorded daily for all to see. New York theatres are putting up 15c per seat to finance display as well as series of five bond-selling advertisements in eight newspapers. This idea is adaptable down to smallest situation where seat-chart can be posted in town square or principal intersection. Get your theatres together in cities and towns all over your state and erect a Bondboard along similar lines. Here's a really great and effective way of getting over to the public outside your theatres our message.

Broadway Theatres Set Midnight Bond Show

All the principal Broadway motion picture playhouses are uniting on a plan to present an all-star "Bond a Seat" show to be held at the Roxy Theatre at midnight on February 11, eve of President Lincoln's Birthday, on behalf of the Fourth War Loan drive, it was announced by Irving Lesser, chairman of the Broadway Motion Picture Theatres Committee. This all-star show will be a co-operative venture in which all of the managing directors of the famous main stem houses will participate. Talent for the performance is to be provided from the stage shows which are now playing at the Broadway motion picture houses.

The goal for this extraordinary performance will be "A Bond for Every Seat," which means that the committee is aiming to sell 6,000 bonds for that performance. It will be an unusual show for a motion picture theatre because no film will be presented with the stage show. In other words, it will be entirely a "live" talent performance. The staff and the show will be provided by the Broadway Theatres, who will also engage in the selling of bonds to their own customers for this bond premiere.

N. Y. Free Movie Day Feb. 7

Free Movie Day in New York will be held on Monday, February 7, it was announced following a meeting last week at WAC headquarters, at which Sam Rinsler, Metropolitan New York area co-chairman, bond premieres, presided.

Dimes Drive Support Urged By Kirsch

An appeal to all Chicago exhibitors to devote their wholehearted efforts to the March of Dimes drive January 24 to 30 was issued last week by Jack Kirsch, president of Allied Theatres of Illinois, Inc., and State Chairman of the March of Dimes.

Jack Kirsch

In his message, Kirsch pointed out that "the purpose of the drive is to obtain necessary funds for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, for distribution to the various chapters throughout the country to help combat Infantile Paralysis." He listed three items of instructions to be followed in the proper promotion of the drive:

1—Sign pledge and return to Kirsch so as to be on mailing list to receive free Greer Garson trailer which is to be shown preceding each collection.

2—Contact Robert Neal of the National Foundation for sufficient women workers to help make collections.

3—Mail reports and check to Kirsch, with check made payable to Continental Illinois Bank Infantile Paralysis Fund.

Illinois quota in the drive is half a million dollars, and Cook County is asking for twice last year's contributions. Total collections for the last campaign in Chicago: $107,413.

Special Stunts Open 4th War Loan Drive In States and Cities

Plans for Fourth War Loan activities, some of which by now have taken place, were being arranged in various cities and states throughout the nation at week's end.

In Denver, Ted Halmi, local publicity chairman, and members of the Fourth War Loan Committee, adopted the Times Square idea for the giant seat chart. A giant 34x46-foot board has been erected on the facade of the Rocky Mountain News Building.

Jack Foster, editor of the Scripps-Howard newspaper, is giving enthusiastic sponsorship, assuring ample coverage. Starting with unveiling ceremonies on the special bandstand, the giant display will be kept alive by gradually painting-in an American Flag as the theatre bond sales progress. Daily activities will begin with firing bombs from the theatre building roof top. Each Denver theatre will take shifts manning the booths. Cities in the state have been advised to make similar tieups.

Denver Theatres celebrated Free Movie Day on Tuesday, opening day of the Fourth War Loan. Two free tickets were given with every bond purchased in Denver theatres.

Iowa kicked off its War Loan campaign with a series of events that put that state well on the way to its quota. Free Movie Day was held on Wednesday in Boise, Twin Falls, Nampa, Caldwell, Idaho Falls and dozens of other Idaho southern cities. Ceremonies in conjunction with the opening of the drive included a flight of 13 Liberator bombers representing the value of the Ada County quota. At least 40 bond premieres have been lined up for towns ranging from February 1 to the last of the month. Details of publicity were handled by Nevin McCord, state public relations chairman.

In Southern California, a highlight of the Fourth War Loan campaign is the use of mobile units in a house-to-house bond canvass. Starting last Tuesday, 86 mobile units were scheduled to cover every home in Greater Los Angeles from San Pedro to Van Nuys. The area has been divided into 86 precincts. A theatre manager in each district has been assigned to convert an ordinary automobile into a mobile bond issuing agency. Each auto has been bannered and fitted up in every detail. Dave Bershon's Southern California theatre bond committee has been working with the Los Angeles Citizen's War Service Corps in this effort. The municipal group is furnishing the people who make the door-to-door canvass. Bonds are being sold right on the spot either for cash or check.

Arkansas was ready for the kickoff, stimulated by a proclamation issued over the week-end by Governor Homer M. Adkins in which the Governor commended to the people of Arkansas the patriotic endeavor of the Motion Picture Industry and the War Activities Committee.

Hollywood Co. Completes Banners for Bond Drive

Hollywood Advertising Co., New York, has completed the manufacture of 32,369 banners for motion picture theatres participating in the Fourth War Loan campaign.

The completion of the order, in view of the limited time between authorization of the design and makeup of the desired quantity, is regarded a manufacturing feat. Jack Steinberg, general manager of Hollywood Advertising Co., attributed the accomplishment to the co-operation of employes who he said were spurred by a spirit of patriotic effort to assist the industry's participation in the Fourth War Loan.

S.S. Carole Lombard Launched

Irene Dunne, long-time friend of the star after whom the vessel is named, breaks the traditional champagne bottle over the bow of the S.S. Carole Lombard, Liberty Ship launched by Calship at Los Angeles Harbor to signalize the opening of motion picture industry participation in the Fourth War Loan drive. With Miss Dunne on launching platform are the matron of honor, Mrs. Walter Lang, Captain Clark Gable and Louis B. Mayer, Chairman of the special committee in charge of launching.

Columbia Employes Pledge Bond Sales

At what was probably the first bond rally for the Fourth War Loan drive to be held in the industry, the entire advertising, publicity, exploitation and art staffs of Columbia Pictures last week pledged themselves individually to buy, or be responsible for the sale of, at least $100 worth of bonds during the drive.

The opening meeting at Columbia was held five days before the drive officially opened, in order to give Walter Lobel, former member of the exploitation department, opportunity to urge the employes to give their full cooperation. Lobel, now a radio gunner with the American Air Force, was in town on a short furlough. Other speakers at the rally included Seth Flax, of the exploitation departmen, recently honorably discharged from the Army; Robert S. Ferguson, Columbia unit chairman of the Screen Publicists Guild; and Bernice Kaufman, of the publicity department.

As a means of stimulating the sale of bonds, a plan has been arranged whereby posters, showing the names of the Columbia Home Office employes now in the service, will be placed on each floor. For each bond bought or sold by a Columbia employe, credit will be given to the service man or woman of the purchaser's choice. Each of the servicemen has been given an equal quota and their combined quotas will equal the company's goal of two million dollars to be subscribed during the drive.

IATSE to Cooperate in March of Dimes Campaign

Full co-operation of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes is being placed behind the industry's 1944 March of Dimes drive, January 24-30, according to a letter from Richard Walsh, international president, to C. C. Moskowitz of the drive committee.

In response to a letter from Moskowitz suggesting that overtime caused by the running of the appeal trailer and the collections be waived, Mr. Walsh replied: "Our organizations will go along as usual."

9507 Gift Films Now Delivered by Industry, Says Harmon Report

In a year's end summary delivered to industry leaders over the weekend by Francis S. Harmon, executive vice-chairman of the War Activities Committee, it was revealed that the industry's gift of films for free showing to servicemen in combat areas overseas now totaled 9507 programs, of which 8255 were current films. The remaining 1252 were prints of outstanding films of former years, specifically requested and selected by the War Department for use on transports and supplementary showings abroad.

Originally, when there were many less troops in combat areas overseas, 4 prints were given to the Army each week. But, with more and more servicemen abroad, deliveries are now at a rate of 191 prints each week, with 250 a week the goal.

These programs, on 16-mm, contain a feature, one or two short subjects, and a specially-edited newsreel, and average a total of 100 minutes running time. Special Service officers of the War Department select the titles from the industry's entire output of current pictures, choosing those deemed most entertaining and popular. The audiences include Army, Navy, Marine Corps personnel, as well as any other "persons in uniform" in combat areas overseas.

Upon delivery to the Army in New York or London, Harmon's report pointed out, these gift films are transported by the Army to its overseas exchanges in all parts of the world. From the moment of delivery these programs are exclusively under the control of the armed forces, which handles both distribution and exhibition.

In discussing the newness of the films turned over to the Army in New York for shipment abroad, the WAC head declared that in 1943, the industry delivered 5089 prints of 176 feature pictures produced during 1943 for release in 1943-44, and 920 prints of 42 pictures produced in 1942 and delivered during the first quarter of 1943. In addition there have been delivered 133 prints of three features not yet generally released. Thus, a total of 218 current features has been turned over to the Army, representing 6142 prints.

During 1942, 272 different current features were delivered, all produced in 1942 or the closing months of 1941, for a total of 1436 prints.

Deliveries in London of current features during 1942-43 reached a print total of 677. A grand total of 8255 deliveries of up-to-date Hollywood products has thus far been made.

To complete the breakdown, 1252 were the so-called transport films, being outstanding movies of former years.

The titles selected by the Army in December were "Jane Eyre," "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Swing Fever" and "Madame Curie," none of which has as yet been generally released in this country, and "The Heat's On," "Higher and Higher," "So's Your Uncle," "Man From Down Under," "The Gang's All Here," "Whistling in Brooklyn," "In Old Oklahoma" and "True to Life," Harmon's report concluded.

D.C. Theatre Owners to Give Additional Prize in Contest

Motion Picture Theatre Owners of the District of Columbia announce an additional $100 war bond prize to be awarded in the Theatre Managers Contest during the 4th War Loan Campaign. The extra $100 will be in addition to the $500 in war bonds already appropriated by the Theatre Owners as awards for the 9 theatre managers who do an outstanding job of 4th War Loan Sales. In the $500 group a first prize of $100 will go to the manager who sells the largest number of bonds in the district and eight bonds of $50 value will go to the other 8 managers. The extra $100 will go to one of the area zone chairmen who supervise the groups of theatres in the 9 areas.—Wa.

Symphonists and Stranglers Aid Bond Drive

The Fourth War Loan Bond Drive has brought about the wedding of music and mayhem in Houston, Texas.

Originated by Al Lever, city manager of Interstate Theatres, stunt involved the odd mixture of a heavyweight championship wrestling match and a symphony concert in the city auditorium.

Unique two-for-one show was insured by the purchase of $1,000,000 in war bonds by H. R. Cullen, oil man and president of the Houston Symphony Society, after Lever, representing the Variety Club, had approached him with the idea of giving the public the strange mixture. Cullen gave permission to use the symphony orchestra and further agreed to purchase a bond for each of the 78 players.

Scheduled for the night of January 21, the stunt promised to attract a large audience and stimulate considerably the sale of war bonds. Furthermore, there were those who believed that this combination of a symphony concert and a wrestling bout would serve as concrete evidence of the immense strides democracy is making in bringing together these two extremes of the social strata.

In any event, whatever the lasting results, it was certain to be a profitable stunt and one that would click in other cities, provided the proper approach was made.

Loew Theatres Using Unique Bond Stunts

Loew's theatres, both in-town and out-of-town, are making every effort to break all their previous records in bond sales, in the Fourth War Loan Drive.

One of several campaigns found practical and workable in every community is the "Cover Your Man With A Bond. Ten Bonds For Every Local Boy In Service."

Idea originated with the War Savings Staff and Theatre Committee in White Plains during the Third War Loan. The general plan calls for volunteers to sell ten $25 bonds, a total of $250, in the names of local boys and girls in the service. Theatres give each volunteer a card bearing the name of the boy or girl in service to be honored, with the name of the volunteer also noted on the card. As each bond is purchased at the theatre, person selling the bond stamps the card, and when the card is completed and the ten bonds sold, volunteer receives a small cardboard tag reading: "Fourth War Loan. I Have Covered My Man With $250 In Bonds" for his lapel.

The name of the boy or girl in service so honored is then placed on a special honor roll display in the theatre lobby with a small American flag stenciled beside the name indicating that the $250 in bonds in his honor has been sold. The theatre then forwards to the man or woman in service an attractive post card certificate informing him that the folks at home have purchased $250 in bonds in his honor. More than one card may be issued in the name of any man or woman in the service. In some instances, father, mother, brothers, sisters, sweetheart, etc., may want to take out cards in the name of one boy.

Times Square Rally, Broadcast Launch 4th War Loan Drive

War Finance Committee for New York, and high-ranking officials of the War Activities Committee including Charles P. Skouras, general chairman for the Fourth War Loan drive; B. V. Sturdivant, campaign director; Edward L. Alperson, New York metropolitan area chairman, and Harry Brandt, Manhattan chairmn. Bob Weitman, managing director of the Paramount Theatre, was stage manager of the rally.

On Tuesday at noon, church bells rang and victory sirens blew for five minutes throughout the United States, Alaska and Hawaii, signaling the official opening of the Fourth War Loan drive. In New York, the formal opening took the form of a military parade from the Battery to City Hall.

Governors of the 48 states of the U. S. A. issued special proclamations, at the suggestion of the Motion Picture National Committee, urging the people of their respective states to meet and pass the bond quota set for that particular state.

Chicago 'Movie Day' Jan. 25

Free Movie Day in Chicago will be January 25, according to Jack Kirsch, city manager for the Fourth War Loan drive.

Ore. Showmen Meet, Set Plans for Drive

Largest representation of the motion picture industry gathered at Salem, Oregon, last week to lay extensive plans for the conduct of the Fourth War Loan drive.

Adopting as their slogan "A Bond for Every Seat," the exhibitors pledged their time, their theatre staff and all facilities toward the success of the drive.

Some 25 bond premieres will be staged in as many of the key cities during the drive. Distributors will contribute the best of the recent releases for the patrons.—Po.

Legitimate Theatres to Again Take Collections in Dimes Drive

Legitimate theatres of New York City and in other leading cities throughout the country will participate in the industry's March of Dimes drive by taking audience collections, according to Nicholas M. Schenck, national chairman. Lee Shubert was appointed chairman of the stage theatres' committee.

In previous years, the legitimate theatres have done splendid work in the drive, collecting important sums which were included in the motion picture industry's total. Mr. Shubert predicted that, with the legitimate theatre flourishing, the collections will set a new high.

Roadshows will be asked to participate wherever they may be playing during the week of January 24.

Illinois Theatremen to Aid Drive

All-out support for the Fourth War Loan bond drive was pledged at a meeting of 175 Illinois theatremen at the Hotel Abraham Lincoln in Springfield last week. The group also made plans to participate in the March of Dimes campaign. Jules J. Rubens, Illinois state chairman of the WAC, and chairman of the industry's drive to raise funds to help carry on the fight against Infantile Paralysis, presided. Governor Dwight H. Green praised the group present for its bond-selling activities of the past.

One 'Free Movie Day'

Ned E. Depinet, Chairman of the Distributors' Committee of the Fourth War Loan Drive of the Motion Picture Industry, states that there will be no deviation from the original agreement by distributors for providing pictures for bond premieres. This statement was made in view of requests from territories for holding "Free Movie Week" or "Free Movie Month." Mr. Depinet emphasized that under no circumstances can more than one "Free Movie Day" in any one theatre be held anywhere.

All Century Theatres Busy in Bond Drive; List Contest Awards

Several stunts designed to put over the Fourth War Loan drive in its theatres have been launched by the Century Circuit. Applications for the purchase of bonds will be enclosed in the 50,000 Century programs which constitute the regular mailing list.

Two monster parades were planned for the Kings Highway District by Captain Mike Nicholas, manager of Century's Kingsway Theatre. Kings Highway Merchants' Association will present prizes to the three "Bondadiers" who sell the largest number of bonds.

Various rallies, Free Movie Day, and other activities have been set to take place in other Century Theatres, with patriotic organizations taking part.

A War Bond Center has been created at the Tivoli Theatre in Borough Hall, managed by Captain Monroe Schram. The Center is a store which will have a miniature stage and a public address system. With the enticing promise of free coffee and cake, bands, celebrities, auctions, and a free voice recording with every bond purchase, the Center is expected to do a land-office business. The A.W.V.S. and the Treasury Department have pledged themselves to help make the Center a magnificent project.

On Long Island, Don Martin of the Huntington Station Theatre has enlisted the schools for aid. Bond teams will be instituted, and the students qualified will be only those who have sold bonds. The teams will function under the guidance of a "coach"—a member of the faculty. The five students who hit the top sales will be on the team to represent the school in competition wih other schools in town. Upon completion of the campaign, the theatre will award a trophy to the highest scoring school.

Gala bond premieres have been planned which will offer special preview pictures together with the personal appearances of satellites from the entertainment world. These premieres will be staged at the Huntington Theatre, Huntington; Freeport, Freeport; Fantasy, Rockville Center; Valley Stream, Valley Stream, L. I.

Century Circuit has also announced the list of prizes to be given to its employes in its Fourth War Loan contest.

To the Supervisor whose district has the highest percentage of its quota for the period of the drive: First prize—$100 bond, plus one week's vacation. Second prize—$50 bond. Third prize—$25 bond.

Prizes to be distributed among managers will be a $100 bond, a $50 bond and a $25 bond. Assistant manager winners will receive a $75 bond, a $50 bond and a $25 bond. Top winners in each instance will also receive a week's vacation.

Other employes of the circuit will compete against employes who hold the same positions they hold. Thus cashiers will compete against cashiers, doormen against doormen, etc. First prize in these groups will be a $50 bond and a week's vacation, while a $25 bond and $15 in stamps will serve as second and third prizes, respectively.

'Dimes' Trailer Is Ready

Herman Robbins, chairman of the film committee of the March of Dimes drive, reported last week that 10,900 appeal trailers in which Greer Garson stars, had been shipped to National Screen exchanges throughout the nation and that every territory would have its supply by January 17. Exhibitors who were late in sending in their pledges may obtain their trailer direct from their National Screen exchange to save time. There is no charge for the trailer. More than 3,500,000 feet of film were used.

The Box Office Slant

Westward Bound

Monogram Western 54 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 17th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) One for the days when youngsters predominate . . . might miss fire with older patrons.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: A supporting feature where action is needed.

Cast: Ken Maynard, Hoot Gibson, Bob Steele, Betty Miles, John Bridges, Harry Woods, Karl Hackett, Weldon Heyburn, Hal Price, Roy Brent, Frank Ellis, Curly Dresden. Credits: Produced and directed by Robert Tansey. Original story by Frances Kavanaugh. Director of photography, Marcel LePicard.

Plot: The Trail Blazers are called in to investigate destruction to ranches by a gang of desperadoes. The ranchers organize to hold out against the selectmen who have enacted a tremendous water tax. The men behind the trouble are the banker and other prominent figures in the town. The Trail Blazers learn the reason for all this and then thwart their plans.

Comment: Less plausible as to plot than some of its predecessors in the Trail Blazers series, this fact will be offset as far as juvenile audiences go, by more action and more than the average amount of comedy. If played on the days when youngsters' trade predominate, it will be well received, but if played on dates that draw more older patrons, it is likely to miss fire because of some plot lapses and other artificial situations. The three Trail Blazers—Ken Maynard, Hoot Gibson and Bob Steele—give the picture its outdoor flavor with their tried-and-true portrayals of the men on the side of the law, and Betty Miles nicely fills the feminine lead. Direction by Robert Tansey makes the picture move along at a satisfactory pace.

Broadway Rhythm

(Technicolor)

MGM Musical 117 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) A swell musical show with everything seekers of diversion have a right to expect.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: One for the money in any situation; worthy of the best showmanship and weighted with the kind of entertainment that pays off.

Cast: George Murphy, Ginny Simms, Charles Winninger, Gloria DeHaven, Nancy Walker, Ben Blue, Lena Horne, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Hazel Scott, Kenny Bowers, The Ross Sisters, Dean Murphy, Louis Mason, Bunny Waters, Walter B. Long, Tommy Dorsey and his Orchestra. Credits: Produced by Jack Cummings. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Screenplay by Dorothy Kingsley and Harry Clork. Story by Jack McGowan. Based on the musical, "Very Warm for May," by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd. Director of photography, Leonard Smith. Technicolor director, Natalie Kalmus. Musical direction and supervision, Johnny Green.

Plot: A young Broadway producer, lining up talent for a new show, tries to get a Hollywood star to play the lead, but she turns him down because she doesn't like his show. Then the producer's dad, his kid sister whom he had been trying to keep in school and the Hollywood star, pool their resources and arrange to produce a show of their own. The producer, in the meantime, has fallen in love with the star, but he will have nothing to do with her when he finds out the plans. However, he changes his mind when he thinks his dad needs him, and everything ends happily.

Comment: This is a swell show . . . with eye-appeal and good music, jive interludes that will win the solid satisfaction of the youngsters and general all-around, highly-diverting entertainment that is sure to make a hit with the rest of the family. The Technicolor photography, of course, sets off to the greatest advantage all the lavishness of the production as a whole, but in addition to this virtue, there is a tremendous amount of excellent talent capably presented. To enumerate: there is George Murphy, who carries off the lead role very well, acting with assurance and doing his allotted share of dancing with ease; then there is Charles Winninger, in a part that is right down his alley, and he gives it everything he has, making it vie in importance with that of Murphy's. Ginny Simms registers stunningly and presents a few numbers most winningly. Lena Horne, who appears in only two scenes, is such an outstanding entertainer, that she almost steals the picture. The presence and performance of Tommy Dorsey and his Orchestra will give the youthful crowds a plentiful earful of popular tunes, as will the key-jingling pianistics of Hazel Scott. Nancy Walker and Ben Blue clown effectively; Gloria DeHaven, The Ross Sisters, Dean Murphy and many others all score outstandingly in their individual contributions to what adds up to a show with everything seekers of diversion have a right to expect. The swell production elements by Jack Cummings and the excellent direction of Roy Del Ruth have made a picture that is bound to be a hit with any audience. Take advantage of all the draw names and arrange tieups with music stores, radio stations and any and all music and dramatic schools in your vicinity. You can sell this one to the hilt.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 20th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Has crooner to swooner quality for bobby-sock trade.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Only draw will be among adolescents.

Cast: Bob Haymes, Lynn Merrick, The Vagabonds, Janis Carter, Tim Ryan, Joyce Compton, John Eldredge, Dick Elliott, Kathleen Howard, Arthur Q. Bryan, Lotte Stein, Tor Johnson. Credits: Directed by Mal St. Clair. Screenplay by Doreas Cochran. Story by Doris Malloy. Director of photography, Arthur Martinelli. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Produced by Sam White.

Plot: The story of a singer and his band and their struggle for existence. They finally get a one-night stand at a debut party. There the singer ends up by marrying the debutante. The jealousy of the young lady artist representative, who got them the job, causes a quarrel, but the wife remains where she is until her baby is born and all ends well when the singer shows up in a uniform.

Comment: This is an out-and-out bid for the interest and affection of the bobby-sock trade. While Bob Haymes has some of the intimate quality in his voice that goes from crooner to swooner these days, his vocal gifts are not sufficient to give the show the substance it lacks because of an aimless story. The picture seems to lack, also, that polish which betokens the professional touch. Story is loosely thrown together and defies any effort by Director Mal St. Clair to shape it into smooth entertainment. Notwithstanding all these weaknesses, the film may find a following among high school swooners and other adolescents. Tieups with music stores selling Bob Haymes recordings will help here, as well as cooperation with local radio station on deal where you supply recording of Bob Haymes singing song in picture and sneak a five-second plug between songs.

The Fighting Seabees

Republic Drama 100 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Story of the "CBs" (the construction men in the U. S. Navy) taken from real life made into a swell piece of entertainment for every individual attending a motion picture theatre.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: With the right exploitation and the pull of the title, this should do outstanding business.

Cast: John Wayne, Susan Hayward, Dennis O'Keefe, William Frawley, Leonid Kinskey, J. M. Kerrigan, Grant Withers, Paul Fix, Ben Welden, William Forrest, Addison Richards, Jay Norris, Duncan Renaldo. Credits: Directed by Edward Ludwig. Original story by Borden Chase. Screenplay by Borden Chase and Aeneas MacKenzie. Director of photography, William Bradford. Second unit directed by Howard Lydecker. Associate Producer, Albert J. Cohen.

Plot: After the loss of his men on a Pacific Island, a tough construction boss goes to Washington with a Navy man to discuss the plan for a specially trained battalion of men to build and fight. With such a group, called the "Seabees," he is sent to a Pacific Island partially abandoned by Japs. Disobeying orders to remain stationed and continue building, he takes his men looking for snipers and then when the Japs attack in force he gives his life to wipe them out.

Comment: Well-handled and presented, this story of the fighting men of the Navy's Construction Battalion and the Civil Engi-

A METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PICTURE

PREDICTION

Last year the Academy Award went to "Mrs. Miniver" The press predicts history will repeat.

"Movie of the Week: M-G-M may well have another shining Oscar or two virtually in the satchel. Uncommonly good movie. A masterpiece of lucidity. A love story."
—Life Magazine

"Easily the best picture of the year. A cinch for the Academy Award."
—Jimmy Starr, Los Angeles Herald-Express

"Best picture of 1943."
—Andrew R. Kelly, Washington Daily News

"Metro's distinguished candidate for the coming Academy Award for 1943. Sidney Franklin, and the director, Mervyn Le Roy, share in creating an unforgettable picture."
—Daily Variety

"Inevitable success. A production having much of the quality of illustrious predecessors, including 'Mrs. Miniver'."—Motion Picture Herald

"A cinematic event. It will add not only to the coffers of the theatres which play it, but to their standing in the community as well."
—Motion Picture Daily

"One of the strongest contenders for all-around Academy honors. Greer Garson can well make room for a little brother to the Oscar she won for her 'Mrs. Miniver'. Garson and Pidgeon in their most successful teaming, as the box-office returns cannot fail to prove."
—Hollywood Reporter

"The finest picture since 'Gone With The Wind'."—Mayme Ober Peak, Boston Globe Syndicate

"A fine and impressive motion picture that should win high honors. It is difficult to see how it could be anything but a box-office triumph."
—Showmen's Trade Review

"Every one concerned with this remarkable production is a sure-fire candidate for the Academy Award."
—Erskine Johnson, Newspaper Enterprise Association

"Greer Garson's gentle, dignified and wholly-convincing portrayal of 'Madame Curie' is certain to be a candidate for Academy Award honors."
—Denley, Film Bulletin

"One of the great pictures of motion picture history."—Louella Parsons, Motion Picture Editor, I. N. S.

"I consider 'Madame Curie' one of the most beautiful pictures I have ever seen and feel definitely it will mean another Academy Award for Greer Garson."
—Liza Wilson, Screenland, Silver Screen

"Raises motion pictures to the realms of Shakespearean drama."
—Harry Crocker, Los Angeles Examiner

"Last year it was the Miniver Rose; this year it is the Curie Orchid."
—Red Kann, Quigley Publications

"An achievement which will live long in Hollywood history."
—Hedda Hopper

"Prestige pictures are not uncommon, but prestige plus profit—big profit—pictures are exceptional. 'Madame Curie' is one of these. Stirring throughout...film drama at its best. A great picture."
—Boxoffice Magazine

"Last night I saw 'Madame Curie' and without a doubt it is one of the greatest motion pictures ever made. I feel sure that Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon will walk away with the Academy Award. Mervyn LeRoy, Sidney Franklin and the entire M-G-M organization are to be congratulated for such splendid entertainment. 'Madame Curie' is an outstanding box-office success, and is an immortal contribution to the motion picture industry."
—Frank L. Newman, Sr., Evergreen Theatre Corp. Seattle, Wash.

"Every inch a great picture. A distinguished contribution to the screen. Its box-office success is assured."
—Variety

"Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon of 'Mrs. Miniver' fame again bid for Academy honors."
—Edwin Schallert, Los Angeles Times

"One of the year's outstanding films. One of the finest to emerge from the Hollywood studios in a long time."
—Jay Emanuel Publications

"We go on record favoring it for Academy Awards."—Frank Quinn, N. Y. Sunday Mirror

"A wonderful picture; Greer Garson should, without question, again receive the Academy Award."
—Elsa Maxwell, Nationally Syndicated Column

"One of the truly fine pictures of the year."—Sidney Skolsky

"Unlimited in its appeal. Solid grosses should be the rule. Crammed with all the human elements that are the essence of first-rate dramatic entertainment."

LITHO U S A

The Box Office Slant

neer Corp is a swell piece of entertainment for every individual attending a motion picture theatre. While some audiences may be reluctant to see another war epic, with its horror, destruction and despair, they won't have that to say about this film for the experiences they will encounter will be those of being given worthwhile information, interestingly and stirringly. There are many light moments; with a jitterbug sequence by John Wayne; and a romance that ties the picture together exceptionally well. Even the bobby-sock trade will go for this tale, since it gives them the story of men most of them should know about and also a new thrill in seeing Wayne do a jitterbug dance. The leading characterizations are very well portrayed by Wayne, as the big bold man; Dennis O'Keefe as an officer of the Navy and Susan Hayward, as the newspaperwoman whom both men love. The theme song, "Song of the Seabees," by Peter DeRose and Sam M. Lewis, is one of those tunes that the audience will go out humming and seems to be headed for top spot in public choice. The balance of the cast is hand-picked and so realistic in their respective portrayals, that the picture seems a part of living and real life among these men. To Edward Ludwig, who directed, must go credit for the realism portrayed and for his unusually fine way of presenting a story of what might have been just another war epic. Associate Producer Albert J. Cohen is responsible for the intrinsic values and excellence in production. Sell the title and get the cooperation of all patriotic organizations for your exploitation.

None Shall Escape

Columbia Drama 85 mins.

(Nat'l Release, January 1)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Dramatic fare of great power to stir any section of the American audience.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Should do well in any theatre, if exploited; and will build up great public discussion and interest.

Cast: Marsha Hunt, Alexander Knox, Henry Travers, Erik Rolf, Richard Crane, Dorothy Morris, Richard Hale, Ruth Nelson, Kurt Kreuger, Shirley Mills, Elvin Field, Trevor Bardette, Frank Jaquet, Ray Teal, Art Smith, George Lessey. Credits: Directed by Andre De Toth. Screenplay by Lester Cole. Story by Joseph Neumann and Joseph Than. Director of photography, Lee Garmes. Associate Producer, Burt Kelly. Produced by Samuel Bischoff.

Plot: A Nazi General, after the war, is handed over to an International Court for trial for his crimes. During his trial all his misdeeds and inhuman acts are reviewed, for it is up to the people of the world to pronounce judgment.

Comment: Placed in any house and given the first impetus of a public discussion by some publicity and advertising, this picture will do much more at the box-office than its budgetary power would indicate. The whole world has its attention focused on the problem which this picture pretends to solve, and everyone in your town or community will be interested in this presentation. It is true that the idea is pure theory, for the trial is an excuse to present in retrospect the murders, horrors and crimes of the Nazis, without any suggestion of what punishment should be meted out. But the very thought of handling of war criminals by post-war trials is provocative and lends itself to the most stimulating exploitation, with speeches by priests, ministers and rabbis on the subject. Essay contests can be held in the schools, with the teachers selecting the best for oral presentation at your theatre. Production, though it does not suggest punishment, is nevertheless powerful and moving screenfare that stirs the American sense of fair play and justice. It is a trophy on the wall of Sam Bischoff for courage in trying to bring to the fore a problem that will be extremely controversial. Interpretations of their parts by Marsha Hunt, Alexander Knox, Henry Travers, Erik Rolf and Richard Hale are great contributions to the excellence of the dramatic force of the overall picture. Direction by Andre De Toth gives the drama reality, earnestness and unity.

Mr. Muggs Steps Out

Monogram Comedy-Drama 63 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Dec. 1st, 1943)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Plenty of laughs in this latest East Side Kids picture for those who like their type of entertaining.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: One of the best in the series.

Cast: Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Billy Benedict, Noah Beery, Sr., Joan Marsh, Betty Blythe, Nick Stuart, Patsy Moran, Stanley Brown, Halliwell Hobbes, Eddie Gribbon, Emmet Vogan, Dave Durand, Bobby Stone, Bud Gorman, Jimmy Strand. Credits: Directed by William Beaudine. Director of photography, Marcel Le Picard. Associate Producer, Barney Sarecky. Produced by Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz.

Plot: Instead of being sent to jail for a petty offense, Leo Gorcey is paroled in the custody of a wealthy family for whom he becomes chauffeur. There he gets a chance to prove his mettle by catching the crooks who robbed the place and also is instrumental in preventing the kidnapping of their debutante daughter.

Comment: One of the best of the East Side Kids series of pictures, with the usual byplay between the hoodlums lending itself to a great deal of hilarity for the entertainment of those theatregoers who enjoy this type of screenfare. The boys, Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, etc., are all very good in their familiar roles, gamboling with ease through all the messed-up situations; milking every line of dialogue of its last possible laugh. Joan Marsh and Nick Stuart do well in their parts as the boss' daughter and the thief, respectively. Much credit is due William Beaudine for his able direction and to the producers, Barney Sarecky, Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz for a topnotch East Side Kids offering.

Swingtime Johnny

Universal Comedy-With-Music 60 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Feb. 4th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Program entertainment for the bobby socks trade and any others addicted to this type of fare.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Can take its place on a double bill with the take depending on what your customers think of the Andrews Sisters.

Cast: Andrews Sisters, Harriet Hilliard, Peter Cookson, Tim Ryan, Matt Willis, Bill Phillips, Tom Dugan, Ray Walker, Marion Martin, John Hamilton, John Sheehan, Syd Saylor, Jack Rice, Emmett Vogan, Herbert Heywood, Alphonse Martell, Mitch Ayres and His Orchestra. Credits: Directed by Edward F. Cline. Original story by Warren Wilson. Screenplay by Clyde Bruckman. Director of photography, Jerome Ash. Musical director and Arranger, Vic Schoen. Produced by Warren Wilson.

Plot: The owner of a pipe organ company hires a high-pressure promoter to supervise the plant's wartime change-over. The Andrews Sisters and other entertainers at a night club, disband and work on the production line. When the promoter tries underhand work to start trouble, they all gang up on him.

Comment: Like most of its predecessors starring the Andrews Sisters, this is a satisfactory program offering to supply the added musical item for a double bill. The plot has not been too carefully blended with the singing of the three Sisters, but is enough excuse to bring the picture through. Whether this attracts patrons depends on whether the star trio has a following in your district. Harriet Hilliard is pleasant and, in spite of the addition of acting to singing, comes off well. Peter Cookson has brought his role to the point where it is just a little overdone. The rest is mostly action with swing music and a fight a la slapstick days. There are one or two production numbers, showcasing Harriet Hilliard, that are quite good and do credit to Warren Wilson, who produced.

Uncensored

20th Century-Fox Drama 83 mins.

(National Release, January 21)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Absorbing British-made story of Belgian underground.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Rates average among films of a type which recently have not proved money makers.

Cast: Eric Portman, Phyllis Calvert, Griffith Jones, Peter Glenville, Frederick Culley, Raymond Lovell, Irene Handl, Carl Jaffe and others. Credits: Produced by Edward Black. Directed by Anthony Asquith. Maurice Ostrer in charge of production. Based on the book by Oscar E. Millard. Story and adaptation by Wolfgang Wilhelm. Screenplay by Rodney Ackland and Terrence Rattigan. Photographed by Arthur Crabtree.

Plot: After the Nazi occupation of Belgium, a Priest, about to be taken into "protective custody," leaves a paper with a fellow cleric instructions on how to conduct an underground newspaper. This Priest organizes a paper and attacks the Nazi oppressors. A local publisher plays ball with the Germans, printing what he is told while clandestinely writing for the underground paper. A cabaret entertainer handles the workings of the underground until he is reported by his stage partner. The ring leaders are rounded up but Andre avoids arrest and with the aid of the publisher the regular issue of the underground paper goes to press in time to avert the sentencing to death of the Priest and others.

Comment: The story behind this film is good and it makes absorbing screen material. The only weakness of the picture is the lack of production quality to which American filmgoers are educated. Like most British productions, the photography is poorly lighted although this is rather a matter of technique with the English. The acting while a bit overdone in spots is generally good and on the whole the film will be found pleasing and suspense laden. A romance is woven through the story with every justification and there are several very British song and dance numbers which will hardly satisfy an American audience. The film rates a supporting spot with a strong feature in the double bill situations.

Riders of the Deadline

United Artists Western 70 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Routine maybe, but Hopalong's fans will like it, and the picture will be accepted by all audiences.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Aces in its class.

Plot: This story has to do with a smuggling ring that gets guns and ammunition over the border (what border and for what rea-

CINCINNATI

An audience of more than four hundred attended the luncheon of the Advertisers Club at which Charles Francis Coe, vice-president and general counsel, Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, asserted that this fourth largest industry in the world was supporting the war effort, not only from a morale, but also an educational standpoint. Every exchange had a table at the luncheon and motion picture exhibitors from all points of the mid-east area were in attendance. M. F. Allison, New York City, presided and Mayor James Garfield Stewart introduced Mr. Coe.

A joint telegram has been sent to Tom C. Clark, Assistant U. S. Attorney General, by the Greater Cincinnati Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and the Independent Exhibitors' Forum, declaring that "it has become common practice in the motion picture industry for the dominating distributors' branch to go far beyond the bounds of good business practice in their drive for complete industry control."

Charles Ring was elected president of the Motion Picture Operators' Union at its annual meeting last week. Other officers chosen were Walter Partner, vice-president; John Krebs, business representative; Earle Wagner, alternate business representative and secretary; Gale Murney, recording secretary-treasurer; Arthur Wright, sergeant-at-arms. Trustees named were William Meyer, Earl Medaris and Jack Malcolm. Named to the executive board were Elmer Pieger, George Buquo, Fred Hahn, Walter Harris, and Howard Shelton. Ring and Krebs were appointed convention delegates.

Keith's Theatre, in cooperation with the American Red Cross Blood Bank, announces the plasma premiere of "Three Russian Girls" at the special showing for donors January 26 at 10 p.m. Immediately following the regular show, the management will completely clear the theatre for the plasma premiere. Every blood donor between now and that date (up to the capacity of the theatre), will receive two honor tickets.

Fox's Virginia Meyer's brother, Jack, is home after two years' active duty at Pearl Harbor.

Corp. Robert Bicknell was here on furlough and visited the Row. Corp. Bicknell is stationed at Camp Buettner, N. C.

Fox's Vincent James, shipper, 18, was married last week with the consent of his parents and the bride's parents. His bride is 15.

Warners' district manager, Charles Rich, and Eastern Sales Manager Jules Lapidus were here last week.

Warners' Bill Kern is sick with flu.

Laverne Hungler, Columbia booker, has resigned. Bill Burns, former booker, has returned to the fold.

Peter Rosian, Universal district manager, visited the Dallas office last week.

C. A. Metro, Portsmouth exhibitor, was a visitor.

The Cinema Club will hold its installation dinner and stag on February 14. Tickets are $5, including cocktails and door prizes.

CLEVELAND

"If the Navy E were presented to movie people in appreciation of their splendid work to further the war effort the Cleveland theatre owners should get one," John Lokar, secretary to Mayor Frank J. Lausche, told the members of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association. He complimented the theatre owners for the magnificent job they are doing in the war effort by entering enthusiastically into all of the drives and for the big job they are doing to sell war bonds every day of the war.

Mary Pickford is scheduled to be in Cleveland next Thursday to attend a March of Dimes luncheon at the Cleveland Hotel.

Mrs. Jack Gertz, associated with her husband in the theatre premium business, leaves next week to spend the winter in Tucson, Ariz.

Bob Snyder, the local Film Classics man, last week closed a deal for "A Star Is Born" and "The Lady Vanishes" to play the entire Community circuit, opening at the Circle Theatre. Snyder also closed with RKO to play "King of the Damned" and "It's Love Again" at Keith's East 105th St. Theatre.

Jack Goldhar, United Artists district manager, flew in from Detroit the beginning of the week for a business conference with Tony Stern, head Warner theatre booker.

Audrey Mandeville Goodin, who has been a member of the Warner theatre department for the past seven years, has resigned. She will go to Florida with her husband for a month and after that will remain 100 per cent domestic.

Pvt. Stanley Krenitz, son of Universal Branch Manager Joe Krenitz, was home over the week-end from the University of Michigan, where he is studying Japanese.

Bert Stearn, former United Artists western sales manager, opened his Co-operative Theatre Service in Pittsburgh on Wednesday. Stearn's organization will buy and book pictures for theatre owners in the Pittsburgh territory.

Lt. Donald C. Clark, son of Paramount District Manager Duke Clark, has been assigned as umpire of Army maneuvres in Louisiana.

Biggest money-maker of the week along the main theatre stem last week was "Guadalcanal Diary." The picture scored a tremendous hit, chalking up the best gross of any recent week except New Year's week.

Harry Rosenquest of the Warner home office was a Cleveland Warner guest during the past week.

Nat Wolf, Warner zone manager, and Tony Stern, head of the theatre booking department, journeyed to Lima last week to have a look at the newly decorated Ohio, State and Sigma theatres.

D. Leonard Halper, head of the local Warner construction engineering department, has returned from a California vacation.

Two first-run downtown theatres will present bond premieres during the period of the Fourth War Bond Campaign. Loew's State has set January 28 for its premiere with "Madame Curie" as the screen attraction. Warners' Hippodrome will hold a premiere on February 1. The attraction will be "Destination Tokyo." Two Warner suburban houses—Uptown and Variety—will also hold premieres.

The local WAC announces that Charles Ruggles and Elaine Shepard are the two stars assigned to the Cleveland territory to boost the sale of War Bonds. They will spend two weeks in Cleveland visiting war plants. While in the city they will be the guests of Manager Alan Lowe at the Carter Hotel.

A team of two starlets and four war heroes, as yet unnamed, will spend two weeks visiting the surrounding towns.

Nat L. Lefton, PRC franchise-owner, has returned from New York where he went to attend a franchise owners' meeting.

Our two big jobs in January: Fourth War Loan and March of Dimes.

LITHO U.S.A.

DES MOINES

The dates and cities for the Bond Battalion No. 7 which will tour Iowa during the Fourth War Loan Drive have been announced by A. H. Blank, chairman for Iowa and Nebraska. Included on the tour from Hollywood will be Paul Kelly and Margie Wadsworth. The tour will start in Iowa at Centerville on the afternoon of Jan. 29, Burlington that evening; Clinton, Jan. 30; Cedar Rapids, Jan. 31; Council Bluffs and Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 1; Sioux City, Feb. 2, and Sioux Falls, S. D., Feb. 3.

A. H. Blank, head of Tri-States Theatre Corp., and G. Ralph Branton, general manager, have left for Dallas, Tex., to attend the meeting of Paramount partners. Following the meeting, Blank will journey to Miami Beach, Fla., to visit his son, Lieut. Myron Blank, now in the Navy.

Tri-States Theatres and Central States will have a 100 per cent record on holding premieres for the drive, with at least one scheduled in every town where the circuits have theatres. A larger number of Iowa theatres are cooperating in the Fourth Drive than for any previous drive.

Elmer Bohlig, formerly assistant manager of a Webster City theatre, has opened the Lakota Theatre in Lakota, Iowa. The Dows Theatre at Dows has been sold to Howard Pollard of Reinbeck, who also operates the Reinbeck house.

Jacob Schlank has been named as salesman for northeastern Iowa by 20th Century-Fox, replacing Evan Jacobs, who is now head booker and city salesman for the exchange. Schlank formerly was a salesman for Universal in Des Moines.

Mildred Coburn, who has served as secretary to Booker Bert Thomas at the Columbia exchange for the past six years, has resigned. Ann Smalley, with the Paramount exchange, also is leaving to take an inspectress job with Paramount in Chicago.

Harry Schiffrin, former Universal salesman and Ross Federal manager, is in North Africa and wrote friends in Des Moines recently he had met his younger brother there unexpectedly. He didn't even know his brother was in the Army until the meeting.

Eddie Forester, manager of the Des Moines Theatre, is quite versatile. In addition to his duties as a theatre manager, he conducts a 15-minute radio program giving Hollywood gossip. His latest achievement is writing, with the Omaha World-Herald using one of his short stories in the Sunday magazine section. The story was about a theatre cashier who prevented a holdup.

Roscoe E. Hacker, 51, office manager for Film Transportation Company, died in Mercy Hospital after a short illness. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, and one son.

DETROIT

Gov. Harry F. Kelly of Michigan has called upon all film-goers to buy an extra war bond in honor of Carole Lombard, who died in an airplane crash while on a bond-selling tour. Gov. Kelly's indorsement of the picture industry's campaign in the Fourth War Loan Drive was given in a letter to Edward C. Beatty, Michigan War Activities Committee chairman. Beatty pointed out that theatres in every part of Michigan have joined in the drive. The sales are being conducted day and night, with special bond booth operators serving on Sundays for the convenience of those who cannot make purchases other days.

The Fox Theatre's big midnight show January 28 for the benefit of infantile paralysis sufferers will include top-flight Detroit radio, stage and night-club performers. Tickets for the show went on sale last week and all the receipts will go to the national campaign.

It was Dish Night at the East End Theatre the other night and things seemed to be going smoothly enough, except for the occasional clatter and crash of a dish as an embarrassed woman patron let a plate slip off her lap to the floor. But outside there was havoc. A certain Alpha T. Goolsby of St. Clair Shores was passing the theatre and saw the women coming out carrying their dishes. Being slightly in his cups, Goolsby saw the chance for some real fun. As the women streamed out Goolsby snatched the platters away from them and in high glee smashed them against the brick wall of the theatre. Police finally broke it up and in court Goolsby was given a penalty of $20 or 20 days.

FIRST LADY STARTS DIMES DRIVE. Eleanor Roosevelt and District Commissioner Guy Mason started the Washington, D. C., March of Dimes drive with a bang. Seen in photo above with them is Patricia Morison, center. All 66 theatres in the nation's capitol, with 56,037 seats, are pledged solidly to "make it More in '44."

Dean Murphy, who is to play Walter Pidgeon's son in "If Winter Comes," has been heading the revue at the Club Royale. Murphy got an unexpected furlough from the cameras when Merle Oberon, playing opposite Pidgeon, was unable to finish another assignment, causing the shooting date of "If Winter Comes" to be postponed to May 20.

INDIANAPOLIS

The Indiana Theatre stage was the setting for the Indiana Fourth War Loan Drive broadcast last Thursday from 8:30 to 9:00 p.m. Governor Henry F. Schricker, Eugene C. Pulliam, state chairman of the War Finance Committee, and the Billings General Hospital concert orchestra were heard on a twenty-station radio broadcast.

The Hilltop Theatre, Louisville, Ky., was damaged by fire the night of January 7. Damage was estimated at $10,000. All film shipments were ordered held up pending completion of necessary repairs. Herbert Nadal is the manager.

Frank Hanley, accessory manager at Universal, has completed bowling three record games with the Capital Paper Co. league. He scored 234 in the first game; 203 in the second, and 224 in the fourth game. An excellent record for a young man of 64 years to his credit.

K. H. Ball of the Royal Theatre in Brownstown, Ind., and Mrs. Ball were visitors on Film Row during the week. Ball, a member of the Merchant Marine, is home on furlough.

Jules Lapidus, Eastern sales manager for Warner Bros., and Charles Rich, district manager, visited the local exchange last week.

Irving Tamler has withdrawn from Indianapolis Co-Operative Theatres, and will operate his Tuxedo Theatre independently.

L. J. McGinley, Universal exchange manager, renewed an old acquaintanceship with Ted Gamble of the U. S. Treasury department, who was the principal speaker at the Fourth War Loan Drive luncheon at the Claypool Hotel January 10.

Joe Goldberg has resigned as manager of the Indiana Theatre. He made no announcement of his future plans. His successor has not been appointed.

Joel Golden, Universal salesman in the Kentucky territory, has been inducted into the Navy and is reporting to the Great Lakes Naval station this week.

The regular monthly meeting of the Indianapolis Variety Club, Tent No. 10, will be held in the club rooms January 31.

William Lehman is the new addition to the Paramount booking department. He succeeds Herbert Boss, now in the armed forces.

The Office of War Information previewed a motion picture at one of Madison's local theatres last Thursday night depicting the life in a typical American small town, for which Madison was selected. The film made last September by the OWI, will be sent immediately overseas for foreign distribution. The theatre was filled to capacity.

MEMPHIS

Wedding bells were echoing in MGM's exchange last week. Former head booker, now Lieut. William Barton Mallory, U.S.N.R., and Miss Marion Lucas of Washington were married January 15 in Atlanta. It was a war romance which began when Lt. Mallory and Miss Lucas were stationed at the same post in Trinidad, West Indies. They will live at Cherry Point, N. C., the bridegroom's new station.

Bill Kemp, former assistant to Arthur Groom, manager of Loew's State Theatre, is now relief manager for the Southwestern district with headquarters in Atlanta.

Two outstanding pieces of promotion were handled by Manager Groom of the State recently—a page ad tie-up by Levy's fashion shop on "Lassie Come Home" for its children's department, and another smart bit by the Coca Cola Company, who distributed 1200 window cards for "Lost Angel."

New employes at Loew's State are Ann Gibson and Robert McLain, assistant night managers. Cupid also took a good aim at night floor manager, J. Rubble (Babe) Davis, who staged a Gretna Green wedding at Hernando, Miss., with Miss Mary Dunning.

MGM exchange gave an appreciation party for its employes at the Variety Club last week.

National executives in the sales branch of RKO pictures were in Memphis last week to open the Ned Depinet sales drive, and hold a sales conference. Heading the committee were Charles Boasberg and Harry Gittelson.

Seaman First Class Richard K. Duke of Memphis, who is a member of the 70th Seabee Battalion, attended the premiere showing in New York of the "Fighting Seabees" as guest of Republic Pictures.

The Motion Picture Industry Bond Committee at a meeting at the Variety Club last week decided to hold war saving bond shows in 400 theatres in the Memphis territory. Salesmen out of Memphis exchanges will help promote the shows for a two-week period, and also help with the March of Dimes drive. Tuesday night, the Gavel Club and the Chamber of Commerce, aided by nine other civic clubs entertained Lon Chaney, Jr., June Vincent and Dave Clark, and three war heroes. Admission to the dinner was the purchase of a $500 war saving bond.

The State Theatre at Hot Springs, Ark., burned last Saturday. Loss was estimated at $45,000.

MIAMI

The first of a series of weekly "Free Movie Nights" was staged here on Tuesday by the 29 houses of Wometco and Paramount. Admission was free to bond buyers, who responded well to the first theatre-sponsored event of the Fourth War Loan Drive. Star appearances and a Double War Bond Premiere at the Lincoln and Paramount, Feb. 2, are also included in the local campaign plan.

A meeting of all employes of Wometco Theatres was held last week as an "opening gun" rally for the Fourth War Loan Drive and the War Chest Campaign. Speakers included Horace Cordes, chairman of the Dade County War Bond Committee, and W. W. Andrews, special speaker for the War Chest, who gave appeals for the two currently conducted drives. Publicist Charlie Shaw introduced the speakers and outlined Wometco's participation in the campaigns.

Charlie Whitaker, manager of Paramount's Dade Theatre, who has been accepted for Army duty, had his training postponed by a severe attack of the flu.

Paramount and Wometco theatres are laying plans for participation January 24-30 in the March of Dimes campaign. Hal Kopplin, Wometco advertising director, is coordinating efforts of the two circuits.

In connection with "What a Woman," Wometco has tied up with the local distributors of The Woman Magazine. Inserts in the February issue of The Woman, 40x60's at all theatres prior to playdate, and newspaper publicity are being employed in the tie-up.

A letter to Wometco's co-owner, Mitchell Wolfson, addressed merely "Major Mitchell Wolfson, Army of the United States" and mailed from Nassau, reached his Wometco office two days after it was mailed. Dale Toemmes, his secretary, is spending many a sleepless night wondering how the latter reached him.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc., has been visiting in Miami.

NEW YORK

The Bookers Club will hold installation of officers next Monday, January 24.

Clarence Eiseman, Warner branch manager, is back from a ten-day vacation spent at Lakewood, N. J.

Transportation these days either calls for nothing at all or great speed. E. K. "Ted" O'Shea, MGM eastern division manager, applied for reservations on a train for St. Petersburg, Fla.—any train. One morning last week at 9:30 a.m. he got word his reservations had gone through for the 12:30 train the same morning. Ted made it, and is now recuperating from his siege of pneumonia under Gulf skies.

The sympathy of film row goes to Harry Thomas, Monogram's eastern division manager, who lost his mother last week.

Sam Seletsky, new Republic branch manager, received a royal welcome when he began work at the local exchange last week.

PRELUDE TO BOND DRIVE. Midtown first-run theatre managers, publicists and operators gathered at a luncheon in New York Tuesday to complete plans for their participation in the Fourth War Loan. At table above are: Seymour Peiser, Harry Mandel, Nevil Ford, Irving Lesser, Edward L. Alperson, B. V. Sturdevant.

Mrs. R. J. Follard, wife of RKO's Washington, D. C., district manager, has been spending the last week in New York, looking over the plays and visiting friends along film row.

Pvt. Lawrence Kulick, brother of Lt. Comm. Bert Kulick, formerly a salesman for PRC, is now stationed in England.

Pfc. Myron Starr, former UA booker stationed at Orlando, Fla., writes that he took advantage of a five-day furlough to visit Miami, and that while there he called on Corp. Herbert Richek, UA's office manager of not so long ago.

Bellmont Gottlieb, 20th-Fox circuit salesman, who last week expected to go in the Army somewhat later on, decided to wait no longer for action, and has joined the Merchant Marine.

Garry Voorman, manager of the Fabian Theatre, Paterson, N. J., went to a parking space last Wednesday night to get his car. When almost there he slipped on a small spot of ice. Result: four stitches taken in his nose and two eyes blackened.

Happy office staffs: at Warners bonds were distributed to members of the sales force for their work in the 1943-44 shorts sales campaign, and at Republic the employes received checks last week for the serial and reissue drive.

Morris Sanders, 20th Century-Fox sales supervisor for Manhattan and Bronx, started on a vacation Monday, the lucky stiff—it's Miami.

Sophie Littman, Warner short subjects booker, is back after a week fighting the flu, and so is Cashier Harry Hummell, who has been laid low by pneumonia for three weeks.

After many urgent requests from a Callicoon, N. Y., exhibitor for the name of Hopalong Cassidy's horse on behalf of patrons who were becoming more and more impatient to know, United Artists this week was able to reply that the horse's name was "Topper," after frantic wires to the coast. Now all is serene in Callicoon.

Lloyd Kraus is a new student booker at 20th Century-Fox.

Edward Mory, manager of branch operations for Monogram, returned from a trip to the Boston and New Haven exchanges.

The RKO bunch are getting ready to welcome Charlie Boasberg and Harry Gittleson when they arrive in New York February 4 at the end of their tour on behalf of the Ned Depinet drive.

Mrs. Maxwell Gillis, wife of Republic's eastern division manager, is back home from the hospital after a major operation. Doing well.

UA health notes: Bess Brewer, statistician, fell last week and hurt her leg. Nothing serious. Hilda Zeiderman, assistant cashier, was out a week with a severe cold. Dave Burkan, city salesman, is back after a short bout with a cold on top of grippe.

Jules Lapidus, Warner eastern district manager, paid a visit to the exchange last week.

Marian Lefcourt, assistant cashier at Monogram, has resigned.

RKO's Ann Levy is back after her first absence in 14 years for illness.

Warners has promoted Theo Hendel from clerk to biller.

Morris Reitman, former treasurer of S.O.S. Cinema Supply Corporation, died last week at the age of 32. Mr. Reitman had served for three years with S.O.S. until he was forced to retire early in 1943 because of ill health.

Marjorie Wilten, who has been conducting the "Life on the Home Front" program over Station KMOX, St. Louis, since last April, in New York on a business trip, visited her brother, Arnold Stoltz, United Artists exploitation director.

Gilbert B. J. Frawley, executive of Paramount Pictures, Inc., was unanimously re-elected president of the New York Athletic Club last week. Mr. Frawley has been a member of the board of governors of the club since 1938 and was unanimously elected president a year ago.

OMAHA

Warner Brothers exchange here is putting out a 6 by 12 inch handbill reading: "Your old pal, Pistol Packin' Alice Neal, is celebrating her eleventh anniversary with Warners in February. How's About Helping Her Make February the Rootinest, Tootinest Month of Our Roundup by rustling up extra playdates on features and shorts for February."

Robert Hosman is the new United Artists shipper, Doroth Heston the new postal clerk.

Dave Frost of Des Moines, veteran of 16 years in the theatre supply and film distributing business, has joined MGM here as a salesman.

MGM's checking supervisor, Monte Matthews, has been transferred to the Kansas City territory. Before leaving Monte received a gift from the office. He will be replaced by Harvey Stinson of Omaha.

Harry Lefholtz, Republic branch manager, has returned from a three-day district meeting in Chicago.

Georg Monroe of the Fort Theatre, Kearney, made one of his infrequent visits to the row.

George Dilley, assistant shipper at the Paramount exchange, recently fell and broke his leg, leaving the exchange without a shipper, since last week Walter Allen resigned.

M. A. Levy, district manager from Minneapolis, visited the Twentieth Century-Fox exchange.

Jack Zeigler, son of F. A. Van Husen of Western Theatre Supply, returned to his Alaska post by Army plane.

Hymie Novitsky, former restaurant owner and veteran film salesman, has joined the Twentieth Century-Fox staff as a salesman.

The Grand Theatre at Genoa, Neb., was completely destroyed by fire. It is owned by C. M. Peterson of Omaha.

Art Berwald, Paramount traveling auditor, has left Omaha for New Orleans after a two-month stay here.

Mrs. Izzie Weiner, wife of the Universal salesman, has been ill.

Hymie Novitsky brought word back from California that Harry Taylor, former district manager here, has adopted twins; that Everett Cumins, former Tri-States manager, now owns both houses at Downey, Cal.; and that Howard Gould, formerly with Universal here, has sold his theatre at Amaheim, Cal., to Fox.

Karl Howe, RKO branch manager, has set up prizes for inter-office competition by three teams.

The village of Campbell, Neb., will have its

Bert Kelly, Liberty Theatre, Council Bluffs, now has an interest in an Amaha candy firm.

Ernest Epley of Western Theatre Supply Company has returned from Kansas City. F. A. Van Husen and Engineer Harry Coyne are scheduled to go east in a few days.

Film row is buzzing these days with plans to renew its annual winter frolic, Saturday night, January 22, when the Variety Club will give the first inaugural ball since the war started. The group will dine at 7:30 at the Paxton Hotel. J. T. McBride, Paramount branch manager, is in charge of ticket sales. Attendance is not limited to Variety Club members.

PHILADELPHIA

As Mayor Bernard Samuel rang out the opening of the Fourth War Loan Drive on the Liberty Bell in ceremonies broadcast to the nation, sirens, bells and whistles sounded in Philadelphia. From Hollywood came Franchot Tone as an emissary from filmland to help theatremen in the drive. Many stops have been scheduled for him here during his ten-day stay. Lucille Ball is scheduled to relieve him, and will stay here for another ten days. Jim Ashcraft, state publicity chairman, has his hands full taking care of the arrangements incidental to the stars' stay here.

Joe Engle, congenial manager of Republic Pictures, was host to the newspaper people at the Variety Club where "The Fighting Seabees" was screened at a luncheon honoring Justin Joseph Dintzer, QM 1/c, a Philadelphia Seabee who has just returned from overseas. At a ceremony in the Mayor's office, QM Dintzer has been presented with a bracelet with the Seabee emblem by his honor the Mayor.

Arthur "Tiny" Goldsmith, manager of the Boyd Theatre, who had been ill for several weeks, returned to the job.

Joe Feldman, Warner personnel manager, is resting easily in the University Hospital after an operation.

Fay's Theatre closed last week on short notice due to lack of stage attractions.

Allegheny Theatre, which had been running vaudeville the last three days of the week, has given up the stage show policy and is now showing only pictures.

Buddy Rogasner, son of Milt Rogasner of the Iris Theatre, has joined the staff of the Columbia Exchange as a booker.

"Truth Is Stranger Than Fiction" in the case of S/Sgt. David M. Cooper and Private Cohen. Both Philadelphians, Cooper, a former Vitagraph salesman, and Cohen, a former operator at the Center Theatre here, met in England at a USO canteen and it was on the last day of Cohen's furlough from his duty in Iceland.

Helene Wolf of the 20th Century-Fox Exchange, has just announced her engagement to Private Jack Orrit, now attending the Medical School of Temple University.

Elmer Pickard, manager of the Fox Theatre, is vacationing, visiting his folks in Iowa.

Al Horwitz and Hank Linet of the Universal Exploitation Department escorted Capt. W. S. LeFrancois, of Makin Island fame, over to Philadelphia to meet newspaper people and to see "Gung Ho."

We don't know whether Manager John Latimer had arranged it, but one evening last week as the Red Arrow Line trolley slipped into the Aranomink Station, directly across from the Waverly Theatre which Latimer manages. Conductorette No. 30 went into a long spiel about the stars and the feature playing at the Waverly.

The Logan Theatre is scheduled to close late in February for a going over.

Bond premieres have been definitely set for the following theatres in the area: The Colonial, February 8, sponsored by the Germantown Division of the Philadelphia Police and the U. S. Signal Corps; Astor Theatre, February 8, sponsored by the Marshall St. Business Men's Association. Yorktown, in Elkins Park on February 3, sponsored by the Cheltenham Township Auxiliary Police.

NEW CHIEF BARKER. Harry Ballance, former Chief Barker of Tent 21, Atlanta Variety Club, surrenders his gavel of office to newly elected Chief Barker Jack Dumstre.

PITTSBURGH

The utmost effort and cooperation is being given the Fourth War Loan Drive by the local War Activities Committee. With "A Bond for Every Seat" as their slogan, all theatres in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania will join in the campaign and endeavor to break all previous records for war bond sales, it was announced by co-chairmen of the committee, M. A. Silver and M. A. Rosenberg last week.

The Dipson Theatrical Enterprises have sold the Valley Theatre, Brackenridge, Pa., to Joseph Cevario, a newcomer in the theatre business.

Blatt Brothers have turned over their Main Theatre in Greenville, Pa., to Peter L. Patti. The Blatt Circuit will continue to operate the Mercer Square Theatre in this town, and will open a new house there in the near future.

The flu epidemic continues in this territory, with schools and other public buildings in a number of towns being closed. On Film Row most of the exchanges have been operating with little more than half their staffs during the past three or four weeks, and many exhibitors report the same conditions.

On Wednesday of this week the new buying and booking combine which has been organizing for the past several months opened its office on Film Row with a housewarming party. This output is headed by Bert Stearn, who was branch manager of the local United Artists exchange here for 15 years, later Western sales manager for that company, and recently with Warner in Cleveland. It is reported that approximately 25 theaters have joined this combine, mostly smaller circuit operators and indepent exhibitors.

Paul Keith, office manager for the RKO exchange here, was inducted into the Army on January 17. Marvin Wolfish, who was recently honorably discharged from the Army, has been appointed salesman in the West Virginia territory for this company.

The Robert Taylors are the parents of an eight-pound daughter, born this week. The new father is manager of the Harris-Senator Theatre in downtown Pittsburgh, and on the same day the baby was born he received his notice to report for final Army physical examination.

PORTLAND

The Portland Board of Review advises it passed 1048 pictures during the past year. Fifty-one reels in nine pictures were condemned. One theatre license was revoked, according to Josephine Forney, executive viewer.

Edgar Buchanan, Eugene (Ore.) dentist who made good in pictures, accompanied by Osa Massen, Danish actress, making a USO-sponsored tour of Army camps and hospitals.

Ralph Abbott, Seattle, and Walter Wessling, Portland, celebrating another Monogram anniversary.

Ed Cruea, formerly of Monogram, Seattle, and now a sergeant with U. S. Army Signal Corps, West Palm Beach, Fla., reports the birth of a daughter.

In spite of suggestions that patrons attend first-runs in the middle of the week, long lines are the rule every Saturday and Sunday, with continued SRO signs out. This is due to closing defense work Sundays.

Don Chinniquy, son of Oscar L. Chinniquy, manager, National Theatre Supply, Seattle, has arrived in Oakland from the South Pacific for hospitalization.

George Roys, from Eugene, oldest Oregon exhibitor, has been named on the Oregon Bond committee.

James Tropea, well known exhibitor of Skagway, Alaska, is making his annual booking trip to Seattle Row.

Eino Hemmila of Hunt Theatres, named on the Southern Oregon bond committee, is out to make further bond selling records.

Booking on Seattle Row: W. B. McDonald, Olympia; Richard B. Evans and Howard Edline, Kent; Ed Halberg, Harry Davidson, Pt. Angeles; W. A. and Mrs. Cochrane, Snoqualimie; Mike Barovic, Puyallup; Ed Johnson of Motor Inn; Mickey Carney booking for Army; Leonard Raatz, Keyport; Gene Grossbeck, Enumclaw.

Word has been received of the death of William L. McGurdy of Portland, son of the former theatre manager, Bill McGurdy.

Paul McElhinney, over from Spokane, is replacing temporarily Tommy Tomlinson in Republic offices. Latter ill with flu.

Manager Herb Royster of Mayfair Theatre, Portland, put on "Above Suspicion" as a single bill on test, and broke all previous Sunday records.

ST. LOUIS

Lester Bona as Film Exchange chairman for the Fourth War Loan Drive in the St. Louis territory, has announced the 122 cities in Eastern Missouri have been assigned to the various film salesmen working out of the St. Louis offices. The salesmen will carry campaign kits, etc., to assist the exhibitors.

Walter W. Head, president, General American Life Insurance Co. and general chairman for Missouri in the Fourth War Loan drive, is banking heavily on the motion picture theatres and exchanges to put Missouri over the top among the first states in the Union. Harry C. Arthur, Jr., Missouri's Film Industry chairman, has assured Mr. Head that he can bank 100 per cent on the industry to uphold its end.

Alderman Jake Sellers, author of the proposed curfew law for St. Louis, which has been pending in the Board of Aldermen for weeks, has admitted he has abandoned all hope of its enactment. He said no further effort will be made to get the bill out of the hands of the Legislation Committee, where it will be permitted to die.

booth of the staff room at St. Anthony's Hospital averted a fire the night of January 16 when film in the picture projector ignited. The nuns quickly turned off the power and closed the projection booth before they ran to turn in an alarm. Closely confined, the fire smothered.

Alec Templeton, famed blind pianist, and a group of Hollywood celebrities were starred at a huge War Bond rally staged at the Kiel Auditorium Monday as the climax of a bond drive by the 1400 members of the St. Louis Chapter of Hadassah, national women's Zionist organization.

The RKO-Radio exchange is being remodeled to provide new offices for District Manager Ray V. Nolan and St. Louis Manager Tommy Williamson, new booths for the bookers, and other improvements.

Barney Rosenthal, manager of Monogram Pictures, in conjunction with the Kerasotes Brothers, owner of the Senate Theatre, Springfield, Ill., has arranged an elaborate exploitation campaign for the run of "Where Are Your Children?" which opened a week's run at the Senate on Thursday. Spot announcements will be carried on two Springfield radio stations and extra space in the two local newspapers, as well as a fine spread of 24 sheets.

John X. Quinn, local MGM manager, is still confined to a local hospital, but is reported to being making satisfactory progress. No visitors as yet.

Seen along the Row were George Karsch of Farmington, Mo., and the Mercier Brothers from Perryville.

The St. Louis film colony learned with great sorrow that Lieut. Anthony Kerasotes, 31, one of the sons of Gus Kerasotes, founder of Kerasotes Theatres, apparently lost his life when the U.S.S. Leahy was torpedoed on Christmas Eve. The young Navy doctor entered the service in November, 1942. There is little hope that he will be found. He has three brothers with the armed forces of the nation, John, Louis and Nicholas Kerasotes.

The 500-seat Empire Theatre in Morris, Ill., was swept by fire recently. A shoe store and furniture store in the theatre building also were destroyed. The estimated loss was $100,000. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

WASHINGTON

Plans are now progressing for the Salesmen's Club's Third Annual Dinner Dance, which will be held in Silver Springs, Maryland, Indian Springs Golf and Country Club, February 5. A top attendance of one hundred couples has been placed on the affair. The dinner dance committee comprises Phil Bobys of Metro, Chick Wingfield of Columbia, Jerry Price of Warner Bros. and Vincent Dougherty of Paramount.

W. J. Heineman, representative of the Sam Goldwyn organization, is visiting in Washington at United Artists and RKO.

C. E. Peppiatt, branch manager of 20th Century-Fox, went to Baltimore on business last week.

Mildred Footer of United Artists will appear at Walter Reed Hospital and Forest Glen in the production, "This Is the Whacks," a satire on "This Is the Army."

C. E. Manifold, of the Penmar Theatre, Cardiff, Maryland, was in to book at Fox.

The Ned Depinet Drive at RKO is off to an enthusiastic start. Charles Boasberg, national leader, was in to attend the drive meeting, which added pep and enthusiasm to the local office.

Vivian Kelley, head of the contract department at Metro, is spending her vacation taking care of her sister's baby. And None Dante, also of the contract department, has left the house of START BOND DRIVE IN DALLAS. Charles Skouras, national chairman of the War Activities Committee; Robert O'Donnell, state chairman of the exhibitors division for Texas, and Ned E. Depinet, national chairman of the distributors committee.

Joan Nicola and Shirley Kessler of RKO are on the sick list.

John Gribble from Shippensburg, Pa., booker of the Notopolis and Gribble Circuit, was a recent visitor at RKO.

Rodney Collier, Stanley Theatre, Baltimore, was in to visit Frank La Falce, director of advertising and publicity at Warner Bros. Mr. Collier has just recovered from the flu.

Many changes have taken place in the Earle Theatre's decor. They were brought about without the theatre patrons realizing they were taking place. The orchestra pit, chairs, and music stands were painted; a new gold curtain now graces the stage; the organ has been refinished; and the office of the manager, Fred Thomas, has been enlarged and brightened with new fluorescent ceiling lights.

Mrs. Sam Wheeler has been appointed chairman of the women's ticket committee to sell 4th War Loan Bonds for the Bond Matinee of "Ice-Capades" at Uline's Arena, January 29, sponsored by Station WRC and the Variety Club of Washington, it was announced by Carter T. Barron, general chairman.

Alice Marshman, formerly employed in the contract department of Warner Bros. and now working at the Silver Theatre, reports that husband Sgt. Wendell Marshman has just received his Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering.

Up from the Norfolk Naval Operating Base was Sailor Marty Kutner. Wife Vivian Kutner of the cashier department at Metro was his proud hostess.

New employe Joan McNamara, special records clerk at Metro, goes in for writing short stories and poems.

New face in Warners contract department is Rosina Coronato, formerly in the New York office.

VANCOUVER

Jimmie Davie, RKO booker, is getting to be an author, grabbing plenty of space with his well-written letters in the Vancouver Sun.

"Old Acquaintance," Warner Bros. film, led the town last week at the Capitol and held over. The Orpheum was also doing capacity on "Guadalcanal" and "Dancing Masters." The Plaza is doing swell on a twin bill of "Pistol Packin' Mama" and "In Old Oklahoma" and is now on its third week.

Bernice, youngest daughter of Howard Boothe, Odeon supervisor for B. C., was married last week to Lieut. Ross Mallory. The groom just returned from serving overseas with the Canadian army.

Ralph Mitcheltree, former manager of the Capitol Theatre, Calgary, now in the RCAF, is now stationed at a coastal patrol station in Northern British Columbia.

C. R. Dippie, an old-timer in local film circles, passed away in San Francisco, age 72. His last position was Vancouver manager of 20th Century-Fox, where he was in charge for eleven years and resigned because of ill health.

The Roxy Theatre, Vancouver, was the victim of burglars who stole $160 taken from a hiding place in the projection room. Jack Cooperband is the owner.

King George has conferred Knighthood on Ernest Herbert Cooper of Toronto for meritorious war services. Sir Ernest is a brother of Colonel John Cooper, chairman of the Canadian Motion Picture Distributors Association.

Bill Jones, RKO Vancouver manager, and Reggie Doddrich, Calgary manager, have gone to Seattle for a sales drive meeting called by Drive Captain Boasberg. The Vancouver branch led the Canadian division in last year's drive.

Fred Poulter, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Duncan, Vancouver Island, reports to the Army on January 15. No successor has been appointed to date.

Tribute is paid by J. J. Fitzgibbons, president of Famous Players-Canadian Corp., in his annual review of the motion picture industry to exhibitors in Canada who have contributed to the war effort by supplying good entertainment in comfortable surroundings.

Harry Doan, formerly usher at the Strand Theatre, Vancouver, and a member of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, was killed in action with the British Eighth Army in Italy on December 15. He has been overseas for over four years.

Restrictions on commercial printing by the War-time Prices and Trade Board are affecting film exhibitors in the western provinces, particularly the smaller towns, where theatres had been relying heavily on window cards and programs for outside advertising.

DENVER

The Princess at Ordway, Colo., has been sold by D. J. Mooney to Gibraltar Enterprises and has been renamed the Ord.

Robert Smith, operating theatres in Steamboat Springs, Colo., is back from a five-week vacation spent at Phoenix, Ariz. He is much improved in health.

G. L. Blakeslee, Grand Theatre, Lander, Wyo., is just out of the hospital after nine weeks there.

G. A. Gorman has bought the Post Theatre, Provo, S. D., from G. A. Turner.

Kirby Griffin is now operating the Victory, Eads, Colo., having bought it from W. W. Williams.

Westland Theatres are putting in new Simplex sound in the Chief, Pueblo, Colo.

Lon T. Fidler, Monogram franchise holder, has named F. J. (Mike) Lee, recently salesman at Denver, as manager of the Kansas City Monogram exchange.

A fire in the rear of the Loveland heatre, Loveland, Colo., along with the water, caused enough damage to close the spot for about a month. Leon Coulter is the owner.

Bill Hart, manager of the Rex at Brighton, Colo., has joined the Navy; his brother, Derald Hart, manager of the Gothic, Denver, has joined the Army; George Frantz, formerly purchasing agent for Fox Intermountain Theatres, is now managing the Gothic; Keith Payne is manager of the Rex, and John Keister has been installed as manager of the Lewel, Denver.

The Day You Saw Red...White and Blue!

On April 18th, 1942, the first installme... of a vengeance-debt was paid. American bombers blasted Tokyo.

To bring you the story behind the story of this memorable event, Warner Bros. went not to the skies, but under the sea—to bring you a story heroic beyond belief!

For 'DESTINATION TOKYO' is the all-exciting adventure of the U. S. Submarine Copperfin, her skipper and her crew . . . whose almost incredible daring played so vital a part in the action.

'DESTINATION TOKYO' is superb entertainment . . . a magnificent picture. It is also an adventure in 'applied Americanism'.

For like Warner Bros.' 'Casablanca' and 'Air Force'. . .'Mission to Moscow' and 'Action in the North Atlantic'. . .'This Is The Army', 'Watch on the Rhine' and 'Princess O'Rourke'. . . 'DESTINATION TOKYO' breathes with the living, invincible spirit of a free people. Be sure to see it.

Our Two Big Jobs in January: Fourth War Loan and March of Dimes

Program Exchange

Fourth War Loan Begins to Get Attention in Programs; Personal Appeal Important

Well, the Fourth War Loan is now in full swing, and you'll be right in there pitching with every ounce of showmanship effort at your command so that when 11:59 p.m., Tuesday, February 15, arrives, the goal set by the motion picture industry will have been reached or, better yet, exceeded.

Last week's Program Exchange carried numerous ideas to aid you in putting your program to work not only for the Fourth War Loan but also for the March of Dimes drive. We hope you have been able to incorporate some of the ideas in your campaign, and we should be happy to see the results.

Keep in mind that your job has only begun, that up to the last minute you must expend every effort to help put both drives over the top.

Because members are so busy with the two drives, only a few programs have drifted to our desk during the past few days. So we'll look over a few that have accumulated and see what they have to offer. But first, now that we have the opportunity, we'd like to make a remark or two about the weather. It's right chilly outside, but not so much as to cause us to wear our ear muffs. In other words, it has been much, much colder. We had a little snow the other day, but then it turned to rain and the rain washed nearly all of the snow away. We were a little disappointed, for we had hoped to see the ground covered with snow, to feel it crunching under our feet after the temperature had dropped. But the temperature didn't drop. Instead, it rose. And as a result we slushed around in our rubbers, raincoat and umbrella. There are still a few more days in January, all of February and probably most of March, during which time plenty of snow can fall, the temperature drop, and snow crunch under our feet.

In the calendar for the Marius and Alger theatres, Lakeview, Ore., Manager M. H. Alger announces a War Bond Show at the Marius for January 26. With admission through purchase of war bonds only, loge seats sell for $500, while other seats in the house sell for $100 each. We hope the house is packed to the rafters. The screen attraction will be "So Proudly We Hail."

Jim Owen took pride in announcing the showing of "Ozark Sportsmen," short subject in which he appears. Here's the way he called it to the attention of recipients of his calendar program:

"At last—we are going to be able to bring you 'Ozark Sportsmen,' the short subject made by Grantland Rice here on the White River, with an all-local cast. In filming a movie, they take eight or nine times more pictures than are used in the completed movie. They have been good enough to send us all the cut film in addition to the regular short, and we will show it all. If you can't get here on Wednesday and Thursday, we will hold it over two extra days. You will see about thirty local people in this movie. . . ."

A lot of good film footage has necessarily been left on the cutting-room floor, so we imagine that in addition to the footage which comprises the ten minutes or so of "Ozark Sportsmen," there is still a lot left over that would be mighty interesting to view. We hope Owen's patrons enjoy the left-over footage, as well as the regular short.

Manager Thomas Di Lorenzo of the New Paltz Theatre, New Paltz, N. Y., thought enough of Walt Disney's "Victory Through Air Power" to put out a special edition of his program (in addition to the regular edition) extolling the importance of this full-length topical feature. Front page and center spread were devoted to provocative and eye-catching ad layouts, while the back page carried a feature story about Major Alexander de Seversky, upon whose book the picture was based.

The noon mail just brought a copy of Tom Edwards' calendar for January, and after looking over the list of attractions for the month, we were glad to see "Tom Tell Tales," the personal column of Manager Edwards, on the other side. It wasn't as long as usual, but that's because Tom had been suffering with influenza. He did, however, manage to include a tongue-twister, which he credited to a friend. Here it is:

"His wife was a Wave and he waved at a Wac; the Wac was in front, but the Wave was in back. Instead of a wave from the Wac, what he got was a w(h)ac(k) from the Wave he had wed."

We like Tom's appeal for support for the Fourth War Loan. He writes:

"My goal here at the Ozark (Eldon, Mo.) is to sell a bond for every seat in my theatre. If I can sell a bond for every boy who is in service from Miller County, and designate a seat to each one, then I can put the job over. However, I am going to have to have your help to do it, so come on down and buy a bond, and have a seat designated for your soldier. P.S. You'll hear more about this, later."

The idea of designating a seat for a soldier is excellent, because the opportunity to honor their sons, husbands and sweethearts in service should inspire every parent, wife and sweetheart to buy bonds. We also like Tom's human, down-to-earth appeal, just as though he were actually talking to his patrons. In average communities, patrons like that, and let's not kid ourselves about it. And the idea, even when used occasionally by big city theatre managers in newspaper ads, goes over well. So, our advice would be, whether in your program or in newspaper ads, to personally urge your patrons to support the Fourth War Loan drive. Don't strive for special effect; just prepare your message so it will sound as if you were personally talking to each patron.

Well, this is as far as we go this week. We'll be looking for those Fourth War Loan programs. Be sure to send them in.

Boesel's 'Lassie' Window Tieup

This sports shop window display on MGM's "Lassie Come Home" was arranged by Manager Harry Boesel of Wisconsin Theatre in Milwaukee.

'Bell Tolls' Good for Bond Sale Promotion During 4th War Loan

Exhibitors who play "For Whom the Bell Tolls" during the Fourth War Loan will have numerous possibilities for tieups to stimulate the sale of bonds and publicize the picture at the same time, it is pointed out by R. M. Gillham, Paramount advertising and publicity director.

Gillham said that many theatres used the bond-selling slogan, "Buy More Bonds and Speed the Bell's Toll for Fascism," during the Third War Loan campaign last September with excellent results, making it the theme in exploitation, advertising and publicity during the drive.

One of the exploitation features which attracted nationwide attention was a window display in which a bell tolls the doom over effigies of the Axis leaders. Another highly effective stunt was engineered in connection with the engagement of "FWTBT" at the State-Lake Theatre in Chicago, where a company possessing a huge bell tolled it daily at high noon, sounding one peal for each $10,000 War Bond sold in Chicago during the preceding 24 hours.

The tolling bell can be used in various ways, atop the box-office or at the entrance to the lobby, to make passers-by stop, look and listen. A record giving the sound of a continually tolling bell is available.

Two other bond-selling aids are available at small cost. One is a special die-cut bell carrying the message, "Buy a Bond and Speed the Bell's Toll," on gummed stock, which the exhibitor can use in any number of ways. It can be used as pasters on programs and all other mailed items leaving the theatre; on all packages leaving the stores of cooperating merchants, on literature sent out by War Bond committees, and on car windows, restaurant menus, etc.

Another available accessory is a series of matted bells with the bond-selling theme, which can be tied in with every type of printed job on the "FWTBT" campaign. The bond-selling theme makes it easy to plant in newspapers, in the ads of the town's merchants, on letterheads and billheads, on grocery bags and other printed promotion. The bells, which are available in four different sizes, not only trademark the show but have been welcomed by cooperating business people as effective bond-selling promotion.

In addition, the picture's title has been used by newspapers in bond-selling cartoons. Tied in with the bond theme, it offers numerous possibilities for lobby, outside and bond booth displays, newspaper advertising, and for any medium where the exhibitor wants to use bond-selling copy.

Newspaper Color Mat Service Is Inaugurated by Warner Bros.

A color mat service for newspapers has been inaugurated by Warner Bros., according to Mort Blumenstock, in charge of advertising and publicity in the east.

First to get serviced is Irene Manning in "The Desert Song," with Ida Lupino in "In Our Time" to follow shortly.

Jacoby Uses Wallpaper Gag

That old wallpaper gag, "We've gone crazy and torn the wallpaper off the walls cheering . . . etc.," was used in Altoona, Pa., to call attention to the showing of "Girl Crazy" at the State Theatre. Manager W. B. Jacoby also arranged a radio contest offering tickets to those calling first and correctly identifying Gershwin tunes.

Selling the Picture

Sell Your Theatre as An Institution, Ryan Urges His Managers

Because the theatre is an institution dedicated to furthering the happiness of its patrons, it should be sold as such, declares Charles H. Ryan of Warner Bros. Theatres, Chicago, in a bulletin to managers of theatres in his zone.

"Most theatre managers have lost sight of this fact," he continues. "Patrons must be made to say more often 'let's go to the Rhodes Theatre.' Knowing whatever the program may be, they are certain to enjoy it, because the theatre itself provides an atmosphere of courtesy, friendliness and relaxation."

Ryan believes it is the theatreman's urgent responsibility to sell the theatre as a restful retreat where worry is forgotten and where perfect diversion may be had at a price within the reach of all.

"Institutional advertising is defined as that which sells the theatre rather than merchandise. Build up your theatre as an institution indispensable to the welfare of the community.

"Subjects for sales appeal are as follows: price policy, safety, atmosphere, health, comfort, relaxation, and quiet.

"Return to normalcy may come quicker than expected. This will affect theatre attendance. Owing to the increased operating cost, the flow of patronage must be kept well above normal. Thought and planning must be given to this idea. This task will be easier for the showman who has ever been watchful of the theatre's place in his community. Only through the perfection of service given by the staff can institutional gains be manifested.

"The manager's job is to encourage every last bit of effort from his staff. That encouragement is effective only when workers are sufficiently content in their labors to try harder and harder. Whether or not they do depends almost entirely upon the attitude of the manager.

"As an example of how low your receipts can get, glance over your records of the three weeks previous to Christmas, and you will be astonished. The thing I want to warn you about is when the economic slump hits us with a jolt after the war, you should be making plans to combat it. Once the business slips away from you, it is very hard to get it back.

"Give some thought as to how to hold your present patronage through service and goodwill."

Red Cross Sequence Basis for Tieup on Davis Film in Buffalo

Sequence in "Old Acquaintance" showing Bette Davis as a Red Cross worker was the basis for a tieup with the Red Cross when the picture played at Shea's Theatre, Buffalo.

Utilizing still OA-61, Publicity Manager Charles B. Taylor had special window cards made up which the Red Cross distributed to stores and other establishments for display in windows and on counters.

Copy on the cards: "Bette Davis asks you to Join the Red Cross Nurse's Aide Corps. (Still was spotted here). See Bette Davis, Miriam Hopkins in 'Old Acquaintance' (date) at Shea's Buffalo."

How They Look in Place

Here is an example of how the novel upright 24-sheets on 20th Century-Fox's "The Song of Bernadette" are being posted in over 200 vantage points in New York and New Jersey. The unusual posters, because of their shape, are getting spots unavailable to other posters.

'Song of Bernadette' 100-City Bond Tieup

Full window displays of heroic proportions, featuring a full-color, illuminated reproduction of Jennifer Jones as Bernadette in "The Song of Bernadette," is stimulating the sale of war bonds in 100 selected department stores in as many cities. A sample layout of such a window has been designed by Stensgaard, the country's foremost window designer and display creator.

Each purchaser of war bonds at the cooperating stores is being given a handsome 10x16 full-color reproduction of the Rockwell painting.

While this unusual display is a traffic -stopper of the first order, the promotion has other interest-creating facets as well. Newspapers and the radio in addition to a prepared ad, are being used to publicize the gift offer.

Entire tieup is in exceptionally good taste and is building added interest in "The Song of Bernadette" in the situations where it has been effected.

New York premiere of the film on January 26 at the Rivoli Theatre will be preceded by an invitational preview Tuesday night.

Formulate Plans for 'Gung Ho' Promotion; Newspaper Ads Set

Comprehensive plans for the advertising and publicizing of "Gung Ho!" have been formulated by Universal Pictures, according to Maurice A. Bergman, Eastern advertising and publicity director.

Two highlights of the campaign, coast-to-coast broadcasts, have already taken place. On January 21 the Kate Smith program paid tribute to "Gung Ho!," and on the night of January 18 the picture was featured on the "Report to the Nation" program.

Included in the advertising plans will be full page advertisements in newspapers in all key cities.

In connection with the New York premiere, Captain W. S. LeFrancois, author of "Gung Ho!," will be interviewed on the Mary Margaret McBride program on WEAF on the NBC coast-to-coast hookup.

A special program has been arranged in connection with the Treasury Department to mark a bond rally in New York's Chinatown, to be known as the Gung Ho Rally. The Chinese consul in New York has also offered cooperation in honoring the meaning of "Gung Ho!" in the Chinese New Year's Day celebration on January 25th.

At the same time, local campaigns are being organized in many of the key cities throughout the country along similar lines. During the past week Captain LeFrancois has been honored by Boston with a special celebration and a dinner attended by Governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Mayor Tobin of Boston and newspaper representatives from 14 New England cities. Plans were also under way to have a similar ceremony in Independence Hall, Philadelphia.

Credit Eddie Forester

That attention-getting lobby display setpiece on "Happy Land," which was reproduced recently in STR, issue of January 1, p. 22, was created by Manager Eddie Forester of the Des Moines Theatre, Des Moines, and not by Dale McFarland, Tri-States advertising manager, as stated in the caption. But it's not too late to applaud Forester for a fine bit of showmanship.

Stoltz Rates Bow for Exploitation Manual

Through a Wartime Exploitation Manual prepared for war-time motion picture advertising, publicity, promotions and tieups by Arnold Stoltz, United Artists' director of exploitation, field exploitation men of UA are receiving valuable assistance in planning campaigns in locations where a scarcity of newsprint prevails.

The manual is chockful of excellent selling ideas that could be profitably used in any community, paper shortage or no paper shortage, wartime or peacetime. Among the items covered: upside down marquee displays; snipes on juke boxes; window stenciling to save window cards; novel gags printed on play money, cheap cotton handkerchiefs, wood from a lumber mill, etc.; imprints on paper bags, bills, receipts, paper napkins and restaurant menus; unusual window displays; "hitch-hike" cooperative ads; merchant tieup street ballyhoos; horsedrawn sound trucks; defense plant bulletin boards; classified ad page promotions; book review tieups; radio tieups; and several other business-building wartime stunts.

Stoltz points out that very few of the stunts are new, but that most of them are tried and true. Many of them were successfully used by the UA exploitation head during his career as a theatreman. Certainly all of them would benefit any showmen. If it were possible, Stoltz' Wartime Exploitation Manual should be on the desk of every showman in the nation.

Lige Brien Winner In 'Proudly We Hail' Exploitation Contest

Lige Brien, formerly of the Kenyon Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa., was adjudged first prize winner in the nationwide competition to decide the six best selling campaigns on Paramount's "So Proudly We Hail," it has been announced by Alec Moss, exploitation manager.

Six managers won an aggregate of $1045 in war bonds, representing purchase value, for the most outstanding campaigns selected from among several hundred entered in the competition. The business done by the picture at the box-office was a factor in the judges' decision.

In addition to Brien, who won a $500 War Bond as first prize, prize-winning managers and the amounts they were awarded follow: Harry Botwick, State Theatre, Portland, Me., second prize, $350; Margaret Goyette, publicity director, Denham Theatre, Denver, third prize, $250; Harold Armistead, Lyric Theatre, Easley, S. C., fourth prize, $150; Ben Rosenberg, manager, and Paul Levi, publicity director, Metropolitan Theatre, Boston, fifth prize, $100, and Vernon D. Hunter, Beacham Theatre, Orlando, Fla., sixth prize, $50.

In awarding fourth prize to Armistead, the judges considered his campaign especially noteworthy in scope and effectiveness for a small-town engagement. Population of Easley is 5,183. The theatre seats 481.

Sixteen of the twenty judges selected Brien's campaign for first prize. In addition to the six winners, campaigns of eight other theatres were in the voting, which was decided on the basis of the majority vote of the judges.

Paramount executives who acted as judges were Charles M. Reagan, assistant general sales manager; George A. Smith, Western division sales manager; Hugh Owen, Eastern division sales manager; R. M. Gillham, advertising and publicity director; Leonard H. Goldenson, vice-president in charge of theatre operations; Leon D. Netter and Sam Dembow, Jr., theatre department executives, and Alec Moss, exploitation manager.

Also serving as judges were circuit advertising and publicity directors Harry Goldberg of Warners; Oscar A. Doob of Loew's, represented by George Kraska, and Harry Mandel, RKO Theatres, represented by W. E. Kernan, and from the trade press: William G. Formby, Boxoffice; Chester Friedman, Motion Picture Herald; Ralph Cokain, SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW; Roy Chartier, Variety; Al Steen, Film Daily; James P. Cunningham, Motion Picture Daily; Jack Harrison, Hollywood Reporter; Mel Konecoff, The Exhibitor, and R. W. Baremore, The Independent.

Red Cross to Watch Cincinnati 'Plasma Premiere' of U.A. Film

Officials of the American Red Cross in Washington have their eyes on the RKO Keith Theatre in Cincinnati where, on January 26, a "Plasma Premiere" will signal the opening of United Artists' "Three Russian Girls."

Cincinnati newspapers, the local chapter of the Red Cross there, and public groups associated in the Blood Donor Drive are tied up in the stunt, which was devised by Paul Lazarus' department at U. A. and is being worked out at the theatre by Solly Schwartz, chain Western zone head; Col. A. Freudenfeld, heading operations there, and A. V. Dinerman, local publicist under Harry Mandel of the home office.

The entire premiere audience on the night of the opening will be composed of persons who have donated their blood for plasma in the period between announcement of the plan and the opening. Even members of the theatre staff will conform.

Vancouver—Not Chicago

Those fuelless Sunday midnight shows being advertised by the Odeon theatres—Plaza, Paradise and Lux (STR. Dec. 25, p. 18)—have been taking place in Vancouver, Canada, and not in Chicago, as stated in the previous story.

Huge and Colorful Setpiece

When Columbia's "What a Woman!" was booked into the Boyd Theatre, Philadelphia, Manager Goldsmith exceeded his usually excellent lobby displays with this huge and color setpiece.

Boy Scouts to Aid 'Aldrich' Showings

Members of the Boy Scouts of America—1,750,000 strong—plus ten million alumni and members of local Scout Councils are being mobilized by the organization to support theatre presentations of "Henry Aldrich, Boy Scout," eighth of the Paramount series with Jimmy Lydon, Charles Smith, John Litel and Olive Blakeney.

The picture, which was made with the complete cooperation of the Boy Scouts of America, has been endorsed by the organization for theatre showings during Boy Scout Week, February 8 to 14, and its release will coincide with this national observance.

The national organization is urging all Boy Scouts in America to see the picture during its local theatre showings. A brochure containing this message, as well as stills from the picture, a synopsis and other material, has been distributed to all Boy Scout troop leaders.

More than 100 Boy Scouts of the Los Angeles area participated in the production, which was "shot" at Uplifters Ranch, Santa Monica, Calif. Scout Executives M. P. Bushnell and E. B. DeGroot, the latter Pacific Coast representative of the Boy Scouts National Council, were technical advisers.

Stills from the picture are being assembled by the Boy Scouts National Council for study at the National Training School at Mendham, N. J., where men are trained for professional Scout leadership.

'In Our Time' Preview Helps Launch Drive

As part of its cooperative efforts in behalf of the Fourth War Loan campaign, Warner Bros. gave a special preview of "In Our Time," co-starring Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid, aboard the Statue of Liberty boat Tuesday afternoon, following a program of ceremonies designed to help get the loan drive off to a strong start.

Arranged by Mort Blumenstock's department at Warners, the preview included a press tour of the Statue of Liberty, music by a military band, a short talk by a noted personality, pledging of War Bond purchases by representatives of 24 foreign groups, and other ceremonies appropriate to the launching of the loan campaign.

Event was covered by newsreels, special writers from local newspapers and wire services, press photographers, trade press and others. In honor of the occasion, the Statue of Liberty boat was renamed "In Our Time."

RKO Theatres Offer $5000 in Bonds in Baby Beauty Contest

A Baby Beauty Bond Contest for children not over five years of age is being conducted by RKO Theatres throughout Greater New York and Westchester in conjunction with the Fourth War Loan Drive. Five thousand dollars in bonds will be awarded winners, determined by the number of votes cast on the youngsters' behalf.

Votes are obtainable through purchase of bonds in RKO Theatres during the period of the drive, a $25 bond being worth 100 votes, and others of higher denomination rating more votes in proportion. These are cast for favorite youngsters in special ballot boxes in the theatre lobbies where the competing children's pictures are displayed.

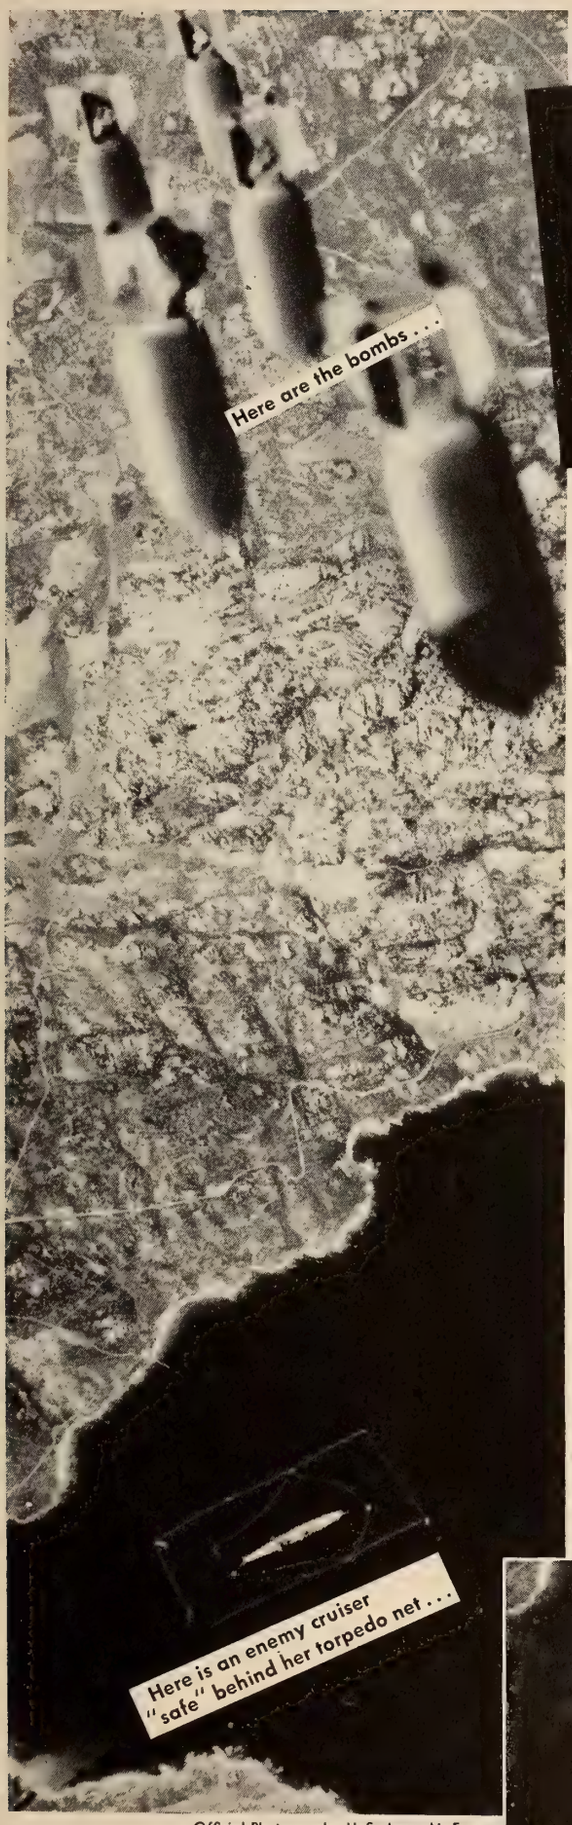
No purchase of admission to any RKO Theatre is required to enter a child in the contest, or to purchase bonds, or to vote for contestants. Parents and guardians have been urged to enter their babies by bringing a 5 x 7 photograph of the child to the nearest RKO Theatre and then filling out an official entry blank. Although entries will be accepted up to and including Sunday, January 23rd, voting started the first day of the 4th War Loan Drive, Tuesday, January 18th.

The $5,000 in bond prizes will be divided as follows: a $50 bond for the winner in each participating RKO Theatre; two sets of semi-final prizes of $1,000; one for the Manhattan, Bronx and Westchester group, and the other for the Brooklyn-Queens combination divided in this manner, $200 first award, $100 second, $50 third, and twenty-six $25 bonds for the runners-up. In the grand finals to select New York's Most Beautiful Baby, the first prize will be $500, second $200 and the next three, $100 each.

Hadley Added to 20th's Exploitation Force

Robert Hadley has been added to the staff of 20th Century-Fox field exploitation force, according to Hal Horne, director of advertising and publicity.

Rodney Bush, 20th's exploitation manager, has assigned Hadley to the San Francisco office where he will assist Eddie Yarbrough, field representative in the San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Denver district.



This is the fourth of 20th-Fox's eleven exploitation districts to have a two-man set-up. Ralph Stitt and Al Fowler handle the New England district; Spence Pierce and Leonard Allen the Southeast; Jay Frank and Mike Weiss the Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee district.

A two-man set-up has been found expedient because of the frequency of day-and-date openings in the same district and the company's policy to give each key engagement individual attention.

'Destination Tokyo' Press Book Gives Hints on Salvage Drive

A special feature of the press book on "Destination Tokyo" is a page devoted to a tieup with the Salvage Division of the War Production Board under whose auspices a national salvage drive has been launched with the slogan: "Salvage More in '44—Destination Tokyo!"

Regional directors have been advised by Campaign Manager Leslie C. Merrell to render full cooperation to theatres playing "Destination Tokyo" in their local scrap metal, tin, paper and waste fat salvage drives. Page gives hints on procedure for local theatremen to follow.

Kodak optical systems for fire control destroy the legend of "German supremacy" in lens making

For America's bombsights—which have shown our enemies the bitter meaning of "high-altitude precision bombing"— most of "the optics" are made by Kodak.

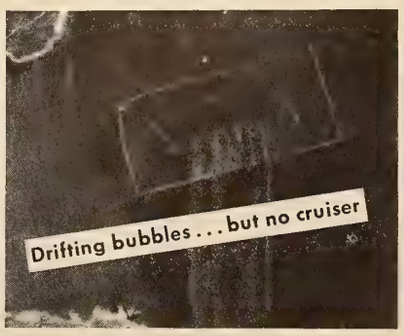
For our Army and Navy, Kodak also makes 29 of the most complex types of optical systems for fire control — the sighting of guns — including the famous height finder for anti-aircraft.

GERMANY has enjoyed a reputation for world leadership in lens making. But—as so often happens—reputation outlived performance.

Well before Pearl Harbor, Kodak optical research was developing lenses superior to any ever made by anybody, anywhere. A major advance has been the perfecting for new, finer cameras of a revolutionary new optical glass which gave lenses greater speed — definition . . . or could more than double the "field of view" of a fire control periscope.

This glass was immediately incorporated in instruments for fire control . . .

Effective fire power — hits, not "tries" — is the result of sighting through a series of lenses . . . an optical system . . . which locates, magnifies, and "ranges on" the target.



Army Ordnance experts now report: "We have examined captured German sights and periscopes and, element for element, we are turning out better material."

The effectiveness of American fire power is making history . . . Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y.

Fabian Pin-Up Girl Contest Boosts Attendance 500%

Profitable Stunt Sets Precedent for Exploitation on Forthcoming Grable Film, 'Pin-Up Girl'

Most successful of any of the contests ever staged to stimulate business at Fabian's St. George Theatre, St. George, Staten Island, was the recent Pin-Up Girl Contest, conceived and staged by Fabian's publicity director, Edgar Goth, assisted by Manager George Kemp of the Fabian Palace and Manager Ralph Percy of the St. George, as well as Irving Liner, general manager of the Fabian State Island Theatres.

Purpose of the contest was two-fold: to provide a sure-fire attendance-getter to combat the traditional pre-Christmas slump, and as an exploitation stunt for the forthcoming 20th Century-Fox picture, "Pin-Up Girl." Exhibitors who are to play "Pin-Up Girl" should take especial note of this campaign story as an outstanding stunt to build interest in that picture. And exhibitors who may be in situations where the picture will not play should also take note, for they can well stage the stunt for its timely business-building value alone.

Idea Conceived Months Ago

Says Goth: "The idea of adapting and streamlining the old-fashioned beautiful girl contest to the timely Pin-Up angle was conceived many months ago. The stunt, however, was saved for the pre-Christmas period. By that time, the publicity being given Pin-Up photos as morale builders was so tremendous that the stage contest was a 'natural.' The demand of service men for more and more pictures of pretty girls, and the willingness of newspapers and periodicals to feature pin-ups attracted an audience which had the idea of the type of female it preferred at the mention of the word 'Pin-Up.' Interest, of course, was heightened by the local angle, and the patrons poured into the theatre on contest night to the tune of 500 per cent over normal business."

War Bonds Given as Prizes

First announcement of the special event appeared in the State Island Advance three weeks ahead of the actual date. Details, as contained in that story, follow:

"The contest is open to any girl, 16 years of age or over. Girls desiring to enter the contest may register with any Fabian theatre manager or with Edgar Goth, Fabian publicity head, Room 605, St. George Theatre building. The entries will necessarily be limited; therefore, girls are urged to sign up as soon as possible. The winner of the contest and the runners-up will be awarded war bonds as prizes.

"The contestants will each be presented to the audience posed in a picture frame in a position best designed to show off each girl's natural advantages. Although most of the contestants will pose in bathing suits, there will be the sweater girl pin-up, the lingerie girl pin-up, the sport girl pin-up and the debutante pin-up.

"Acting as master-of-ceremonies on the night of the contest will be Bert King. Archie Jacobson's Gift Center, Port Richmond, is sponsoring the Pin-Up Girl Contest."

Arrangements were made to have photos of the winning Pin-Up Girls sent to Staten Island soldiers in service both here and abroad. Selected to act as judges were a group of service men from local Army posts and Navy bases. Reason: the uniformed boys themselves were considered the best judges of what they and their buddies preferred in pin-up art.

Two important aspects of the Pin-Up Girl Contest conceived and staged by Edgar Goth, director of advertising and publicity, Fabian Staten Island Theatres. Left: Giant setpiece which appeared in the lobby of the Fabian St. George, where the contest was held. Sponsor paid for setpiece. Right: Lucille Mendaro, attractive South Beach brunette, poses with Bert King, master of ceremonies, after receiving Pin-Up Girl trophy and war bond as winner of first prize in competition to select "Staten Island's Official 1944 Pin-Up Girl." Miss Mendaro represented the lingerie type. Contest set a precedent for Pin-Up Girl stunts which will exploit the forthcoming 20th Century-Fox film, "Pin-Up Girl."

Theatres Run Special Trailers

Stories covering developments of the contest continued to appear in both the Staten Island Transcript and the Advance right up until the day of the contest. One week in advance Goth began plugging the special event in the Fabian theatres newspaper ads. A hand-drawn advertisement appeared the day before the contest and also on "the big day."

All Fabian Staten Island theatres ran special trailers announcing and giving details of the Pin-Up Girl competition. A giant setpiece was on display in the St. George lobby one week in advance (see cut). Sponsor of the contest, Archie Jacobson's Gift Center, paid for the trailers, lobby setpiece, easel cards, war bond prizes, orchestra and increased advertising space. The C gasoline ration card idea was used, with 5000 cards being placed on automobile windshields.

'Cheesecake' Photos to Service Men

A tieup was made with a leading photographic studio to take "cheesecake" photos of the winners from which copies were made to send to local boys in service.

Winner of the title "Staten Island Official 1944 Pin-Up Girl" was Miss Lucille Mendaro, 17-year-old brunette of South Beach. Miss Mendaro was the lingerie type (see cut). She was presented with a silver statuette trophy on a mahogany base, emblematic of the Pin-Up Girl.

Now that Goth had paved the way, and in view of the forthcoming release of Betty Grable in "Pin-Up Girl," there was every likelihood that the Pin-Up Girl Contest would soon invade cities and communities from one end of the country to the other.

Musical Screened for Music Shop Salesmen

When "The Heat's On" was booked into the Woods Theatre, Chicago, Manager Jack Belasco and his publicity man, Norman Kassel, arranged with the Capitol Record Company, recorder of many of the tunes in the picture, to pay for a special screening for the managers and salespeople of music stores and department store music counters throughout the city. The music promoters jammed the screening room, then left with an armful of material for window and counter displays provided by the record company.

(Ed. Note: The above idea could be adapted by other theatremen when playing a musical simply by inviting music store managers and salespeople to a special screening, then giving them promotional material.)

Belasco and Kassel also lined up six commercial radio programs to plug the hit tunes.

Mayfair Music Publishers covered all the bands and orchestras in and about Chicago for plugs on their number, Thinkin' About the Wabash.

Promotes Tie-Up Page

Bill Trudell, manager of Famous Players' Capitol Theatre in London, Ontario, promoted a healthy tie-up page in the London Free Press in connection with his recent playdate of "This Is the Army." The page contained 19 commercial ads, and plugged the fact that a generous portion of the proceeds goes to the Canadian Army Show and Recreation Fund.

son does not matter). Anyway, young Tim Mason (Richard Crane) and brother of Frances Woodward, becomes involved through a gambling debt. After being sworn in as a member of the Rangers, Tim is jailed when contraband gets through him because he is knocked out. Hoppy realizes this, and ostensibly resigns from the Rangers to spy on the gang. Actually, he and Captain Rawlinson are in cahoots. Hoppy makes the gang believe he is working for them, and in the big climax has all the evidence needed to convict them.

Comment: This Hopalong Cassidy number is right up to snuff. It goes along evenly, and makes its point through a fight and much hard riding in a well-thought-out climax which should have all western fans on the edges of their seats. Besides Boyd in the title role, there are also Andy Clyde and the disarmingly gentle Jimmy Rogers for color, and they certainly do add that commodity. Taking an over-all look at this film, there's one thing that stands out and that may be important for some of you. The fact is this Hopalong number won't annoy the more sophisticated audiences because it has been made without false pretense. It is honest and four-square, and all the people in it are likable—even the villains. Besides this good angle, the scenery is magnificent (a credit should go to the location scout) and the direction is tight enough so that the more knowledgable people won't kick about childish situations. Well, Hopalong is still Hopalong, but the truth is he's just as good as ever.

Charlie Chan in the Secret Service

Monogram Mystery 63 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 17th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) The return of Charlie Chan in a pleasing mystery film will be welcomed by most members of the family.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Good support for a stronger feature.

Cast: Sidney Toler, Manton Moreland, Gwen Kenyon, Arthur Loft, Sarah Edwards, George Lewis, Marianne Quon, Benson Fong, George Lessey, Muni Seroff, Barry Bernard, Gene Oliver, Eddie Chandler, Lelah Tyler, Dave Clark. Credits: Directed by Phil Rosen. Original screenplay by George Callahan. Director of photography, Ira Morgan. Produced by Philip N. Krasne and James S. Burkett.

Plot: Chan is called in to solve the murder of the inventor of a secret weapon for the government and to find the blueprints which were stolen from the dead man's pocket. More murders follow and three attempts are made on Chan's life before he unravels the mystery and retrieves the stolen blueprints.

Comment: For years the Charlie Chan mysteries, based on the character created by Earl Derr Biggers, have been furnishing movie fans with murders of every description, loads of clues, suspicious characters and the eventual solutions worked out by the famous Chinese sleuth. And they still manage to entertain, for "Charlie Chan in the Secret Service," the first under the Monogram banner, is no exception; it is a pleasing mystery that will be welcomed wherever this screen sleuth proved popular before. Here, Sidney Toler takes up the role of Chan again and with his lingo and the ease with which he solves crimes, will probably win many new fans for this series.

Advance Dope

PARTNERS OF THE TRAIL (Mono.) Western. Principals: Johnny Mack Brown, Raymond Hatton, Christine McIntyre, Craig Wood. Director, Lambert Hillyer. Plot: A young lady on her way to take possession of a ranch left her by her dad meets a U. S. Marshal on the stagecoach. He is on his way to solve the mystery of her father's, and other murders. He learns that the cause of all the trouble is gold on most of the property and through this discovery is able to apprehend the whole gang responsible for the killings.

AT NIGHT WE DREAM (Col.) Drama. Principals: Paul Muni, Merle Oberon, George Coulouris, Fay Helm, Nina Foch. Director, Charles Vidor. Plot: This is the story of Chopin from the time he was ten years old until he died; his meeting and friendship with Liszt, when he was twenty-two; his first unsuccessful concert and the work done to bring him back into the good graces of fashionable Paris by Madame George Sand; his brilliant success with his music and his fatal illness at a very young age.

WEIRD WOMAN (Univ.) Horror. Principals: Lon Chaney, Anne Gwynne, Evelyn Ankers, Lois Collier, Ralph Morgan, Samuel Hinds. Director, Reginald LeBorg. Plot: When a young sociology professor returns from an expedition to a tropical island, he brings back a bride whom he met and married under strange circumstances. This incites the jealousy of the sister of the Dean of Men. Her hatred takes a psychopathic turn and causes many deaths and much unhappiness before the trouble is laid to her unbalanced condition.

BEAUTIFUL BUT BROKE (Col.) Comedy. Principals: Joan Davis, John Hubbard, Jane Frazee, Judy Clark, Bob Haymes. Director, Charles Barton. Plot: A business representative and her all-girl orchestra are put off the train en route to a booking. They find an old-fashioned house to spend the night in. The next day they meet a couple of Army engineers who interest them enough to make them want to stay on. They put on a big show to raise funds for a baby station, which turns out to be a great success. However, they all stay on as defense workers, with the engineers taking care of the future of two of them.

TWO-MAN SUBMARINE (Col.) Drama. Principals: Tom Neal, Ann Savage, Robert Williams, J. Carrol Naish, Abner Biberman. Director, Lew Landers. Plot: On an island in the South Pacific are medical research workers busy producing the magic drug, penicillin. A young lady arrives one day to replace one of the men. However, things begin to happen, so he doesn't leave. Then this young man and young lady discover a Nazi spy on the grounds and a Japanese submarine anchoring at the water's edge. By torture, these enemies get the formula from the doctor in charge, but they don't get away, for he sacrifices his life by blowing up their ship with them aboard.

SLIGHTLY TERRIFIC (Univ.) Comedy-With-Music. Principals: Leon Errol, Anne Rooney, Eddie Quillan, Betty Kean, Ray Malone. Director, Edward F. Cline. Plot: Complications arise when the youngsters in a new musical revue, who have been promised backing by a penniless millionaire, find themselves busy playing hide-and-seek with twin brothers. Unable to talk his wealthy brother into helping these youngsters, the penniless brother resorts to other means. Nothing works until the kids, themselves, confront the wealthy man and scold him, at which time he sees the light and promises his help.

ADDRESS UNKNOWN (Col.) Drama. Principals: K. T. Stevens, Paul Lukas, Mady Christians, Morris Carnovsky, Peter Van Eyck. Director, William Cameron Menzies. Plot: This is a flashback story of the friendship between two families, also business partners, in Germany. When one, who has come to San Francisco to handle their business affairs here, learns that his partner never tried to protect his sister, a Jewess, from the Nazis, he finds a way to get even. He makes the Nazis suspicious enough of his partner to have them throw him into a concentration camp and then disappear.

MEN ON HER MIND (PRC) Drama. Principals: Mary Beth Hughes, Edward Norris, Ted North, Alan Edwards, Luis Alberni. Director, Wallace W. Fox. Plot: After a triumphant radio debut, a young singer reviews her past life. She thinks about the three men who love her: the successful business man, the man through whom she got her first break, and the professor of music in a girls' school. She finally decides which one is the man for her, gives up her career to marry him.

BENEATH WESTERN SKIES (Rep.) Western. Principals: Bob Livingston, Smiley Burnette, Effie Laird, Tom London, Charles Miller. Director, Spencer Bennett. Plot: The town of Stokesville is overrun by a gang of outlaws whose leader is working in cahoots with the town banker. Their plan is to frighten honest townspeople into selling their municipal bonds and leaving. In this way they hope to gain control of the town and make it a haven for outlaws. The town schoolteacher takes things in hand by sending for some of her former pupils and having them straighten out the mess.

Columbia Plans Reel On Amateur Boxing

Columbia, through an arrangement with Madison Square Garden and the New York Daily News, will make a sports reel dealing with the amateur boxing bouts held annually at the Garden under the sponsorship of the Daily News.

Covering the subject completely, the reel will show the boys as they progress from the taking of physical examinations at the News Building, through their training at various New York gymnasiums for the big event. Climaxing the training period will be scenes of the fights in the Garden ring.

Harry Foster will direct, and the commentary will be by Bill Stern. Technical assistance on boxing will be given by Bill Murtah of the Daily News sports staff. Columbia plans the short as a February release.

WB Shorts Producers Going on Expeditions

A. Pam Blumenthal, Van Campen Heilner and Andre de La Varre, who make several short subjects each year for Warner Bros. release, leave New York the latter part of this month on trips in connection with forthcoming pictures.

Blumenthal goes to the coast to put final touches on several shorts for this season's release, including "Fishing a la Carte," "Devil Boats" and a horse-racing subject titled "Winners' Circle." While at Burbank, he also will set up a new schedule for the summer.

De La Varre heads south to direct a number of shorts in Virginia, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia and Cuba.

Heilner goes to Mexico, Cuba and the Caribbean to direct several subjects.

Fairbanks Gets Permission to Use Esquire in 'Animals' Subject

Paramount Producer Jerry Fairbanks received permission from Esquire magazine's editor, Arnold Gingrich, to use the magazine in a sequence in a forthcoming "Speaking of Animals" short subject. Esquire will appear in the film when a puppy flips through the magazine and, looking at one of the sultan cartoons, is led to dream of adventures in a harem of other dogs. Esquire's only admonition: ". . . We would hate to see anything extra that would indicate that Esquire stimulates him to behavior unworthy of a canine gentleman."

Also at Paramount Tommy Cook has been engaged by Producer George Pal to do the narration on "And to Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street," Technicolor Puppetoon currently before the cameras. A Popeye Technicolor cartoon, "We're on Our Way to Rio," has been completed at Famous Studios in New York. Story idea is based on the famous carnival held annually in Brazil.

Seeks Name for Siren

A $100 war bond is being offered by Walt Lantz, producer of Swing Symphony Cartunes for Universal, for the best name for the glamorous siren who appears in Lantz' new Technicolor cartune, "Greatest Man in Siam." Entries for the contest, which closes April 15, should be sent to Walt Lantz Cartunes, Universal Pictures Studios, Universal City, Calif.

Short Subject Reviews

Sweden's Middle Road (Excellent)

20th-Fox—March of Time No. 6 19¼ mins.

This issue of the March of Time will undoubtedly stir much comment from those serious-minded individuals who have heard much and seen little of the inside workings of neutral Sweden. It is an all-revealing review of what makes this unbelievably progressive country tick and keep ticking bottled up as it is by the victims of Axis aggression. The film shows how the people live under wartime conditions, what they do for a living. The impression is gained that they have outdistanced even the American and British people in dealing with social and economic problems by finding a middle ground between capitalism and socialism. Of interest to the less political-minded will be the "hot off the press" glimpses of how Sweden gets news from Germany to the outside world through her free press, how transportation problems and heating without coal have been solved. It shows how industry and transportation, manufacturing and mining, agriculture and the military effort of the country are being handled under the leadership of Sweden's democratic King. German influence is obviously on the wane and the reasons are revealed in this timely production.

New Orleans Blues (Good)

Univ. (8125) Name-Band Musical 15 mins.

Hot trumpeter Louis Prima and his equally hot swing band beat out a couple of numbers that will have jitterbugs literally swinging in the aisles. Featured in specialties are Martha Tilton, Ray Eberle, the Diamond Harmonica Quintet, and others. For the feminine swooners, Eberle's rendition of All Or Nothing At All will prove quite satisfactory, and the versatility of the Harmonica Quintet, not to mention the performance of Prima's drummer, will hold the attention of most other spectators. Subject should enliven any program, and is especially suitable where adolescents comprise the major part of the audience. Josef Berne directed under the aegis of associate producer Will Cowan.

Screen Snapshots No. 5 (Good)

Col. (5855) 10 mins.

He Was Only Feudin' (Average)

Col. (5430) All-Star Comedy 16 mins.

Andy Clyde decides his daughter is too young to marry, so the daughter, Gwen Kenyon, and her fiance, Bill Henry, hire a pretty girl, Barbara Pepper, to flirt with Andy. Finding himself in an embarrassing position, our hero is glad to find the whole thing a gag, readily gives his consent to his daughter's marriage. Present in "He Was Only Feudin'" are this series' customary slapstick gags, of which rank-and-file audiences never seem to tire. Hugh McCollum produced and Harry Edwards directed.

Radio Melodies (Entertaining)

Univ. (8124) Name-Band Musical 15 mins.

Radio listeners who listen to the Bob Hope program are well aware that band leader Skinnay Innis, who went into the service, has been replaced by Stan Kenton. Now comes the opportunity, through this new Name-Band Musical, to not only get a look at Kenton but also to see how his musical aggregation performs. The result is not disappointing; on the contrary, it will be readily accepted by most swing fans and lovers of popular music. There are several specialties, including Dolly Mitchell, Lillian Cornell, Betty Reilly and the Leo Diamond Harmonica Quintet, the latter an outstanding harmonica act It's all "in the groove" or, for those not initiated into swing parlance, entertaining. Will Cowan was associate producer.

Wings in Record Time (Interesting)

Univ. (8354) Variety View 9 mins.

Produced by the British Ministry of Information, this subject shows a group of women aircraft workers building and assembling a giant bomber in the record time of 24 hours, 48 minutes—from scratch to finish! When the bomber is completed, it flies away to bomb the Axis. This subject serves to show an instance, and these instances can surely be multiplied many times, where speed-up in production is being pursued to turn out the instruments of war to defeat the Axis. Narration is by Albert Grobe.

Greatest Man in Siam (Good)

Univ. (8232) Swing Symphony 7 mins.

Here's another of those Walter Lantz Swing Symphony cartunes in Technicolor that not only provides enjoyable entertainment but also sets one's feet to tapping. The King of Siam, wishing to find a husband for his daughter, stages a contest in which the smartest, fastest, richest and strongest men compete. It remains for the hottest trumpeter in Siam to show up, get the daughter and everyone else "on the beam," and win the girl. The King's daughter has been drawn very realistically in her harem costume, which means a blindfold should be put over little Johnny's eyes when she appears. But that's a minor criticism, and little Johnny will probably be none the worse for having seen the cartoon, for he'll enjoy it, and so will adult moviegoers.

Swimcapades (Good)

Paramount (R3-4) Sportlight 9½ mins.

While a rather standard sort of sports reel, the material seen in this subject is interesting and entertaining. Opening scene is Great Salt Lake in Utah where anyone can swim due to the salt density of the water. Next shot is of the Hopkins Twins at Palm Springs cavorting rhythmically in the desert pool. Cypress Gardens, Florida, supplies the next setting for precision water nymphs, and the Spars in training at Palm Beach close the reel with a military swimming lesson. Grantland Rice has lined up plenty of pulchritude for this one as produced by Jack Eaton.

PRODUCTION NOTES FROM THE STUDIOS

Cotten Set for Four Films This Year; Dennis Day Signed By RKO; Comedy is Purchased by Warners for Ida Lupino

Silver Shadows and Golden Dreams, with lyrics by Lew Pollack and music by Charles Newmann, has been acquired by Producer Scott R. Dunlap and added to the musical score of "Lady, Let's Dance," Monogram musical extravaganza starring Belita. The song forms the recurring love theme in the musical score.

Dudley Nichols has completed his modernization of "The Sign of the Cross," and the streamlined spectacle will start before the Paramount cameras as soon as DeMille has completed final cutting and dubbing of "The Story of Dr. Wassell." Originally released in 1933 starring Fredric March, Elissa Landi, Claudette Colbert and Charles Laughton, "The Sign of the Cross" will return to the screen as a strictly 1944 product.

Allen Lane and George Lewis have been signed by Republic for co-starring roles in three 15-chapter serials which will be filmed, under the production aegis of William O'Sullivan, newly appointed supervisor of all serials and westerns, except the Roy Rogers group.

Setting one of the biggest "name" casts assigned any Hollywood production in recent months, RKO announced it had signed George Murphy, Adolphe Menjou and Gloria De Haven, in addition to assigning its own comedy team of Wally Brown and Alan Carney, to the new Frank Sinatra picture, as yet untitled. Walter Slezak had previously been set for the film, to be produced by Robert Fellows, with Tim Whelan directing.

Unless all signs fail, this will be a big year for Joseph Cotten who has already been named to star in four pictures. Under contract to David O. Selznick, Cotten will appear in three Selznick pictures, "Since You Went Away," "Double Furlough" and "The House of Dr. Edwardes." In addition, he has been used by MGM in "Gaslight," one of their big features for the 1944 season.

Dean Harens, Broadway stage actor, signed in New York by Producer Felix Jackson to a term deal with Universal, and Gladys George, have checked onto the lot to start their roles in Deanna Durbin's current picture, "Christmas Holiday,"

Ida Lupino's long cherished ambition to do comedy has received another boost with the announcement that Warners have purchased "Meet My Friend" as an immediate starring vehicle for the actress. The comedy, an original by Dalton Trumbo, will go into production shortly, preceding "Made in Heaven," another comedy vehicle recently purchased for Miss Lupino.

William Castle has been assigned to direct "The Whistler," a Columbia mystery thriller to be produced by Rudy Flothow. Screenplay was adapted by Eric Taylor from radio chiller also entitled "The Whistler." Film is scheduled to roll soon.

Christy Cabanne was signed by Producer Jack Schwarz to direct "Dixie Show Boat," PRC production which starts January 26. Schwarz is now completing "Lady in the Death House," starring Lionel Atwill with Jean Parker.

June Lockhart, daughter of the screen actor, will portray the important role of Lucille Pintard in the Technicolor film, "Meet Me in St. Louis," starring Judy Garland. She recently appeared in a small role in "The White Cliffs," with Irene Dunne and Alan Marshal co-starring. Vincente Minnelli is directing the new film, with Arthur Freed as the producer.

Closing of six important circuit deals on "Where Are Your Children?", the Jeffrey Bernerd production with Jackie Cooper and Gale Storm, is announced by Monogram. The six circuits represent 267 theatres.

Alan Ladd will have one of the star roles in "Two Years Before the Mast," which Seton I. Miller will produce for Paramount. The picture is scheduled for an April start and will have John Farrow directing. Story, classic by Richard Henry Dana, is one of the most spectacular sea epics of all time.

Dennis Day, singing star of Jack Benny's radio show and one of America's vocal favorites, has been signed by RKO to a contract which calls for his appearance in two pictures a year. Although no decision has as yet been reached regarding his first vehicle, it is believed it will be a musical which will go into production this spring.

Constance Purdy, Joe Devlin and George Humbert have been signed for important roles in Andrew Stone's "Sensations of 1944" which will be released by United Artists. The three will represent failures whose abilities are coordinated by Press Agent Eleanor Powell when she establishes a huge circus ballet.

George Dolenz and Thomas Gomez were assigned to important featured roles in Universal's Technicolor production, "The Climax," which stars Susanna Foster, Turhan Bey and Boris Karloff. George Waggner is the director-producer. Production is scheduled to start the latter part of this month.

Vincent Sherman has selected Sylvia Arslan to portray the daughter of Bette Davis and Claude Rains in "Mr. Skeffington." The choice was made for the Warner picture because of the child's performance in "In Our Time," the Ida Lupino-Paul Henreid co-starrer.

James Craig, who has just completed a top role in "Kismet," was cast for one of the year's best romantic roles with Lana Turner in "Marriage Is a Private Affair." John Hodiak is also in a featured role under the direction of Robert Z. Leonard, with Pandro Berman as the producer, for MGM.

He Explains Camera Technique

During production of Republic's "The Fighting SeaBees," now ready for showing, Director Edward Ludwig showed a group of U. S. Navy nurses the hows and whys of camera technique while picture was being "shot" at Camp Pendleton.

Mrs. Showman Goes Studio Strolling

Dear Mr. Exhibitor's Wife:

Let's go meet Jean Parker and Douglas Fowley today. They're working in "Lady in the Death House," which Jack Schwarz is making for Producers Releasing Company.

Our entrance onto the stage takes us into a courtroom where Miss Parker is doing a scene from the witness box. She's accused of murder and she's pleading her innocence.

While Director Steve Sekeley is rehearsing the scene and getting ready for a "take," we get a chance to chat with Marcia Mae Jones, Miss Parker's sister in the picture . . . and with Douglas Fowley. Fowley is Miss Parker's sweetheart and also the man who must prosecute her for the crime.

This is his first lead, and upon questioning him about this fact, he tells us that he took the part because it was so intriguing and such a challenge to an actor. He hopes to do a great deal with it.

With the scene finished, Miss Parker comes over to join us. Because she's the more settled, older sister in the story, she's wearing a full-length black cloth coat with sleeves that are pin-tucked at the shoulders and on her pompadour she wears a ruffly-edged soft hat of the same material.

We talk of many things, but the most interesting is her story about going shopping for two identical evening dresses. These she must have because the front of one burns during the filming of a night club scene and she must be prepared for retakes and such. She's a little nervous about the whole proceeding, for the dress is made of highly inflammable material. So the studio is having an asbestos slip made, which she must wear underneath. This is to prevent any harm to her person during the filming.

It is now late afternoon and work is finished for the day, so we bid adieu to those we've met and leave with the promise to try and come again.

Until next week.

Change of Personality

Virginia O'Brien, noted for her "dead-pan" portrayals, will change her screen personality in her newest picture, "Dear Barbara," which MGM is producing with Susan Peters in the lead.

Pine-Thomas Buy Stories for Chester Morris Starring Films

The 1944 production program of Paramount Producers William Pine and William Thomas moved into high gear this week with the purchase of a new story and assignment of writers to two screenplays being prepared as starring vehicles for Chester Morris. An original story entitled "Thunder Mountain," by Paul Franklin and Charles Royal, was bought for one of the Morris pictures. Maxwell Shane was assigned to do the film script. Writer Phil Yordan was signed to prepare a screenplay based on "Hell's Afloat," an Argosy Magazine serial which will be the next Morris vehicle.

Pine and Thomas launched their 1944 production with "One Body Too Many," eerie comedy mystery drama now before the cameras.

Kern Made Warner Director; 'Doughgirls' His First Film

James Kern, a Warner Bros. writer for the past 16 months, has been promoted to director by Jack L. Warner, executive producer, making the sixth man to be added to the studio's feature director list in the last year.

Kern will start his new seven-year contract by directing "The Doughgirls," for which he wrote the screenplay in collaboration with Sam Hellman.

Cast in New Sinatra Film

George Murphy, Adolphe Menjou and Gloria De Haven have been signed by RKO Radio for the new untitled Frank Sinatra picture. Miss De Haven will play opposite Sinatra. She is being borrowed from MGM. Wally Brown and Alan Carney, comedy team, will appear as stooges to Murphy. Producer Robert Fellows, with Tim Whelan directing, will give the starting signal next week.

Get Top Roles in 'Dear Barbara'

Susan Peters and Jimmy Durante were cast for two of the top roles in "Dear Barbara," new musical to be filmed by MGM with Margaret O'Brien also featured under the direction of Henry Koster. Joseph Pasternak produces from the original screenplay written by Myles Connolly.

Edward Arnold Signed

Edward Arnold has been signed by MGM to support Greer Garson in "Mrs. Parkington," based on the Louis Bromfield novel. Tay Garnett will direct and Leon Gordon produce.

WANDERING AROUND HOLLYWOOD

with Ed Raiden

Dropped in on Bernie Kamins, one of United Artists' best publicity men out here, and found him all set to visit W. C. Fields, with an AP photographer. A visit to the bulbous-nosed comedian of the entertainment world sounded very interesting, especially since I had never met him before except on a set.

When we got to the house—a large English style country house—we looked around from the front porch where we found Fields, and the broad expanse of rolling lawn, with a pond separating the hilly sides, spoke more of a lover of the countryside and the outdoors, than it did of a strict "bottle baby."

The photographer wanted certain things set up, and of course most of the shots revolved around liquor. Fields cooking with liquor in his batter and sauce; Fields finding liquor in his Frigidaire; Fields shooting pool on a magnificent billiard table, with a liquor bottle for a cue. The amusing and striking thing about it all was the fact that they had to scout around for liquor bottles to dress up each of the scenes. Even his bar had only a few assorted bottles spread around it, and it didn't take long to realize that the whole drinking saga is a pose.

Fields, sober, serious, and extremely cooperative, without saying so directly, practically admitted as much when he said: "They think I'm a drunk, so we'll let them have it that way." Many reams of copy have been printed, with that in focus, that might never have been written about the comedian.

Inside of the house certainly belied the fantasy that he was always drunk, for his writing desk was neatly stacked with work; his typewriter open and at hand; his library, on a separate balcony, was very obviously in constant use, with the lights still on, and some of the reference books open and around; a large room, different from the billiard room, had a ping-pong table open in it, and the table was open and uncovered. Those were not conditions you find in the house of a man notoriously addicted to imbibing the demon John Barleycorn.

On the outside porch, after the stills were shot, we sat and talked about the films, and certain ones in particular. All the pompousness of W. C. Fields of stage and screen was missing. He was a friendly guy, pleasant, free-talking, and all in all, the kind of fellow you leave after an interview saying to yourself: "There's a swell guy."

Lynn Merrick in 'Stars' Lead

Lynn Merrick has been handed the feminine lead in Columbia's "Calling All Stars," musical to be produced by Irving Briskin which will introduce a number of entertainers new to the screen. Miss Merrick recently completed an important role in "Nine Girls."

Dieterle to Direct Bergman

William Dieterle, who recently signed a long-term contract with David O. Selznick, will direct an Ingrid Bergman starring vehicle.

"HONORED HUNDRED" BULLETIN!

ALL THEATRE MANAGERS in America, Alaska or Hawaii who are competing in the "HONORED HUNDRED" contest of the Motion Picture Industry's Fourth War Loan are requested to note the following:

1. IT IS NOT absolutely necessary to send in an OFFICIAL ENTRY BLANK to be enrolled in the "HONORED HUNDRED" contest. THE REASON FOR the entry blank is to accurately measure the interest throughout the country as well as to be able to stay in contact with all entrants.

2. ENTRY BLANK OR NO ENTRY BLANK, you are automatically in! The only qualifying factor is the sale of at least ONE "E" BOND FOR EVERY SEAT IN YOUR THEATRE. THE "HONORED HUNDRED" will be selected on the basis of the percentage ratio of "E" bonds sold to the number of seats.

3. ALL BONDS SOLD FROM JANUARY 1 THROUGH FEBRUARY 29 will count in the "HONORED HUNDRED" contest. (Treasury Department forms INCORRECTLY carry dates "From midnight January 17 through February 15).

4. TO RECEIVE FULL credit for bonds sold by your theatre OUTSIDE the stated contest dates (midnight January 17 through February 15, as indicated on the Treasury form) YOU WILL SUBMIT TO YOUR STATE EXHIBITOR CHAIRMAN a statement, listing the total of these bond-sales. This statement will attest those bond-sales which were made from January 1 through February 29, excluding those reported on the special Treasury forms. Thus, your Treasury Form stubs and your special statement, will give you credit for all bonds sold from January 1 through February 29.

5. IF YOU RUN out of the special Treasury bond-application forms, your nearest National Screen Service exchange will supply you.

6. THE SPECIAL STUB on the Treasury forms, indicating each sale, is to be held by you until the conclusion of the campaign. These stubs, together with a "FINAL REPORT FORM"—which will be sent you—go to your STATE EXHIBITOR CHAIRMAN.

7. THE EXPIRATION DATE of the "HONORED HUNDRED" contest is midnight, February 29, 1944. Your stubs, your special statement, (see No. 2) together with your FINAL REPORT FORM must be mailed to your STATE EXHIBITOR CHAIRMAN bearing a post mark not later than March 15, 1944.

8. EACH STATE CHAIRMAN, assisted by the State War Finance Committee Chairman and such outside accounting help as may be necessary, will select from his state's final report forms the STATE WINNER as well as the winner in each classification of population (see press book or special brochure for complete contest rules.) This group of state winners will constitute NOMINEES from that state to the "HONORED HUNDRED." The bond-sales of these NOMINEES from EACH STATE, Alaska and Hawaii will then be sent to the National Committee in New York where the Contest Judges, assisted by an outside accounting firm, will determine the winners.

9. ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE "HONORED HUNDRED" will be made from New York as soon as possible after the close of the contest, but not later than April 20, 1944.

10. IF, AT ANY TIME, during the Fourth War Loan you wish any information on the "HONORED HUNDRED" contest, telegraph, telephone or write to ROBERT W. SELIG, Assistant Campaign Director, Motion Picture Industry Fourth War Loan, Suite 407, Paramount Building, 1501 Broadway, New York 18, New York.

Still They Come . .

The (apparently) never-ending parade of box-office pictures continues unabated. That this is timely and good, goes without saying because in prosperous times strong product can only add up to continued high grosses.

Of course, some of the current pictures doing extraordinary business are riding along on the boom tide. But dealing strictly with good product, we find that the list of current and coming releases clearly indicates that theatremen in the boom areas need harbor no fears that business will not hold up.

Even so, we continue to stress the great importance of backing up every worthy picture with a good and intelligent merchandising campaign.

But boom times breed complacency (a polite word for laziness) on the part of a lot of otherwise good showmen. They see the money rolling in and decide they've worked hard enough in the past when things were not so good and now they can sit back and reap the rewards.

The smart theatreman knows better. Perhaps he learned through bitter experience. Perhaps he doesn't dare let up on his showselling for fear the tide will turn and his grosses will drop.

Instead of finding ways of cutting down your merchandising, try seeking new avenues and ideas. What better time than now for trying out those new and different methods that small grosses made impossible in yesteryear? Now you can afford to try them out and to satisfy yourself on their practicability. Then, when the slow-down comes at the box-office window, you will at least know the best lines of approach to bring the maximum number of ticket buyers to your theatre.

All of which is not meant to convey any sort of an idea that you should go haywire and spend a lot of money foolishly. We assume that any plan you have had in mind is based upon common-sense showselling. What we do want to get over to you is that this is the time to try them out and learn, definitely, whether they are to be listed in your own book of showmanship as good merchandising.

An Old Subject

Here is an STR reissue.

Many months ago we carried an editorial stressing the vital importance of avoiding the nasty habit of throwing the war in your patrons' faces. We told you that Mr. and Mrs. Average Movie Patron are being reminded there is a war on everywhere they go.

And we, likewise, told you that you should make every effort to let them forget the war all the time they are in your theatre. This you can do by rendering them every pre-war service within reason and within the bounds of current conditions.

Apparently a tremendous number of theatremen and circuit executives liked the original suggestion because we were swamped with requests for reprints, blow-ups and what have you, and we've seen that particular editorial item tacked up on the bulletin board in quite a few theatres in different parts of the country.

Time has not eased this situation. On the contrary, the public has been getting more and more of it because conditions have been getting worse. Which is all the more reason why you, Mr. Theatreman, should do your utmost to convince your cashiers, doormen and ushers that they must try and smile and be polite even when the going is the toughest.

And set the example yourself by being in sight during all times when business is brisk and the house is crowded.

Do Not Neglect

Your March of Dimes campaign probably will be over by the time you read this.

But your responsibility in connection with that drive is not finished until you have made up your report and sent it in.

PLEASE, do not neglect this important, final, gesture to cap the climax of your fine collection drive.

Planning The Wind-up

As the Fourth War Bond Campaign nears the halfway mark you must have your plans completed and in the works for the final week or ten days.

We have repeatedly stressed this point because we know, from experience gathered in the past drives, how easy it is to let down on that tail-end of the campaign. This is particularly true of those showmen whose original campaign has already resulted in going over the top in the drive for a-bond-for-every-seat. They, of all people, should not be content with such success but, should move the goal posts down the field to a point where the ultimate score will be two-bonds-for-every-seat.

It is not always the way the campaign starts out that spells the greatest success. We believe it is the way you finish up that will count the most in the sum total of your final results. And at the end of the drive and the rainbow is the glory and distinction of winning out as one of the Honored Hundred. An honor that your entire community will help you celebrate for bringing it to their town.

Back to Fundamentals

Some 40 years ago Charles Barron of Pratt, Kansas, got his start in theatre business as a janitor sweeping floors and tidying up "legit" theatres. Recently Barron returned to first principles in his theatre career. He was sweeping out and tidying up his own theatre —which is suffering from that common ailment known as manpower shortage.

Long Runs Create 'Have' And 'Have Not' Theatres

Holdovers in the key city first-runs (which means that there's more than enough product for them but for that very reason a shortage for other situations) this week ran to the form which has been general for some time past with newer releases.

In New York the holdover situation, with its effect of backing up product for other houses, was emphatically illustrated in a number of the big houses along Broadway. At the Music Hall, MGM's "Madame Curie" became the fourth film to run over six weeks; the seventh week starting Thursday and an eighth definitely set for beginning next Thursday. MGM's "A Guy Named Joe" set a new long-run record at the Capitol under its new policy by starting a sixth week, and is also set for another stanza at least.

The Paramount, which has been requiring fewer and fewer pictures, opened its second week of "Miracle of Morgan's Creek" by setting a new mark in that the first day of the second week topped opening day of the engagement. The picture won rave notices in newspapers and has built steadily. With the forthcoming engagement of "Lady in the Dark" penciled in for 10 weeks, the Times Square house has a long start to a new low mark in the number of features required for the year.

"For Whom the Bell Tolls" closed its Rivoli run after 27 weeks and 5 days of top business, drawing a total attendance of more than a million and outgrossing any previous Paramount picture ever to play New York.

3 From Monogram in Feb.

Three features are on the Monogram release schedule for February. Initial release, on February 14, is "Charlie Chan in the Secret Service," first in the new series starring Sidney Toler. "Voodoo Man," starring Bela Lugosi, is the release for the 21st, while the final release, on the 28th, is "Million Dollar Kid," with the East Side Kids.

S. A. Buys 30 Goldwyn Oldies

Samuel Goldwyn announced this week that thirty of his motion picture productions, ranging from "Bulldog Drummond" to "The Westerner," have been sold for re-issue in the Argentine to Jaime Cabouli. Henry R. Arias acted as agent in the negotiations.

Myers Calls Unified Tax Fight Necessary

As the result of the industry's recent experience in Washington when film representatives tried vainly to get action from the Senate that would lessen the burden of a 20 per cent admission tax, Abram F. Myers, general counsel for National Allied, this week proposes that all theatre owners and their separate organizations join together when any such legislation is brought up and bring to bear the knowledge of the best minds that can be found in their entire number. A definite plan for meeting such legislation must be worked out, said Myers, and then the proper men should be designated to present the theatre owners' case in Washington.

The Allied general counsel's proposals were divided into three parts. To individual exhibitors he made a plea that they join their regional exhibitor associations, that they offer to work on committees to handle legislative matters, and that they submerge their own views to protect exhibitors as a whole.

The regional organizations were advised to establish a committee of the most astute of the exhibitors to cultivate friendly relations with the Congressman in that district, to know the state's national Senators, and to affiliate with a national exhibitor group. The national organizations were told by Myers to keep regional units always advised of developments and to prepare and submit careful information to legislative committees.

Myers praised the groups that attempted to cooperate on the tax situation, but declared some of them seemed to be useless in a legislative crisis because "they had not evolved a technique for handling such matters."

Jack Partington of Roxy Dies Suddenly After Heart Attack

John Allan (Jack) Partington, long identified with the Roxy Theatre, New York, and general manager and a vice president of Fanchon and Marco, died Tuesday following a heart attack. He was 54 years old. The end came suddenly, for Partington had been at his office as usual on Monday.

Partington was known as the father of the stage presentation. He introduced this policy at the Imperial, San Francisco (his home town), and later was induced by A. J. Balaban to transfer to Chicago. When the Balaban interests moved to the Atlantic seaboard Partington managed both the New York and Brooklyn Paramounts. He moved to the Roxy 11 years ago. The stage and orchestra lift devices now used generally are credited to Partington, and he was also the inventor of various other moving effects used in presentations.

Chicago Engineers Get Wage Boost

Chicago theatre engineers have won a wage increase of 20 cents an hour, it was learned this week from the Engineers Union. The increase is retroactive to March 1, 1943. The engineers will now get $1.50 an hour for a forty-hour week, with overtime at the same rate. 500 members of the union are affected. Theatre janitors, who received their wage increase last week, will work a 44-hour week, instead of 42.

$218,000 Weis Suit Delayed

The $218,000 damage suit brought by Fred Weis, operator of the Savannah Theatre, Savannah, against Lucas and Jenkins and major companies was postponed this week until March 6 because of the illness of Plaintiff Weis. The trial is taking place in Atlanta.

Direct Effect

Small towns that are not near war industries are beginning to feel directly the departure of the men folks for armed service. H. G. Walden, owner of the Victory Theatre in Burnsville, Miss., announced to his regular patrons this week that the house will be open only on Fridays and Saturdays because there just aren't enough people left in the town to run a full week.

H. J. Griffith Heads R. E. Griffith Circuit

H. J. Griffith has been elected president and a member of the board of directors of R. E. Griffith Theatres, Inc., succeeding his brother, the late R. E. Griffith, it was announced in Dallas last weekend.

At the meeting of directors, it was also announced, a new post of executive vice-president was created and R. I. Payne, general manager of the circuit, was elected to that title.

Since his brother's death, Griffith has been dividing his time between Kansas City, headquarters of his own circuit, the H. J. Griffith Theatres, operating theatres in Missouri and Kansas, and Dallas, home office of the R. E. Griffith circuit in Texas. He will continue his active direction of both circuits. It was stated that no changes either in personnel or policy were contemplated.

'Eyre' and 'Sullivans' in Feb.

"Jane Eyre" and "The Sullivans," comprising block number seven, will be released during February, Tom Connors, vice-president in charge of world-wide distribution for 20th Century-Fox, announced this week.

F. H. Ricketson, Jr.

(The Man on the Cover)

President of Fox Intermountain Theatres and now serving as national vice-chairman of the Fourth War Loan Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, has been unanimously elected a member of the Board of Directors of the National War Fund. Ricketson entered the motion picture field as a member of the exploitation and theatre division of Famous Players Lasky Corp., in 1921. From 1924 to 1929 he was president of Consolidated Theatres, Inc. and the D & R Theatres. He began his association with Fox West Coast Theatres in 1929, and has owned, managed, and operated over 100 theatres in the Rocky Mountain region.

WAC Shorts Held Up

Word was sent this week to all distribution and exhibitor chairmen of the War Activities Committee advising that there would be no WAC single reel subjects released during the Fourth War Loan drive. Herman Gluckman, who has charge of distribution of the Victory shorts, explained that due to the Fourth War Loan trailers that are now showing, and with additional ones to come, it was decided that all exhibitors should have screen space exclusively for the war bond messages.

Al Horwits Now Manager Of U's Publicity Dept.

John Joseph, national director of advertising and publicity for Universal, this week announced that Al Horwits has been promoted to the home office post of publicity manager under Maurice A. Bergman. Horwits, who for the past fourteen months has been head of the contacting department, was for many years sports editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, and is a former president of the Baseball Writers Association. He will also supervise radio activities with David Carter.

Al Horwits

In the last three months Universal's publicity department has been expanded. Among those recently added to the department are Harry Keller, former public relations counsel, and Marie Slate, former publicity director of the USO Camp Shows. Included in the publicity roster now are Marion Orford, contacting fan magazines; Peggy Mahoney, contacting N. Y. newspapers; E. J. Eustace, special feature writer; Charles Simonelli, advertising tie-up contact, and Robert Wile, trade paper contact.

J. R. Vogel Announces Changes In Loew Managerial Line-up

In a series of managerial shifts and promotions, J. R. Vogel, vice-president of Loew's, Inc., has announced a new line-up in the Western reserve and Mid-West territory. William Elder, manager of Loew's Palace, Indianapolis, has been appointed manager of Loew's Midland, Kansas City, replacing John McManus, who has resigned. McManus, veteran Loew manager, will join his family on the Coast.

Boyd T. Sparrow, manager of Loew's Park, Cleveland, will succeed Elder in Indianapolis. Abe Ludacer, assistant manager of the Capitol, New York, will move into the Cleveland vacancy.

'Up in Arms' Premiere in L.A.

Los Angeles will be the first city to see "Up in Arms," in which Sam Goldwyn is bringing out Danny Kaye. The picture, which is in Technicolor and is released by RKO Radio, will have a three-theatre premiere on February 17, using the Pantages, Hollywood, and Hillstreet theatres. It will start on regular run the next day. Working on exploitaiton plans this week were Goldwyn, Charles Koerner, Ned Depinet, S. Barret McCormick, Terry Turner, Perry Lieber, Elliston Vinson, William Hebert, and Rodney Pantages.

RKO to Distribute Spitz-Goetz Product

Arrangements were completed this week whereby RKO Radio became the distributing medium for International Pictures, independent producing company recently formed by Leo Spitz and William Goetz. The contract was signeo at the RKO studio in Hollywood by Spitz and Goetz for International and by Ned E. Depinet and Charles W. Koerner, respectively president and vice-president in charge of production at RKO.

Terms of the contract provide for distribution of four pictures only, but Mr. Depinet pointed out in a press interview after he had returned to New York that the four-picture deal was only a starter and that both parties hoped their association would be a long one.

Production plans for International call for major pictures only, with an imposing list of producers, writers, directors and stars already signed. In the process of releasing International product, RKO will add to its star roster such names as Gary Cooper, Edward G. Robinson, Sonja Henie, Gypsy Rose Lee, Teresa Wright, Frank Morgan, Randolph Scott, Dinah Shore, Bob Burns, and Charles Winninger.

First picture included in the deal will be "Casanova Brown," produced by Nunnally Johnson, directed by Sam Wood, and starring Gary Cooper and Teresa Wright, with Frank Morgan featured. Second film will be a Technicolor musical, "Belle of the Yukon," directed by William Seiter, with shooting starting late in February. Cast names are Scott, Lee, Shore, Burns and Winninger. "Once Off Guard," starring Edward G. Robinson, will be the third effort. On June 1 a high-budget Technicolor musical for Sonja Henie, "It's a Pleasure," will go before the cameras.

The deal marks the renewal of an old association for Spitz, who served as president of RKO Radio from 1935 to 1940. Goetz was in charge of all production at 20th Century-Fox before becoming Spitz's partner.

MGM Sends Out 2 More Girls As Office Trouble-Shooters

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has added two new girls to its field force of five now engaged in instructing new personnel at various branches.

The two new girls are Janet Segal, formerly an assistant manager in the Loew metropolitan circuit, and W. Ruth Jones, for many years at the St. Louis exchange. MGM instituted its feminine field force about a year ago under the direction of Alan F. Cummings, in charge of branch operations at the home office.

Variety Club Goes Cabaret

Variety Club, Tent 25, Los Angeles, has turned into a night club—for members and guests. Beginning January 14, the club in its rooms at the Ambassador Hotel has been presenting evenings of "Singing! Dancing! Fun! Gaiety!" Jan Gray, a singer and pianist of RKO productions, is appearing as entertainer.

Name Documentary Award Panel

A committee to make documentary awards was announced this week in Hollywood by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Howard Estabrook is chairman and the other members of the committee are Edward Dmytryk, William Dozier, James Wong Howe, Joris Ivens, Nunnally Johnson, Edward G. Robinson, Rosalind Russell, Sig Solow, and Frank Tuttle.

Hike Chicago Licenses

Theatre license fees in Chicago have been advanced by 10 per cent with the enactment by the Chicago City Council of the 1944 budget. The increase was voted so that the city can give pay increases to city employes now earning less than $3000 annually.

Rosenberg Succeeds Lipton at Columbia

Frank P. Rosenberg has been appointed director of advertising, publicity and exploitation for Columbia Pictures, replacing David A. Lipton, while the latter serves with the Army.

Under the new Columbia setup, Lawrence H. Lipskin, who left Columbia last summer to join an advertising agency, returns to the company as advertising manager, and Harry K. McWilliams, long associated with Columbia, becomes assistant exploitation manager. Hortense Schorr continues as publicity manager.

Rosenberg, who has been with Columbia since 1929, for the past two and a half years has been manager of the exploitation department, in which post he handled special events and certain national publicity, including radio, in addition to theatre exploitation.

New Warner Bureau Combines Publicity With Education

An educational bureau to supply schools, colleges and libraries with discussion material on Warner Bros. releases was announced by Publicity Director Mort Blumenstock this week. Charles Side Steinberg, formerly educational director of the Book-of-the-Month Club, will be in charge of the activity.

Now in preparation is a series of aids dealing with the forthcoming release of "The Adventures of Mark Twain," including a pictorial map of the America of Mark Twain's period, a teaching guide to the film, bulletin posters on Twain and his works, and other printed matter that will prove of help in discussions of the film by schoolroom classes, book clubs, library groups and other units in the educational field.

IATSE Board Meets in Cincy

The Mid-Winter meeting of the IATSE general executive board in Cincinnati this week brought contingents from all over the country, among them the following officers from New York: Richard F. Walsh, international president of the IATSE; William P. Raoul, assistant president; James J. Brennan, fourth vice-president; and Louis Krouse, general secretary-treasurer.

New High for WB Accessories

With the current round-up sales drive in its sixth week, Warner Bros. accessory billings last week set a new high mark for the company, home office records show. The increase in use of posters, placards, banners and other advertising materials is credited chiefly to elaborate campaigns on "Destination Tokyo."

Monogram Out of Suit

Monogram Pictures was dropped this week as a defendant in the trust suit of the Rosyl Amusement Corp., operators of the Cameo Theatre, Jersey City, in New York Federal Court. The suit charges restraint of trade.

Studios Speed Production Pace As Film Backlog Drops Further

As the first month of the new year came to an end the product situation had reached the point where some of the companies were showing inventories of completed films that were low by contrast with recent figures. At the end of January there were 126 feature pictures completed and awaiting release. This is 47 less than were on the lists at a comparable time last year, when 173 films were in reserve. Only two companies—Monogram and 20th Century-Fox—have more completed pictures on hand than last year.

Tendency of some companies in planning for the 1943-44 season to set fewer productions for their selling campaigns has undoubtedly been a major cause in the dropping off of ready product. The demand for new features in the face of greatly increased attendance during the summer months changed some of these plans, with the result that the vaults are not as full as expected now. Undoubtedly, too, the holiday production slump has prevented some pictures from reaching the completed stage.

These two reasons for the inventory drop are handily reflected in STR's production data for the same periods in 1943 and 1944. When completed films and those in production are lumped together it is found that January in both years saw 211 pictures on the shelves and in production. Therefore, counting in finished and potential merchandise, the companies have reached the production pace of last year.

The figures on films in production reveal that 11 companies were shooting 38 pictures in January, 1943, while during the past month 85 were in some stage of studio work or in the cutting room. When it is further revealed that of the 85 pictures now in work 30 of them went before the cameras this month alone it is easy to see that production chiefs have been fully aware of the lower inventory trend and are decidedly doing something about it. Another fact to substantiate this idea is that every one of the companies has more films in production than last year. The figures are as follows:

	Total in Production 1943	Total in Production 1944	Started During Past Month
Columbia	5	10	5
MGM	6	10	1
Monogram	1	2	2
Paramount	6	13	2
PRC	1	3	3
RKO Radio	2	5	1
Republic	4	7	3
20th-Fox	1	8	4
UA	2	8	4
Universal	7	10	4
Warners	3	9	1

FILM TRAVEL-LOG

Leonard H. Goldenson, Paramount vice-president in charge of theatre operations, and his home office associates, Leon D. Netter and Sam Dembow, Jr., returned this week from a Dallas meeting.

Charles Roberts, Columbia supervisor for Central America, is in New York from his offices in Mexico City.

G. L. Carrington, president of Altec Service, has arrived in New York from the Coast.

Oscar A. Morgan, Paramount shorts and news sales manager, off to Lake Placid this week-end to officiate at the Eastern championships of the American Figure Skating Association.

H. M. Bessey, Altec vice-president, is back in New York from a Southern business trip.

Harry Silverburg of the National Screen Chicago branch is in New York to attend home office conferences.

Allied of Eastern Pennsylvania Elects 4 to Governing Board

Four new members of the Board of Governors were elected at the sixth annual convention of Allied Independent Exhibitors of Eastern Pennsylvania this week at Philadelphia. The new board members are David Barrist, Harry Fried, Norman Lewis, and Henry Sork. The alternates elected are George Ickes, Melvin Koff and Thomas Lazarick. The regular members serve for a three-year term, while the alernates are elected for one year.

The Board of Governors then elected the following officers: Sidney Samuelson, general manager; Ben Fertel, treasurer; E. B. Gregory, secretary; Harry Chertcoff, national director; Morris Wax and George Ickes, alternate national directors; Joseph Conway, chairman of the finance committee.

Depinet Reports RKO Studio Will Start 5 in February

On his return to New York following completion of the distribution deal with International, Ned E. Depinet, president of RKO Radio, told members of the trade press that his studio would put five new pictures into production during February. "I Married the Navy" has a cast headed by Dorothy McGuire and Alan Marshall; Rosalind Russell is the star of "Elizabeth Kenny"; Cary Grant has been scheduled for "None But the Lonely Heart"; and the other films are a new Fibber McGee and Molly release and Ginger Rogers' next, "The Gibson Girl."

"Song of Bernadette" New York Engagement Opens at Rivoli

A gala premiere Tuesday night was the prelude to the New York engagement of "The Song of Bernadette" at the Rivoli Theatre, where the 20th Century-Fox epic is now playing continuous performances.

Industry notables as well as celebrities of all walks of life were present at the preview Tuesday night. Leading theatremen of the east and out-of-town as well as many of 20th-Century Fox sales executives in the field, were guests of Tom Connors and home office officials.

Motiograph Details '44 Equipment

A limited amount of Motiograph Projectors and Motiograph-Mirrophonic Sound Systems to be made available for civilian theatre purposes during 1944 will include small and medium-sized sound system models 9-B, M-11, M-911, M-9 Dual and M-11 Dual; projector Model K mechanisms, magazines and Model S projector pedestals, it was announced this week by Fred C. Matthews, partner of Motiograph, in a letter to company dealers.

New High for Dimes

Six years ago the motion picture industry took the lead as the spearhead in the March of Dimes drive. At that time, Joseph M. Schenck was appointed National Chairman of the campaign, and calling upon his close friends for assistance, he received the immediate and unstinting help of Charles P. Skouras, president of National Theatres and Fox West Coast theatres. Since that time Fox West Coast has been in the foreground of these annual drives.

Charles P. Skouras

Skouras, currently in New York as national chairman of the industry's Fourth War Loan participation, announced on Wednesday that his California organization had made in two days the largest March of Dimes collection on record. Last Saturday and Sunday, first two days of the Dimes campaign, the Fox West Coast Theatres collected a total of $102,000.

Though the March of Dimes campaign coincides with the Fourth War Loan drive which he is directing, Skouras has given personal attention to the campaign for the anti-polio fund at his theatres. He has issued instructions to his theatres to extend the March of Dimes collections from the seven-day period to nine days.

Tulsa Citizen Leaders Demand Return of 'War Dept. Report'

Due to widespread demand for a return showing of the 45-minute film, "War Department Report," which was screened for an invited audience of 1,500 business and industrial leaders of Tulsa last Tuesday, the Tulsa World has arranged for the film to be brought back for a two-day run at Convention Hall.

Requests for the return of the film were received from industrial firms, farm organizations, patriotic groups, city and county officials and the Board of Education, as well as numerous individuals. The city will provide the Hall for the occasion, which, also will serve as an added impetus to the Fourth War Loan drive in Tulsa.

Shea Managers Meet Sales Heads at New York Luncheon

Managers of the Shea Circuit's six largest theatres met with divisional sales managers at a luncheon given at the Hotel Astor, New York, by E. C. Grainger of the Shea circuit on Tuesday. The managers were: E. J. Fahey, Manchester, N. H.; J. Vance Minton, Erie, Pa.; R. W. Rhodes, Akron; John Woodward, Newark, Ohio; E. Hiehle, Zanesville, Ohio; J. Walsh, Pittsburgh.

Grainger also arranged for the managers and their wives to attend the premiere of "The Song of Bernadette" the same evening at the Rivoli Theatre.

PRC to Answer Exchanges

PRC franchise holders are expected to have an answer from home office executives to their demands for a change in sales guarantee clauses when they meet in New York from February 11 to 14. Under the present set-up each exchange is required to sign for a guaranteed gross on every picture delivered, whereas it is reported that the franchise holders have now demanded a change in distribution terms that would eliminate the guarantee.

Enthusiasm Marks 'Honored Hundred' As Entries Pour In

More than 3,000 entry blanks had been received in the Fourth War Loan "Honored Hundred" Contest at week's end, and indications were that they would continue to pour into WAC headquarters in New York.

Entry blanks are not necessary to enter the contest, it was pointed out by Robert W. Selig, assistant campaign director of the Fourth War Loan, "it merely gives us an accurate measuring stick of national interest, plus a method of constant contact with the entrants."

The "Honored Hundred" will be those theatremen who complete the Fourth War Loan on February 29 with the best bond-selling records. Since the basis for judging results is the percentage ratio of bonds sold to the number of seats, the smallest crossroads theatre may compete with equal chance with the great movie palaces of the country, Selig pointed out.

Selig lauded the arrangements with Treasury officials made by Charles P. Skouras, national chairman, which officially expand the period of "Honored Hundred" competition from January 1 through February 29 as "a tribute to theatre managers all over the country who started selling bonds the first of the year and never intended stopping until the last day of February."

The contest dates previously had been confined to January 18 through February 15. Now, bond-sales made over the entire two-month period will count, Selig emphasized.

Judging of entries will start on a state basis immediately after March 15. The State Chairman, in each case, will work with his State War Finance Chairman and such accounting assistance as may be necessary to select his state winner as well as his nomination for winners in each of the population-classifications defined in the contest rules. These nominees from each state, Alaska and Hawaii will then be forwarded to Selig in New York where the official contest judges and an outside accounting firm will determine the "Honored Hundred."

Managers now have until March 15 to get their final reports of bond-sales in to state chairmen, Selig said.

Buyers Get Identification Cards

Each bond purchaser at Fox West Coast theatres in the Northern California division are being given an identification card, according to information received in New York yesterday by National Chairman Charles P. Skouras. The card is printed in two colors, red and blue, and reads: "Fourth War Loan—this certifies that (name) has invested in War Bond Series E as a part of the motion picture industry War Activities Committee Bond Campaign in honor of (name of hero).

Mass. Free Movie Day Set

Samuel Pinanski, Massachusetts State chairman, has designated February 8 as Free Movie Day in the state in a special bulletin that has been sent to all exhibitors.

Valentine Day Plea

Charles Skouras, national chairman, Fourth War Loan, has wired all State Chairmen and State Public Relation Heads to concentrate upon a special drive on Valentine's Day, February 14, utilizing the slogan which was suggested by Harold Fitzgerald, president of Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises, Inc., Milwaukee, and which is: "Buy An 'E' Bond As A Valentine For Your Sweetheart On Valentine's Day."

It is hoped that through an intensified effort on the part of exhibitors and theatre managers throughout the country this slogan will inspire millions of men and women, who have brothers, sons and daughters in the service, to purchase a bond for each of them on that day through the theatres.

Bond Premieres Seen Exceeding the Quota

Over 1200 bond premieres had been set by exhibitors throughout the nation last week-end, compared with 1473 bond premieres held altogether in the Third War Loan, indicating an impetus that was expected to put the industry over the bond premiere quota before another week or two.

Several territories have exceeded last year's quota already. Leading the list is Denver with 207 war bond premieres as against 60 in the Third War Loan Drive. Minneapolis has set 131 Fourth War Loan bond premieres as against 110 in the last drive. San Francisco has set 122 war bond premieres as against 80 in the last campaign. Omaha has set 44 war bond premieres as against 23 in the last drive. Kansas City has set 54 war bond premieres as against 51. Cleveland has set 25 war bond premieres as against 14 in the last drive. Boston has set 48 war bond premieres as against 32 in the last drive and Cincinnati has set 30 war bond premieres as against 24 in the last drive.

A complete tabulation of the war bond premieres set on the second day of the drive follows:

Albany, 3; Atlanta, 32; Boston, 48; Buffalo, 4; Charlotte, 46; Chicago, 20; Cincinnati, 30; Cleveland, 25; Dallas, 16; Denver, 207; Des Moines, 28; Detroit, 43; Indianapolis, 14; Kansas City, 54; Los Angeles, 7; Memphis, 42; Milwaukee, 33; Minneapolis, 131; New Haven, 18; New York, 30; Oklahoma City, 9; Omaha, 44; Philadelphia, 75; Pittsburgh, 5; Portland, 18; St. Louis, 10; Salt Lake City, 70; San Francisco, 122; Seattle, 24; Washington, 14.

Illinois Allied Issuing Agent

Jack Kirsch, president of Allied Theatres of Illinois and Chicago city chairman of the Fourth War Loan drive, announces that his organization has been designated an Official Issuing Agent for war bonds. Thus theatres in the Chicago area can obtain all the bonds they need with a minimum amount of detail.

164 Over Capacity

A Rudy Vallee Bond Show at the Academy Theatre, Inglewood, Calif., for the opening of the Fourth War Loan Drive sold 1364 bonds, 164 over capacity, for a total of $201,569.

Increases Reported In Dimes Collections; New York Ceremonies

With the March of Dimes drive nearing its climax, indications are that this year's collections will run far ahead of 1943. At the start of the drive in New York, both Loew's and RKO theatres collected more in the first few hours than during the entire first day of the drive a year ago.

Nicholas M. Schenck, national chairman of the film industry's drive, expressed his gratification over the amazing way the public is responding to the "dimes" appeal.

Said Schenck: "The reports I have seen indicate that the national total will exceed my most optimistic expectations. Judging from the fine response, the infantile paralysis drive has grown very close to the moviegoers' hearts."

The increased volume of collections, it was pointed out, is not peculiar to any one locality; all sections of the country are running far ahead of last year.

Reports from Jack Kirsch, Jules Rubens and John Balaban in the Illinois area indicate that collections will run from 50 to 75 per cent greater than last year. A. H. Blank, state chairman for Iowa and Nebraska, states that returns are phenomenal, while J. Meyer Schine, state chairman for upper New York, reports theatres there showing great increase. Elmer G. Rhoden, Kansas chairman, says contributions in his area are 50 per cent ahead of 1943. Other chairmen report similar gains.

Don Jacocks, New Jersey State Chairman, reported that the Branford, Newark, Claridge and Wilmot, Montclair, Critani Hackensack, collected a total of $1,049, compared with $465 on the first day of the last drive.

Last Friday exhibitors from the entire metropolitan area gathered at the Hotel Astor for the March of Dimes Appreciation Breakfast. Speakers included E. L. Alperson; Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation; Harry Brandt and Ernest Emerling. The "dimes" trailer was shown and Dr. Phillip Stimson of Willard Parker Hospital demonstrated the Sister Kenny method for treating Infantile Paralysis.

On Monday, the New York Theatres' committee staged a two-fold demonstration in Times Square, officially opening the industry's "dimes" drive, with Harry Brandt, chairman of the Manhattan committee of the 4th War Loan, making a report on the first week's total bond sales. Mayor LaGuardia unveiled and dedicated a 12 ft. glass Wishing Well, symbol of the March of Dimes Drive.

Bonds to Buy Sky Ambulance

To stimulate bond sales in Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, for the Fourth War Loan, James Bergen, manager of the Dyker Theatre, has arranged to have the people in his district buy an air ambulance for $150,000. As bonds are sold they will be registered on a huge thermometer which will be erected on the rear wall of the Dyker Theatre. Already $25,000 worth of bonds have been sold for the ambulance, which will be called "Bay Ridge Sky Angel."

American Legion to Tie-In With Theatres On Fourth War Loan

A nationwide tieup with the American Legion on behalf of the Fourth War Loan Drive of the Motion Picture Industry, was announced this week by Charles P. Skouras, national chairman. Said to be one of the most intensive "outside theatre" tieups effected for the Fourth War Loan campaign made with W. H. Atherton, National Commander of the American Legion, the idea embraces a nationwide development of an activity the basis of which came from I. Epstein of the Philadelphia American Legion.

It is designed to sell a million of extra bonds for all theatres participating. It calls upon close cooperation and coordinating of activities between theatres in every community in the nation with every one of the several thousands of local American Legion Posts. The idea is described by Skouras as being easily applicable to every situation from the smallest town to the largest city.

Basic formula of the American Legion bond-selling tieup is the use of thousands of children in every state as super-bond salesmen with a wartime job that is right up their alley. Children register at their favorite theatre as Junior Home Front Heroes and with the sale of one bond they are awarded official American Legion citations. A system of promotion from the ranks for the boy and girl Junior Home Front Hero will give children selling more than one bond rises in rank.

For instance, five bond sales make a Junior Home Fronter a Lieutenant, ten a Captain, fifteen a Major and so on up the ladder. New and different colored citations will be awarded with every rise in rank. Instructions to all American Legion State Commanders were wired by Atherton at Skouras' request to open the door in every community to theatre managers adopting the Junior Home Fronter. Hero plan.

Due to shortness of time, drafting of citations and organization of details will be on a local or statewide basis. Rules and regulations for the competition will be made locally and will be made so they can be easily followed. Competitions between classroom groups, boy and girl scouts, church and junior clubs, etc.. will be formulated.

Screen, lobby, school, newspaper and retail merchant tieups also will be in the works.

At the conclusion of the campaign a special American Legion Night is being recommended in each city or town utilizing the Home Front Hero plan, as a colorful and important means of presenting final citations to the children participating. These special nights will be showmanly dressed with American Legion color guard, bugle and drum corps, speakers and final bond rallies.

Industry Effort Held Best Ever At Jewish Charities Luncheon

Leading members of the Amusement Division of the merged New York and Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities gathered at the Hotel Astor last week for the final report luncheon of the 1943 Amusement Division drive for the merged New York-Brooklyn Federation appeal.

The intensive industry-wide effort just concluded was the largest and most successful ever conducted by the Amusement Division on behalf of the 116 medical and social welfare agencies affiliated with the merged Federations.

MGM Exchanges 100%

Chalking up another 100 per cent record, every employe in the 33 Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer branch offices throughout the country has purchased an extra war bond for the Fourth War Loan. The last exchange to report full representation came through before the drive officially concluded its first week, it was announced by the company.

$2000 in 17 Minutes

In a brief but colorful bond rally held in the Benn Theatre, Philadelphia, last Wednesday, a total of $2000 was raised in 17 minutes.

Despite the fact that the rally was announced in the small daily ads for only one day, the meeting overflowed into the street and Bob Kessler, manager, announced that in addition to stamps amounting to $50, war bonds sold amounted to $1950.

Opening on the stage with an American Legion Band playing taps for heroes killed in action, Kessler made a 2-minute address outlining the aims and purposes of the Fourth War Loan. Junior Legionnaires and members of the William P. Roche Post, 21, rendered a musical selection which was followed by a patriotic talk by Thomas C. Browne, Post Commander and a stirring talk by a U. S. Treasury Department representative. The National Anthem closed the program.—Ph.

Michigan Film Groups Joined for War Loan

For the first time in history, the Michigan film industry is co-operating 100 per cent in one group, throwing its collective strength into the drive to put the Fourth War Loan over the top. The state setup is also unique in that theatres are participating in the broad promotional committee of the Michigan War Finance Committee.

The promotional group is headed by Prof. Gordon W. Kingsbury, of Wayne University, with Mrs. Alice Gorham, of the United Detroit Theatres Corp., as director of the state theatre group.

Working under the guidance of Mrs. Gorham are seven committee members who are handling the drive in 200 theatres in Detroit and 150 outstate. The seven are Edward C. Beatty, head of the WAC; Earl J. Hudson, president of United Detroit Theatres; David Idzal, of the Fox Theatre; Alex Schreiber, representing the independents; James Sharkey, of the Co-operatives; C. L. Buermele, of General Theatre Services, and Ray Branch, of Allied Theatres of Michigan.

Michigan's goal in the campaign is $440,000,000, with the Wayne County (Detroit) quota set at $85,459,000.—De.

Garvin's 'Honored Hundred' Entry First From Outside United States

An entry blank from Homer Garvin, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Juneau, Alaska, is the first to be received in the "Honored Hundred" contest from beyond the confines of continental United States.

Similarly, it is believed by War Activities Committee officials to be the first participation by any theatre or manager outside of the 48 states in any of the war loan campaigns in which the motion picture industry has participated.

Alaska has 18 theatres and Hawaii has 31. Many are expected to enter the "Honored Hundred" contest from these areas, but due to delayed mails Garvin's communication has been the only one so far to reach New York headquarters.

Goes Over Its Quota

The Forest Hills Theatre, Forest Hills, N. Y., a Skouras house with seating capacity of 926, reported the sale of 981 war bonds for a total of $59,275 up to January 21. The theatre claims the distinction of being the first house in the New York area to go over its quota in the Fourth War Loan Drive.

Wisconsin All-Out For 4th Bond Drive

Six different types of Bond Premieres are being held in Wisconsin's all-out campaign for the Fourth War Loan, according to word received by National Chairman Charles P. Skouras recently from Harold Fitzgerald, Wisconsin state chairman. Besides the regular bond premieres in theatres there will be flesh premieres, industrial premieres, union premieres, auction premieres, fraternal premieres and school premieres, Fitzgerald reports.

An all-soldier show, "It's the McCoy," has been booked into 15 towns in the state. The giant "Bond Seat" board erected for the drive by Milwaukee theatres will be turned over to the city for patriotic use for the duration of the war. The name of the square has been changed from "Court of Honor" to "Victory Square."

Fitzgerald has issued a challenge to John Friedl of Minneapolis, E. C. Beatty of Michigan and Jules Rubens of Illinois stating that Wisconsin will have more bond premieres in proportion to theatres than any of the three states. Distribution managers will act as judges for the contest.

Exhibitor mass meetings held throughout the state have brought enthusiastic response. Valentine's Day has been set as Free Movie Day throughout the state. There will be as many other free movie days as exhibitors desire.

Tin-Can Matinees Successful in Harrisonburg, Staunton, Va., Houses

Henry Clark, of Warners' Virginia Theatre, Harrisonburg, had a very successful Tin Scrap Matinee, at which 600 children attended. The price of admission was at least 25 properly prepared tin cans. Some children brought as high as 100 or over. Between two and three tons of tin was collected. This was turned over to the local tin collection drive which is sponsored by the Harrisonburg Rotary Club. The newspapers and public schools lent the drive fine support.

Frank Shaffer, of Warners' Dixie Theatre, Staunton, received a front-page break on his Waste Paper-Tin Can morning show. He also received a follow-up story in the paper next day. The city had a truck at both the Dixie and the Strand Theatres and each truck was almost completely filled with waste paper. Two hundred children attended the show at the Dixie with almost as many reporting at the Strand.—Wa.

This Idea Worth Duplicating

An idea well worth duplication wherever the physical setup of a theatre permits is that now in effect at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York. The entire East wall, according to James B. Zabin, general manager, Cinema Circuit, operators of the house, is being painted by two men, one dressed as a hangman, the other as a skeleton. When finished, the sign will show Hitler on the gallows with this copy: "Hang Hitler by Buying Bonds at the New Amsterdam."

Extra Bond Deductions

Four of the major film companies—MGM, 20th Century-Fox, Columbia and RKO—have set up machinery by which employes may buy extra Fourth War Loan bonds on a payroll deduction system. This bond sale routine will augment the payroll deduction system that has been in effect for some time. In other words, employes will be buying one regular payroll bond plus an extra one for the current drive. The plan is being considered by the other film companies.

Rodeo Week Scores As Novel Stunt for Citizens of Wausau

Here's a new wrinkle in showmanship—a stunt that rounded up the cash customers. At the Midway Theatre in Wausau, Wis., Manager Larry Beltz held a Rodeo Week whose seven days were more than flavored with just a "touch of Texas."

Beltz' campaign began weeks in advance of the playdate with the booking of all-western programs. Using the strong cowboy features as an exploitation basis, the Midway's entire staff set to work to harmonize the theatre setting with screen attractions.

Cowboy and cowgirl costumes worn by staff members tied in with the westernized lobby and front decorations. The best-dressed Wausau cashier, usherette and doorman of the week wore a ten-gallon hat, plaid shirt and riding pants.

Hillbilly songs and dances took over for the stage entertainment of the patrons during intermissions and did much to maintain the western atmosphere. No popular numbers of the Hit Parade variety were jived during Rodeo Week at the Midway; the songs were strictly boots-and-saddle material.

Newspaper ads in the Wausau papers carried pertinent institutional messages and announced in advance the coming of Rodeo Week. Radio advertising, too, took on a new emphasis in its copy before and during the novel campaign.

And Wausau loved it! A look at the box-office statement proved the fact that it's still good showmanship to establish an exploitation theme, such as Rodeo Week, that has public appeal and can be so conveniently and colorfully carried out.

Loew's New York Theatres To Hold Pin-Up Girl Contest

A contest to find the Pin-Up Girl of Greater New York for 1944 will be inaugurated by Loew's seventy in-town theatres on February 15, it has been announced.

Prizes in war bonds will be awarded the winner and runners-up. Men in the armed forces will act as judges, and photographs of the winner in each borough will be mailed to the boys in service upon request.

Preliminary contests will be held at Loew's neighborhood theatres, with semi-finals to be held in each borough. Grand finals will be held on the stage of Loew's State Theatre. All girls between the ages of 16 and 25 are eligible.

Anita Colby on Tour as 'Cover Girl' Advance Man

Anita Colby, America's No. 1 Cover girl, is now engaged in a 59-day traveling assignment as "advance man" for "Cover Girl," for which she was technical adviser and in which she is one of the principal players.

During her 59-day trip, Miss Colby is covering 24 key cities, averaging 6000 miles. To add zest to the trip, there are ten sleeper jumps. She is visiting newspaper offices and otherwise promoting interest in the future showings of "Cover Girl" in the cities and territories on her itinerary.

The Frank Sinatra Swoon-Meter

This idea, reminiscent of the Rube Goldberg goofy inventions, was concocted by Manager Walter Ahrens of the Orpheum Theatre, Des Moines, for the engagement of RKO Radio's "Higher and Higer." Stunt was featured for week in window of local department store. Small signs described each phase of display's operation.*

O'Rourkes Turn Out To See 'Princess'

In connection with the showing of "Princess O'Rourke" at the Imperial Theatre, Toronto, Manager Tom Daley of the Famous Players Canadian house fetched himself a lot of newspaper space, including stories and pictures, as well as a broadcast from the theatre lobby via the Alka-Seltzer quiz program, by inviting the O'Rourkes of Toronto to a showing of the picture.

The event uncovered 31 O'Rourke families with 131 members in Toronto, and various human interest angles were developed for newspaper publicity.

In addition to this stunt, Daley's engagement of "Princess O'Rourke" was supported by the special Warner ad campaign and several displays. Twenty-five music stores had windows and departmental flash on Honorable Moon, song number from the film; a six-sheet occupied valuable space in the Yonge Street corner window of the Adams department store, and the local recruiting branch of the Canadian Army covered 50 prime locations with jumbo cards calling attention to "Women at War," which was shown on the same program.

Daily Broadcasts Sell Contest

The "What a Woman!" contest outlined in the Columbia pressbook was hooked in by Manager Al Anders of the Bijou Theatre, Springfield, Mass., with Ethel Henin's "To the Ladies" program on radio station WMAS. Daily broadcasts, starting one week in advance of the opening of "What a Woman " at the Bijou, plugged the picture and the contest.

 How Ahrens' "Frank Sinatra Swoon-Meter" operates: (1) Sinatra sings. (2) Girl swoons, falls into waiting arms. (3) Girl's weight releases hammer. (4) Hammer drives nail through board. (5) Nail punctures balloon, waking little man. (6) Little man grabs clock to see time. (7) Rope on clock releases mouse. (8) Mouse jumps on scale to eat cheese. (9) Ball on scale rolls off into baseball mitt, which is at one end of lever which turns cogged wheel and thus causes pointer to indicate swoon degrees (in trillions).

Benefit Shows Urged As Goodwill Builders, Business Boosters

It used to be that clubs and fraternal organizations—especially the feminine side—raised extra funds for their treasuries with banquets and suppers, but point rationing has put a crimp in that kind of activity. It is natural for the clubs to want to continue such affairs, for many charitable causes would be left out in the cold if they were deserted by these organizations.

The question for the clubs during the war period is how to offer something sufficiently alluring to get out the crowds and swell the exchequer. There is dancing—but even that involves some food in the way of refreshments. There are music recitals, amateur theatricals, and many other possible features. But the suppers are out and so are church fairs, teas, card parties, and bingo (legally in many cases).

The amateur theatricals are always good, but look at the amount of work and organization necessary for such a show! It can be done only once a year in most localities, and once a year for a women's club to raise money is not enough.

The answer, as you've probably suspected, is the local motion picture theatre. The women can put on a benefit easier by using a film than by any other method we can think of. In the first place, they have the manager for a foundation, support, friend, and general doer. If some of the committeewomen fall down on the job the manager will pull the thing through. He's a professional.

The idea has been beautifully worked out in Kirksville, Mo., where Manager Earl Hayes of the Kennedy Theatre has been sponsoring a picture series for the Kirksville Order of Eastern Star since November. The scheme centers on a special offer to the public for the series. Benefit tickets are sold at a discount on the regular admission prices, somewhat in the same manner as gift books.

For entertainment, pictures are chosen that assure the feminine portion of the audience full satisfaction. In the case of the Kennedy, Hayes ran his first series a week apart with these films as the inducement: "Best Foot Forward," "Thank Your Lucky Stars," "Above Suspicion," "The Sky's the Limit," and "Let's Face It." This might be called the block system of selling—only in this instance the selling is to the audience. At any rate, the buyers have the 20 per cent cancellation privilege, for they have their choice of four pictures out of the five.

With the Eastern Star behind the campaign it was a foregone conclusion that Hayes would do a good, healthy chunk of business above normal. The slight discount is more than wiped out by the large response, and the plan has the further advantage of gaining new regular patrons for the theatre. Hayes found this to be true and he recommends it as good business for any theatre—especially in the small town.

He's Beginning to Doubt It

Showman Sam says: Two and two are supposed to make four, but with inflation, high rentals, and high wages I'm beginning to doubt it.

Program Exchange

Salisbury Sends Sample of Program From Maine; Other Topics: Weather, War Loan

Theatremen are deep in the job of bond-selling. If there were no indication of this other than the fact that our receipt of programs has fallen off sharply during the past few days, that in itself would be sufficient proof. And we are glad, even though our material for discussion in these columns is somewhat curtailed. We shall, however, expect to receive shortly programs containing Fourth War Loan showmanship.

Meanwhile, let us not forget the weather. In summer, we expect mild, balmy weather. In winter, we expect frigid weather. Under no circumstances do we expect mild, balmy weather in January. And yet that's what we've been having these past few days. Even humidity rears its ugly head, resulting in a dampness that makes the going difficult. Last night, for example, with our bedroom windows wide open and the temperature at a comfortable 36 degrees, we still perspired profusely, fearful that removal of our blankets might make us an excellent target for a cold.

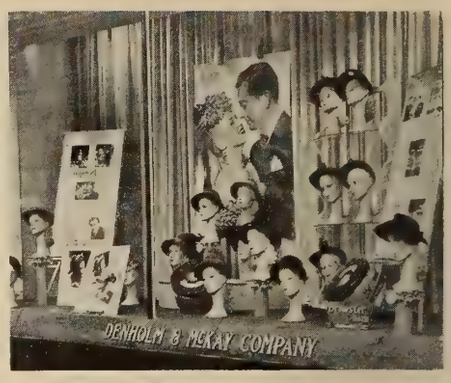
While we're on the subject of weather, we'd like to comment on a letter received from Jack Jackson, a former associate on this staff, and now associated with Interstate Theatres down in Houston, Texas. Jackson is right at home in the sweltering heat; even in a steam cabinet he demands his earmuffs, overcoat and spats. Imagine then, how we felt as we sweltered in a 36-degree temperature here, when we read his complaint that the brief drop of temperature in Houston to that same degree forced him to bring his spats out of the mothballs. While in New York, Jackson withstood the winter weather nobly: before going out each morning, he called for a bellhop and suspended him outside the window for a few minutes. If the bellhop stayed there, it was all right to go out; if, however, he lost his hold while trying to rub his hands together to keep them warm, Jackson burrowed beneath the sixteen blankets on his bed and remained there. This procedure invoked no hardship on the bellhop, for a landing net was provided for his convenience several stories below Jackson's floor. To this day, we never pass that hostelry without thinking of Jackson and that bellhop.

And now that we've dealt with the weather, let's deal with a program or two. Somewhere in the state of Maine there is a community called Presque Isle, and the manager of the Opera House there is Raymond E. Salisbury. Salisbury's name is familiar to us, but for the life of us we can't think in what connection we heard it before. (You're wrong—we weren't even thinking of a steak.) Anyway, Manager Salisbury has been good enough to forward us a copy of his program, which measures 6x9 when open, 4½x6 when closed. Printed on pink paper, it is a four-page affair which utilizes, as far as we can tell, two-column ad mats from the press books. Salisbury uses institutional slugs which, we assume, he obtains through some theatre mat service. Double features occur only on Friday and Saturday when, as in most average small towns, the populace must have a western with the regular feature. The program is neat and attractive, and a good selection of type is used where necessary. While it makes no particular flash, and follows the appearance of others of its type, it is probably just what the people of Presque Isle are accustomed to and like. And we rather imagine it is an economical printing job.

Two programs just arrived at our desk—one from Harry Hobolth of the DeLuxe Theatres, Imlay City and Capac, Mich., and the other from the Palace Theatre, Greenfield, Tenn. Both are the same type of vest-pocket program put out by a national program printing firm. And, oh yes, still another just arrived: this one from David Nolan of the Normandie Theatre in New York. A new style signature cut has been designed for the front cover. Only reference to the bond drive is the front-page line: "The Fourth War Loan Drive Is On!"

We don't wish to sound critical about the matter, but wherever there is additional space available, we think that space should be devoted to the bond drive. On one page, for example, a story about Don Ameche has been spaced between paragraphs to fill the column. This space could have been removed, permitting at least an inch at the bottom of the page for copy either about the Fourth War Loan or the March of Dimes drive, the latter having ended by the time most exhibitors read these lines. Wherever there is an opportunity to include a few lines about the Fourth War Loan, such lines should be included.

And so we end another weekly discourse. We're on the lookout for those Fourth War Loan programs, for they should be reaching us any day now. Whatever treatment you're according the drive in your programs, won't you let us see copies? Just address them to: Program Exchange Editor, SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW, 1501 Broadway, New York 18, N. Y. And be sure to include your name, so we can give credit where credit is due.



London Showmanship for 'Bell'

Color, and plenty of flowers, distinguish the front of the Carlton Theatre, London, for the current engagement there of Paramount's "For Whom the Bell Tolls." The above photo was brought over from London by David E. Rose, managing director for Paramount in Great Britain. Fresh flowers are supplied daily to decorate the marquee.

Contacts Norwegian Societies

Mindful that "First Comes Courage" would appeal to Milwaukeeans of Norwegian descent, Manager Angelo Provinzano of the Palace Theatre, Milwaukee, contacted the Norwegian societies in the city and informed them of the picture's coming. Box-office response was excellent.

Difference between Rip Van Winkle and some people: Rip woke up.

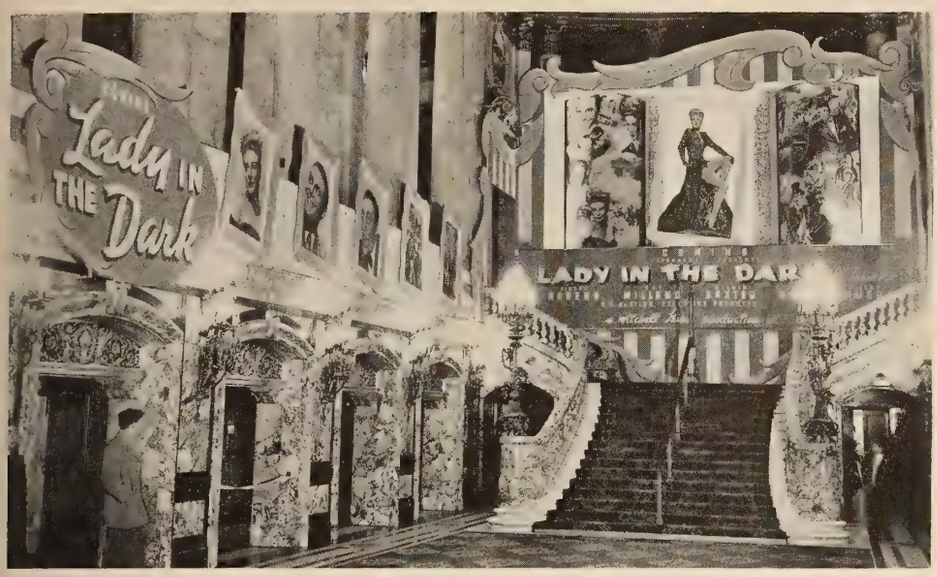
Sold Hats, Built Business

This attractive "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" hat window not only sold plenty of hats to the young ladies of Worcester, Mass., but helped Loew's Poli Theatre establish a new record with the 20th Century-Fox musical. The tieup was arranged by theatre's manager, Harold Maloney.

Turns Back Clock In Selling Revivals

Leonard Kraska, now permanently settled as manager of the Dorchester Theatre in one of Boston's finer suburbs, did a great job of ballyhooing a program of old-time films, "The Good Old Days." He made the suburb of 100,000 persons completely mustache-conscious by distributing 3000 phony mustaches at the theatre, restaurants, bars, and drug stores. The theatre staff wore them to encourage patrons to do likewise, and they made a big hit with the grownups as well as with the younger persons. He also distributed 10,000 heralds gagging the show, as well as 300 double-size window cards and fifteen two-sheets.

Kraska had a couple dressed in old-fashioned outfits and had them pass out advertising material to people in the streets. In his newspaper advertising, directed to the adults, he "sold" Valentino, Dressler, John Bunny and others of the old-time cast, while for the kids he stressed Charlie Chaplin and the comics. Men were sold on the Dempsey-Willard angle, so everyone was happy. The theatre was especially decorated for the week, and gas lights were installed to emphasize the "Good Old Days" atmosphere. Record-breaking business was done for the entire engagement of the picture.



On another occasion, Kraska put on a repeat of "My Friend Flicka," plus a Western, which jammed the house all day. Prizes of toy periscopes were given and plans for the start of a new serial, "The Batman," were announced from the stage. The "Batman Club" was organized with masks and membership cards and with autographed photographs to every child. The children were encouraged to prepare scrap books, and prizes will be awarded for the best of these each week and at the end of the serial. —Bo.

Old-Time Show in Jamestown

A program of old-time silent pictures constituted the New Year's Eve show at the Palace Theatre in Jamestown, N. Y., according to a belated report from Ken Rockwell, Warners' city manager there.

Billed as "The Good Old Days," the program included "Ten Nights in a Barroom," William S. Hart in "Every Inch a Man," "The Great Train Robbery," the famous Dempsey-Willard fight (1919), and a comedy and short showing such old stars as Mary Pickford, Rudolph Valentino, Gloria Swanson, Tom Mix, Francis X. Bushman and others.

Circus-type heralds were widely distributed to announce the old-time show, and local newspapers came through with publicity stories.

'Lady in the Dark' Display Striking and Colorful

A striking and colorful lobby display is at the New York Paramount in advance of the showing of Paramount's Technicolor production, "Lady in the Dark." Robert M. Weitman, managing director, utilized the entire length of the 100-foot grand lobby. Flanking both sides are full-color 40x60 portrait blowups and scene stills of Ginger Rogers, Ray Milland, Jon Hall, Warner Baxter and Mischa Auer and large decorative signs announcing the attraction as coming. Dominating the scene from the grand staircase landing is a huge spectacular display in full color, 33x36, covering the entire wall. Large blowup of Miss Rogers wearing the fabulous "Lady in the Dark" mink and sequin evening gown dominates the center, while on either side are two large motor-driven revolving drums, both covered with a photo-montage in full color. Display is set within giant shadow box, and is illuminated via indirect lighting. Entire setup was planned and designed jointly by Weitman, Jack McInerney, publicity director of the Paramount, and Thomas E. Blackmore of the Max Fine Display Company, and executed by Blackmore. The displays may well serve as an inspiration to other theatres playing the film, where space permits.

Annual Pass Award Showmanship Idea

A prize-winning showmanship idea—a simple giveaway that involved no contest—scored successfully recently for Manager Hugh Silverd of the Fox Granada Theatre, Kansas City, Mo.

Having selected a specific date, Silverd began running four weeks in advance a trailer with this copy:

"Free movies for a year! How would you like to go to the movies free for a year?

"The Granada Theatre is awarding the annual gold pass (for two people) and one month's silver pass . . . etc."

During the four weeks people signed coupons, after which winners were selected.

In Joplin, Harley Fryer, former manager of the Fox Theatre, used the same basic idea, but turned it into a contest by giving each contestant a commission on every ticket sold, as well as a certain number of points. Thus the person accumulating the largest number of points received a Gold Pass.

Paramount to Give 'Navy Way' A Top Exploitation Campaign

As a result of the enthusiastic reception accorded "The Navy Way" at a sneak preview, Producers William Pine and William Thomas are rating it as their most important production to date and Paramount is launching plans for large-scale national promotion.

The picture, a drama based on the training lives of Uncle Sam's seafighters, which was filmed at the famed Great Lakes, Ill., Naval Training Station, will be given the most extensive exploitation campaign ever set up for a Pine-Thomas production. An increased advertising budget is being mapped and plans are being developed for the premiering of the picture which was made with Navy cooperation and the participation of thousands of bluejackets.

20th-Fox Sets Ad Tieups For Baxter, Landis, Bari

Twentieth Century-Fox has made arrangements with Royal Crown Cola and Heller Delta Pearls whereby the company's stars will be featured in the magazine advertisements of the two organizations.

Anne Baxter, currently in the recently completed "The Sullivans," will be featured in Royal Crown Cola ads, which will run in fan magazines.

Carole Landis and Lynn Bari will share Heller Delta Pearl ads in which each of the artistes will receive individual mention in ads in which titles of their films will be featured. Miss Landis will be advertised with "Four Jills and a Jeep" and Miss Bari will be mentioned with "Tamipico" and other 20th-Fox films.

Promotes 'Wintertime' Window

Manager Del Milne of the Orpheum and Playhouse, Portland, Ore., promoted this window from Meier and Frank, department store, as a tieup on 20th Century-Fox's "Wintertime." Milne found it took little persuasion to make other tieins.

'Higher and Higher' Exploitation Set by Samartano, Horwitz

Following a publicity meeting at the Loew-Poli Palace Theatre, Meriden, Conn., the other day, during which campaign plans on "Higher and Higher" were discussed by Manager J. G. Samartano and his assistant, Sam Horwitz, it was decided that:

- Samartano would imprint 100 cards and tie in with the Chamber of Commerce, using all the poles in the downtown area. Copy on cards: "Raise Meriden's War Bond Sales 'Higher and Higher'—Buy a Bond Today!"
- Horwitz would plant two co-operative ads on the picture—one two-column featuring Michele Morgan and one one-column featuring Barbara Hale—in a tieup with the Charm Beauty Salon.
- Samartano would run a Frank Sinatra song contest in conjunction with the weekly Amateur Shows at the theatre. Newspaper would carry story of the contest, winner, and plug for the picture.
- Horwitz would plant scene mats and readers two weeks in advance, plus perhaps one or two stories on the popularity of Frank Sinatra.
- Samartano would feature a 40x60 in the lobby displaying press material on the meteoric rise of Sinatra.
- Horwitz would plant window displays with local music stores tieing in the picture with Sinatra recordings.
- Samartano would plant one-sheets in empty store windows, cards in the local and suburban busses.
- Horwitz would tie in with the W. T. Grant Store's music department for a display featuring songs made popular by Sinatra and carrying this copy: "Now on sale here—all of the popular songs sung by Frank Sinatra, who is now being featured in 'Higher and Higher' at the Loew-Poli Palace."
- Samartano would attempt to plan an essay contest in the Meriden Journal for the best essay on "What I Like About Frank Sinatra's Voice."
- Horwitz would have a boy walk the streets on stilts, carrying a card with this copy: "I'm going 'Higher and Higher' to see Frank Sinatra in 'Higher and Higher' at the Loew-Poli Palace."
- Samartano would try to plant a missing-word contest with the classified editor of the Meriden Record, awarding guest tickets to the winners.
- Horwitz would have arrows stenciled on the sidewalk, together with the title, and leading in the direction of the theatre. Stunt would be appropriate, because theatre is at top of hill, and arrows would begin at the bottom.

The stunts looked good on paper. If Samartano and Horwitz were successful in putting at least the majority of them into action, extra grosses at the Loew-Poli Palace box-office seemed reasonably certain.

Unusual cooperation of the Hearst chain of newspapers in tieing in the Monogram drama, "Where Are Your Children?" with its own child-delinquency campaign, was shown in full-page still layouts in two of its most important units recently. Page in the New York Journal-American was headed "Movie Helps Fight Juvenile Delinquency," and a different layout in the Chicago Herald & American bore the caption, "Youth on Loose—A Frank Movie."

These displays are regarded as especially exceptional owing to the present shortage of newsprint.

First Runs Prove 'Destination' Scoring as Exploitation Natural

With its timely and prophetic title catching national imagination many weeks before its initial showings, "Destination Tokyo" has come through as an exploitation natural as a result of stunts devised by Warners' Charles Einfeld and Mort Blumenstock publicity corps.

Following is a summary of the leading activities in the general campaign to date:

Salvage Drives—By placarding the collections "Destination Tokyo," these campaigns to salvage much-needed scrap iron, tin, fats and paper attracted wide participation, resulting in unusual publicity for the picture as well as large collections of materials. As part of the advance campaign for the triple Los Angeles opening at Warners' Downtown, Hollywood and Wiltern, a tieup with the War Salvage Committee of that area made it possible to placard 250 scrap iron salvage trucks with banners reading: "Contents Destination Tokyo." More than 2000 butcher shops displayed counter signs reading: "Mark your grease Destination Tokyo—exchange it for ration points." In Chicago, the "Destination Tokyo" scrap drive collection undertaken by school children with the endorsement of Governor Green of Illinois and cooperation from school authorities, developed into such a success that stories and pictures of the campaign broke in newspapers throughout the country, with five news and photo syndicates handling the story.

Slogan on War Materiel—Numerous newly launched fighting craft, including submarines and bomber planes, were among the war materiel marked with the slogan "Destination Tokyo," and in the case of important launchings the event became a national news story. At Tinker Field, Oklahoma City, the Army's largest air depot, "Destination Tokyo" was stenciled on all bombs loaded into bombers going overseas throughout the month of December. Many war plants also placed the "Destination Tokyo" label on their output.

Liberty Magazine Tieups—Publication of "Destination Tokyo" in serial form in Liberty made it possible to effect tieups with local magazine distributors throughout the country even after the serialization was concluded. These included lobby displays featuring enlargement of stills from the picture, plus tearsheets from Liberty; heralds imprinted locally with Liberty tieup copy inserted in all current issues of the magazines; "Liberty Scrap Drive" campaigns, arranged with local distributors of the publication; free copies of Liberty for one pound of scrap marked "Destination Tokyo"; truck posters, arm bands for newsboys and Liberty sales boys, and various other promotional stunts.

Book Tieups—Appleton-Century, publishers of the book version of "Destination Tokyo," are including a plug for the picture in their national advertising, with material available through local booksellers for theatre tieups in connection with the picture's engagement.

War Bond Rallies—In cooperation with local war bond selling agencies, a number of "Destination Tokyo" War Bond Rallies were conducted, the appeal being directed toward bringing in money to finance more planes and submarines to go after the Japanese.

'Destination Tokyo' Day—On the eve of the Los Angeles opening, Mayor Fletcher O. Bowron of that city proclaimed "Destination Tokyo" Day. Ceremonies included participation by Navy personnel, Waves, wounded submarine heroes and a 26-piece Navy Band.

Radio—Constant use of the "Destination Tokyo" slogan by radio newscasters and commentators was made possible by timely developments in the news as well as the psychological appeal of the slogan.

Other Angles—Tieups with local military tailors; promoting gifts for sailors, particularly submarine crews; submarine model contests; letter-writing to soldiers, and various other exploitation angles also were employed by exhibitors with original ideas of their own, suited to local situations.

Just Prove You're Crazy

Paris Peggy, who appeared at the New York World's Fair, the Texas Centennial and the San Francisco Exposition, was hired by Universal's west coast publicity staff to sit in the lobby of the Egyptian Theatre during the run of "Crazy House" and act as judge of people who took up an offer to act crazy and be admitted free if they successfully convinced Peggy.

American-Soviet Friendship Council Helps Promote 'Heroic Stalingrad'

Exhibitors in large cities throughout the country are receiving the cooperation of local chapters of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship in promoting "The City That Stopped Hitler—Heroic Stalingrad," Paramount release of the official Red Army film.

Local councils which have been advised by the parent organization to cooperate with local theatres include the Massachusetts Council of American-Soviet Friendship in Boston, and chapters in New Haven, Cleveland, Detroit, Tampa, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Jacksonville, Chicago, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Denver, Des Moines, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Paterson and New Brunswick, N. J. In addition, other chapters are being organized in key cities in connection with the current celebration of 10 years of amicable relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Members of the local chapters are advised of the theatre playdates and urged to publicize and otherwise support the engagements. The National Council cooperated in promoting the engagement of the picture at the Victoria Theatre in New York City.

'Jack London' Book Week

Manager Rodney Toups, Loew's State, New Orleans, arranged a Jack London Book week when he played "Jack London." Patrons deposited books in lobby receptacle for use by men of the Merchant Marine.

Book Store Reciprocal Tieup

Through a tieup with a local book store, Manager J. G. Samartano of the Palace Theatre, Meriden, Conn., reciprocates for the store's windows by displaying a 40x60 in the lobby announcing coming attractions based on novels and advising where they may be purchased.

Leap Year Angle on 'Government Girl'

Manager Knox Strachan of the Hippodrome Theatre, Cleveland, O., arranged a novel "Leap Year-Turnabout Party" as the highlight of his campaign for "Government Girl."

The party was arranged through a tie-in with the Gigs (Girls in Government Service) with the so-called Gigs asking service men for dates and footing the expenses for the evening.

Through advance arrangements with the armed forces located in nearby localities more than 1000 soldiers, sailors and marines were invited to the affair. It was arranged for the service men to meet their "blind" dates at the local induction center, where, at a given signal, the Gigs rushed the boys in order to secure their special date for the evening.

Window cards, publicizing the party, had been printed in advance and in turn distributed through every government agency in Cleveland, and in the barracks of every detachment of marines, soldiers, sailors and coast guard. More than 75,000 persons learned of the party in advance via this medium.

Following the "teaming-up" of dates, the couples paraded down Cleveland's main street to the Hippodrome, tieing up traffic in front of the theatre despite the frantic efforts of special squads of police.

All Cleveland newspapers carried advance publicity on the stunt, with the actual party being covered by Acme News Service and the Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

Uses Poster as Drop-Curtain

Mel Jolley, manager of the Marks, a 20th Century Theatre in Oshawa, Ontario, came up with a quick answer to the new government restrictions on advertising. He pasted a 24-sheet on "Action In the North Atlantic" on cotton and used it as a drop-curtain on the stage in front of the screen. It was lowered during intermissions and as a leader into the trailer on the motion picture. Mel reports that audience reaction was terrific.

Showman Sam says: Have you ever noticed that the lobby with the most lurid posters and ad copy in town oftentimes is the entrance to the poorest show in town?

Twin-Theatre Date on 'Jack London' Sold By Radio and Tieups

Local radio and commercial tieups were among the highlights of the exploitation campaign put on by Managers Jim Tebbetts and Harry Greenman, of Loew's State and Orpheum theatres, Boston, on "Jack London."

Radio station WCOP used the five-minute transcription with the James Hare interview and later gave "Jack London" another great break on their special Breakfast Club program. Station WORL used the five-minute transcription on "Hollywood Cavalcade" with full credit to "Jack London." In addition, the Royal Crown Cola radio program devoted time to plugging the picture and mentioned its twin theatre engagement.

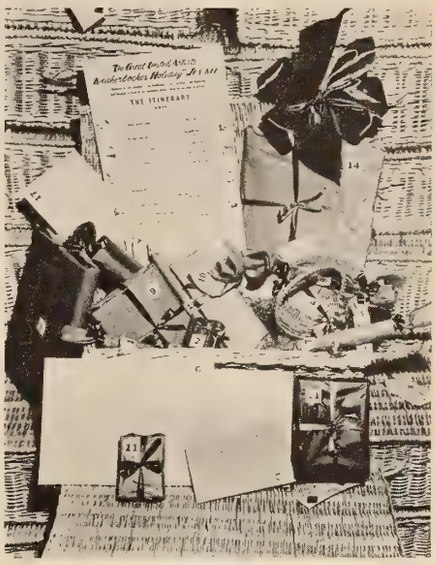
The Royal Crown Cola tieup accounted for the distribution of 1000 window cards throughout the city. Special two-sheet oil-cloth banners were used on their 20 delivery trucks, each prominently mentioning the opening of "Jack London" at both houses. The local Royal Crown Cola ads broke with full credit to the film's stars.

The Adams Hat tieup resulted in three local shops getting out attractive window displays featuring scene stills and the special poster tieup. In addition, local dailies carried the Adams ad mentioning Michael O'Shea.

All local book shops featured scene stills from the picture and 20x30 posters specially gotten up for the display.

Several days prior to the opening local newspapers used feature stories and art on the featured players.

Top Ad Schedule Is Set for 'Seabees'



Largest appropriation for fan and general magazine advertising in the history of the company has been allocated by Republic to "The Fighting Seabees."

The picture is being advertised in the March issues of Life, Look, Liberty, Cosmopolitan, Charm, Movie Story, Motion Picture, Madern Screen, Screen Romances, Movies, Movie Life, Movie Stars Parade, Movieland, Photoplay Movie-Mirror, Pic, Screen Guide, Stardom, Click, See, Screenland, Silver Screen, Movie Show, Pathfinder, Hit Parader, True Detective, Master Detective, Latest Song Hits, Song Hits, Actual Detective, Official Detective, True Story, Police Gazette, Child Life, Calling All Girls, True Comics, Real Heroes, True Aviation, Junior Scholastic, Senior Scholastic, World Week, Parent's, American Girl, Boy's Life, Open Road for Boys, Young America, and Young Catholic Messenger.

In addition, advertisements are appearing in such newspaper supplements as Parade, This Week, and American Weekly, syndicated to 56 newspapers throughout the country; a full-page advertisement will appear in the Christian Science Monitor of February 23rd; and the production is being advertised in the Negro press.

Hoosier Stunts on 'Lassie'

Two exploitation stunts on "Lassie Come Home" were used in two Indiana campaigns on the film. In Logansport, Manager William Studebaker of the Logan Theatre planted a "What Would Lassie Say?" contest in the newspaper. In Terre Haute, Manager H. J. Arnold of the Indiana Theatre arranged a combination "boy and his dog" contest, which caused a lot of youngsters to congregate in front of the theatre with their pets.

'Knickerbocker' Jun-Kit

Large willow hampers containing souvenirs of the various activities motion picture critics would enjoy if they visited New York are being sent to critics in 32 key cities by United Artists as an advance exploitation stunt on "Knickerbocker Holiday." (Details below.)

Critics Take Part in 'Knickerbocker' Stunt

More than 100 top-flight motion picture critics from 32 key cities are now participating in one of the most unusual advance exploitation stunts ever accorded a Hollywood production. It is the "Knickerbocker Holiday Jun-Kit," conceived to publicize United Artists' forthcoming "Knickerbocker Holiday," starring Nelson Eddy, Charles Coburn and Constance Dowling.

Normally, United Artists' plan would have been to bring to New York the country's leading picture critics for a two-day junket which would be climaxed with a kleig-light, star-studded world premiere. However, due to restrictions on travel in view of the war, the plan was out of the question. So, as as innovation, UA is bringing the jun-kit to the critics in capsule form with all the sights and activities they would have enjoyed had they visited New York aboard the "Knickerbocker Holiday Jun-kit."

Actually, each critic was sent a large willow hamper containing souvenirs of the various activities they would have enjoyed in New York. Included in the two-day itinerary was a visit to the following night spots: Stork Club, 21 Club and the Diamond Horseshoe, with appropriate souvenirs. Among the shows they saw were "Oklahoma" and "Carmen Jones." They dined at Sherry's, the Plaza, Reuben's and Ruby Foo's. Other sidelights of the trip were a shopping tour and "dates" with Follies Girls.

While it was impossible to send each critic a print of the production, a set of the scene stills from "Knickerbocker Holiday" was included in the willow hamper—thus affording each critic an exclusive pictorial break in their city to play up the comedy highlights in "Knickerbocker Holiday."

'Girl Crazy' Street Ballyhoo

A boy and girl in Western attire strolled the streets of Marshall, Mo., as ballyhoo for the showing of "Girl Crazy" at the Auditorium Theatre. Manager J. O. Martin also had a juke box tieup and staged a "stunt airplane arrival" of a print of the film at a new airport which had recently opened outside of town.

'Salute to Marines' Playdate is Tied In With Marine Birthday

Contemplating a drive in Wilkes-Barre and Scranton to obtain enlistments in the Women Marines, Manager William Walsh of Comerford, with the assistance of Sgt. Van Meter, Public Relations Staff, U. S. Marine Corps, arranged with Mayor Charles Loveland to issue a proclamation declaring the period of November 15-20 Wilkes-Barre's Salute to the Marines. Of course, the screen attraction for the period, which included the celebration of the 169th anniversary of the founding of the U. S. Marine Corps, was "Salute to the Marines."

Under the auspices of the Marine Corps, 200 cards were placed in windows throughout the city. Copy: "Enlist in the Marine Corps Women's Reserve. Free a Man to Fight."

A leading department store was selected as the official recruiting headquarters during the celebration. The store announced the event in a 75-inch ad, and followed this with copy in its regular ads. The store also devoted an entire window to an elaborate display, and had an attractive recruiting booth on the main floor.

During the first three days of the celebration a wounded sergeant was brought from a Washington, D. C., hospital to Wilkes-Barre to give talks before various schools, clubs and organizations.

Captain Everett Callow also arranged to have the Marine Corps Trailer Unit set up in the public square directly facing the Comerford. During its sojourn in the city, its members made various talks to schools and colleges, appeared at the Boston Store, established a recruiting and information service in the lobby of the theatre, and on the last day, appeared at a local football game where addresses were made to nearly 8000 persons.

Hold Dinner to Honor Marine

In conjunction with Wilkes-Barre's Salute to the Marines, the Junior Chamber of Commerce held a dinner in honor of a Marine on the opening night of the picture. Following the dinner, the guests were invited to the Comerford to witness the performance and see the Marine, who had been wounded at Guadalcanal, receive a citation from the City in an impressive stage ceremony.

Newspapers gave excellent coverage to the celebration and to the engagement of "Salute to the Marines."

Fifteen 24-sheets were posted a week in advance. A 24-sheet was mounted, framed and erected on the front of the theatre above the marquee. It was illuminated at night with floodlights.

Esquire Features Betty Grable In Special Full-Page Article

According to an article appearing in the February issue of Esquire, Betty Grable, 20th Century-Fox star who will shortly be seen in "Pin-Up Girl," is "sweetheart of seven million servicemen." The article, a full-page in four-colors, is listed under Hollywood Set To Music, and shows a scene from the Merry Widow sequence in "Pin-Up Girl."

"I'm from Missouri," writes Esquire, "is one statement that Miss Grable can make literally. She's from St. Louis, specifically. It was there that she made her first stage performance at the advanced age of 7. In the intervening years, she worked as a movie chorine, a band singer, a Broadway musicaler and now a star. Her big break came when Alice Faye was sick and 'Down Argentine Way' was out one leading lady. Blonde for blonde substitution put Miss Grable on the perch she has decorated ever since.

Phantom Lady

Universal Mystery 87 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 28th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) No one who enjoys chiller-dillers will want to miss this excellent mystery.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Give it plenty of advance exploitation for once word-of-mouth gets around it should bring in unexpected returns, so sell it and be prepared for a "surprise."

Cast: Franchot Tone, Ella Raines, Alan Curtis, Aurora, Thomas Gomez, Fay Helm, Elisha Cook, Jr., Andrew Tombes, Regis Toomey, Joseph Crehan, Doris Lloyd, Virginia Brissac, Milburn Stone. Credits: Directed by Robert Siodmak. Screenplay by Bernard C. Schoenfeld. Based on the novel by William Irish. Director of photography, Woody Bredell. Associate Producer, Joan Harrison.

Plot: A young architect is accused of the murder of his wife. He makes newspaper and radio appeals for the "phantom lady," who is his alibi, to make herself known. She fails to respond and he is sentenced to the electric chair. Unconvinced of his guilt is his secretary and the inspector of police. Between them they rout out more evidence and finally nab the murderer.

Comment: Comparable to "Shadow of a Doubt" and other pictures of like calibre, this latest offering from Universal looks like one of those pictures that will create plenty of excitement wherever shown. It is an excellent bit of entertainment that should go far towards bringing in unexpected returns at the box-office once word-of-mouth gets around, for all types and classes are interested in this type of fare. Being the story of a psychological killer, it is a chiller-diller of top proportions and is packed with suspense and thrills. As the paranoiac, Franchot Tone turns in a performance that is smooth and believable, and Alan Curtis as the condemned man and Ella Raines, as his secretary, both do outstanding jobs. Contributions by Fay Helm, Elisha Cook, Jr., and Thomas Gomez are also exceptionally well done. Robert Siodmak deserves praise as the director of this outstanding picture while Joan Harrison in the associate producer's berth proves her expert training from her association with Alfred Hitchcock. Arrangements should be made to have a psychologist, or authority from a local school or college (for newspaper photographs) test reactions of patrons to this thrill attraction. Stills from the picture could be placed in windows of millinery shops, offering prizes to those giving the closest solution to the crimes. Imprinted blotters, with reversed engraving reading something about "Take Warning, etc.," with straight type at top giving instructions to "Hold Before Mirror," could be distributed in advance of opening.

Lady, Let's Dance!

Monogram Musical 88 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Mar. 7th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Exceptionally good entertainment for all skating and dancing fans, and for all who enjoy a good screen show.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: With good buildup, title should prove an accurate description of the cash register.

Cast: Belita, James Ellison, Frick and Frack, Walter Catlett, Lucien Littlefield, Maurice St. Clair, Eugene Mikeler, Henry Busse, Harry Harvey, Jack Rice, Emmett Vogan, Barbara Wooddell, Henry Busse, Eddie LeBaron, Mitch Ayres and Lou Bring and Orchestras. Credits: Directed by Frank Woodruff. Original screenplay by Peter Milne and Paul Gerard Smith. Adapted from the story, "Lady, Let's Dance," by Bradbury Foote and Scott R. Dunlap. Director of photography, Mack Stengler. Produced by Scott R. Dunlap. Executive Director, Trem Carr.

Plot: A refugee from Holland is given a chance to dance with the male member of a team who lost his partner. From this she goes on to bigger and better things because of the planning of a young press agent. He loses his job and finds it difficult to get placed, having been black-balled by the man from whom he took the young lady. However, after he comes home wounded from overseas, she finds him and they both celebrate her final success.

Comment: "Lady, Let's Dance" is a very appropriate title for this entertaining picture and should prove an accurate description of the cash register when the exhibitor runs it. It was made as a vehicle for the versatile talents of Belita, the young lady who made her movie debut in "Silver Skates." Here she is given a chance to display not only her brilliant skating, but also her ballet and ballroom dancing and acrobatic technique. There isn't much of a plot, for it was never intended as more than a string on which to hang the production numbers and the wealth of entertainment the picture carries is in the lavish and attractive build-up, indicating the expert eye and hand of Scott R. Dunlap. These numbers, starting with a ballroom dance by Belita with Maurice St. Clair as her partner; a graceful, ice-skating number called "Silver Shadows and Golden Dreams"; a ballet number with a chorus; and a spectacular finale, "Victory Lady," done by Belita on skates, combine to make an offering that will be enjoyed by all wherever the picture is played. There are plenty of other entertaining features in it. The terrific comedy ice work of Frick and Frack; the inimitable way in which Walter Catlett handles his comedy role; and the music of the bands, the most prominent of which is Henry Busse's, who also handles a few straight sequences quite capably. The rest of the supporting cast, all good, include James Ellison, Lucien Littlefield and Barbara Wooddell. The direction by Frank Woodruff, keeps the story at an even pace and shows off the production high spots. There are any number of natural tie-ups to be arranged; tickets to the picture might be presented to pupils of dancing schools who win school dance contest. They might also supply girls for dance contest on amateur night and for general advertising purposes. Figure skater might be used to write out attraction title on street, using a "magazine" of flour on one leg which is arranged to spill a small stream continuously as he skates. Tieup with skating rinks should also be arranged.

The Heat's On

Columbia Comedy-Drama 78 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) Offers some specialties by good entertainers but story misses and the overall result is rather dull.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Whatever this can do will depend on marquee strength and any bill that hopes to satisfy will need good companion or topping feature.

Cast: Mae West, Victor Moore, William Gaxton, Xavier Cugat and his Orchestra, Hazel Scott, Lester Allen, Alan Dinehart, Mary Roche, Lloyd Bridges, Almira Sessions, Sam Ash, David Lichine, Leonard Sues, Jack Owens, Joan Thorsen, Lina Romay. Credits: Directed by Gregory Ratoff. Screenplay by Fitzroy Davis, George S. George and Fred Schiller. Original story by Boris Ingster and Lou Breslow. Director of photography, Franz Planer. Associate Producer, Milton Carter.

Plot: To keep his top musical comedy star, a producer feigns illness and gets her promise to stick to him. Then when he does get an angel for his show, but has to promise the leading part to a new youngster, the star lets him have it. The show finally goes on, with the young girl making her debut, and the star and the producer burying the hatchet because the show is a hit.

Comment: Mae West's return is inauspicious for the story is weak and most of the entertainment it provides is tepid. It is somewhat dull fare and will have to have a good companion or topping feature to send the patrons away with some satisfaction. Marquee strength of Mae West in picture with this title, plus the exploitable names of Victor Moore, Xavier Cugat, Hazel Scott and William Gaxton are the prime advantages and should be played hard in selling the picture. Hip sway of Mae West either has lost its oiled motion or is out of time, for little audience reaction was noted. The specialties of Hazel Scott at the piano are good enough to rouse enthusiasm, but too short to carry the picture. Direction, like story and production, is lack-lustre. Sell this by marquee, a combination of Mae West and picture title and a hard-hitting campaign on fun and entertainment. Offer your theatre for a local talent show like this, with casting based on type approximation, rather than talent and allow show to be presented between pictures.

Texas Masquerade

United Artists Western 59 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family Hoppy's masquerade as a city slicker will give his fans plenty of entertainment—and Hoppy really acts!

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: A solid draw in its class.

Cast: William Boyd, Andy Clyde, Jimmy Rogers, Mady Correll, Don Costello, Russell Simpson, Nelson Leigh, Francis McDonald, J. Farrell McDonald, June Pickerell, Pierce Lyden, Robert McKenzie, Bill Hunter. Credits: Producer, Harry Sherman. Associate Producer, Lewis Rachmil. Directed by George Archainbaud. Screenplay by Norman Houston and Jack Lait, Jr., from characterizations created by Clarence E. Mulford. Photography by Russell Harlan.

Plot: Nelson Leigh is wounded by Francis McDonald, who intended to rob the riders of the stagecoach. Hoppy, Andy, and Jimmy come to the rescue, but McDonald gets away, although wounded. Hoppy then masquerades as Leigh until the latter can recuperate and in this disguise investigates the troubles of Mason Valley, which include night raiders and a syndicate that is trying to cheat people out of their land. Sh-h-h! There's oil. Leigh's cousin, Mady Correll, catches Hoppy on a point of family knowledge and he has to tell her who he is. Then the tough gang and Hoppy's side are touch and go until a big gun battle settles the issue in our hero's favor.

Comment: It sure is novel to see Hoppy stride into the scene all dressed up in store clothes and then begin talking with a pseudo-Boston accent. In handling this angle William Boyd could not get away with just riding a horse and shooting. He has to act, and he does—but well! You don't know your western hero for a few moments. However, store clothes or not, the action is soon furious, and the gun fight is one of the biggest seen in a long time, based on the number of shots fired. For awhile it looks like two regiments in action. Andy Clyde and Jimmy Rogers add their ingratiating presences, as usual, and both Mady Correll and Nelson Leigh are more than capable. It is nice to see other familiar faces too, like J. Farrell McDonald and Russell Simpson. Doing a little extra exploitation might pay well for this number because you've got the masquerade angles to work with. Gags like "You don't believe Hopalong Cassidy can be a dude? Come in and see for yourself" should raise more than the usual interest at the box-office.

Casanova In Burlesque

Republic Comedy 73 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Best Joe E. Brown vehicle in some time and one that nearly everyone will enjoy.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Should be good for top spot in many situations.

Cast: Joe E. Brown, June Havoc, Dale Evans, Marjorie Gateson, Lucien Littlefield, Ian Keith, Roger Imhof, Harry Tyler, Patricia Knox, Sugar Geise, Jerome Franks, Jr., Marga Dean. Credits: Directed by Leslie Goodwins. Original screenplay by Frank Gill, Jr. Based on a story idea by John Wales. Director of photography, Reggie Lanning. Associate Producer, Albert J. Cohen.

Plot: The drama professor of a college and an outstanding burlesque actor are one and the same man. When his secret is uncovered by the strip-tease star in the show, he is forced to give her the lead in the Drama Festival at college, which had been promised to a rich dowager who finances the play. He finally confides his troubles to the dowager's niece, who finds a way to straighten things out.

Comment: This is the best vehicle Joe E. Brown has had for some time. It is the sort of thing he does best and has the type of comedy that will be enjoyed by everyone, even those who have never been his fans. Of course, his name is the draw, but practically stealing the show is June Havoc. She is a swell comedienne who also has her own distinctive way of presenting song numbers. One of the best scenes in the picture, and the one that will be the cause of a great deal of hilarity on the part of any audience, is the presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew" in jive. Another scene worthy of mention is June Havoc's interpretation of Juliet doing the "Romeo and Juliet" balcony scene in shorts. With the deletion of the professor's scene, at the beginning of the picture, this will be a compact, entertaining film that will be fun for everyone. Joe E. Brown as the Shakespearean professor and the burlesque comedian, has never been better. June Havoc does exceptionally well in her role, giving the picture some of its funniest moments. Noteworthy contributions come from Dale Evans, Marjorie Gateson and Ian Keith. Leslie Goodwin's direction keeps the picture moving and spots the songs to advantage. Production by Albert J. Cohen is tops. Exploit the return of Joe E. Brown in one of his best offerings and also arrange tieups with schools on the Shakespearean angle. Offer prizes for the best idea on what one would do if they could live a double life. Have an amateur night, in cooperation with a drama club, and offer prizes for the best interpretation of Shakespeare's Juliet balcony scene.

Rationing

MGM Comedy 93 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Beery can do no wrong in the eyes of his fans, and they are sure to like this number, especially the ice house climax.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: The Beery-Main team has solid drawing power, but be careful not to promise too much.

Cast: Wallace Beery, Marjorie Main, Donald Meek, Dorothy Morris, Howard Freeman, Connie Gilchrist, Tommy Patten, Gloria Dickson, Henry O'Neill, Carol Ann Beery. Credits: Directed by Willis Goldbeck. Produced by Orville O. Dull. Screenplay by William R. Lipman, Grant Garrett, and Harry Ruskin. Photography by Sidney Wagner.

Plot: Beery owns a store and Marjorie Main is the postmistress and expert on ration books. They had been engaged 25 years ago. With Beery having all kinds of trouble with ration stamps, and with Marjorie because of the stamps, he goes to Washington to see his old friend, Senator White (Henry O'Neill). O'Neill appoints him head of the ration board in the home town and Beery soon learns that his store partner, Howard Freeman, is working hand in hand with a black market meat ring. In a wild melee, Beery rounds up the gang, and in order to escape filling out more ration blanks decides to marry Marjorie.

Comment: This is an uneven piece of work that looks as if it had turned out very differently from the original intention. Using rationing as a subject for comedy seems promising, but actually it's too nearly like the real thing to make good satire. The injection of the black market ring into the plot speeds up things considerably and enables Beery to put on a good climax, using an ice house chute into the lake for the major prop. Frankly, it is not a picture for sophisticated audiences—or even partly sophisticated ones. The best bet is to play up the Beery-Main draw to the hilt and then keep mum. With less demanding patrons, however, the picture should have a good measure of success, and the kids will love the sequence where Beery sends the gang—one by one—shooting the chutes on ice cakes into the lake, with him and the chief villain joining them after a roustabout fight.

The Racket Man

Columbia Action-Drama 64 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 18th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Plenty of up-to-date action and suspense in black market story that is plenty alright.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Misses the big time due to casting but will get good reception if you get 'em in. Okay for exploitation.

Cast: Tom Neal, Hugh Beaumont, Jeanne Bates, Larry Parks, Douglas Fowley, Lewis Wilson, Clarence Muse, Mary Gordon, Anthony Caruso, Warren Ashe, Pauline Drake. Credits: Produced by Wallace MacDonald. Directed by D. Ross Lederman. Screenplay by Paul Yawitz and Howard J. Green. Based on a story by Casey Robinson. Photographed by James Van Trees.

Plot: Two boys who have grown up together and are close friends "go" for the same girl. One is a racketeer, the other an Irish cop who tries in vain to reform his chum. The racketeer is inducted into the Army, turning his "business" over to his trusted lieutenant. In the Army he is a poor soldier and his top kick is busted trying to cover for him. This event changes his views and after becoming a better soldier he is asked to leave the Army to serve the Government as an undercover man in trying to break up black marketing. He succeeds in his mission but is killed in a gun duel with his former racket partner who has welched on their deal.

Comment: Casey Robinson is a top-notch story teller and this adaptation of his yarn looks mighty good on the screen. We are aware of the lightweight cast which has been assigned to play the piece but in spite of this box-office shortcoming we will go out on a limb and label it a sleeper. It is one of those shows that has plenty of story, corny in spots it's true, but one that you like to recast with typed stars such as Humphrey Bogart and Pat O'Brien in the top roles. It has plenty on the ball when it comes to action opportunity and seems extremely welcome on the screen due to the absence of good gangster stories in recent years. The Army background and drive to uncover Black Market rackets makes it up-to-the-minute news copy as well as timely for exploitation tieups with law enforcement agencies such as OPA. As we stated the lack of names will hold it down but with less luminaries available and new stars coming up this picture can be sold as something big if you care to go after it. The main thing is that the film will please, and can be sensationalized with headline exploitation.

Passport to Adventure

RKO Radio Comedy-Drama 64 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) An absurd fairy tale of 1944 vintage which offers some laughs. Rates as a mediocre war story.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: A supporting feature for the duallers. Lacks names and is so British it looks like an import although Hollywood made it.

Cast: Elsa Lanchester, Gordon Oliver, Lenore Aubert, Lionel Royce, Fritz Feld, Joseph Vitale, Gavin Muir, Lloyd Corrigan, Anita Bolster, Lydia Bilbrook, Lumsden Hare, Hans Schumm. Credits: Produced by Herman Schlom. Directed by Ray McCarey. Original screenplay by Val Burton and Muriel Roy Bolton. Photographic direction by Jack Mackenzie.

Plot: Mrs. Ella Muggins, London scrubwoman and widow of the late Sgt.-Major 'Enry Muggins, miraculously escapes death in a bombing and attributes her good fortune to a "magic eye" good luck charm which her husband had given her. Believing herself above danger while wearing the charm she sets out for Berlin to "get" Hitler. Although failing her mission, she gets back to London to discover a trunkful of "magic eyes" among her husband's effects, which are labeled "tiger eyes from Africa." Ella concludes that 'Enry was a blasted, bloomin', bloke of a liar.

Comment: This is the story of a scrubwoman who, in fiction, followed the impulse of millions. She set out as a one-woman army to kill Hitler. Since this natural desire has probably flashed through the minds of most Americans not to mention the millions from other allied nations, it becomes the most potent selling angle of the film. The fortunes of Ella Muggins will, due to the story, become a very personal adventure for most people and the comedy sequences should provoke frequent laughs. Elsa Lanchester does a splendid job in the characterization of the indomitable but "slightly screwy" Ella

ATLANTA

Perry Spencer, one-time member of Loew's home office publicity department, more recently with Wometco Theatres, Miami, is now with the radar department of the Bell Bomber plant, Marietta.

William C. Aiken replaces Boyd E. Fry as manager of Loew's Grand Theatre, being transferred from the Broad, Toledo. Aiken is a native—attended Georgia Tech and was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh. He has been associated with Loew's since 1932.

Fire destroyed the three-story Strand Theatre building, Elberton, Georgia, which was constructed 51 years ago as an opera house.

Jane Withers arrived to aid Fourth War Loan campaign, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Walter Withers. It is her first visit home in twelve years.

The radio show, "Truth and Consequences," was presented for two performances Saturday night, January 29, at the Paramount Theatre, to promote further bond sales.

Warners' R. L. McCoy, D.M., just back from a flying trip through the South and Southwest telling the boys about the reception given "Princess O'Rourke" by the boys of the Army camps around New Orleans.

Sgt. Norman Hollyfield, first member of the local Warner Exchange to go into the armed forces, was in town from Memphis, where he is now stationed.

Nat Williams, Thomasville's mighty little exhibitor, stopped off en route to Charlotte.

The Rialto Theatre's War Bond premiere performance of "The North Star" took in well over $25,000.

Warners' Herb Pickman is in town plugging Vitagraph product.

Sgt. Harold R. Kistler, Jr., former Warner booker, is now stationed at Buckingham Field, Fort Myers, Fla., instructing in aerial gunnery, while Pappy Kistler remains to extol the virtue of Warner films throughout Southern Georgia.

Paul A. (Gus) King, president of the Capitol City Supply Co., is vacationing in Miami.

BOSTON

James Darby, M and P manager from New Haven, was in Boston this week and was greeted by many old friends, for he was formerly treasurer at the Metropolitan Theatre here.

Lieut. Harold Shonting, formerly treasurer at the Metropolitan here, is in India with the U. S. Army.

John Carroll, district manager for M and P theatres in Maine, was down from Portland this week.

Albert Fowler, formerly manager of the Uptown Theatre, and now in the publicity department of the 20th Century-Fox home office, was a Boston visitor this week.

Bill Robson of Columbia in New York spent the week in Boston on the Fourth War Loan Drive.

Arnold Van Leer, publicist for Paramount Pictures, visited Portland and Augusta this week.

Frances Butler has resigned as secretary to Marion Coles of the M and P offices.

Maynard Sickles, Capitol Theatre Supply Company, is rejoicing over the fact that his young son is recuperating from a delicate operation at the Infants Hospital.

Al Poulton, Maine and New Hampshire salesman for Monogram, was rushed to the hospital in New Haven with an attack of pneumonia.

Ken Forkey, who recently purchased the Mattapan Theatre, had the house entirely redecorated, and a grand opening was held January 8.

Sylvia Crystal, receptionist at the E. M. Loew offices, is spending a vacation in Tucson

Rebecca Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Finn of the E. M. Loew circuit, made her opera debut with the San Carlo Opera Company here.

Manager Harry Aaronson of the Rialto Theatre has operator's license No. 1 for 1944.

Ed McConnick is again manager at the Orpheum Theatre in Somerville, having returned from defense work.

Manager Paul Slayer of the Durfee Theatre in Fall River entertained more than 100 children from St. Vincent's Home at a special showing of "Lassie Come Home."

FATHER OF ELECTRONICS. Dr. Lee deForest, now loaded down with honors as the result of his fundamental inventions for motion pictures and radio, stops off in Chicago to exchange greetings with E. B. DeVry (left), president of DeForest's Training, Inc. (school maintained by the DeVry Corporation), and W. N. Littlewood, chief of the institution's staff. Incidentally, Dr. DeForest says that television is an earlier possibility for film theatres than is generally realized.

George Lougee of the Paramount in Lynn is now a private in the Army and is stationed at Fort Devens, Mass.

The Comique Theatre in Lynn, which recently reopened, has again been closed, but the Uptown has been reopened, so the city to the north breaks even.

Sam Haase is again back at his old desk in the Variety Club after a severe attack of influenza.

That white carnation Harold Fellowes wears every day is presented each morning by his fellow employes and associates. It has been done now for more than three years, and is Harold's national trademark.

CHARLOTTE

"A bond for every seat" showing of the MGM picture "Madam Curie" was the most publicized event of this week in the Fourth War Bond drive.

The 32nd annual convention of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina, held in Charlotte at the beginning of drive, mobilized the exhibitors throughout both states in the effort to do even better than in the third War Bond drive, when these states quickly passed their quotas.

Roy Rowe, retiring president of the Carolina Theatre Owners, has been appointed by Rovy Branon, chairman for the state in the March of Dimes campaign, to serve on the motion picture industry's committee. Warren Irvin of Columbia, S. C., chairman of the War Activities Committee of the motion picture industry in South Carolina, will serve with Mr. Rowe on the Branon committee. Mr. Branon is head of the RKO exchange in Charlotte.

Lucia Harding, secretary of the Motion Picture Council of Charlotte, selected the Dilworth, of which Bernal Lewis is manager, as the theatre to give a weekly Saturday morning matinee for school children, with a program sponsored by the Council.

Dick Pitts, until last year the motion picture editor of the Charlotte Observer, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant. He is now at Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La., a camoufleur in Company C, 937 Engineers Camouflage Battalion.

George W. Parr of Lancaster, S. C., was elected president of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina, the oldest organization of motion picture exhibitors in America, at their 32nd annual convention at the Charlotte Hotel. Mrs. Walter Griffith was re-elected secretary and treasurer and A. F. Sams of Statesville, N. C., and Boyd Brown of Winnsboro, S. C., were re-elected vice-presidents. New members of the board of directors are Roy Rowe of Burgaw, N. C., the out-going president; F. M. Beddingfield of Charlotte, H. P. Howell of Smithville, N. C., H. F. Kincey and T. A. Little of Charlotte.

CHICAGO

Joe Fitzgerald of Paramount has been elected president of Film Exchange Employes Union, F 45. The other new officers are as follows: Carl Carlson of Fox, vice president; George Benson of Warners, business agent; Marguerite Morette of RKO, secretary; and Ken Sien of RKO, treasurer. Clarence Keim, MGM, has been named chairman of the executive board and Walter Hyland, UA, is chairman of the board of trustees.

Workers in the Chicago area may have longer hours if the district is placed in the critical labor shortage category by Manpower Administrator McNutt. He told executives last week that demand for workers in new industries was thirty to forty per cent higher than the visible supply in Illinois. Theatres would be faced with an even more difficult problem than at present of keeping open with reduced staffs.

Free Movie Day, held on Tuesday, found 958 theatres in Illinois participating, 300 of that number in Chicago and the suburbs. When the results are counted it is expected that the state will show an extra $30,000,000 for the effort.

A proposal to revive an old Chicago curfew law has aroused considerable opposition from leaders who are working on the juvenile delinquency problem. Maj. Lenox Lohr, chairman of the Chicago Conference to Avert Juvenile Delinquency, last week pointed out that the curfew "is completely negative," and that the method of his organization is to promote voluntary cooperation by young people in providing wholesome entertainment. The proposal to bring back the curfew was made in a series of letters to Mayor Kelly, the chief protagonist being the Rev. Philip Yarrow, president of the Illinois Vigilance Association.

Pfc. Will Cole, former manager of the Essaness Crown Theatre, is in Chicago on furlough from his west coast Army camp.

The Balaban and Katz Garrick Theatre broke its two-week run record with Monogram's "Where Are Your Children?" It has been held for a third week and has been booked over the entire circuit. The picture got off to a fine start in Peoria when the Great States circuit held a special showing in the City Council chambers, with city officials and women's organizations endorsing the film.

Frank Smith, managing director of the RKO Palace Theatre, says eight Chicago employes of the big circuit are eligible to benefit from the new pension plan of the company. Oldest in point of service is Carolyn Szak, a cleaner at RKO for 32 years. Henry Mandel, electrician, and Jack Lenox, property man, have 24 years to their credit, while manager Smith boasts 22 years.

The Allied Theatres of Illinois has been named the issuing agent for War Bonds along film row and also for independent theatres.

Chicago theatre engineers have just received a 20 cent-per-hour increase with the raise retroactive to March first.

Acting visitors last week—all bent on War Bond missions—included Jeanette MacDonald, Brian Donlevy, Lee Bowman, Charles Bickford, Lloyd Nolan, Franchot Tone, and John Garfield.

Mrs. Joseph Abramson wife of Joe Abramson, secretary to Jack Kirsch of the Allied Circuit, has returned from Los Angeles where she attended the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Anna Edelstein. A son, Ben Elrod of the Warner sales staff, also attended the funeral.

Emil Stern, Essaness prexy, and Mrs. Stern have gone to Washington to meet their son, Lt. Arthur Stern, who expects an overseas assignment soon.

Yeoman Genevieve Sullivan, sister of the five heroic brothers who died in the South Pacific, bought the first War Bond at the State Street celebration opening the drive.

Marvin Schenck and Maurice Golden, in charge of talent for MGM, were scheduled for a Chicago meeting this week.

CINCINNATI

As a special Saturday night offering at the Albee Theatre the management has arranged with Lee Irwin, organist, for a song program, old and new, so the audience can join in.

Because the suburban three-day showing of "The Story of the Vatican" at his Twentieth Century Theatre provoked so much interest Willis Vance will present the film again on Sunday, February 6 in Taft Auditorium, downtown.

While sitting in the Eden Theatre, Walnut Hills, Paul Broadwell, 14, accidentally shot himself while handling a presumably emptied automatic pistol handed to him by a companion. The boy was reported to be in critical condition at General Hospital. Charles Clark, manager of the theatre, was at his home when the shooting was reported.

Norman Sprowl, former exploiteer for RKO, has been promoted to lieutenant colonel. Lt. Col. Sprowl was also in the first world war. He is now stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Arnold Stolz, United Artists director of exploitation, came here from the New York home office this week to plug "Three Russian Girls" for the Blood Plasma Premiere set for Keith's, February 10.

Visitors this week at the Row were D. E. Brown, Cabin Creek, Kentucky; Mrs. W. L. Crisp, Ripley, Ohio; and George Pekras, Columbus.

Bob Morrell head booker at Metro, was stricken with bronchial pneumonia.

J. J. Maloney, Metro home office, is expected this week, accompanied by John Byrne, new district manager.

Lee Goldberg's new exchange, Popular Pictures, will be ready for business February 1. Mr. Goldberg went to New York last week to obtain a new franchise.

Paramount's former salesman, James Doyle, now a first lieutenant, was here on furlough.

20th-Fox's Mildred Beneking resigned after fifteen years in the inspection department, and is joining Metro.

George Roberts, sales manager for March of Time, was here last week-end.

RKO is bringing back "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" with a big campaign, including radio tie-up and with the governors of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia proclaiming the week of February 24 as "Snow White Week." It is expected that Deems Taylor will come here for coronation ceremony which will take place at a dinner sponsored by the Variety Club at which time "Snow White" will be crowned. Cities will select candidates and the finals will be held at the Palace Theatre.

If an ordinance now before the legislative committee of the city council is passed, operators of bingo games where the daily pot exceeds $300 will be required to post a bond of $100,000 a day. The ordinance has the backing of Mayor Frank J. Lausche as a means to curb and control the hundreds of bingo parlors that have sprung up since September when charity sponsored games were legalized.

Mrs. Bessie Isreal, widow of Louis Isreal, one of the city's veteran exhibitors, was married last week to Joseph Chuppa of this city.

Charles Rich, Vitagraph district manager, spent the week in the Indianapolis and Cincinnati territories, returning home on Saturday.

Bernard Kranze, RKO Radio branch manager, assumed the leadership of the local Variety Club this week without the usual installation party. Everybody is too busy working for the Fourth War Loan campaign.

Many theatres in this area are holding bond premieres and free movie days. But it remains for M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington Circuit to hold free movie day every day of the drive.

Charles Raymond, division manager in charge of Loew theatres, announces a series of personnel changes in this territory. Edward Richardson, manager of the Strand Theatre, Syracuse, has been appointed manager of the Granada, Cleveland, succeeding Carl Rogers, transferred to the Esquire, Toledo. Harry Klotz of the Esquire, is now manager of the Broad St. Theatre in Columbus. Boyd Sparrow, manager of the Park for the past year, has been transferred to Loew's Indianapolis and is succeeded by A. Ludacer, former assistant manager at the State, who has recently been given an honorable discharge from the Army.

Henry Barden, owner of the Superior Theatre, is taking his annual vacation in Boston.

Milton Mooney, head of Co-operative Theatres of Ohio, was in Pittsburgh to attend the opening of Bert Stearn's new co-operative booking organization.

Peter Wellman, owner of the Wellman and New Mock theatres of Girard, has appointed Harry Rothlein manager of the houses. Rothlein has been head shipper at the 20th-Fox exchange.

The younger generation is making its mark in the armed forces. Pvt. Jimmy Cowhig, son of Dan Cowhig, RKO Radio cashier, having completed his basic training, has been selected to attend Leland Stanford University, specializing in engineering. And Pvt. Marvin Klynn, younger son of Projectionist Joe Klynn, is also an engineering student at the University of Georgia, having been appointed under the Army Specialist Training Program. Another son, Pvt. Herbert, a graduate of Ohio State University and a student of the Cleveland Art School, has received an appointment as art director at the Army Training Laboratories in Hollywood.

Don Jacobs, ex-manager of Warners' Sherman Theatre, Chillicothe, is now in the Navy and stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. He is succeeded by Eva Mauger. Harold Old, also at Great Lakes, has turned the management of the Madison, Mansfield, over to James Skelly. Theodore Davidson has been transferred from the Palace, Lorain, to the Sigma, Lima. Ruth McCarthy takes over the managerial reins at the Palace, Lorain.

DENVER

With the aid of a beard grown by Manager Ralph J. Batschelet the Bluebird Theatre went over the top in the "bond for every seat" drive on the opening night. Batschelet is probably the best known theatre manager in Denver, so he started by making himself look hideous—at least he thought so. He grew a beard in the few weeks prior to the drive and on the opening night strode to the stage and told his patrons and neighbors he would wear the beard until his theatre achieved its quota. With a rush patrons swamped the bond booth, and before the evening was over a bond for every seat had been sold. Then Batschelet saw the light. If it was that easy he would wear the beard until the theatre sales would put him in the Honored Hundred. There, he decided, he would have the beard shaved by the White House barber—and arrangements have been made for just that. So now he is probably the hardest working bond salesman in Denver, since he wants to get rid of that beard as much as his patrons and neighbors want to see it disappear.

John O. Denman, manager of the Mayan, has been awarded a gold key, emblematic of the Distinguished Award covering 1943, by the Denver Junior Chamber of Commerce. The presentation was made at their annual luncheon, and was won by Denman because of his outstanding work as chairman and member of numerous war work committees the past year.

Fire which caused $50,000 damage to the Cover Theatre, Fort Morgan, Colo., burned the theatre to the four walls. The house is operated by the Hardwick family of Clovis, N. M., with John Roberts as manager.

DES MOINES

First reports indicate sale of bonds in the Fourth War Loan Drive far ahead of any previous campaign, with theatres reporting more direct sale of the bonds, according to A. H. Blank, Iowa chairman. A total of 38 premieres have been set in the larger cities in the state and Jack Kennedy, distributor chairman, reports full co-operation in the smaller communities. First reports on premieres came from the Tri-Cities area, with the Capitol Theatre at Davenport selling $91,950 of war bonds; the Fort Theatre at Rock Island $47,245; and the Illini at Moline, $48,125.

A. Miller has purchased the Esquire Theatre at Morningside, Iowa, from Ben Berger of Minneapolis.

Three Warner Bros. executives met with officials of Tri-States and Central States theatre corporations and Branch Manager Elmer Tilton. The executives included R. H. Haines, Western sales manager; Hall Walsh of St. Louis, and Frank Hannon of Omaha.

Al Schuyler, manager of National Theatre Supply, has been granted a leave of absence and has left for duty with the Army.

Doris Hill of Paramount exchange has resigned and is now Private Hill of the Marines. She expects to receive her assignment about March 1.

Flu victims include Bill Johnson, Columbia salesman for Southern Iowa; Harry Hamburg, Paramount manager; and Lou Elman, RKO manager.

Film Row visitors included M. A. Levy, Fox district manager from Minneapolis, and J. A. Jacobs, Columbia's branch manager at Omaha.

DETROIT

David Idzal's Fox Theatre has an eye-catching display which is promoting the sale of War Bonds. A mammoth seating plan of the theatre is mounted in the lobby with an appropriate border of shots of Yanks in action on many fronts. Purchase of a bond entitles the buyer to inscribe his or her name on the chart, or to sign the name of a service man on the chart. This idea, part of the bond-a-seat program, was good for a five-column piece of art in the Detroit News, showing Idzal selling a bond to a customer who was signing her name. The Fox will keep a permanent record of the names.

Walter Pidgeon was in Detroit last week for a six-day tour of the city's war plants to promote the sale of War Bonds. His tour was arranged exclusively for the war plants.

Clifford White, operator of the Beachwood Theatre, was fined $30 by Traffic Court Referee Courtney Fitzsimmons, who found White guilty of operating the theatre without a license.

As part of the program to sell the March of Dimes drive, the Detroit Times took a picture each day of persons witnessing the ceremony. One bystander in the picture was circled in the art and that person received two free tickets to the midnight show at the Fox Theatre January 28, proceeds of which went to the March of Dimes fund.

The slaying of Floyd Ackerman, 46-year-old Bay City (Mich.) theatre manager was cleared up January 20, Prosecutor Lyle McCormick said, with the confession of Yuen Woo, 23-year-old reformatory parolee, that he had slain Ackerman the night of December 5 as the theatre manager was preparing to place cash in a bank's night depository.

Woo had been paroled from Ionia Reformatory after having served five years of an eight-year manslaughter sentence for the slaying of a wealthy Chinese.

A statewide conference of city and county youth-guidance leaders in Lansing last week indorsed Gov. Harry F. Kelly's proposals for state action on the juvenile-delinquency problem, including the submission of the juvenile code to the Legislature for revision. Nearly 150 delegates from 39 counties and 41 cities attended. One of the highlights of their meeting was a report favoring the establishment of a uniform curfew law for the entire state.

INDIANAPOLIS

Encouraging war drive results in Indianapolis and Marion county were received this week from stores, offices, industrial plants and farms.

A tour of war plants by two Hollywood stars, Cecilia Parker and Dana Andrews, accompanied by Private Dick Leaf, wounded veteran at Billings Hospital, highlighted activities.

Reba Cornett, chief accountant at Universal, has gone to Cincinnati for medical examination for admission to the Marine Corps.

John Woods, special representative for March of Time and George Roberts, sales manager for the company, were visitors at the 20th-Fox exchange last week.

Guy Craig, Columbia's exchange manager, will attend the branch managers meeting February 1 through 3 at the Warwick Hotel, New York.

Marie Morgan of Affiliated Theatres and Cpl. Jackson Merrill Forbes, stationed in Brooklyn, were married January 22 in the Brooklyn (Ind.) Christian Church.

Austin Titus, field representative, Motion Pictures Producers and Distributors of America, inspected all Indianapolis exchanges during the week.

Carl Kemp, Paramount office manager, is on the sick list.

"IT'LL BE THE BIGGEST——" Tom Connors (left), 20th Century-Fox sales chief, and Sam Jaffe, producer of "The Sullivans," talk things over when Jaffe gets in from the coast to see his picture have its New York premiere. He's also on the look-out for other film material.

M. C. Clark, Paramount district manager, spent Friday and Saturday at the local exchange on business.

Mark Wolf and Al Blocher of the Young and Wolf Theatres have returned from a business trip to Chicago.

Fred Dolle, Louisville, Ky. exhibitor, was in Indianapolis during the week conferring with his associate Harry Katz, the latter journeying here from New York.

O. Long, of the Fourth Avenue Amusement Co., Louisville, Ky., was in the city during the week, inspecting the company's properties.

Indiana exhibitors seen on Filmrow were: Myers Flater, Bloomfield; John Wycoff, J. B. Stine and Morris Reinking, Terre Haute; Joe Schilling, Connersville and Bob Hudson, Richmond.

William Elder, manager of Loew's Theatre, left Indianapolis Monday to become manager of Loew's Midland Theatre in Kansas City, Mo., one of the largest houses in the chain. Boyd Sparrow, Cleveland, O., will fill his post in this city.

Fifty-five theatres in Indianapolis are now participating in the national March of Dimes drive, hoping to exceed their goal of $14,000 last year.

MEMPHIS

Two big bond shows are planned in Memphis for the night of February 9 to get the long list of bond shows moving in the territory, where 400 motion picture theatres will participate.

The Memphis doings will start at Loew's Palace and the Malco, which will have a good stage show in addition to the screen presentation. The same stage show will be shown at both theatres, and there will be two shows each night at both theatres. M. A. Lightman and J. Frank Willingham, co-chairmen, announced that the motion picture industry will aim toward the number of bonds sold rather than the amount of each bond. Admission to the theatre will be by bond of any denomination.

The 28 neighborhood theatres have been divided into two groups, with Nate Evans of the Idlewild heading one group and J. A. West of the Hollywood heading the other. The losing team will entertain the winner with a dinner at the Peabody.

The March of Dimes also began last week, and a collection is being taken up at all theatres.

C. J. DeMaio, New York auditor for National Screen, is visiting the local office.

Eugenia Timmons, formerly stenographer, has been promoted to the accounting department at Paramount exchange.

J. Frank Willingham, branch manager here for MGM, has been promoted to acting manager of the St. Louis branch of the company. He left last week to assume his new duties. Mr. Willingham has been with the local branch for the past 17 years, and dates his connection with the company before Metro joined with Goldwyn and Mayer. Mr. Willingham will be succeeded here by Louis C. Ingram, Atlanta, who is also an old timer with the company having started as a salesman 20 years ago.

Jack Arnold, salesman for Columbia exchange who suffered an automobile accident, is improving in Little Rock, Ark. A promotion at the exchange put Corrine Walsh at the postal desk and added a new head inspectress, Mrs. Ann Stevens.

New to Film Row is Nancy Oliver, booker-stenographer at Universal exchange.

Joel Howell, booker at Warners' exchange, has resigned to return to his home in Mississippi.

MIAMI

A bullet-ridden lifeboat, found "somewhere in the Atlantic," is on display at the Lincoln Theatre in advance of the War Bond Premiere showing of Alfred Hitchcock's "Lifeboat." Bonds are selling rapidly for the affair.

The "March of Dimes" campaign is meeting with great success here. All theatres—29—of the Paramount and Wometco circuits are taking matinee and evening collections for the seven-day period of the drive. Hal Kopplin, Wometco advertising head, is sparking the theatres' participation.

Wometco's "Old Guard," organization composed of employes who have been with the company seven years or more, was slated for a big get-together January 28 at the home of Edgar Pearce, Plaza manager. The ranks are much depleted since the last party, with nearly half the male members now in the armed forces.

Herman Polies, who recently received a medical discharge from the Army, is back with Wometco as operator at the Harlem. He is also in charge of all booth equipment at Wometco's colored houses.

S/1c Frank Meyers, former Wometco purchasing agent, was in town on leave last week.

W. W. Tinkham has been appointed manager of the Mayfair Theatre and Louise Azus assistant to Flynn Stubblefield at the Lincoln in the only two managerial changes here this week. Betty O'Neill has joined Wometco as secretary to Harvey Fleischman, manager of the neighborhood houses.

NEW YORK

Warner District Manager Norman Ayers, whose eastern territory was recently enlarged to include New York, has found commuting from his Boston headquarters too much of a good thing, so he has sold his home in the Hub and bought a new one in Hartsdale, N. Y. He will hereafter operate from the New York office.

The War Labor Board has okayed a bonus for RKO Radio exchange employes, which is encouraging to the bunch at United Artists, who have a similar bonus petition before the Board.

It is reported that blood is flowing freely at 20th Century-Fox since Lililan Cohen was made captain of the Red Cross blood bank drive at that exchange.

Rita Blum has resigned from the MGM cashier department and has been succeeded by Selma Levine.

Dave Brill, who at one time owned an independent film exchange, has now bought the 55th Street Playhouse, a class house, and is operating it himself.

Republic's Peggy Filer, secretary to district manager Maxwell Gillis, has left for an indefinite visit to the coast.

Nat Goldberg, Universal assistant branch manager, was out for a week with pleurisy.

Irving Rothenberg of Warners was top man in the whole country during the third week of the Round-Up sales drive.

David Boxer is a newcomer to the 20th Century-Fox booking department.

Jen Dennett, Republic head booker, spent part of last week home with a heavy cold.

Peter Saglembini, New York booker for Warner, was inducted into the Army Monday.

The Burke Theatre on White Plains Road, formerly belonging to the Bolte circuit, has been taken over by Moe Goldman, owner of the Park Theatre on Columbus Circle. Moe is going to rename the house "The New World." His policy will be to hold one day a week for Italian pictures and one for Russian pictures, the remainder filled by reissues and revivals.

Roy Disney and Gunther Lessing of the Disney organization are in town conferring with RKO Radio concerning sales plans for "Snow White."

Several girls from the Universal exchange are serving as hostesses at the Merchant Marine Canteen. They are Angela Carbanaro, Helen Duffy, and Blossom Ganz.

Stella Goldstein, assistant in the booking department at United Artists, resigned this week.

All the exchanges held bond rallies this and last week, with Bob Wolff doing the exhorting at RKO and personnel director Ralph Budd at Warners.

Betty Reilly, secretary in the 20th-Fox booking department, is back at her desk after a short illness.

ST. LOUIS

Beginning on Monday, January 24, and continuing throughout the bond drive free motion picture theatre tickets are being given to boys and girls who bring bond sales into the special booths of any of the theatres in St. Louis and St. Louis County. This plan, announced by Harry C. Arthur, Jr., St. Louis chairman for Motion Picture War Activities Committee, is another step towards the industry's effort to sell a bond for each motion picture theatre seat.

Mary Pickford, chairman of the National Women's Division of the Infantile Paralysis Committee, was in St. Louis on Monday. She attended a luncheon in her honor at Hotel Mayfair and also made three personal appearances at the Globe-Democrat-KMOX Mile o' Dimes booth at Eighth and Olive Streets.

The first St. Louis showing of "Visiting St. Louis," a travelogue produced in color by James A. Fitzpatrick, was held the afternoon of January 23 at Ruby S'Renco's Art Theatre. It is to have its first public run at Loew's State in conjunction with the bond premiere show at midnight Saturday. Fitzpatrick came here last Summer at the invitation of the Visit St. Louis Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. This is said to be the first motion picture production dealing with a city in the United States. It will be recalled that the Actors' Guild prevented Fitzpatrick from including "shots" of the St. Louis Municipal Opera in his film. The price demanded was too much for him, he said, so he passed up the opera and gave more footage to the St. Louis Zoo.

A collection of silent motion pictures under the title of "Give Us the Good Old Days" went on exhibition at the St. Louis Theatre this week. Among them are "The Great Train Robbery," the first feature picture, and D. W. Griffith's "The Struggle."

The first showing in St. Louis of the movie, "World Series of 1943," was given at the St. Louis University Auditorium recently.

VANCOUVER

John Franko, who before joining the Navy was projectionist at the Empress Theatre, North Battleford, Sask., is now a petty officer stationed in British Columbia with the motion picture section.

Bill Jones of RKO is president for the tenth consecutive year of the British Columbia Film Board of Trade. Bill wanted to withdraw, but they voted him in just the same.

Canada's first class of 17 women projectionists has been graduated from a course conducted in Regina, Sask., by the Women's Voluntary Services. Graduates will be available for showing educational films and other releases of the National Film Board of Canada.

Although Sunday shows for soldiers have been conducted regularly in Toronto, Halifax, Victoria, and other cities, there have been no such performances in Edmonton despite the fact that plenty of Canadian and American soldiers are stationed there. Circuit officials have agreed to put on shows there providing the Department of National Defense issues the sanction.

Famous Players-Canadian Corporation has now acquired full ownership of the Strand Theatre, Vancouver, District Manager Larry Bearg announced last week. Bearg said that the 50 per cent interest of W. P. Dewees, pioneer B. C. theatre man, has now been acquired. This theatre for some years has been operated by Famous Players with a half interest. Ownership is now vested in the Strand Theatre Company, Ltd., incorporated last week as a subsidiary of F.P.C.C. The Strand is the third largest theatre in Vancouver, seating 1912, and was built in 1919 at a cost of $300,000 as the Allen Theatre. Following several reorganizations, it was acquired by Dewees, who later sold a half interest to F. P. Dewees is still a partner with F. P. in Nelson, Nanaimo, and Trail, all in B. C. and he operates the Rex, Vancouver, himself.

WASHINGTON

Tribute was paid to the gallant Seabees on Monday in the small ballroom of the Willard Hotel, with the presentation of an identification bracelet to Fighting Seabee Edward R. Sauluier of Washington, D. C. The presentation was made by Lieutenant Colonel Albert G. Skelton of the Marine Corps at an informal cocktail party. Republic's "The Fighting Seabees" plays the Earle Theatre the week of January 28.

Exhibitors from Virginia and Maryland, who were in town for the William F. Rodgers luncheon and meeting at the Statler Hotel on January 18, visited at most of the exchanges.

The million dollar "golden chair" which will enable 176 wounded soldiers and sailors at Walter Reed and the Bethesda Naval Hospital to attend the Station WRC-Variety Club Fourth War Loan Bond Matinee of "Ice-Capades" on January 29 was sold to the Equitable Life Insurance Co., whose home office is in Washington. Negotiations for the million dollar seat were conducted by Alexander Sherman, on behalf of the Variety Club, with Charles E. Phillips, secretary of the insurance company. With this sale, the WRC-Variety Club's quota of $2,000,000 in War Bonds for the matinee has nearly been realized.

Carl Getzel, until recently a Washington exchange student at Metro, is at the New York Home Office attending auditors' meetings with executives Charles K. Stern, Alan F. Cummings and Harold J. Cleary.

Ida Berezofsky, of the Metro Booking Dept., is in receipt of the American Theatre Wing War Service, Inc., Appreciation Certificate, which reads "in deep appreciation of one year's loyal and outstanding voluntary service at its Stage Door Canteen of Washington."

New secretary to Sara Young, Fox booker, is Edith Goodman, who is replacing Genevieve Alley.

Joe Brecheen, branch manager at RKO, visited accounts in Baltimore this past week.

Max Cohen, of Universal, and Mr. Applegate, district manager of the Philadelphia Universal office, visited in Richmond, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Roanoke last week.

Radio Man 3rd Class Tom Blaney was in to visit at Warner Bros. Formerly in the contract department, Tom is now a seasoned Navy man, having just returned from England.

George Jacoby, of the Universal Home Office, has been visiting the local exchange.

Monogram offices had a welcome visitor in the person of Hi Boettinger, of the Kogod-Burka Theatres. Since everyone had been waiting for him to get a new hat, his visit was a double surprise. He appeared in a brand new outfit!

Rodney Collier of the Stanley Theatre, Baltimore was in for an advertising meeting at Warner Bros.

A group of employes from the Universal Exchange volunteered their blood at the Blood Donors Center. Among those who volunteered were: Jean Shepherd, Ina Pritchard, Gloria Kimbell, Beverly Bashaw, Helen Bordouklis, Sally Veoli, John Flaherty and Saul Jacobs.

Ira Fichelman, salesman at PRC, was inducted into the Navy.

Thomas Lowe has joined the staff at RKO as head shipper, replacing Ed Smith.

A new face at MGM is Beatrice DePasquale, formerly of Brooklyn.

Catherine Murphy, president of the MGM Pep Club, announces that the next meeting will be Monday, February 7.

Metro salesman Harry Cohen is now a grandfather. It's a girl.

Service activities at Metro: Booker Henry Ajello is 1A; Corp. Jack Hurwitz, formerly of the accounting department, was a visitor; Helen Gingles visited sailor hubby Bob, at Bainbridge, Maryland; Jean McNamara, expects to see friend Lt. Matthew Zipple of Camp Forest, Tennessee.

Muggins. The show will satisfy those that see it but its most pointed drawback from the box-office point of view is its lack of draw. It is readily exploitable on the premise of its theme and the title sounds good for action houses.

Is Everybody Happy?

Columbia Drama-With-Songs 74 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Old songs and Ted Lewis for the oldsters, and Nan Wynn and Ted Lewis' band for the youngsters carries entertainment for all.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Good draw with Lewis name and old songs will stir word-of-mouth; presents a good half of bill.

Cast: Ted Lewis and his Orchestra, Nan Wynn, Michael Duane, Larry Parks, Lynn Merrick, Bob Haymes, Dick Winslow, Harry Barris, Robert Stanford, Fern Emmett, Eddie Kane, Ray Walker, Anthony Marlowe, George Reed. Credits: Directed by Charles Barton. Original screenplay by Monte Brice. Director of photography, L. W. O'Connell. Produced by Irving Briskin.

Plot: Ted Lewis meets the son of an old vaudeville partner and takes him home with him. There he proceeds to tell him the story of himself, the boy's father and the girl they both loved. Their struggle to gain recognition with their new style of music and of their final success at Rector's just before the boy's father enlisted in World War I.

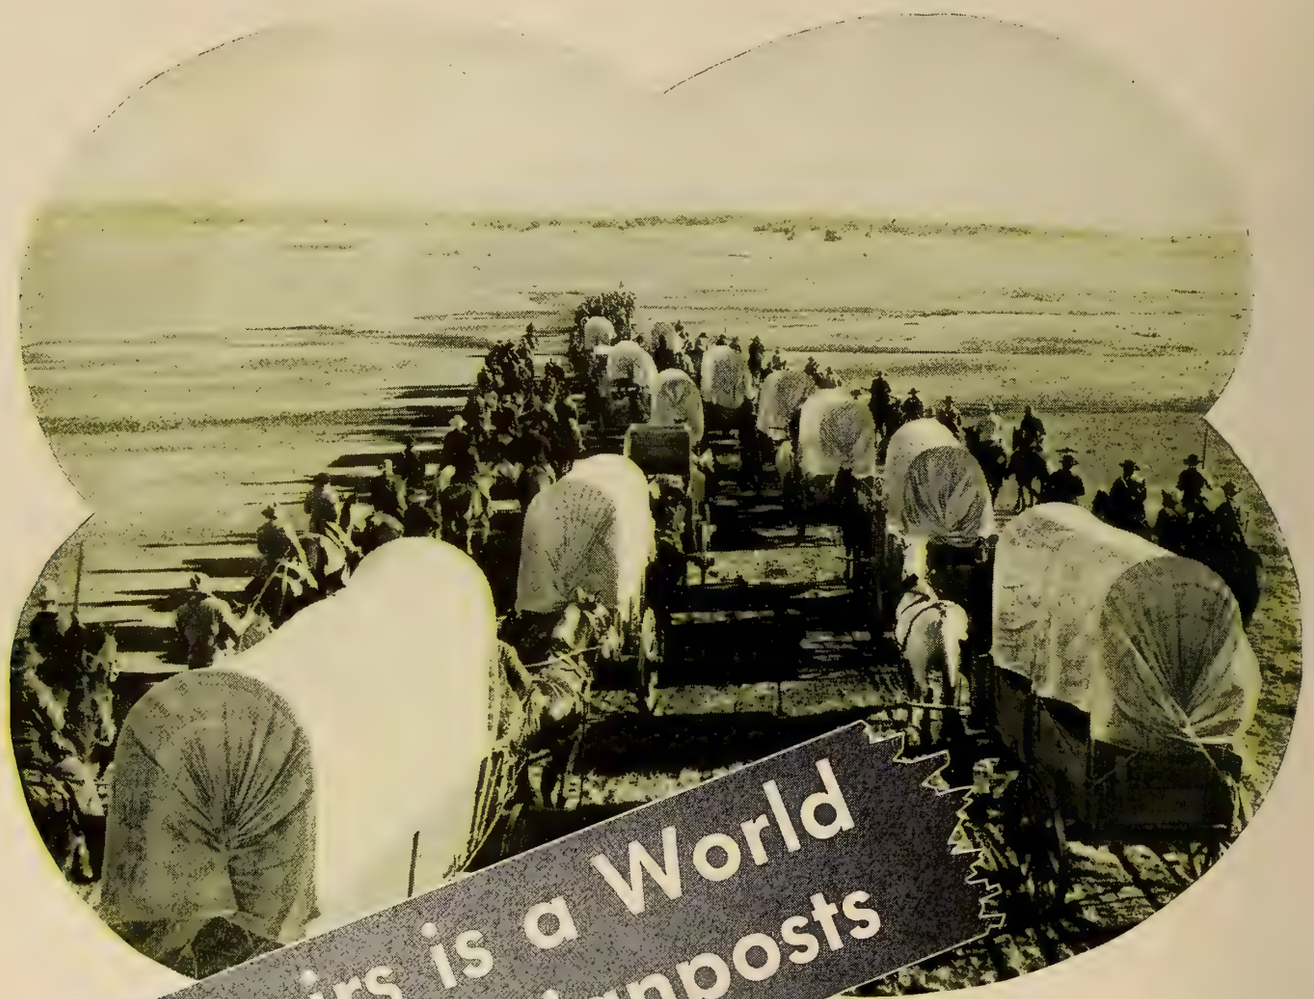
Comment: This is good support for a feature in any situation, for it carries nostalgic memories for most of the family. Ted Lewis has been a name for many years in the entertainment world, and the rendering by Nan Wynn of many of the super-duper hits of yesteryear will combine to give most people a pleasant stirring of memory. For those in the younger trade who have no knowledge or recollection of Lewis or the songs, a great name band, some fetching renditions of hit songs and the story of jazz music may have some amusing and pleasing moments. Story has little to offer, but since the picture is only intended to showcase Ted Lewis, and have some old-time hits sung by a new-time gal singer, the general result is favorable. Recordings by Ted Lewis are available all over and can form the basis for a campaign run in cooperation with music stores and radio stations. An outdoor float or lobby loudspeaker carrying a good presentation of the many old-time hits in the picture, will attract much patronage.

THEATRE EQUIPMENT & MAINTENANCE

Published Every Fourth Week As A Special Feature of SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW

BETTER EARLIER THAN LATE

WITH war production consuming practically all of the manufacturing energies of equipment makers and with dealers working harder with little or nothing to sell to the theatre, this might be a good time for both the makers and distributors of projection machinery to do a little postwar planning of a sort that will be very important to a generally improved situation for screen presentations at theatres all around this country.



The postwar idea we recommend as most practical is a program—a definite, workable formula—for putting into the hands of architects and builders and theatre owners, some plain, common-sense and, above all, some convincing directions regarding the necessity of providing proper space and facilities for the projection equipment in all theatres that will be built or remodeled after this war is won.

It is one of the strange and most baffling things about the theatre buildings which have gone up around the country that architects, owners and builders have given them everything but a good projection room layout.

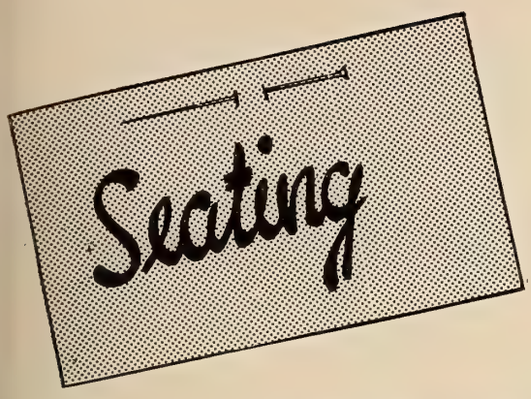
Not every theatre built during the past twenty years or so is lacking in the proper facilities as to space and location of the projection room. But a very large number indeed have been whipped up to give everybody from the cashier to the janitor's assistant a real break —everybody but the projectionist.

Some of the projection room setups that are to be found in otherwise excellent theatre buildings are really something for the book. That should not have happened in a single case, because architects have had the means of obtaining specific plans and guidance for the arrangement of space for projection rooms. Such material has emanated from the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, from projector manufacturers, from National Theatre Supply Company and from other dealers. But for some odd reason everybody concerned with the building of some of these theatres kept in mind every little detail except the most important of 'em all—which is the place from which the whole show originates—the projection booth.

We don't know who is going to do a real job in this direction, but there's a job to be done and we would like very much to hear right soon that the makers of equipment and the dealers who distribute their wares are making plans to get projection room space and location considerations a place in the operations which begin right on the drawing board so that the theatre ultimately completed is not outmoded and a veritable cripple from the time of its blue-print stage right on through to that time when, as and if, the faults are somewhat relieved by a major reconstruction job.

Theirs is a World without Signposts

When America's early pioneers forged their way westward they were not following an easy path which had been prepared for them. Nor were their thoughts of Today. Theirs was a vision of Tomorrow . . . of something better than that which they were leaving behind.



Just so with America's industrial pioneers. They continually break down barriers . . . do the "impossible". They're a restless lot, not content to copy the ways of others. They insist on blazing trails to new and better things. Their minds are not on the past but on the new horizons of tomorrow.

That's why theatremen turn to Motiograph for the major new developments in projection equipment. It's but natural that they look with great anticipation to the day when they can see and buy Motiograph's brand-new post-war projector. They'll not be disappointed. As pioneers in this field for 47 years, we'll see to that.

"HASTEN THE RETURN OF PEACE—BUY MORE WAR BONDS NOW"

Care in Servicing Seats Pays Off Handsome Dividends Now

Bond Drive Spotlights a Most Important Equipment Item

It took a War and a Bond Drive to focus the eyes of America on a theatre seat. True, people have long been comfort-conscious and the era of the wooden theatre chair followed the cigar store Indian to his happy hunting ground. It is the Fourth War Loan Slogan, "A Bond for Every Seat," however that has suddenly glamorized the theatre chair and at a time when theatre seating is experiencing its most trying times due to the wartime shortages of critical materials which preclude the availability of replacements for worn out chairs.

With theatre chairs in the limelight it seems timely that we should review the seating situation in the light of present-day conditions.

The recent WPB order relaxing the restrictions on spring steel for furniture manufacture has given rise to the belief that this may mean a resumption of new seat construction, but such is not the case. The order is confined to household furniture which requires little metal other than the springs and screws. Theatre chairs call for much steel, cast iron and plywood, all on the critical list at present, in addition to spring steel. While the theatre seating manufacturers are ready and eager to resume production there is but little hope for new seat construction for some time.

The war effort comes first and that is as it should be. The fact that worn out chairs cannot be replaced and that the eventual replacement date still remains obscure points up in no small way the importance of conserving the seats we have.

Your Seating Liability

Any one injured while sitting in one of your theatres seats becomes your responsibility unless you can prove, in court, that the chair had a latent defect. A decision of the Court of Appeal of Louisiana held a theatre operator of that state liable for damages in a judgment proceeding brought by a theatre patron for injuries sustained when the theatre seat collapsed during a performance. In the complaint it was stated that the chair, "broke, collapsed and fell instantly," when the injured party attempted to seat herself, with the result that she became wedged between the arms of the chair which broke and the chair directly in front of it in such a manner that she could not extricate herself without assistance.

The theatre management was accused of negligence in not knowing that the chair was defective and in permitting its use without properly inspecting it. The management countered with the claim that the seats had been inspected, that no such accident had occurred previously, that inspection had disclosed no defects and that the accident was the result of a latent defect or a hidden one if there were such defect. The court pointed out that if it could be shown by the management that an accident had occurred as a result of a hidden defect which a proper inspection would fail to reveal, such proof would relieve the management of liability.

Court Defense Liability

The court held: "We deem it to be well settled as a matter of law, that, though the operator of a theatre is not the insurer of the safety of its patrons, nevertheless, where injuries are sustained as the result of causes of which the injured person could not be expected to have knowledge or information, the burden of explaining such causes and of exculpating itself from fault rests upon the said theatre operator."

The best evidence to prove the management's case of non-liability due to a latent defect which could not have been discovered in the most thorough inspection was the lug upon which the seat rested. Failure of the management to produce the lug in proof of this point caused the court to find in favor of the patron holding the management liable.

This is a rather commonplace accident which occurs in the best of theatres and is more liable to happen today as a result of wear than under normal conditions where seats are replaced more frequently. The lugs upon which the seat of theatre chairs pivot should be checked carefully and at the slightest evidence of wear, or cutting through, replacement should be made. It is advisable to have the seat removed from the chair by a maintenance man taking a row at a time and checking the rocker arms and lugs for defects which might easily be responsible for such an accident.

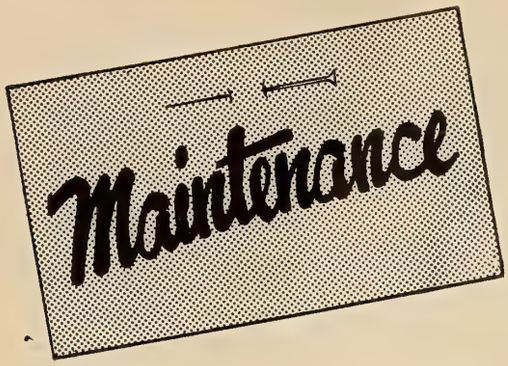
Loose Chairs

The first and most dangerous cause of chair deterioration is looseness in the anchoring device of the standards to the floor whether it be of wood or cement. One loose seat, if neglected, will start the process of loosening those on either side and so on down the row. Not only does a loose seat detract from the patron's enjoyment and comfort but it places a strain on all parts of each chair with the result that when a heavy patron "flops" into a loose seat something is very likely to break. Theatre seats are interdependent one upon another for strength and stability and it becomes the old story of the chain and its weakest link. It is of prime importance that every seat be checked methodically at frequent intervals to catch loose seats before they can do damage. If set on a wood floor where a larger screw will not suffice in the former hole, then a plug should be dipped in wood glue and driven in, allowing it to dry before attempting to set the screw into it. If the floor is in very bad condition it sometimes becomes advisable to shift an entire row to the right or left an inch or so in order to obtain sound wood for fastening the standards. Where a concrete floor is involved it is best not to attempt filling a bolt hole with cement without first undercutting the spot to be repaired much in the manner a dentist employs in creating a socket or seat for a filling. If this procedure is not followed the bolt is most likely to pull out soon again.

Repairing Veneer Backs

One of the most prevalent hazards causing injuries or torn clothes are splintered or loose veneering on the backs of seats. Dampness is the enemy of veneer and is the most common source of seat trouble. If precautions are taken in time a loose section of veneer can be reglued without much ado. If neglected the thin veneer will break and splinter causing no end of trouble. If the veneer is not broken it is advisable to first sand off as much glue between the layers of wood as possible by rubbing with sandpaper on each surface. Use a good wood glue for the repairs and hold the surfaces tightly together with a wooden clamp screw.

If the veneer is already in a splintered condition the best solution is to peel off the entire sheet, sand the new surface and apply varnish stain to match the surface removed, allowing ample time to dry before the house opens.



Upholstery Renewal

The best upholstery will wear out in time even though the structure of the chair remains in good condition. In cases where cloth or synthetic leather coverings require repairs or replacement it is best to have the work done by an experienced upholsterer who will be able to provide lasting workmanship. The materials for recovering theatre seats are still available and while it is possible to resort to slip covers, the expense involved in removing and laundering them will soon amount to as much or more than the cost of recovering.

If the fabric remains good while the surface looks shabby there are a number of fabric cleaning materials which will help considerably in freshening up their appearance. You can get these liquids at the corner grocery or in larger quantity from theatrical chemical suppliers.

Look for Loose Screws

Chairs with metal backs or metal seat bases often "give out" with loose screws which menace the clothes of a patron. Many metal seats are constructed with a protective metal strip around the back which loosens and after a time cannot be held in place by refastening. Where this occurs it is best to remove the entire piece and replace with a strip of matching fabric. When screws will not hold try dipping in a good cement or have a drop of solder placed in the hole to create a grip for metal screws. Where the latter practice is followed turn the screw into the solder before it has had time to harden thoroughly.

Forearming for Breakdowns of Projection Is a Good Idea

Drills Simulating Conditions of Actual Emergency Are Show Insurance

Any emergency that can be anticipated is a potential catastrophe that can be lessened in its possible effects by precautionary measures. That line of logic is what lies behind the many practices in the motion picture theatre which call for such things as fire drills. Precisely why drills concerned with possible break-downs of the projection are not more commonly practiced in the theatre field is something for which there appears to be no very convincing answer.

There is sufficient experience now to indicate the several most common causes of breakdowns in the projector or sound equipment. With this knowledge in hand, it seems strange that a larger number of theatres do not follow the practice which several very well run theatres observe in their rehearsals for emergencies.

From time to time this department of STR has given considerable prominence to the subject of such rehearsals by the projection crew. In each instance there has been considerable response from both managers and projectionists, indicating a lively interest in the subject. However, there appears to be little evidence that there is any considerable growth of the policy of holding rehearsals for emergencies.

Among the best outlines for such rehearsals that have so far come to the attention of the editors of STR is that which was devised and is put into practice at the Paramount Theatre, New York, by Harry Rubin, chief of projection and sound for the Paramount theatre organization.

Any code or form of procedure devised for shortening the process of getting a show running again after one of several common forms of disruption to the projector or sound system has occurred is certain to prove most beneficial to the every-day performance on the screen. This is so because the projection crew is given a periodic refresher as to the location of all connections, inputs and outputs, switchboxes—all equipment units, in a few words.

In the plan developed by Rubin at the Paramount, a complete chart of the entire system—indicating the location of all elements connected with the whole system—was made and copies thereof were made available to each projectionist for study and occasional reference.

Knowledge of the whole layout is vastly important at times of breakdown of some element. Only the projectionist who is entirely familiar with his whole system from main switch right on into the projector motor, lamps, sound heads and amplifiers, can work rapidly yet efficiently in running down the source of the trouble.

Such knowledge precedes any attempt at efficient drill or rehearsal for emergency. The next step, of course, is to arrange for the get-together of the projection crew at some convenient non-show hour for the rehearsal. Under the supervision of the chief projectionist, the men should actually go through the processes of moving reels from one projector to another; installing replacement parts that may be available for those units of equipment which most frequently are the cause of trouble; examination of switches and testing for clean contact; replacement of fuses; install new exciter lamps in the sound heads, etc. These operations should be performed as rapidly as possible and each operation timed precisely by the watch. This latter provision has two distinct advantages; it puts a spirit of friendly competition into the rehearsal and it also makes known the average time that it may be expected to require for effecting certain types of necessary emergency repairs.

There are certain operations which normally require very little time and involve little or no particular difficulty. However, there are those unpredictable happenings which often slow up even a very simple job like the changing of a sprocket, for should the latter unit freeze to the shaft, even the most skilled and rapid-working projectionist will have difficulty in removing the sprocket and replacing it within the time between changeovers from the machine in operation to that of the affected projector. Nevertheless, practice under simulated conditions of emergency can and will pay handsome dividends should the theatre equipment suffer a sudden rupture of some part or connection.

What makes the projectionist on his home lot, so to say, so much more efficient in affecting any usual repair than a fellow craftsman of equal or even superior skill is that the home boy knows exactly where to reach for what tool or gadget, and also to walk the straightest line between two such points as the projector and the main switch.

Some theatres hold these rehearsals as frequently as once each month, and recommend that formula. However, in the average theatre, where the whole projection and sound system is less complex than in the Paramount, for example, five or six such rehearsals per year might serve adequately. Whatever the frequency with which they are held, the manager or theatre owner can be assured that the investment is a swell insurance buy against possible breakdowns, for there's nothing more completely deflating to the theatre and its entire personnel than an instance of a prolonged breakdown of the show.

As a very simple outline, upon which the more elaborate rehearsal concerned with the particular setup of the individual theatre can be developed here are some of the points that should be covered in a rehearsal for emergency:

Check main fuses.

Inspect emergency generator and chart time required to make changeover from the usual power source to the emergency unit.

Inspect sound fuses, both phases, note and inventory the number of spare fuses stored at or near the fuse box.

Disconnect regular amplifiers and change over to reserve unit, then completely check the regular amplifier.

Check sound heads; if there is a spare unit, disconnect the regular head and connect the emergency or spare, noting time required for this operation.

Inspect and check thoroughly the main panel switchboard—AC and DC.

Examine all fuses in the entire system.

Check all switches for corrosion and make certain that there is perfect contact at all such points.

Check reserve parts against inventory of such stock to make certain all are accounted for and that no part that should be located in the proper storage place has been misplaced either through mishap or neglect.

When such rehearsals take place, the manager and the more important members of the house staff might well be on hand to observe and to become acquainted with what must be done by the projectionists when some mishap occurs to the equipment. In this way the non-technical branch of the theatre will be equipped to function more efficiently in the event of an emergency. Frequently, through ignorance of the amount of work involved in making some emergency repair and also because of entirely justified anxiety to have the show go on again as quickly as possible, the manager or assistant becomes a liability rather than an asset by reason of questions directed at the men working against time on a repair.

These emergency rehearsals, simulating conditions which obtain when some actual breakdown occurs, have nothing to do with the show rehearsals that should be a matter of mere routine at show-change times. The latter "rehearsal" consists of checks on the condition of the film, the smooth handling of changeovers and presentation of the various units of the screen program. It goes without saying that the tune-up for every day's opening performance takes in such vitally important preliminaries to starting the projectors as cleaning of the interior of lamps, contacts, reflectors and lens systems; inspection of arc leads for good contact, operation of automatic feed motor, condition of its brushes and lubrication of all working parts of the projector. Also, of course, the projectors are given a "trial run" for check on speed; check on cleanliness of the film trap, sprockets and fire rollers; check of take-up, film tension pads and fire valves; test of exciter lamp focus and condition of filament; the projected image for proper focus, steadiness, and a thorough test of the operation of the sound system both by monitor speaker and sound in the auditorium itself.

In thinking ahead on that all out spring cleaning, is your vacuum or built-in cleaner in need of repairs?	Remind operators to check lenses for oil deposits inside casings to avoid light loss and distortion.	Have all weighing scales checked to insure accurate weight when your patrons' pennies go into the slot.	Inspect all those ladders used by your employes to avoid accidents resulting from a faulty rung.	Is the candy set-up appealing to the eye? Boost the sales on all the slow moving items by improved display.	Dirt accumulates in carpets more quickly in winter. Prolong rug life by shampooing to get out grit and grime.	Check boilers for steam leaks as a fuel conservation measure. Loss of pressure steps up fuel consumption.
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
If you want to do something to make operators tidy or proud of a booth, paint walls and floor clean color.	Start week with overall check-up of out of the way corners for waste accumulation to avoid fire and odor.	Does your screen give maximum light or should it get a cleaning, resilvering or be replaced by a new screen.	Have you checked all insurance to make certain that coverage is just as complete as can be secured.	Are you checking toll calls to hold down needless use of phone in ordering supplies, accessories, etc.	When ice or snow coats areas that lead from exits make sure doors open easily and ashes are spread.	Check wattage of lamps and reduce in size wherever you can with due consideration of the safety factor.
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
Inspect porthole fire shutters to make certain they are free to close instantly in any booth emergency.	Cooperate in the waste paper drive by instructing staff to keep all salvagable paper in neat bundle.	Last day of the big 4th War Loan Campaign. Report results promptly to expedite judging. "Honored 100."	Have all banners, flags or pennants thoroughly clean before you store 'em in dry place for future use.	Time for another seating checkup to insure comfort and preserve life of chairs. Repair broken parts, etc.	Check condition of staff uniforms and order repairs or replacements to maintain tidy appearance, morale.	Meet with operators to review the condition of all booth equipment, projection, etc. Maintain quality.
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
Check supplies and order for month. Is carbon salvage being followed up by promptly turning in scrap?	Are you making sure operators are not punching needless extra cue marks in the films you show.	Has the flag on your stage been cleaned lately? Electric blower plugged in foots gives good effect.	Are the mats in your poster frames looking glum? A fresh set will pay off in extra sales punch.	Check the kick plates on all the lobby doors. They will benefit by occasional treats of paint, polish.	Have you checked the acoustics of your auditorium for change due to wall redecoration or alterations.	Varnish will help preserve appearance of exposed frames. Check to make sure they look attractive.

New Illuminants Certain to Influence Postwar Theatres

History of Theatre Lighting Affirms Views of Architects and Showmen

Since the history of theatre and stage lighting is definitely associated with the development of illuminants, it is only reasonable to suppose that some of the most important features of postwar theatre design will be strongly influenced by lighting facilities and fixtures which will be forthcoming from the factories and plants which now are engaged in war work.

This is the view of many theatre architects and showmen of the motion picture field, and (affirming their opinion are) news reports of many new types of illuminants and fixtures (such as the circular or "bent" tubing fluorescent fixtures recently announced by Westinghouse).

Both the gas-filled tube form of lighting and the "black light" illuminants were coming into widespread use before the war, so these "new" developments are far from unknown factors. However, information announced from time to time by lighting engineers and manufacturers indicates that great strides have been made in further refining and increasing the applications which can be made of them as a result of war work research and invention spurred by efforts to give the military better equipment, much of it still being a "military secret."

Widen Field of Application

The fluorescent light and "black light" have been tested in theatres. "Black light" used for interior decoration and for aisle lighting via carpet treated with fluorescent dyes had won considerable favor. Further extension of these illuminants and more practical applications of them to theatre purposes are certain to be a most important factor in the postwar theatre.

It takes only a casual glance back to the history of theatre and stage lighting to realize how the vast improvements commonplace to the modern prewar theatre were the direct result of improved illuminants. Even motion picture photography, as well as projection, have shown the greatest strides forward as a direct result of newer light resources.

Beginning Very Modest

It is a long stride from the first theatre in America—that which was built in Williamsburg, Va., in 1752—to dozens of small theatres completed during 1941. The radical difference is found not so much in literature or plays offered (Shakespeare's plays were offered then, and even now there are many who find the Bard of Avon a pretty good dramatist—as a matter of fact he, Shakespeare, is doing all right on Broadway right now as represented by "Othello" with Paul Robeson as the hapless Moor). The most striking difference between William Hallan's theatre in Williamsburg and the same actor-manager's theatre in New York (built in 1753 and located on Nassau Street) and the theatre of today is in the equipment, the patron comforts, and even more spectacularly in the facilities for lighting of both the display and utility type. For at those two early theatres the stage as well as the auditorium were illuminated by candle light.

The candles, which no doubt required rather frequent replacement during a single performance, were supplanted by the oil lamp with its glass chimney. This, of course, represented a tremendous stride forward. But even so, by comparison with the illumination on stage and screen today, the players in those days must have looked like mere shadowy silhouettes to the patron seated in the auditorium.

Engineers Contribute to Art

It is not unreasonable to suppose that Hallan and many showmen who lived and won repute long before his time were concerned with efforts to produce effects of the differing natural conditions of lighting, such as the difference between daylight at high noon and the twilight of evening. However, their ideas along this line (granting they had such ideas) meant nothing so far as realization of them was concerned until better illuminants were developed by the inventors and engineers.

It is recorded that some efforts were made to produce the effect of evening by placing screens before the oil lamps. It takes no wide stretch of the imagination, however, to visualize how pathetic must have been the net result when, no matter how many oil lamps could be crowded into the stage trough, there was not sufficient illumination to produce the effect of bright daylight, and consequently further dimming could mean not contrast, but merely greater inadequacy of the light.

The next step forward, of course, was the illuminating gas which was introduced in England, and which was first given experimental application to the needs of the theatre at the Lyceum Theatre, London. According to some historians, the illuminating gas was first used in America at the Chestnut Street Opera House in Philadelphia. Showmen today, who can have all the light they want for a display sign or their high intensity projector lamps merely by the flip of a switch, can sympathize with the earlier fellows of their craft who in the 1800's had to manufacture their own illuminating gas if they wanted this new and highly improved form of illumination in their theatre—for it was some years after the introduction of illuminating gas before there were public utility plants to supply the gas.

Some of the very ingenius methods to produce different degrees of illumination in the theatre with gas if shown by a drawing might look like a Rube Goldberg cartoon to modern showmen. Beginning with an arrangement whereby there were groups or bunches of gas lighting fixtures in different parts of the theatre (with men assigned to the different groups to control them in accordance with cues for the lighting desired) the methods for dimming and increasing light reached a high point of efficiency in the theatre of the gaslight era. But the best of the centrally controlled systems (not unlike, in principle at least, the main switch board of the modern theatre) were cumbersome things compared with what showmen have today. There were enormous control tables, complicated systems of piping (both gas and water mains) in which some of the pipes were as large as one foot in diameter. Compare that with the switchboard of today on which a wire resistance in the circuit permits the widest variation from bright to very dim light by a simple motion in moving a lever over a series of contacts.

Theatre a Spur to Invention

Next came the lime light—still honored in terms of parlance of the theatre. This device, with its piece of lime heated to high temperatures by burning of a mixture of hydrogen and oxygen gases, gave the theatre its first spotlight capable of following the action of a player or group on the stage or picking up for accent some portion of the theatre's sections.

Electricity began its career in the theatre in 1846—at the Paris Opera, where the effect of a rising sun was achieved by the light from an arc projected through a silk screen for the opera, "The Prophet."

From that point on the theatre really started its march into its present predominance as the place for the popularization of new developments in lighting as well as such things as air conditioning, styles in interior design and decoration.

It is only reasonable to suppose that the postwar motion picture theatre will be the "showcase" as well as the proving ground for new developments in lighting. For the motion picture showman is by temperament and tradition a seeker after that which is new, different and spectacular. He, the motion picture showman, takes the lead in adapting to his theatre the improvements which the engineer and the architect and the inventor evolves at the drawing board or in the laboratory. Moreover, the showman makes it his business to draw attention to those unique and spectacular effects he seeks and employs.

The showman of the picture theatre field, no doubt, will be the means of bringing to public notice the advantages which will be offered through developments in lighting as well as materials and new ideas of design in the postwar era.

It Takes a Well Groomed Theatre to Keep 'Em Coming

Charles F. Ryan Summarizes Showmanship

CHARLES H. RYAN of Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corporation, Chicago, whose "Summarizing Showmanship," recently issued and quoted in this article, strikes the highlights of successful theatre operation as covered in the numerous and widely known bulletins he has circulated to managers in his organization over a period of several years.

Charles F. Ryan, of Warner Bros. Theatres, Chicago, has summarized theatre management in two of the most recent of the bulletins for which he has gained national reputation, and in so doing emphasizes again the vital role played by proper use of the theatre's physical plant and projection as a means of attaining that success which marks the picture house whose box-office figures are consistently favorable to the profit side of the ledger.

The Ryan bulletins have been credited with giving both inspiration and valuable practical advice to managers in the Warner Bros. Chicago zone. So popular are they with those more ambitious managers and younger executives of the theatre field who have become acquainted with them, that many men outside the Warner organization have prized copies of issues of the bulletin which they have been able to obtain.

Management of the Property

The highlights of Ryan's many writings on the subject of management, in all phases of house maintenance, personnel direction, picture booking and exploitation are covered in the two-part "Summary of Management" recently issued. Those phases which pertain more especially to the management of the theatre property—its equipment and direction of the personnel—are quoted here, for the two-fold purpose of reflecting the opinions of a veteran and very able theatre executive on the importance of proper maintenance, and, as well, to provide with the permission of the author, other managers, who have not had the benefits of Mr. Ryan's many previous bulletins, the sound and practical advice contained in his writings.

"Successful theatre managers adopt a consistent satisfactory policy based upon standards of sincerity. Your theatre is your community's playground of life.

Top Service at Low Cost

"Maximum service at minimum cost is one thought that should be carried at all times in the back of your head. Once you have earned the Good Will of your public, you have an asset that cannot be bought at any price. Good Will is easy to attain if you will make up your mind that the best is none too good for your patrons. Make friends with your customers and go out of your way to do favors.

"Pictures are, of course, the biggest part of a neighborhood theatre's claim for recognition, but they are not everything there is to talk about. Let every manager keep his house so spick and span and inviting, that he can brag about it with justifiable pride along the lines of institutional Good Will copy.

"Study closely the types of people who are working for you and their reactions to your orders and suggestions. Find out just how much producing value each member of your staff possesses and help bring out the best work that is in him.

"For a manager with the best interest of his theatre at heart to merely tell his employes what to do is not enough. It is much more important for him to create in them the desire to do what is best for all concerned. To do this requires patience and understanding of those with whom you are dealing.

Manager in Demand Today

"The man who is in demand today is a good house manager, exploiteer and theatre operator with the ability to first perfect a well organized and clean theatre and then turn his attention and time to selling his shows. Ability, enthusiasm, willingness and energy are the most important factors that count in rating a good house manager.

"Many a good show has been ruined because the sound was too loud or too soft, or that the picture was out of focus during the greater portion of the running time. Proper projection is one of the most important phases in theatre operation and the managers and their assistants must make sure that the picture projected and shown on their screen meets with the most exacting standards, which are outlined in perfect theatre operation.

"You must know the saturation point in controllable expenses, and you should not overstep these amounts. A manager can control his expenses if he keeps records and knows when to effect savings without jeopardizing operation. If there are any abnormal charges that have occurred in any period, be familiar with them so that in explaining the results of your theatre in any given quarter, you can account and explain the reason for each item.

"The theatre manager who informs himself adequately about his operating costs and who does his work so well that he needs no help in correcting his expense leaks is on the safest road to achievement.

How Observing Are You?

"Are you an observing showman? If so, you should visit other theatres on your day off and see what is going on in different theatre surroundings. You, in your own theatre week-in and week-out get into a rut and some of the faults that others see in your theatre escape your notice.

"Your patrons visit other theatres and compare your house with them. Make it a point that the opinion your patrons carry away on leaving your theatre is that it is operated as well or better than most of them they have visited either downtown or in other localities. If you call yourself a manager, you should know what's wrong in the projection booth when there is trouble. You must be able to sell tickets with a smile better than your cashier. You must know how to usher so that you can see that the staff is doing their task right. You have to know how to create business-getting advertising which will bring new patrons and keep the regular ones.

"Managing a theatre is a specialized business. You sell only one commodity—entertainment. Everything should be done for the greater comfort of your patrons so that when they leave your theatre they will leave with a strong impression of its good management. Courtesy is not a handringing, bowing attempt at goodness. It is a spirit that must radiate out from the heart and head each moment of the day. It is confidence, enthusiasm and calm to encourage, inspire and attract others. Courtesy gives atmosphere to your theatre.

"Successful merchandisers who sell to the public attribute their fundamental success to the simple creed, courtesy. Courtesy is a magnet for satisfied patrons.

"A successful theatre habitually sells the idea of the house even though the feature program may be a little weak. Theatres that sell themselves on the institutional plan always have present the general suggestion of cordiality. It is not the pretentious cordiality, but the quiet welcome of genuine management . . . the smile with the ticket sale, the doorman taking his share of the ticket quietly instead of snatching it.

"Give your house a pleasant personality, and if you have a flop picture, you still can hold up business. Habit to movie patrons is contagious. If you can get them started, they will remain your patrons as long as they reside in your neighborhood.

"It is the first essential of a cleaning inspection to check the condition of the rest rooms. Invariably, an untidy rest room means an unclean theatre. One way to overcome a condition such as this is to have all the necessary cleaning and maintenance supplies readily available for your janitor staff and patrons.

"Make it a point to see that an usher inspects the rest rooms, especially the ladies room, not less than once every two hours. Also have the matinee cashier give you a report on the ladies rest room when she is relieved on her shift by the night cashier. This applies to times when a matron is not on duty.

"Win cooperation. Cooperation means working together. It cannot be demanded. It must be won. Accept your share of responsibility. Respect the rights and aspirations of others."

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK WITH YOUR VICTORY CARBONS

EXHIBITORS and projectionists across America are to be congratulated for their splendid contribution to the war effort by conserving and recovering much of the copper plating of their "National" Victory Carbons . . . copper that would have been completely lost but for their cooperation.

Naturally the copper coating on Victory Carbons is as thin as practicable, because copper is a vital war material. This calls for strict maintenance of arc current within the recommended range, and careful adjustment of the carbon feed ratio.

Satisfied theater audiences everywhere are testimony to the constant attention being given to the current and feed factors.

In addition, tons of copper drippings and copper plate stripped from carbon stubs have been turned back into production channels as your Government urged.

Your continued cooperation in saving copper is still of utmost importance, for copper needs go right on expanding as America's war production grows. You've done a splendid job. Keep up the good work!

As a reminder, check the table below for carbon trim and current values specified for your equipment. A bulletin describing completely the operation of the Victory High Intensity Carbons will be sent promptly on request. Write for it today.

'Paper Work' May Help in the Job of Maintaining Equipment

Charts or Report Forms Have Value For More Than One Reason

A lot has been said about how time can be saved by NOT using a regular report chart on the condition of equipment and record of its inspection on the daily, weekly, monthly, semi-annually and annual basis. Nevertheless, some veteran and very capable members of the craft adhere to the belief that these written reports are good business, both as a means of insuring the routine of constant inspection and servicing and, also, a a means of putting into a record certain matters which could arise to plague the projectionist should something go wrong and there be a question as to whether the accident or breakdown was due to neglect, perhaps.

Print Report a "Must"

In these days of print shortages and the manpower shortage in exchanges, which has resulted in a very widespread complaint about the condition of prints arriving at the theatres, there is no doubt that the written report on the condition of the film for the new show is a decided "must."

The report on film condition could well be gotten up as a mimeographed form as a means of saving time and assuring that matters which should be in the record get into the files for future reference. One of the most simple and rather generally reports on prints is based, more or less, on the following form:

CONDITION OF FILM

Date.....

(Write titles and reel numbers of subject)

Patches defective? .....

Sprocket holes defective?.....

Film buckled? .....

Film soiled? .....

Film torn? .....

Other faults? .....

For convenience in noting reels which are damaged, some of these reports provide at the top of the sheet a space for the several titles included on the new program, each being designated by a number arbitrarily set by the projectionist and which number is used in addition to the number of the reel or reels for that picture which are reported in poor condition.

Record of Servicing

As to the inspection report charts, these, of course, have to do with the projection equipment itself. On behalf of the system which employs such written records, those who advocate the practice insist that there is benefit all around when the records are kept up and filed for reference. The completely report-minded projectionists use a daily as well as a weekly, monthly, and so on, report form.

Those who do no use such forms and wish to give the method a try in order to determine whether or not they are really right about not needing this means of assuring the thorough checking of equipment, might use a daily form for a reasonable period of time.

The daily report is one which, for the most part, is filled out from time to time during the show. Of course the "before show" portion of the report is equally important if the form is to be used.

Following is a suggested daily report form:

DAILY INSPECTION REPORT

(Use check mark for 'yes'; X for 'No')

If the foregoing type of report, adapted of course to the individual conditions of the particular theatre in which the projectionist works, is used for a while, the value or lack of its necessity can be determined positively, and the projectionist can be guided accordingly.

As noted earlier, those portions of the report which follow the "Before the Show" section, may be filled in from time to time during the course of the performance.

Projectionists who do use written reports find them very interesting as well as informative for reference later. For one thing they definitely will indicate the gradual phases of that deterioration which takes place, in a manner most subtle, in the quality of sound and light on the screen, too, from the natural lessening of efficiency of the screen and the equipment in the booth.

The report system devised for and presented by SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW in 1939, calls for a weekly, monthly, semi-annual and annual report on all projection equipment. These charts were based on a period of long experience in one of the major circuits. To carry through on such a system requires considerable time, it is true, but projectionists who have learned to work with the system find the making out of the forms no great hardship, while the theatre owner by means of them is given a very graphic picture of conditions obtaining in the most important department of his plant.

Honors For Old Timer

Mike Berkowitz, whose record and experience in motion picture projection stretches way back to when E. S. Porter and Frank Cannock put on shows at the old Eden Musee in New York in 1896, will be honored by the 25-30 Club at a meeting to be held Saturday (29th) at the Grand Street Boys Club in New York.

Mike Berkowitz

The meeting will be for the purpose of installing new officers of the 25-30 Club, and Mike Berkowitz heads the slate of incoming officials of the group.

The new officers are: president, Berkowitz; vice-president, Morris J. Rotker; financial secretary, Henry Weinberger; recording secretary, M. I. Klapholz; sergeant-at-arms, Michael Polito; trustees, Joseph Abrams, Robert Sanders, Joseph Fitterman.

There will be a testimonial dinner to Berkowitz in recognition of his many years of service in the motion picture field. He is at present one of the projectionists at the Capitol Theatre, New York.

Projectionist, In Army Now, Makes Show Go On

Army Screens Teach By Day and Entertain Troops By Night

By Pfc. Eugene H. Fernette

In September of last year, I was sent from the Army Air Field at Orlando, Florida, to the Minorville Q.M. Depot, ten miles distant from Orlando itself. A former civilian projectionist, I had requested that same work in the Army.

At the Minorville Depot, a new, small theatre had been built. The projection equipment had not arrived, so I and the other projectionist (who also had been sent there) set about doing the other little things like moving in the rewind table, painting the projection booth floor, and getting ready for the arrival of the machines.

Almost miraculously, from this camp of about 1100 men, a Michigan boy who was a former theatre manager was found. He readied himself for opening night.

Install Their Own

The machines arrived. We had looked for one popular make of equipment, and received another. They were DeVrys, with a pair of Strong Hi-Intensity lamps. A civilian engineer came, and all worked hard on the installation. In a small, 350 seat house, with only a 9x12 foot screen, 45 amperes of light makes for a bright picture, and sound absorbent wall materials make for perfect sound reproduction. Although Army theatres may have just wood benches to sit on, may have no shiny marquee, no glass front, or uniformed ticket girls, the features are the finest available, the prints are new, and the work to be done is great.

Though quartered in a camp of tents, a thousand miles from home, living in overseas conditions, eating out of mess kits, we projectionists found genuine fun in our projection work.

From New York and Michigan, the two of us were proud of our homes in the North, and our past work in the theatre. Here, we provided the same flawless night-after-night performances we did in civilian life not so long ago. From 8 a.m. to 11:30 p.m., or later, six days a week, but we love it. There's plenty to be done; films to inspect, machines to clean, posters to change, a booth to mop and sweep, films to ship and receive from Orlando, and training films and slides to show afternoons.

The U. S. Army Motion Picture Service is farsighted. In return for the evenings we give up to provide the shows, we are given extra pay, the scale for which is set by the post commander. For two to four shows daily, the wage scale (in general) runs from six to twelve dollars weekly in extra pay, a tidy sum of extra cash to a serviceman. Each theatre employe can work only six consecutive days in a week. As a result, no one can "go stale" on the work at an Army theatre.

A chief, an assistant projectionist, a relief operator or two, a manager, a ticket taker (and in some cases, ushers), all are included in the "extra pay" setup. Not only are Army theatre employes reimbursed for working every night and on Sundays, but there is the extra pay which gives an incentive to perform the job assigned, in a manner so as to satisfy.

PROJECTION SECTION

Many screens suffer in loss of light due to dirt accumulation which is only visible on close inspection. This dirt gathers in the screen perforations as a result of daily house cleaning and gets there despite drawn curtains which shield it from view but do not protect it from flying particles of dust. The dirt will diminish definition, reduce sound volume and cut light values. A good screen brush should be used frequently and the screen cleaned at least once a month. A screen should be replaced or refinished after it has been in use two years. If placed on a stage the screen should be 18 inches off the floor with a black, non-gloss border masking for the best results.

In Successful Management It's The Little Things That Count

A Veteran Tells How Minor Items Assume Major Importance

By Lionel Keene

These are days when business, in most theatre situations, is phenomenal. The prosperity of today, however, does not necessarily make for better management and better managers of theatres. It might, as a matter of reasonable course, tend to generate a laxity (in those little matters of good management) that could react the wrong way when the period of keen competition again becomes the order of the day. On the other hand (the optimistic hand, so to say) an allied condition of the current prosperous condition of the theatres, wartime necessity for conservation of property and equipment, may mean additional profit when priorities are lifted—both in lessening the quantity of replacements needed and in cultivating habits of care of equipment.

In theatre operation it's the little things that loom very large. For instance:

Since the onset of the recent cold spell, I was talking to a manager who was relieving the cashier. A lady who had been in the theatre stopped by the box-office and reported the auditorium was rather chilly. The manager thanked the patron for the information, then turned to me and said: "She's crazy—it's not cold in the theatre, the porter just banked the furnace for the night." This was at approximately six o'clock in the evening. In the spirit of fun, I walked in the theatre: it was chilly. On my way out, I queried the Doorman, who did not know me, if he thought it was chilly, to which he replied: "I'll say so!" The manager thought I was kidding when I mentioned the lady was right! Just then, the cashier returned, and I suggested that the manager come in the theatre and see for himself. He did. Obviously he must have agreed as he headed for the boiler room and more heat.

An uncomfortable, poorly ventilated "movie" can do more to keep customers away than a poor picture. And you know how news travels! Remember, you're moving around—or should be—whereas the patron sits for several hours. Therefore, don't regulate the temperature of the theatre according to your standard of comfort. Go by the thermometers that should be installed in strategic places about the theatre. Or better still, ask some of the folks in different sections of the house if they are comfortable.

I cite another incident in the same department of house management that proved costly, because it closed the theatre for the night. In this case the regular porter had a very personal reason for leaving before his time. The manager told the porter he'd have to get some one to "fire the furnace." The porter, in his anxiety to get away, obviously picked up the first substitute he could find and whether he took time to explain the operation of the boiler isn't the question. The inexperienced substitute left the water valve open and on his return, a few hours later, the boiler room was so flooded, it not only put out the fire, but it was impossible to get the furnace going again that night. So, refunds, disappointed and perhaps peeved customers, who had braved the biting cold to see a particular picture. Thus another demonstration of how a little carelessness may prove expensive.

Before leaving this hot subject—if you haven't already done so, gild those radiators. If you have city gas radiation, be sure those radiators are given a drink of water every now and then. And, be sure to have the porter clean under and behind each radiator, as well as between each section.

There are lots of little things about the marquee that have a big effect. The marquee, remember, is one of your mainstays of economical advertising. It deserves the best, not only with respect to sales copy and correct spelling, but proper maintenance as well. I have in mind a very nice marquee installation I have occasion to observe quite often. It is sadly neglected, not only from the standpoint of evidences of lack of soap and elbow grease in slicking it up, but also for the lack of a little paint on the silhouette letters. There is a paint store only a few doors from the theatre, and I'm sure that manager could find time afternoons to do a bit of touching up of the letters, if he cannot get someone else to do the necessary job.

Check those neon transformers of the marquee. Make sure they're O.K.—no wires exposed, which may result if rain leaks into the inside of the marquee, and create a possible short circuit hazard. Transformers are mighty difficult to obtain these days.

Then, too, these short winter days, it is often dark enough to burn the marquee lights, as well as the marquee and upright sign. I have in mind a theatre I noticed on a particularly gloomy afternoon, when a lighted marquee might prove an attraction. I knew the manager personally, so I told him people would hardly know the theatre was in operation, it appeared so dull. What a difference when he threw the switch! While in conversation, I observed the lobby display frames appeared lifeless. An investigation disclosed several tubular lamps burned out . . . and those that were burning were green! Ugh! I suggested replacement of the dead lamps, and a change of color to red, amber, which is preferred, being unobtainable these days. The next day, the change had been made and even the manager admitted it did make a difference. It's the little things that count.

And, while we are on the subject of lobby frames, which admittedly are intended as your salesmen, please do not do as one high-class theatre I have in mind—use lithograph three-sheets, put up with thumb tacks, because of the credit received on their return. Attractive screen process posters are available on a rental basis at very little more cost than the lithogaphs. And, if you're not doing it now, find a place for 8x10 and 11x14 photographs, they are important in giving a prospective patron an idea of what the picture is all about.

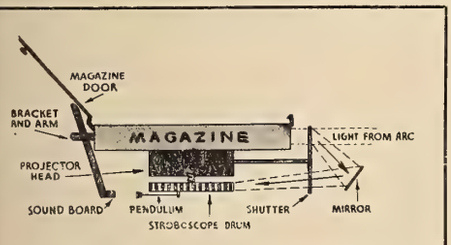
Today, with the make-shift employes you must use for ticket takers, it is doubly necessary for the manager to watch the door closely, to make certain he gets tickets, and to see that no one gets by without a ticket.

This caution follows my visit to a theatre with three pairs of entrance doors. It was a Sunday. Business was exceptionally good. It is one of those theatres, where, when the second set of entrance doors are open (and they were on this particular day) the Doorman can see the picture. At the time I entered, the doorman was more interested in the picture than he was in taking tickets. I practically placed the ticket in his hand. There was no "thank you."

Courtesy Is Still Important

I regret to say that I have observed many theatres in which courtesy has been conspicuous chiefly by its absence—which is very unfortunate. It is costing those particular theatres money, and, perhaps, other theatres too, in alienating the affection of people for picture shows. This is especially unnecessary, because it costs no more to say "thank you" and smile, and it does make an impression on the patron.

After giving my ticket to the doorman referred to above (the one too busy looking at the picture to take my ticket and thank me) I remained in the foyer, observing. Patrons were entering via all of the three pairs of doors . . . so that even had the doorman been on the job, he could not have gotten ALL of the tickets. As it was, I doubt that he took up 75 per cent of the tickets. Boys in their teens were obviously wised up to the situation, as any number of them entered the theatre without tickets . . . and unobserved. Another trick is to buy a balcony admission . . . at a lesser price . . . then enter the orchestra section. True, there are ushers . . . but being but boys these days, they're playing around too much to be paying attention to a little thing like balcony and orchestra tickets . . . another reason why the manager should be on the floor on busy days. I saw the manager enter the theatre from the street. But he headed for the office and that's probably where he remained. There are certain days . . . and certain times of the day . . . when a manager should always be on the floor of his house. I always made it a practice to be on the floor when a show "broke," no matter what I might be doing at the time. Then, when the house was settled, and everything was again under control, I'd return to my office, if necessary. Even so, I had a mirror on the wall of my office, directly in front of where I sat, so with the door open, which was my policy, I could see through the reflection of another mirror directly over the drinking fountain, what was happening in the theatre, and still do my work. Every now and then, I would get up, and see what was going on about the house.



Audio-Visual Signal Invented by Jackson

An audio-visual reel signal has been invented by J. G. Jackson, projectionist at the Capitol Theatre, Port Alberni, B. C. Jackson, who is a member of the British Columbia Projectionist's Society of Vancouver, has had the signal in use for two years in his booth at the Capitol. Patents are pending and the signals will be brought on the market as soon as material is available for their manufacture.

Activated by Pendulum

The device consists of a novel arrangement of a stroboscope for a visual signal combined with an audio device actuated by a pendulum striking a sounding board and will sound alarm at one minute before the end of the reel. It can be shut off by the mere flip of a finger. An automatic resetter is actuated by the opening of the magazine door when a new reel is inserted. Therefore, the projectionist cannot forget to reset the sound board. The pendulum is pivoted eccentrically on the end of the stroboscope drum which is mounted on the outer end of the upper reel shaft, with which it revolves.

Light for the stroboscope drum is derived from the waste light which is reflected from the blades of the rear shutter. It is picked up by a small mirror and directed onto the face of the drum. The spaces on the drum will synchronize with the forty-eight cycle light of the shutter at one minute before the end of the reel, when they will appear to stand perfectly still, but the projectionist can tell how much film is on the reel up to ten minutes before the end by the formation and movement of the spaces on the drum, which are visible from almost anywhere in the booth. In the event that the projectionist fails to notice the visual device the audio device will call his attention.

Top View of Jackson Reel Signal

Will Not Damage Film

The signal will not scratch or damage film as it does not come in contact with the film, nor does it apply any friction to the reel shaft. It is entirely automatic in its operation.

It is designed so it can be used with reels of four or five inch hubs. The signal can also be used on front shutter projectors by the installation of a special band on the stroboscope drum to synchronize with the light from a sixty-cycle incandescent lamp, instead of light from the arc.

War Hero Son of Boston Projectionist Stricken

One of the behind the scenes things not known to group which recently assembled at the Hotel Statler in Boston to hear Charles Skouras, Rick Ricketson, Si Fabian, Sam Pinanski and the others, was that a war hero, son of a motion picture operator, who was scheduled to appear at the meeting was struck only two days before the big event with his eighteenth attack of malaria.

Sergeant Melvin F. Hookailo, son of Frederick Hookailo, projectionist at the Washington Street Olympia Theatre and nephew of the late Frank Hookailo, former district manager for M. and P. theatres here, saw action as a member of the United States Air Forces at Darwin, Port Moresby and Milna Bay as chief photographer for his squadron. In all three of these locations he was under constant bombing and strafing. He also was on the "Wasp" and the "Coolidge," both of which went down but, due to a combination of luck, courage and skill, Sergeant Hookailo came through alive.

He came home to be soon honorably discharged and here his 18th consecutive attack of the dread malady struck him.

His father is one of the best known of Thad Barrows "boys" and his uncle was one of the best liked men in the M and P organization.

Television Broadcasters Organize For Large-Scale Postwar Activity

Questioned concerning the prospective immediate activities of the Television Broadcasters Association organized at a meeting held in Chicago yesterday, Allen B. Du Mont, chairman of the organization committee, stated that the important interests represented in the new association expected immediate aggressive action to obtain for television allocations of radio channels in keeping with the possibilities of television as a future public service.

The Television Broadcasters Association came into existence at a meeting held last week in Chicago.

"Necessity for the organization," according to a statement issued after the meeting, was found in the immediate development of large scale television activity after the war. The object of the organization is to foster and promote the development of the art of television broadcasting.

Theatres in England Set Up Own Curfew

The problems of juvenile mischief and outright hoodlumism in film theatres have been as active in Britain as in the United States during the past two years, and suggestions for cures just about as plentiful. Curfews have been enacted in many localities, but in the British Isles, at least, enforcement seems to be almost impossible.

One plan, however, was recently suggested by the Easington and District Education Committee of Durham which might be applicable here. According to the Kinematograph Weekly, the idea is simply that no child below "the school-leaving age"—or about 12 or 13—should be allowed to attend the second night show. Durham County officials were of the opinion that such a matter did not come under local educational committee control and that an act of Parliament might be necessary to say that children of a certain age should not attend kinemas at certain times. Nevertheless, the general opinion of both exhibitors and the public greatly favored some such restriction.

Educational committees in other parts of England have received numerous letters complaining that the younger children stay six or seven hours in the theatres, often sitting until closing time. The same situation obtains in the United States, and it is thought by many that a rule prohibiting attendance by the youngsters at the second show might solve a number of difficulties and also offer adults at least one show devoid of the annoyances caused by the younger and noisier element.

MANAGEMENT SECTION

A word of caution to managers and staff members which cannot be too lightly considered deals with the administering of any medicine to a patron which is to be taken internally. If a customer becomes ill in your theatre and that patron or some friend or relative accompanying him asks for an aspirin or any other medicine which you may be in a position to supply NEVER administer the drug but hand the bottle to the patron or his friend instead. Were the drug to have a serious effect upon the patron you would be liable under law for administering the medicine. Let the patron take the medicine from the bottle himself.

Cites Aid of Sound Engineers To War Effort During 1943

Dramatic highlights of the part played by electronics in war industry, morale, and training during 1943 are summarized in a review recently issued by Edward C. Cahill, manager of the Industrial and Sound Department of the Radio Corporation of America.

The high speed and precise control provided by electronic methods, RCA points out, have enabled radio-frequency heating and other industrial devices to step up and improve many processes in war production.

Surveys by the War Production Board and private agencies have shown that the use of plant broadcasting systems to carry selected programs of recorded music to workers has materially improved employe morale, worker-management relations, and productive efficiency.

Film sound recording and reproduction equipment has made possible new techniques in military training which, authorities estimate, have cut by 40 per cent the time required to instruct recruits.

Specially engineered RF heating equipment is being used in such processes as molding and bonding plastics and wood products, seaming fabrics, baking paint finishes, drying textiles, and case-hardening, annealing, welding and soldering metals.

Make those improvements now!

Now is the time to make those much needed improvements to your theatre. Allow us to offer our suggestions and estimate.

Theatre Building Boom On in South America

The theatre building boom which has been going on in Central and South America for a year continues at almost full speed despite war restrictions, according to Alfred E. Daff, foreign sales supervisor for Universal, who recently returned from a three-month tour of Latin America. Places like Santiago, Chile, Rio de Janeiro, and Mexico City are all soon to open new theatres of an elaborate nature. Mexico City, in fact, will soon flock to the Opera Cine, a house that will have 6000 seats—second in size only to Radio City Music Hall.

In Rio they are rebuilding an existing theatre, the Palacio, so that everything will be new but the walls. In some of the smaller countries like Uruguay, Peru, and Colombia similar rebuilding is going on, although in most cases not so elaborately.

How do they do it? Well, Mr. Daff explains that there are plenty of restrictions to hold back theatre builders, but somehow or other they seem to get what they want in the way of materials. Pressure of theatre-goers is so great that priorities are easily obtained in many instances, and new building organizations do not hesitate to hasten plans, although theoretically the war is supposed to make building just about impossible. The Latin Americans are going ahead, war or no war.

Town's Only Theatre Burned Out

The Crystal Theatre at Manning, Iowa, was heavily damaged recently by a fire which swept through the interior of the building. The Crystal, a 250-seat house, is the only theatre in Manning. Damage was estimated at $15,000 and it is expected the house will be closed for two or three months for repairs.

Engle Completes Tour for Meetings With DeVry Equipment Distributors

Bob Engel, sales manager of DeVry Corporation, Chicago, has returned to headquarters following a two weeks' trip during which he met with DeVry distributors in cities as far West as Salt Lake City.

Engel conducted sales meetings at which he outlined the company's postwar plans and received assurances of full support and cooperation from the sales outlets. Factory methods were described as well as the working of the new DeVry electronic department under the direction of E. W. D'Arcy. Engel also discussed plans for DeVry's activities in the visual education field.

Patrons Plentiful But Labor Short, Theatre Opening Delayed

The Regent Theatre, main Paramount outlet in Wellington, New Zealand, which was destroyed in an earthquake in 1942, is being rebuilt and is expected to be reopened in February, Stanley H. Craig, Paramount general manager for New Zealand, has advised John W. Hicks, Jr., vice-president in charge of foreign operations. The Regent Theatre is owned by the J. C. Williamson Picture Corp., New Zealand circuit.

Craig informed Hicks that shortages of manpower and materials delayed the work of reconstruction considerably, and "we have thus been deprived of what was our best outlet in Wellington during a period of marked prosperity" occasioned by the presence of American troops.

Shows on Airplanes May Open New Field in Postwar Era

By Michael Pawlyshyn

As we read of record-breaking trans-Atlantic crossings being made by our warplanes in a matter of hours; of far-reaching plans for civil aviation in the postwar world, of mid-Atlantic landing fields on floats with hotel accommodations, of airports dotting the country and the world, we cannot avoid the urge to conjure up dreams of how people to whom flying has become routine will be entertained.

After a few flights over familiar terrain the "scenery" will have become commonplace and window nosing will become the identification of a sky-rube.

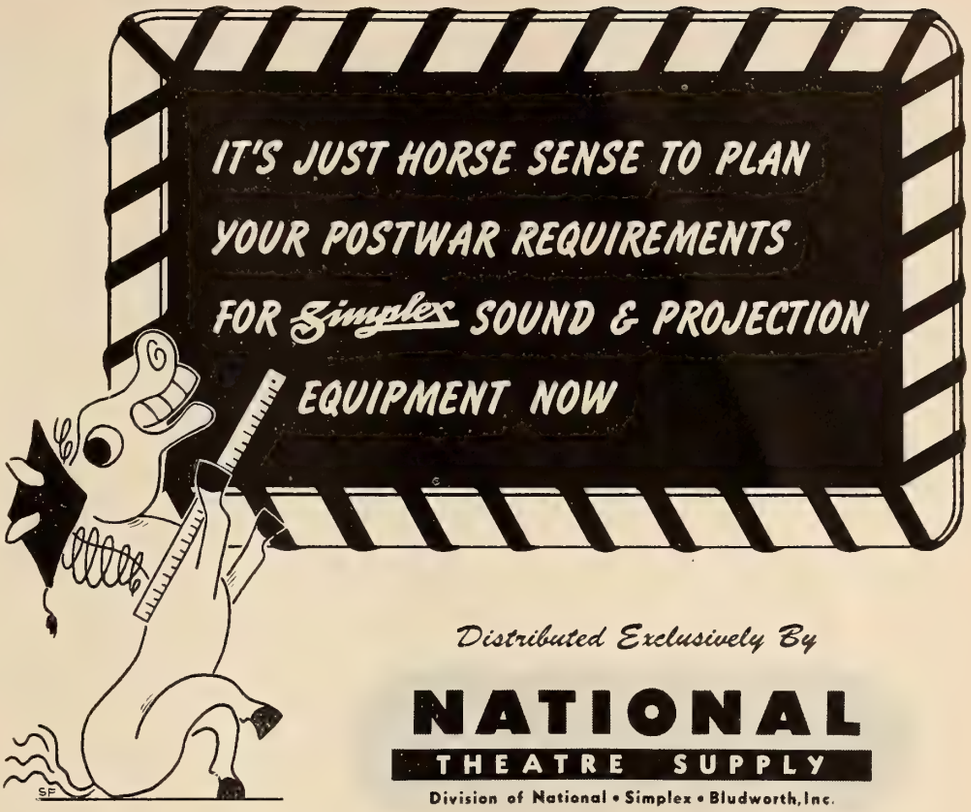
We need not look ahead for what may well become the trend in air travel entertainment. Already screenings have been held in passenger planes, on railroad trains, etc., and while in most cases the practice has been for publicity purposes as a stunt rather than as a consistent policy, nevertheless these stunts portend to be the commonplace of tomorrow.

It is reasonable to assume that 16mm projectors may become standard, although detachable, equipment on the plane of tomorrow. Instead of using talking apparatus, earphones may be substituted so that only the individual interested in the film will hear the dialogue without distortion from the noise of plane motors.

Instead of having a fixed screen for the projection of the film, individual screens can be lowered in front of a seat as easily as one pulls down a shade. Furthermore, the projector should be devised in such a way so that the movie fan can, if he or she is tired, halt the projection just as easily as a person turns the switch of a radio.

The airlines, and there are 19 of them, could make arrangements with the producers for a monthly or weekly service for 16mm films of features and/or shorts. The airlines, who are eager to build up their passenger traffic, would be interested in such a proposition only if the manufacturers of the projectors can make them practical.

The idea is merely an expansion or development of the original principal of film projection.



Film Stock Manufacture Increased 16 Per Cent in 1943 Over 1941

Production of photographic film for military, lend-lease, and civilian purposes in the first nine months of 1943 averaged 137,676,000 square feet per quarter, 16 per cent more than in 1941, the War Production Board has revealed. Information on production and shipments of photographic film will be released quarterly by the board in the future, in line with its new policy of supplying business with more statistical data.

Expand in Building Field

Corporate changes announced recently by the Owens-Illinois Glass Company included the creation of a separate division on customer research and product engineering which is expected to enhance the firm's position in the building trade, spokesmen for the company declared.

The new arrangement will likely mean further growth of the company in the building trade, it was pointed out.

Short Subject Reviews

Lucky Cowboy (Excellent)

Para. (FF3-3) Musical Parade 20 mins.

Here is another top-notch entry for this slick series of Technicolor entertainments which measures up to the finest in short films. To start with, Producer Walter MacEwen has rounded up a Hit Parade calibre tune by Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger from which the film takes its title. The musical score also includes Headin' Home and My Old Flame. While the story, an original by Robert Stephen Brode is rather the routine sort of condensed Western yarn, nevertheless the emphasis of the entire production is on the musical side. Plot deals with a wild West town which is politically controlled by the operator of a "saloon" whose minions are responsible for countless stagecoach robberies and an unhealthy climate for "visiting" marshals. A new marshal arrives and deals with the gang, outlasting his predecessor who stayed seven days. Directed by Josef Berne, the short is a credit to all concerned and will most certainly enjoy "A" playing time everywhere.

Package for Jasper (Excellent)

Paramount (U3-3) Puppetoon 7½ mins.

Happily reunited for another round of fun and music are Jasper, the bragging scarecrow and the wise-cracking blackbird. George Pal, through his unique application of third dimensional Technicolor, has created another musical phantasy reminiscent of "Jasper's Music Lesson." This time Jasper receives a mail order harmonica and the scarecrow steps into re-enact his appearance as guest star on the stage of Kornagie Hall. The musical score will delight any audience as will the repartee of the personable characters.

Shoe Shine Boy (Good)

MGM (A-403) Two-Reel Special 15 mins.

This is the story of a colored boy who desires a trumpet more than anything except one other matter. In the course of trying to get together a final two dollars so he can pay for the instrument he meets Broadway producers Walter Catlett and Sam Levene, has a tryout, and finds he can make a million dollars. But there's something he wants more and finally we see him playing bugle calls at camp. The boy is happy at last with the instrument and the Army. Melvin Bryant plays the colored boy.

The Kid in Upper Four (Fair)

MGM (M-582) Miniature 11 mins.

The Kid is an Army rookie making a train trip to some unknown destination, and as he lies in a berth he sees in his mind's eye all the things he has experienced in his life. These bring him to such matters as his father and mother, the country town, the home, the girl, and the simple happenings of a young fellow's life that add up to pure Americanism. The idea in this little number is good, but the film is a bit on the heavy side and over-sentimental. Even so, it should be well liked by parents with sons in service and by women generally.

Sells Short Out in Front

The World in Action series, produced in Canada and distributed in the United States by United Artists, are popular at the Elgin Theatre in Ottawa, Ontario. Above: Special display board prepared by Manager Steve McManus to sell "Letter From Overseas," one of series.

Unusual Occupations (Good)

Paramount (L3-2) 10 mins.

The American Indian is seen in the opening sequences of this short making his contribution to the war effort by mining vanadium which has been discovered in quantity on the Navajo reservation. Toni Hughes, a New York sculptress, is shown making strange creatures from bits of this and that. Rev. Fenton, an Ansonia, Conn., minister, gives young athletes instruction in the art which has earned him the nickname of "The Punting Parson." Miss Thorndike of Silvermine, Conn., is a fourteen-year-old "looker" who has already become famous as a designer of teen-age fashions. George Leink of Bunker Hill, Ill., displays samples of his crocheting. The reel concludes with a thrilling review of nurse training under simulated battle conditions by the Army Air Force School of Air Evacuation, Bowman Field, Kentucky. Good photography in color adds to the general quality of this interesting subject.

Little Red Riding Rabbit (Tops)

WB (8725) Merrie Melody 7 mins.

This looks mighty like the top achievement for Bugs Bunny to date. While it follows on the heels of several recent adaptations of the popular children's story, it does not suffer in the least by comparison. The gags are real laugh-getters from start to finish; so much so that this cartoon will garner plenty of that priceless word-of-mouth comment that spells box-office. We need not recant the story and the gags are better seen than described. Suppose we just tip you not to miss booking this super-wacky rabbit bet in Technicolor. Credit goes to Leon Schlesinger for production, Michael Maltese for the story and Richard Bickenbach for excellent animation.

Over the Wall (Very Good)

WB (9102) Featurette 20 mins.

This is an extremely well made and well acted short, directed by Jean Negulesco from an original story by Matt Taylor. Story deals with Father Darcy, chaplain of a large prison, who is being "retired" to a less strenuous parish due to failing health. He has won the admiration of the yard birds and has converted many criminals into good citizens. One, Benny Vigo, has failed to respond to the Father's persuasion and shortly after the priest leaves, Vigo breaks out. Father Darcy, eager to return to the prison and his destiny saves Benny from the searching party and sneaks him back into the prison through a ruse. Vigo is converted and the Father resumes his duties among the convicts. This film is loaded with selling possibilities from the standpoint of religious and penal institution co-operation. It is a gripping, suspense-filled drama that is ideal for booking with a light feature. The cast includes Dane Clark, Tom Kelly, Clarence Muse and William B. Davidson.

Into the Clouds (Good)

WB (9503) Sports Parade 10 mins.

Produced in co-operation with the office of the Quartermaster General, U. S. Army, this film tells the pictorial story of an expedition which took intrepid Army officers to the summit of Mount McKinley. Here, under hazardous conditions, the vital instruments of war were tested under the most rigorous climatic conditions for use by U. S. ski troops. Narrated by Lou Marcelle and written by James Bloodworth the short is extremely interesting and pictorially beautiful in Technicolor.

Berkeley to Direct, Act In Warner Musical Short Subject

Busby Berkeley, as soon as he completes direction of "Cinderella Jones," feature starring Joan Leslie, will direct and appear in a musical short, "The Star-Spangled Glamour Girls." Ex-chorus girls used by Berkeley in past films will appear with him.

A big musical number, What's Become of the Berkeley Girls? has been written by M. K. Jerome and Jack Scholl for the two-reeler, which Gordon Hollingshead will produce.

MOT Wins Interstate Award

Interstate Besa Shorts' "S" award—for superior selling of short subjects—was won by Mattie Kimbrough of the Orpheum Theatre, Waco, Texas, for ads and publicity stories secured on March of Time's "Airways to Peace," a 20th Century-Fox release. "Her campaign," reads the citation, "brought many additional patrons who follow each issue of MOT."

PRODUCTION NOTES FROM THE STUDIOS

Edward Arnold Cast in 'Mrs. Parkington'; Monogram to Film South Sea Romance; Extend Dantine's Warner Pact

Edward Arnold goes directly from "Kismet into another top role as Amory Stilham, stock market operator in MGM's "Mrs. Parkington" starring Greer Garson. Tay Garnett will direct the picturization of Louis Bromfield's best-selling novel with Leon Gordon as producer.

A complete "fun house" filled with all the outlandish equipment commonly seen in these popular institutions at amusement parks and beach resorts, has been erected at Monogram Studios for "Murder in the Fun House," second in the new series starring Sidney Toler as Charlie Chan. Joan Woodbury will have the female lead in the picture which is being directed by William Beaudine for Krasne-Burkett Productions.

Charles Brackett has been assigned by Paramount to produce and Billy Wilder to direct "The Count of Luxembourg." This is the famous Franz Lehar operetta which the studio has owned for some time. No stars have been set for the production as yet.

Jack Okey has been assigned to the art direction of "None But the Lonely Heart," screen version of the Richard Llewelyn novel starring Cary Grant, which Clifford Odets will direct at RKO. Mordecai Gorelik has been signed to function as production designer on this David Hempstead production.

Fred Stone, the stage and screen star who has been a favorite of two generations of theatregoers, has been signed by David O. Selznick for an important role in "Since You Went Away." In this picture he will play the part of a typical American farmer.

Jules Levey has signed Eddie Paul as musical director for "The Hairy Ape" which he is producing for United Artists with William Bendix and Susan Hayward co-starred. Paul, twice winner of Academy awards, is to report immediately to Al Santell, who is directing.

Walter Wanger signs Laurence Stallings to write "Salome—Where She Dances." The story property was acquired by Wanger from John Ford, now a United States Navy commander. It will call for three top film personalities, one a woman and two men. Picture is expected to start rolling by early Spring at Universal.

Helmut Dantine, whose contract has been extended by Jack L. Warner, executive producer, gets a principal role in "The Conspirators," which Jean Negulesco has been assigned to direct under production of Hal B. Wallis. Dantine, who has consistently won applause as a villain, will again play the part of a Nazi.

Leon Fromkess has signed Binnie Barnes, William Frawley, Gladys George, Roscoe Karns and Alan Dinehart for leading spots in PRC's production, "Minstrel Man." This is the picture that will have Gerra Young, their 15-year-old singing discovery in a top spot, with Wallace W. Fox directing.

P. J. Wolfson was assigned at Columbia to do the script of "Intimate Strangers." This story appeared first as a novelette in Ladies Home Journal. Author is Mildred Cram, who also wrote "Love Affair."

Virginia McDowall, 16-year-old sister of Roddy McDowall, has been added to the cast of MGM's "National Velvet." Director Clarence Brown has included her in the Mickey Rooney starrer, which will be produced by Pandro S. Berman.

"Typee," the forerunner of all South Sea romances, written by Herman Melville and based on his adventures among the cannibal Typees of the Marquesas Islands in the Summer of 1842, is to be filmed by Monogram as one of its top-budget productions of the year. Picture will be produced and directed by George D. Green, once associated with Hopalong Cassidy pictures.

Olin Howland and Byron Foulger have been cast as New England townsfolk prominent in the action of Paramount's "And Now Tomorrow" co-starring Loretta Young and Alan Ladd, which Irving Pichel is directing.

Casting has been completed on RKO's "One Exciting Night," and picture started with Tom Conway and Audrey Long in the leads. Gordon Douglas directs with Herman Schlom producing under the supervision of Sid Rogell.

Leslie Fenton, who gave up a lucrative contract for a commission in the British Navy, has been engaged as a director by Producer Lester Cowan, whose program will be released through United Artists. No specific pictures have been set.

Anne Gwynne and David Bruce were set by Producer-Director Jean Yarbrough to play the romantic leads in Universal's musical comedy, "Moon Over Las Vegas." The screenplay was written by George Jeske and Clyde Bruckman.

Sets with multiple sides in which each side represents different background have been developed at Warner Bros. by Director Jean Negulesco for "Mask of Dimitrios." Cast of the picture includes Zachary Scott, Faye Emerson, Sydney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre.

Leigh Jason was assigned at Columbia to direct the still untitled musical starring Kay Kyser which is being readied for production by Sam Bischoff. Picture is scheduled to roll the second week in February.

Frank Puglia, veteran Hollywood character actor, is the newest addition to the cast of MGM's "Dragon Seed." He joins an all-star cast headed by Katharine Hepburn, Walter Huston, Aline MacMahon, Turhan Bey, Akim Tamiroff and Agnes Moorehead. Pandro S. Berman is producing the film version of Pearl S. Buck's best seller.

A Study in Contemplation

Killing time between scenes, Producer-Writer Casey Robinson does a little pen-knife carving while stars Toumanova and Gregory Peck get ready for a scene in "Days of Glory," Robinson's production to be released by RKO Radio.

MacMurray Set by Paramount To Star in 'Girls' Town'

Fred MacMurray will star in Paramount's "Girls' Town," an elaborate musical, following completion of his next picture, "Practically Yours," it is announced by Executive Producer B. G. De Sylva.

"Practically Yours," an original screenplay by Captain Norman Krasna, will be directed by Mitchell Leisen. It is scheduled to start January 31 with Harry Tugend making his bow as a producer. In it MacMurray will portray a war hero who returns to this country to find himself involved in a surprising romance.

In "Girls' Town" MacMurray will appear as the head of a defense plant which employs several thousand girls. He will be the lone man among the army of beauties. The picture is scheduled to start in April.

Vivien Leigh Back to Screen

Vivien Leigh, the English actress who achieved world-wide fame in "Gone With the Wind," will return to the screen presently in a British-made production of George Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra," it is announced by David O. Selznick, to whom she is under a long-term contract. Mr. Selznick loaned her services to J. Arthur Rank, English film maker. Picture will be in Technicolor, produced and directed by Gabriel Pascal and released by Rank's company, General Film Distributors, Ltd.

Vanguard Signs Hurwitz, Strand

Leo Hurwitz and Paul Strand, co-directors of the memorable documentary-feature film of two years ago, "Native Land," have been signed to contracts by Vanguard Films, Inc., it is announced by Daniel T. O'Shea, president of the film company.

"Lady in the Death House" (PRC) now HER LAST MILE.
"Buster Crabbe No. 5" (PRC) now THUNDERING GUN SLINGERS.

Milestone to Direct 'Guest'

Hunt Stromberg, producer of "Guest in the House," has signed Lewis Milestone to direct the motion picture version of the successful New York play. The pact renews an association first started years ago on the RKO lot, when both men were working together. Anne Baxter, the only member of the cast set to date, will star. Script is by Elliott Paul.

Frank to Prepare 'Springtime'

W. R. Frank plans to return to Hollywood next month with his director, Alfred Zeisler, and his writer, Herbert O. Phillips, who are now in Minneapolis collaborating on the original story for his next production, "Springtime in Vienna," which will star Claudia Drake with Zeisler as director.

Republic Production Boom Looms

Recovering from the holiday lull, Republic is set to launch another ambitious production program, with seven pictures scheduled to go before the cameras this month. With the super deluxe production, "Man From Frisco," already shooting, a total of eight pictures will soon hit the Valley studio sound stages.

Scoring Six at RKO

RKO's music department is working under forced draft, with musical scores for six films being prepared and work on the pre-recording of musical numbers for the forthcoming Frank Sinatra feature getting under way. Pictures included are: "Seven Days Ashore," "Days of Glory," "Action in Arabia," "The Curse of the Cat People," 'Are These Our Children?" and "Gildersleeve's Ghost."

Remaining With 20th-Fox

Roddy McDowall and Anne Baxter are remaining with 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation, according to information received from the studio.

The Players and the Producers

Jack Oakie and Peggy Ryan, who play father and daughter in Universal's new musical comedy-drama, "The Merry Monohans," are pictured with the producers of the film, Ernest Pagano (center) and Michael Fessier, all in a jubilant mood.

Mrs. Showman Goes Studio Strolling

Dear Mr. Exhibitor's Wife:

I've chosen the set of "Sensations of 1944" for our visit today. This is the picture Andrew Stone is making for United Artists, with Eleanor Powell, Dennis O'Keefe and a lineup of headline vaudeville acts.

We're to get there in time to watch them film a famous bear act. This should be interesting, for surely the strangeness of the proceedings will have some reaction on the bears.

We enter a night club made to look like a circus tent . . . including recognizable odors. The orchestra is over to one side and tables are set all around the dance floor where the entertainment takes place. Cages line the wall with real live animals in them, the two we can see being the llama and the zebra.

In the centre of the floor are some steps, with a platform at the top where one of the bears must lie and do his act. Nearby is a motorcycle which the other bear rides. The two trainers are each taking care of their individual charges.

The chorus, dressed in front-laced ballet costumes with funny little hats on their heads and large ruffles around their necks, are standing around the edge of the dance floor watching for the word "go," as is everyone else, for things must move simultaneously once they get started.

A whistle blows, Mr. Stone yells "action" and the trainer starts leading the bear to the steps. He climbs up, lies down on his back and starts to spin a large pole around with his paws. At the same time the other trainer starts the motorcycle, puts his bear on it and sends him riding around the floor. Everything is moving at once: the music, the dancers and the bears. Things seem to be going along okay when suddenly the bear drops the pole and falls off the platform, stopping the show.

This is about the "steenth" time the act has been tried, so that when the trainers try to do the thing over again, the bears start to growl and snort, making everybody run for cover; that is, everybody but the trainers. A little petting, a little feeding, and a little rest, puts them back in the mood again. This time the trick is accomplished smoothly enough to be recorded by the camera.

The next acts features teeterboard daredevils. We hang around watching them do their stuff. Then we look around for the stars, only to learn that they are not working today.

Since there is no more time left to see what is coming next, we decide to wait and see the picture, for the lineup of entertainers reads like a "who's-who."

Until next week.

Ann Lewis

Stanwyck Back After Illness

Warner Bros. resumed shooting on "My Reputation" when Barbara Stanwyck, who co-stars with George Brent, returned to work. The star had been bedded by the flu, and since she is in most scenes, production had to be suspended for a substantial period. Curtis Bernhardt is directing the Henry Blanke production.

WANDERING AROUND HOLLYWOOD

with Ed Raiden

Watched them shooting a comedy sequence for Pine-Thomas' picture, "One Body Too Many," and was amazed at the excitement and energy Jack Haley whipped up doing the scene several times. Once he almost had it finished when Jean Parker, who plays the lead with him, couldn't hold her laughter any longer and broke out. That broke up the whole company. First Frank McDonald, the director, and then Bill Pine, the producer, begged them all to concentrate and get the scene straight. Lyle Talbot, just out of uniform with an honorable discharge, and Bela Lugosi, just out of being The Ape Man, were among the supporting players who shared the scene.

An interesting manifestation of what the up-and-coming studios think of their pictures, is their effort to attract a large and critical audience when they preview one of their "specials." Republic had a party after the showing of "The Fighting SeaBees" and there were many uniforms among the guests. For this picture, produced by Albert J. Cohen, they had most of the top public relations men of the SeaBees, as well as a bevy of gals for window dressing for group pictures with the men. Can it be that top officers like pin-up gals too?—and in a photograph with them so they can show it to their colleagues?

Also this week, Monogram showed their biggest effort thus far, "Lady, Let's Dance," a showcase for the talents of their star, Belita. The picture was striking, and constitutes a major bid by Monogram. To crystallize the impression that is being created, one need only note that at the little buffet party after the showing there were major producers from several major lots. Scott R. Dunlap, who was the producer on "Lady, Let's Dance," was in his glory, taking bows, shaking hands, and beaming all over. Also present and proud, were W. Ray Johnston, Monogram's president; Trem Carr, executive producer, and Steve Broidy, vice-president and sales manager. Incidentally, Broidy, who believes in luck, was in a snatch of the picture, but intends to go on being v.p. in charge of distribution. Let Belita be the star.

Britton, Daley Are Optioned

Barbara Britton, who has just completed her first starring role opposite Ray Milland in "Till We Meet Again," and Cass Daley, eccentric comedienne who scored impressively in "Riding High," have been optioned for another year by Paramount. Maxine Ardell, a starlet, was optioned for six months.

Gail Russell to New York

Gail Russell, nineteen-year-old Santa Monica girl who wins stardom in Paramount's supernatural drama, "The Uninvited," will leave Hollywood for New York within a few days to attend the world premiere of that picture at the Globe Theatre early in February.

MGM Story Editor to PRC

Lona Mosk, novelist and short story writer formerly with the MGM story department under William Fadiman, has joined the PRC story department. She wrote, among others, "In a Nazi Garden," which was published by Vanguard.

LARAMIE TRAIL (Rep.) Western. Principals: Bob Livingston, Smiley Burnette, Linda Brent. Director, Jack English. Plot: A Virginian and his pal traveling on the desert rescue a young man from death. They learn that the young man is wanted for murder of a man whose body was burned beyond recognition. On his plea of innocence, they hide him and then proceed to find out the facts. They visit a ranch owned by an aristocratic Spaniard, whose daughter is in love with the suspected man. By thoroughly investigating all leads, they finally clear up the case.

NATIONAL BARN DANCE (Para.) Comedy-With-Music. Principals: Jean Heather, Charles Quigley, Robert Benchley, Charles Dingle, Mabel Paige. Director, Hugh Bennett. Plot: In order to get a radio show for a soup manufacturer, an advertising agency executive brings in a barn dance group. When the sponsor refuses the show, he arranges for all the talent to work as servants in the man's home. In this way they get a chance to broadcast and show what they can do, and when the public starts clamoring for the show, he gets the sponsor to sign them to a contract.

ACTION IN ARABIA (RKO) Mystery. Principals: George Sanders, Virginia Bruce, Leonore Aubert, Gene Lockhart, Robert Armstrong. Director, Leonide Moguy. Plot: Mystery and international intrigue are what two American newspapermen uncover when they arrive in Damascus on their way back to the States. They sense a story in the meeting between a mysterious fellow passenger and a beautiful Arab girl, so they follow it up. In an exciting finale, one of the newspapermen is killed while the other uncovers a Nazi plot to cause a revolt among the Arabs.

JOHNNY DOESN'T LIVE HERE (Mono.) Comedy. Principals: Simone Simon, William Terry, James Ellison, Gladys Blake, Grady Sutton. Director, Joe May. Plot: A war worker goes to Washington to take a job. When she is unable to find a place to live, she talks a young man being inducted into the Army, into letting her sublet his apartment. Vast complications arise when she discovers that he neglected to tell her of the many keys he'd passed out to friends. Things are in a continual uproar until he comes back and straightens everything out.

NABONGA (PRC) Drama. Principals: Buster Crabbe, Fifi D'Orsay, Barton MacLane, Herbert Rawlinson, Julie London. Director, Sam Newfield. Plot: An embezzler fleeing by plane with some stolen securities is killed when the plane is wrecked in the Belgian Congo. The only survivor is his little daughter who is adopted by a giant gorilla. Years later, the son of the man punished for the embezzler's crime, comes looking for the securities to clear his father's name. He is followed by others who suspect his mission, but the young lady saves his life and then turns over the evidence he is seeking.

AND NOW TOMORROW (Para.) Drama. Principals: Loretta Young. Alan Ladd, Susan Hayward, Barry Sullivan, Beulah Bondi. Director, Irving Pichel. Plot: A rich young girl spends most of her time traveling around seeking a doctor who can cure her deafness. Discouraged at last, she comes home where she meets a young doctor from the opposite side of the tracks. He offers to try and help her, which he does to the success of her hearing and the happiness of their future together.

Blood Donor Premieres

United Artists introduced the innovation of a world premiere in Cincinnati with admission tickets going to those who donate blood to the Red Cross. The results were slightly better than terrific, and as a final flourish of crowning success one of the local newspapers (and incidentally a most important paper, too) gave the event editorial mention in the form of a rave that was not merely a tribute to the theatre and those immediately sponsoring the premiere idea, but to the industry's war effort as a whole.

In between various drives of a patriotic nature, theatremen have the opportunity to lend the great influence of their theatres and their own showmanship gifts to the accomplishment of a work of mercy by conducting such blood donor events in cooperation with their local Red Cross organization.

Hardly a day passes but that every newspaper in the country cites the vital necessity for more and more blood plasma. The drain on the reserves in blood banks for use in foreign countries makes it necessary to build up the supply of blood plasma—and quickly. There probably will be special drives to acquaint the public with this situation. So let the theatremen jump the gun, and by means of a couple of thousand blood donor premieres, assist the Red Cross in this vital need.

While we have not checked for official confirmation, we believe the distributors will cooperate in blood donor premieres as they have in bond premieres and make available certain pictures under certain conditions for such events. If the distributors have not yet planned such action, then this suggestion should prompt them to do so without delay.

If every theatre that presented a bond premiere were to offer a blood donor premiere also, it is our guess that the present fear of a shortage will be completely eliminated.

So, come on showmen of the motion picture industry! This is your new and most important assignment.

The Critical Seven Days

From February 9th to 15th, inclusive, are seven very important days. They are the final seven days of the Fourth War Loan campaign by the picture industry.

It is during these seven days that every theatre in the country will either attain the goal for a bond sale for every seat or surpass the pledge and sell many more than one bond for every seat in the country's theatres.

It is during these seven days that a possible let-down in general enthusiasm for the buying of bonds may taper off due to the intensity of the drive over a considerable period of time, or there may be a perfectly natural reaction on the part of the theatreman that he has given the campaign everything he has and is entitled to a bit of easement. Either one of these possibilities holds danger. This is not a matter of meeting quotas or even of passing them. More and more and more Bonds must be sold.

One of the first rules of good showmanship is organization and action based on a plan. Therefore this is the time to whip into final shape the plan for an all-out finish.

If you started off with a bond premiere, then finish up the same way. Contact your state chairman and get from him the latest information on what you can do to insure a smashing finish for your drive. But whatever your plan calls for, make sure you wind up your individual drive in a blaze of glory—for Old Glory.

Observations

From Chicago comes news that National Allied may formulate some concrete plan for a cohesive and united industry front to deal with tax matters. That will be a good thing and we hope it will materialize.

One thing must be borne in mind, however. The individual theatreman not only must cooperate with such a movement but also, even if the organization works with one hundred per cent efficiency, he as an individual must continue to make his individual voice heard by his legislators on matters of proposed taxes. If, in the past he has not taken such action, then he—and that means you—must resolve right now, to let all state and national legislators hear from him instantly, convincingly and emphatically on every proposed tax measure.

Reports from several exchange areas run up warning signals that the re-issue as a palliative for reduced new product schedules may become a source of trouble rather than a boon in an emergency. Re-issues, like everything else, can be overdone, and it will be a great mistake if the public becomes fed-up and the current enthusiasm of picture shows suffers thereby. Up to a certain point, and no further, the re-issues of big pictures can and will satisfy the customers.

* * *

Looks like there'll be a new consent decree—sometime, if not soon. It will be an improvement (most anything would be an improvement on the late unlamented decree), but we say again, don't expect that all woes of buying, booking and running theatres will be eliminated thereby.

—"CHICK" LEWIS

Re-issues Flood Chicago

With long runs in the Loop tying-up more and more product, the Chicago area is being inundated with re-issues. Even the large circuits are going in for them, with Balaban and Katz and Great States booking "Gangs, Inc.," the B & K Cine Theatre featuring "Ball of Fire" and "Amazing Adventure" for a week-end bill, and the Luna Theatre of the same circuit trying out "The Primrose Path" and "Sun Valley Serenade." Bartelstein Brothers are using "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" at their Ridge Theatre on the same bill with "Three Cheers for the Irish."

RKO and Republic Rush Films Based on Jap Atrocity Report

The War Department report of the past week concerning the treatment given by the Japs to prisoners of Bataan and Corregidor has had an immediate effect on film production plans. Both RKO Radio and Republic decided on rush jobs for Jap atrocity pictures, and have begun work on productions at record speed.

RKO is filming "This Is My Brother," from a novel by Louis Paul. On this Dudley Nichols will be writer, director, and producer. At Republic, H. J. Yates, Sr., had a writing crew at work almost immediately on a treatment and script for a film based on the notorious Death March. Pictures will probably retain that title. The studio expects to have the picture in studio production within three weeks, with Armand Schaefer producing.

Gov. Dewey Estimates N. Y. Censor Fees at $280,000

Submission of the 1944-45 budget by Governor Dewey to the New York state legislature this week disclosed that state film censor fees are estimated at $280,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31. The Governor pointed out that fees for reviewing pictures have amounted to $243,239 for the first ten months of the present fiscal year, and that the remaining two months are not likely to bring in more than $37,000.

Estimates for the year ending March, 1945, show a further drop to $250,000. This, explained the Governor, is because of the film industry's trend to release fewer pictures.

Our Town Revival

The Manhattan Theatre, New York, is presenting a revival of "Our Town," Sol Lesser's picturization of the Thornton Wilder Pulitzer Prize play, which United Artists released in New York in May, 1940.

Consults Exhibitors on Decree Proposals

Assistant Attorney General Tom C. Clark will consult exhibitor organization opinion regarding the consent decree amendments proposed by the five distributor companies, it was indicated in Washington early this week following receipt of the final draft submitted by representatives of defendants in the New York anti-trust suit.

Among the concessions by the companies are:

Federal Court approval of new theatre acquisitions by distributor-affiliated circuits prior to expansion of theatre operations.

Prohibition of forcing of shorts, with penalties for violations.

Liquidation of all pooling arrangements covering theatre operation or film buying.

Termination of product franchises; immediately between defendant companies, and at expiration, or before, of such contracts with non-defendant theatre concerns.

Cancellations of 20 per cent for theatres paying $100 or less per picture (such accounts permitted to cancel one of the first 3 pictures, thereafter one of five); 10 per cent cancellation for theatres paying from $101 to $200 per picture; 5 per cent for theatres paying over $200 per picture. Cancellations on moral, religious and racial grounds permitted within 5 days after notice of availability.

Arbitration on clearance in defendants' own theatres and on runs by exhibitors in competition with such theatres, but otherwise retention of the existing system, including one appeals board in New York.

Allied Brief to State Opposition to Decree

A brief setting forth counter proposals and vigorous dissent from several of the points in the distributors' draft for a new consent decree will be prepared in Washington by a committee named by National Allied at a meeting of the organization's board of directors in Chicago this week.

The Allied brief will be ready for submission to the Department of Justice by next Wednesday, it is expected.

The committee includes Abram F. Myers, Col. H. A. Cole, William F. Crockett, Bob Poole and Jessie Stern.

In addition to this action, following study of the distributor proposals, the Allied directors named a committee headed by Pete Wood to explore the possibilities of forming a united exhibitor front for action on tax matters. Those to serve with Wood on the committee are Harry Lowenstein and Maxwell Alderman.

Navy's 'Battle of Beaches' For Mid-February Showings

"Battle for the Beaches," a preview of the all-out invasions that will pave the way to Berlin and Tokyo, will be ready for showings to war workers in the middle of February, the U. S. Navy has announced. The film, which will be available in 16 and 35 mm., runs approximately 25 minutes and is narrated by Quentin Reynolds. It was produced by the motion picture section of the Industrial Incentive Division and includes actual combat scenes, many hitherto not publicly shown.

Army and Navy officials have found that many war plants are renting theatres for morning or afternoon shows for employes.

'Marseille' Film Opens Feb. 16

Warners' "Passage to Marseille" will have its world premiere at the Hollywood Theatre, New York, on February 16. Picture will go into national release on March 11.

Philly Tax Returns Up

City amusement taxes in Philadelphia during 1943 represented an increase of 11.7 per cent over the amount collected in 1942, it was revealed this week. Total taxes taken in by the city treasury came up to $1,422,076, which exceeded the amount estimated in the budget—$1,400,000—and compares with $1,273,140 taxes collected during 1942.

Charles Skouras Buys Bond For Each of 230 Theatres

Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast Circuit and National Chairman of the Fourth War Loan Campaign Committee, this week put into practice the "bond for every seat" slogan with a different twist when he personally purchased a bond from every one of the 230 theatres of the circuit.

Mr. Skouras bought the bonds on behalf of Mrs. Skouras, his son, Charles, Jr., and himself to support the industry's drive throughout the country. He made it a point to buy a bond from each one of the managers of the theatres separately instead of making it all a single transaction.

'Guy Named Joe' Hits Keys Feb. 17

"A Guy Named Joe" will have its first out-of-town key city openings starting February 17.

The MGM production will start engagements on the 17th in the following cities: Wilmington, New Orleans, Kansas City, Atlanta, Reading, Harrisburg, Richmond, Baltimore, Houston, Hartford, Rochester, Norfolk, Providence, Dayton, Akron, Worcester, New Haven, St. Louis and Indianapolis. On February 18 it reaches Evansville and Norwich, on February 19, Bridgeport, and on February 25, Waterbury.

'Hargrove' Trade Shows Feb. 12-24

MGM will tradeshow "See Here, Private Hargrove" in Charlotte on February 12 and in all other exchange centers February 24.

Nizer War Bond Appeals Recorded for Theatres

Louis Nizer, one of the outstanding orators of the day and a foremost attorney who has long been identified with the film industry, has made two Fourth War Loan bond appeals which have been recorded for both radio and motion picture theatre use. The recordings were made at the request of Harry Mandel, WAC public relations chairman for the New York exchange area, for use at war bond rallies.

Either or both of the recordings can be obtained at a cost of $1.25 each from Harry Mandel, c/o RKO Theatres Publicity Dept., 1270 Sixth Ave., New York 20, N. Y. Each recording runs 15 minutes.

Nizer is currently in the national spotlight due to the publication this week of his book, "What to Do With Germany," which has won plaudits from book reviewers and prominent commentators on international affairs, as an important document and a contribution to the statesmanship that will face the task of preventing a recurrence of war when Germany is defeated on the batlefields. The book is published by Ziff-Davis Publishing Co.

DuMont Heads Television Group

Allen B. DuMont, president of Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, Inc., was elected president of the newly formed Television Broadcasters Association, Inc., at a meeting of the organization committee in New York Jan. 29.

Dimes Collections May Hit $4,000,000

The 1944 March of Dimes campaign will set an all-time record for theatre collections, it was predicted by headquarters for the drive on Tuesday.

The confident forecast of a total that will far surpass last year's mark was issued as auditors in offices of theatre circuits tabulated final figures, though it may be several weeks before the final figures are available. However, based on estimates received by the National Committee, the $3,000,000 goal will be exceeded by at least a half a million dollars, and a $4,000,000 result for the 1944 collections by theatres is a distinct possibility, headquarters stated.

Among the reports released in midweek were the following:

Portland, Oregon, 200 theatres cooperated as compared with 128 a year ago. N. Dow Thompson, Nebraska state chairman, reported that Reno and Las Vegas theatres doubled their 1943 total, while Ed Fay, Providence, reported that the 1944 figure will be far ahead of last year.

E. C. Smith, Carolina Theatre, Chapel Hills, N. C., raised $1015—four times last year's $225. Loew's State and Orpheum theatres, Boston, will reach a total of $20,000. W. H. Workman, Minnesota state chairman, reported collections run from 30 per cent to 40 per cent ahead of last year. Moe Horwitz, Falls Theatre, Cuyhago Falls, Ohio, seating less than 1000, bettered his 1943 total by 57 per cent.

A. H. Blank, state chairman for Iowa and Nebraska, said that returns showed theatres there had collected as much in the first three or four days of the campaign as in the entire seven days in 1943.

The District of Columbia, John J. Payette and Carter Barron, co-chairmen, reported collections of $80,074 as compared with $31,000 last year. The 1944 total is equal to $1.45 per seat for the 56 theatres participating.

Charles P. Skouras reported that Fox West Coast theatres will account for $225,000 as compared with $150,000 last year. Schine Theatres eclipsed last year's collections with $50,000 to the $20,000 in 1943.

Elmer C. Rhoden, Kansas Chairman, said contributions there are 50 per cent ahead of 1943, and Harry Brandt, reporting for his circuit in New York, said the theatres had doubled last year's total. Reports from State Chairmen Tony Sudekum (Tennessee); R. M. Kennedy (Alabama); Rodney Toups (Louisiana); Harry Arthur (Missouri); I. J. Hoffman (Connecticut) and W. F. Crockett (Virginia) indicate totals will be far ahead of last year.

Elated over the fine response and the cooperation of theatremen in the campaign, Nicholas M. Schenck, national chairman of the theatres' drive, said he had not the "slightest doubt that our industry would perform magnificently."

Headquarters issued a request that theatremen make a prompt accounting, as the money they collected with such fine results for the good cause cannot be put to work until complete reports have been received by state chairmen.

Came to See 'Bernadette'; Stayed for Luncheon at '21'

Exhibitors in New York to attend the premiere of "The Song of Bernadette" last week at the Rivoli were guests of honor at an informal luncheon later in the week at the "21" Club given by Spyros Skouras, president, and Tom Connors, vice-president in charge of world-wide distribution of 20th Century-Fox.

Exhibitors who attended included the following: I. J. Hoffman, New Haven; John Fitzgibbons, Toronto, Canada; Jules Rubens, Chicago; Ted Schlanger, Philadelphia; Charles Skouras, Los Angeles; B. Return Those Trailers!

Those Greer Garson "March of Dimes" trailers are needed for salvage purposes, says Herman Robbins of the National Executive Committee, so if you have one return it at once to your nearest National Screen Service exchange. Last year $781 in salvaged silver from returned trailers was added to the fund. This year, with hundreds of additional theatres making collections, the prompt return of the trailers will mean considerable extra money for the drive.

1037 Shows for Shutins By Boston Variety Club

Since the inception of the free shows for shutins at various institutions in the Boston area, the New England Variety Club has provided a total of 1037 such entertainments, it was revealed by the recent report of Joseph F. Cifre, canvassman in charge of the Boston Tent's shutin shows.

That the Club knows no race nor creed is also disclosed, the report revealing that the institutions regularly visited include 6 Catholic hospitals or homes, 3 Jewish institutions, one Negro institution and eleven non-sectarian institutions.

During the first two months of 1943 no shows were run because the Club was unable to get transportation for operators and equipment. One of the finest recent achievements was that accomplished at the Infants Hospital where, when it became known that one patient was unable to turn in such manner as to see the show, it was arranged that a special rigging be made and the pictures projected on the ceiling.

Besides the regular shutin shows, the Variety Club has furnished films to a large number of soldier and sailor organizations and to the Boston Police Commissioner's Hallowe'en parties, parties by means of which thousands of kids are kept off the streets on that once feared night.

RKO Trade Showing Five Features In Exchanges February 14, 15, 16

RKO has set trade screenings for February 14, 15 and 16 in all exchange territories on five pictures: "Tender Comrade," "Escape to Danger," "Action in Arabia," "Passport to Adventure" and "The Curse of the Cat People."

The schedule calls for showings of "Tender Comrade" on February 14 except in New York, Detroit, San Francisco and Los Angeles, where the picture was previously screened, and St. Louis, where showings will be held on the 15th; "Escape to Danger," February 14, except St. Louis, which will see the picture on the 15th. "Action in Arabia," February 15, except St. Louis, where the showing will be held on the 16th. "Passport to Adventure," February 15, except New York and Los Angeles, where the picture was previously shown, and St. Louis, in which city it will be screened on the 16th. "The Curse of the Cat People," February 18, except St. Louis, where it shows on the 17th.

Goldberg Exploits 'Phantom Lady'

Lou Goldberg and Associates, has been retained by Universal Pictures, through the Home Office Advertising Department, to handle a special promotion plan in connection with the advertising of "Phantom Lady." Goldberg, who for the past nine years has been in charge of all unit shows for Major Edward Bowes, has opened offices for his organization in the RKO Building.

WITH A WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN! SELL MORE WAR BONDS

Paramount Heads To Set Publicity Pace

Paramount district managers and advertising representatives gathered yesterday at the Hotel Pierre, New York, to begin a three-day business session, at which plans were being completed for the sales and exploitation campaigns of two new pictures, "Lady in the Dark" and "The Story of Dr. Wassell." Neil Agnew, general sales manager, was the presiding officer for the meetings, while President Barney Balaban and Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president, were scheduled for addresses. During the conference the delegates were to see both pictures.

Neil Agnew

The selling approach of "Lady in the Dark" to the public will be discussed from every standpoint by Robert M. Gillham, advertising and publicity director; Alec Moss, exploitation manager; Al Wilkie, publicity manager, and Stanley Shuford, advertising manager. Agnew will outline sales policy on the picture.

Sales plans for "The Story of Dr. Wassell" will be outlined Saturday morning by Agnew, and Gillham will discuss the advertising plans for the picture. Other speakers will be Y. Frank Freeman, who will talk on production plans, and Oscar A. Morgan, general sales manager of shorts and Paramount News.

Attending will be District Managers William Erbb, Boston; M. S. Kusell, New York; E. W. Sweigert, Philadelphia; M. R. Clark, Cleveland; Allen Usher, Chicago; R. C. LiBeau, Kansas City; H. W. Braly, Denver; J. F. Kirby, Atlanta; J. J. Donohue, Dallas; Del Goodman, Los Angeles, and Gordon Lightstone, Canada.

District advertising representatives attending will include: Arnold Van Leer, Boston; William Brooker, Philadelphia; Vernon Gray, Atlanta; M. D. Cohn, Kansas City; J. M. Joice, Cleveland; Ed Wall, Albany; E. G. Fitzgibbon, Chicago; James Levine, Pittsburgh; Win Barron, Canada; Allen Glenn, Dallas; Charles C. Perry, Cincinnati, and Sid Mesibov, New York.

Home office executives present will be Neil Agnew, Charles M. Reagan, George A. Smith, Hugh Owen, C. J. Scollard, G. B. J. Frawley, Oscar A. Morgan, R M. Gillham, Alec Moss, Al Wilkie, Stanley Shuford, J. A. Walsh, F. A. LeRoy, H. J. Lorber, A. J. Dunne, Jack Roper and Sam Palmer.

M.P. Engineers Advance Date Of Conference to April 17-19

The Society of Motion Picture Engineers will hold its 55th semi-annual technical conference at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, April 17, 18 and 19, instead of April 25-27, as previously scheduled, it was announced this week by W. C. Kunzmann, SMPE convention vice-president.

Committee chairmen for the conference include: Reception and Local Arrangements, D. E. Hyndman, engineering vice-president; Registration and Information, Mr. Kunzmann; Luncheon and Dinner Dance, Barton Kreuzer; Papers Committee, Mr. Offenhauser, chairman, and C. R. Daily, vice-chairman, West Coast; Membership, James Frank, Jr.; Hotel and Information, Oscar F. Neu; Projection, H. Heidegger, chairman; Ladies Reception Hostess, Mrs. E. I. Sponable.

Snow Caves in Roof

The snow storm that hit western Nebraska last week not only hurt theatre business, but at North Platte caused the roof of the State Theatre to cave in on the stage, a drop of 75 feet. No one was in the theatre at the time, but material damage will run to several thousand dollars.

Monogram Opens Sales Drive at Chicago Meet

A series of meetings designed to bring together Monogram franchise holders, exchange managers, salesmen and bookers from virtually every exchange East of the Rockies got under way this week when General Sales Manager Steve Broidy left Hollywood on Monday for Chicago, where the first get-together is taking place this week end. The meetings usher in an intensive sales drive, designated by the slogan: "50 Years of Service," which celebrates President W. Ray Johnston's 30 years of activity in the industry, and the 20 years of Mr. Broidy.

W. Ray Johnston

Among those now attending the Chicago meeting are Irving Mandel and B. Eisenberg of the Chicago office; William Onie of Cincinnati; Nate Schultz of Cleveland; Leo Blank of Des Moines; W. Barker of Omaha; William Hurlbut and M. H. Starr of Detroit; C. Harthill of Indianapolis; Leland Allen of Kansas City; C. W. Trampe of Milwaukee; Tom Burke of Minneapolis; and George B. West and Barney Rosenthal of St. Louis.

Steve Broidy

Mr. Johnston will leave Hollywood this week to preside at the New York meetings, which will be held on February 12 and 13. Participants will include: Harry H. Thomas, Eastern sales manager; H. E. Morey, supervisor of exchanges; Lloyd L. Lind, assistant to Broidy; J. J. Felder of the New York exchange; Robert Adler of Buffalo; Herman Rifkin and Ben Abrams of Boston; H. L. Berkson of Buffalo; Ben Welansky and Mark Goldman of Pittsburgh; Sam Rosen of Philadelphia; and Harry Brown of Washington, D. C.

Pete Dailey New Publicity Chief at Universal Studio

J. W. (Pete) Dailey this week took over the post of Universal's studio publicity director in Hollywood to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Terry De Lapp. Announcement of the appointment was made by John Joseph, national advertising and publicity director for Universal. Joseph F. Lawler, a member of the Universal publicity staff for the past two years, moves into Dailey's former spot as head of the national mailing department.

Moger Joins Warner Staff

Art Moger, formerly promotion editor and contact man for Hearst newspapers in New England, has joined Warner Bros. field public relations staff as New England representative.

Montague Sees Long Film Prosperity Era

So sure is Columbia Pictures that the 1943 pace at the box-office will be maintained for a long period that the company contemplates making from four to six more features for the 1944-45 program. This was the gist of a statement to trade press representatives Wednesday by A. Montague, general sales manager, during a three-day meeting of sales heads in New York. Mr. Montague declared he could not see any falling off from the high grosses of the last 12 months, even if the war should end suddenly.

"I'm very optimistic," said the Columbia executive. "The United States will have to supply the empty shelves of the whole world as quickly as possible, and that means this country is going to ride on a tremendous payroll for a number of years. As we had to convert to war purposes suddenly, so we'll have to convert to peace uses just as fast."

By the time the present season is over Columbia expects to have released 44 features and 10 westerns, so that the 1944-45 season looks to count about 50 from Columbia, plus 10 westerns.

"We believe," Montague said, "that the small exhibitor wants and needs more pictures and that we are giving better service by supplying new product rather than trying to cover the shortage with re-issues."

There will be no change in selling, the sales manager explained. Since the company is not in the consent decree it will endeavor to sell in one block, with a higher proportion of percentage pictures indicated. The larger independent exhibitors are inclined to play more product under this agreement, Montague declared.

PRC Reorganizes As Briggs Quits Presidency

Along with the resignation of O. Henry Briggs as president and director of PRC this week came word of financial and legal reorganization of the various units that reflect a new set-up with complete backing by the Bob Young interests. It was generally rumored that Briggs left the company because of differences over management policies, but according to reports in circulation this week he is to remain as a director in the chief Young company, the Alleghany Corporation, and also retain his interest in the Hollywood production unit which releases through PRC.

During the week a new company called PRC Pictures, Inc., was chartered in Cleveland, Ohio, and also filed a certificate of statement and designation at Albany in order to enter New York state. The Ohio corporation represents a merger of Producers Releasing Corp. of America with the Shaker Heights Realty Co. This also involves Pathe Laboratories, Inc., which wholly owns Producers Releasing Corp. of America. This company is headed by Kenneth Young, Bob Young's brother.

Charles Cohen Leaves MGM

Charles Cohen resigned this week from the MGM home office publicity department.

Cohen, the company's trade press contact for several years, also has assisted in the preparation of the Lion's Roar. He will announce a new connection shortly.

Hal Danson to Coast

Hal Danson, assistant advertising manager for Paramount, will be transferred to the Hollywood studio in about two weeks to take over the production of trailers formerly handled by Lou Harris.

Dimes Goal Believed Exceeded as Leaders Study Final Reports

The 1944 March of Dimes collections ended last week after achieving what, without doubt, will be an all-time record for audience collections, topping the United Nations' campaign of last year ($1,650,000) and the Red Cross drive ($3,067,236). Drive leaders, after analyzing reports, were unanimous in their belief that the $3,000,000 goal had been reached, and that the final figures would be considerably above that amount.

"It probably will be several weeks before all reports have cleared through the March of Dimes state chairmen," said Walter Vincent, treasurer. "To enable us to announce an actual total at an early date, I urge every exhibitor to make a report of his collections today. I realize the vast amount of paper work involved in routine theatre bookkeeping, war bond sales and reports, etc., but a quick response from the thousands of theatres which have made dimes collections, will enable the National Foundation to put this money to work just that much sooner."

Nicholas M. Schenck, national chairman of the theatres' drive, was elated over the fine response. Said he:

"In setting a national goal of $3,000,000, I had not the slightest doubt that our industry would perform as magnificently as it has in all past drives. The whole success of the campaign is a testimonial to the hard work of thousands of theatre owners, managers, and employes."

"I believe that the national total will reach a minimum of three and a half million dollars," said E. L. Alperson. "RKO Theatres alone are reporting, as an average, 33 1/3 per cent more than in 1943. Home Office collections have tripled. State chairmen with whom I have talked, are similarly optimistic."

Harry Brandt and Chas. C. Moskowitz, of the executive committee, believed the drive total would be closer to $3,500,000 than to $3,000,000.

President Receives Check for Fight Against Infantile Paralysis

President Roosevelt received a $240,000 birthday present to help combat infantile paralysis. The check represented most of the net profits in this country of the film, "Forever and a Day," made by actors of British origin in appreciation of the hospitality shown them here and in gratitude to the generous contributions made to British charities.

The check was presented to the President at the White House by Lady Hardwicke, on behalf of her husband, Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

Omaha Bond Premiere a Sellout

Omaha's first war bond premiere, an "E" bond event, sold $200,000 in bonds and was attended by a capacity crowd of 2776 at the Paramount Theatre, according to William Miskell, state exhibitor chairman. The event was a sellout at 2 p.m. on the day of the event. "Madame Curie" was the feature.—Om.

Dog Bites Man

No, this isn't an exploitation man's pipe dream. It actually happened . . . and now, the millenium is here!

Seems the theatre in Oberlin, Ohio, decided to run an auction for bonds, so the manager went out and promoted some local merchants for merchandise.

So far so good . . . but comes the revolution. Those merchants who WEREN'T approached got all het up and set up a hue and cry that they were being discriminated against and "who was this theatre upstart that wouldn't let them in on a co-op stunt?".

En masse, they ransacked their shelves and in a highly indignant body trooped down to the theatre and DEMANDED to be let in on the stunt.

They were . . . and the manager is still in a daze.

Plan Testimonial to Honor Chas. Skouras

Added impetus to the Fourth War Loan drive took shape last week in the plan to honor Charles P. Skouras, president of National Theatres, with a testimonial luncheon, it was announced to Harry Brandt, committee chairman.

New York and New Jersey exhibitors will convene for the affair on Monday, February 7, at 12:30 p.m., in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria, to pay tribute to Skouras, whose tireless activities as national chairman of the industry's Fourth War Loan drive has evoked praise from quarters inside and outside of the industry.

Other members of the luncheon committee include: Ed Alperson, chairman, ticket committee; Don Jacocks, chairman, Fourth War Loan Activity; David Weinstock, chairman, arrangements committee; Hal Horne, chairman, publicity committee; Fred Schwartz, Sam Rinzler, William White, Sam Strassbourg, Julius Joelson, Leo Brecher, Harry Loewenstein, Joe Seider, Charles Moskowitz, Joe Vogel, Norman Elson, Lee Rosenblatt, Max Cohen, Frank Moscate, Meyer Schine, Dan Michalove, general committee.

Shatter Payroll Deduction Records

Payroll deduction records are being shattered in the Minneapolis territory for the Fourth War Loan by Arline Judge and Dennis Morgan, Hollywood Bondbardiers. In appearances at the Northwestern National Life Insurance Company, the Durkee-Atwood Company, and the Army-Navy rallies at the University of Minnesota, the stars piled up record bond sales.

Wacs Aid Bond Premiere

Charles Alderson, manager of the Pinney Theatre, Boise, Idaho, has arranged for a musical revue by a corps of 100 Wacs from the local field for the Bond Premiere scheduled for the Pinney this week. Full page advertisements in the Boise Statesman herald the premieres to be held in all theatres in this locality.

'Flying Bondsmen' Discuss Objectives And Set Itineraries

Twelve industry leaders reviewed their objectives and itineraries at a noon luncheon at Hotel Plaza last week prior to their departure for all parts of the nation in behalf of the Fourth War Loan campaign.

Nominated by Charles P. Skouras, National Chairman, to express to the field forces the appreciation of the Treasury Department, the War Activities Committee and the Fourth War Loan Committee for the job that has been done, the "flying bondsmen" will meet with State Exhibitor Chairmen, State Distributor Chairmen, War Finance Chairmen and other Fourth War Loan workers in all exchange centers and other key points of the nation.

With Frank H. Ricketson, Jr., National Vice Chairman of the campaign, presiding, the luncheon assumed an informal, round table aspect with brief talks by Skouras, S. H. Fabian, Francis S. Harmon, B. V. Sturdivant, Claude Lee and Robert Coyne. Coyne, who is Assistant National Director of the Treasury Department's War Finance Division, came to the luncheon from Washington with Lee, who serves as liaison man for the industry.

A "working kit," containing all data pertinent to each of the territories to be covered, was distributed to the twelve leaders.

Ricketson, on behalf of the Fourth War Loan committee, outlined a schedule of activities in which he suggested eight phases of the effort which could be discussed with the ranking industry leaders in each section of the country:

1. To express the deep appreciation of the Treasury Department, the Fourth War Loan committee and the War Activities Committee for the great job that has been done.
2. To outline the activities that are planned for

Beall's Bomber Blitzing Bond Campaigners in Lone Star State

Ray Beall, publicity chairman, WAC for Texas, has mailed out to all exhibitors a flyer showing how the boys can capitalize on a stunt pulled in Dallas.

He arranged a tour of a former theatre employe who is now a pilot with a terrific bombing record. The former employe is Capt. Lowell E. May of the Majestic Theatre, Dallas. Capt. May is making appearances all over the state in the interest of the campaign. Beall suggested that exhibs arrange a similar tour for a local hero and then went on to plug the Free Movie Day stunt and Bond Premiere idea.

Texas, being full of heroes, is fast picking up the idea and following through.

Bulletin to Virginia Exhibitors

A Fourth War Loan bulletin covering various phases of the campaign has been sent to all exhibitors of Virginia by the War Finance Committee of that state, according to George Peters, state publicity chairman and manager of Loew's Theatre, Richmond.

The Box Office Slant

Men On Her Mind

PRC Drama-With-Songs 67 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Feb. 12)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) Pleasing entertainment for average audiences.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Should prove a satisfactory business-getter wherever played.

Cast: Mary Beth Hughes, Edward Norris, Ted North, Alan Edwards, Luis Alberni, Kay Linaker, Claire Rochelle, Lyle Latell, Claire McDowell, Eva Hamill, Isabell La Mal, Lane Chandler. Credits: Directed by Wallace W. Fox. Original screenplay by Raymond L. Schrock. Director of photography, Robert Cline. Musical director, Lee Zahler. Produced by Alfred Stern.

Plot: After a triumphant radio debut, a young singer reviews her past life. She thinks about the three men who love her; the successful business man through whom her career was made possible; the man who loved her and who she ran away from because she thought he was a thief and the professor of music in a girls' school whose song she popularized. She finally decides which is the man for her and gives up her career to marry him.

Comment: Here is a program offering that should prove a satisfactory business-getter in most spots, for it carries a certain amount of appeal to the lovers of the tried-and-true formula about the young girl who made good. Though the story has too many situations cropping up as obstacles in her path, the picture has been well put together and will prove good entertainment for most people, especially the women. There are three new song numbers presented; "Heaven Can Wait," "Once Around the Clock" and "I Predict," all sung very effectively by Mary Beth Hughes. The most outstanding, and one bound to catch the public fancy, being "Heaven Can Wait." The burden of the picture is carried by Miss Hughes, who handles her role with credit and charm. Appearing as the three men in love with her are Edward Norris, Ted North and Alan Edwards, and they all turn in fine portrayals. In minor roles capable performances are given by Claire Rochelle, Luis Alberni and Claire McDowell. Good direction by Wallace W. Fox plus satisfactory production values by Alfred Stern makes this one tops for its market. Interest music stores in windows and cooperative advertising. Get your local radio station to help by playing the song numbers before opening date. Arrange a local dance contest with dancing clubs and night spots.

(Block No. 7—Nat'l Release, February)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) One for the memory book. It rates among the screen stalwarts. Powerful story with mass appeal.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: The ladies should rave this one right into the upper brackets. Calls for careful campaign to offset class aspect.

Cast: Orson Welles, Joan Fontaine, Margaret O'Brien, Peggy Ann Garner, John Sutton, Sara Allgood, Henry Daniell, Agnes Moorehead, Aubrey Mather, Edith Barrett, and others. Credits: William Goetz in charge of production. Directed by Robert Stevenson. Screenplay by Aldous Huxley, Robert Stevenson and John Houseman. Original story by Charlotte Bronte. George Barnes, director of photography. Musical direction by Bernard Herrmann.

Plot: Jane Eyre, an orphan cruelly treated by a selfish aunt, is placed in an orphanage where she endures more persecution under a religious fanatic who heads the institution. When she becomes of age they seek to bully her into remaining at the asylum as a teacher. Through an ad she procures a position as governess in gloomy Thornfield Hall, home of Edward Rochester, a tyrannical master whose past has embittered him. Jane saves his life when someone sets fire to his room and gradually the two are drawn to each other. They are about to be married when the ceremony is interrupted by the revelation that he is already married to a woman who is stark mad, confined in an unused wing of the Hall. Returning to her aunt she finds her dying. Drawn back to Thornfield, Jane finds the Hall has been burned to the ground with Mr. Rochester, now blind, living in the ruins. Jane falls into his arms and the picture ends with the reading from the book that his sight is returning and that a child has been born to the happy couple.

Comment: Here is a superb woman's picture that will hold the interest of the men equally. It does not gush nor rely upon sweet phrases for its romantic impact but rather upon the individualism of the characters and the moving Charlotte Bronte story. All who have read the book will revel in the screen adaptation, for it faithfully follows the story. The music is used to the fullest in building the suspense of the many dramatic sequences. The children appearing in the film equal their elders in acting ability to the degree that after watching the story unfold it is difficult to acclaim one child as being a better performer than another. While this can be considered a class picture it should prove an exciting experience for almost any theatregoer. The photography is magnificent and the settings in excellent taste; factors which contribute much to the telling of this story. Despite the fact that the plot deals with a period of the nineteenth century, it comes to the screen with a rather up-to-date sense of modern realism. Orson Welles and Joan Fontaine give memorable performances, but though their parts dominate the story and their work is outstanding, there are many other members of a fine cast who register emphatically by reason of fine characterization. Robert Stevenson's direction is distinguished both from the standpoint of handling effectively the atmosphere and the dramatic overtones with which he has stressed his scenes and characters. Given a good opening this picture can measure up big at the box-offices of average theatres. Word of mouth publicity will be a big factor. For detailed campaign see Showmanalysis in this issue.

Universal Comedy-With-Songs 63 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Feb. 18)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) A gay little comedy that has good songs and lots of fun for everyone.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: With the Martha O'Driscoll and Noah Beery, Jr., draw, this should satisfy in any spot.

Cast: Martha O'Driscoll, Noah Beery, Jr., George Barbier, Andrew Tombes, Irving Bacon, Dennis Moore, Edgar Dearing, Pierre Watkin, Lottie Stein, Eddie Acuff, Jack Rice, Perc Launders, Delta Rhythm Boys, Leo Diamond & His Harmonaires, Mayris Chaney Dancers. Credits: Directed by Jean Yarbrough. Original story by Warren Wilson. Screenplay by Clyde Bruckman. Director of photography, William Sickner. Associate Producer, Warren Wilson.

Plot: A shipyard worker is awarded a hundred dollar bonus and a week-end pass. His intentions are to stay at a hotel, rest and have a bath in a tub, but he meets a girl and ends up by being her protector for the entire time. When he learns that she is reported kidnapped and that he is suspected, he questions her and finds out that she ran away from home. He returns her to her grandpappy and then reports back to work.

Comment: This gay little comedy falls into the same pattern set by other program offerings released by Universal, for it is another entertaining filmusical presented in a light, peppy vein. The one outstanding difference between this one and the others is that there is no jive and no jitterbugging. All the songs are sung, delightfully, by Martha O'Driscoll, who looks charming and acts well. Only one number can be put in the jive class and that is the one the Delta Rhythm Boys present. Noah Beery, Jr., is perfectly cast in the role of the shipyard worker and he handles his assignment so well that he awakens the sympathy of the spectator. Picture is kept at a good tempo throughout under the able direction of Jean Yarbrough, while credit for the fine production values go to Warren Wilson, who also wrote the original story. Title is a natural for any number of tieups with national and defense organizations. Since story is about shipyard workers, towns catering to these people should arrange advertising to attract their attention. Song numbers could be plugged on radio stations, in music stores and in lobby.

The Bridge of San Luis Rey

United Artists Drama 107 mins.

(Nat'l Release, February 11)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) This is a class picture that will appeal to the more serious type patrons.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: The book-reading public will want to see what the movies have done for this Pulitzer Prize novel and best-seller.

Cast: Lynn Bari, Akim Tamiroff, Francis Lederer, Nazimova, Louis Calhern, Blanche Yurka, Donald Woods, Emma Dunn, Barton Hepburn, Joan Lorring, Abner Biberman, Minerva Urecal. Credits: Produced by Benedict Bogeaus. Directed by Rowland V. Lee. Screenplay by Howard Estabrook, from the Pulitzer Prize novel by Thornton Wilder. Adaptation by Howard Estabrook and Herman Weissman. Photography by John Boyle.

Plot: Five people were killed when the bridge of San Luis Rey collapsed. Father Juniper wants to determine why God chose these five for death, and so gets the stories of their lives, mostly from the lips of old Uncle Pio (Akim Tamiroff) in the Peruvian city where it all took place nearly two centuries ago. It is the story of a famous actress who had come up from the gutter, two brothers, the Viceroy from Spain, and a scheming Marquesa. One of the brothers (Francis Lederer plays both) loves Michaela (Lynn Bari) and the other hates her. Tamiroff trains her in stagecraft and under his tutelage she becomes famous enough to attract the Viceroy (Louis Calhern). Nazimova, the Marquesa, plots to remove the Viceroy and substitute her son-in-law so as to get her daughter home again. She aids the Viceroy's suit with Michaela by pretending friendship with the girl who is out of her class. Michaela finds out in time, while Lederer is put in jail and escapes. This takes place at San Luis Rey. When the bridge breaks she is saved just as the structure collapses and the Marquesa, the dark brother, and three others go to their deaths.

Comment: With the name of Thornton Wilder as the author, the book itself one of the best-known written in the last 25 years, and with a production that spares no expense, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" is a prestige picture in a real sense. Meticulous detail shows on every set and even down to the acting great care has been taken to preserve the flavor of the book as nearly as possible. True, the pace is very leisurely at times, and undoubtedly further cutting would help matters. However, your patrons who are familiar with the novel will probably want it just that way. There are a number of excellent acting chores in this film, with Tamiroff and Nazimova coming off best. Lynn Bari also does well with the biggest, and certainly the most difficult, role of her career. Sell your patrons on the Pulitzer Prize angle, with a strong love motif. Also the Thornton Wilder name is box-office and many will remember his "Our Town" of last season. Keep it dignified, though, boys. The kind of people who will be drawn by this picture do not care for blatant S.A., and the latter won't like the show if you sell it that way.

The Return of the Vampire

Columbia Horror 69 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) It's a chiller-diller that should please all horror fans.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Will hold up a double bill well, and can take the top spot in an all-horror show.

Cast: Bela Lugosi, Frieda Inescort, Nina Foch, Roland Varno, Miles Mander, Matt Willis, Ottola Nesmith, Gilbert Emery, Leslie Denison, William C. P. Austin. Credits: Produced by Sam White. Directed by Lew Landers. Screenplay by Griffin Jay. Original idea by Kurt Neumann. Additional dialogue by Randall Faye.

Plot: In order to do away with a vampire you have to drive a spike through his heart and leave it there. Frieda Inescort does just that to vampire Lugosi, but 12 years later a German raid unearths the body, and when a couple of workmen draw out the spike before burying the body Lugosi lives again to suck the blood from the jugular veins of his victims. He poses as a professor whom he has had murdered by his wolf-man servant, Andreas (Matt Willis), and soon Frieda's ward, Nina Foch, is in desperate danger, as is her fiance, Roland Varno. Just as Nina is being lured to her death and a "life" of vampiring with Bela, the vampire is struck through the heart by Willis and dragged out into the sun where he melts away.

Comment: This vampire story is commonplace enough, but it packs a good deal of pseudo-scientific interest and downright entertainment so that the horror addict can be sure of having a good time. That it does entertain is proved by the audience reaction when at the end of the film the Scotland Yard inspector turns to the audience and asks: "Now, do you believe in vampires?". The audience in New York shouted loudly: "Yes!". Frieda Inescort and, of course, Lugosi, carry the brunt of the acting chore. The dignified Miss Inescort is set just right as Lady Ainsley. Further good work is done by Matt Willis, who turns into a wolf-man at regular intervals, and by Nina Foch as the heroine. The settings, with many scenes boasting a particularly greasy-looking fog, are most effective, and Director Lew Landers has concentrated on keeping the story moving, even when he has to sacrific clarity. For exploitation take a tip from the gag at the end of the picture: "Do you believe in vampires?". Don't be serious about it, but don't kid too much, either. From that one question you can develop your whole campaign.

The Mojave Firebrand

Republic Western 55 mins.

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Down the right alley for followers of westerns.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Good western fare.

Cast: Bill Elliott, George "Gabby" Hayes, Anne Jeffreys, LeRoy Mason, Jack Ingram, Harry McKim, Karl Hackett, Forrest Taylor, Hal Price, Marshall Reed, Kenneth Duncan, Bud Geary, Jack Kirk, Fred Graham, Tom London, Larry Steers. Credits: Directed by Spencer Bennett. Original screenplay by Norman S. Hall. Director of photography, Ernest Miller. Associate Producer, Eddy White.

Plot: After a wealthy old prospector had built up a town near his prosperous mine, he hires a young school teacher for the youngsters of school age there. But instead of things working out the way he planned, he finds the lawless element taking over. To correct this, he gets a young peace officer on his way to another assignment, to remain there and help him.

Comment: This is the outdoor action play in a style and manner that will be hailed as "swell stuff" by followers of western stories. For the fifty-five minute run of the picture, there is not a moment in which the spectator doesn't get what he is seeking, for all the familiar, but perenially entertaining western action takes place. Performances are better than routine with Bill Elliott his usual convincing self and George "Gabby" Hayes at his best in both the comedy and straight characterizations. Harry McKim, the 10-year-old youngster, is good and LeRoy Mason, the heavy, and others, show up well. Eddy White's production and Spencer Bennett's direction have turned out another better-than-average western. Sell as others in the series, with lobby display playing up the story about the "silver" strike.

In Our Time

Warner Bros. Drama 110 mins.

(Nat'l Release, February 19)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) Will absorb any audience from beginning to end—especially the women.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Cannot miss pulling extra cash if the love angle is stressed. Also will profit greatly by word-of-mouth.

Cast: Ida Lupino, Paul Henreid, Nancy Coleman, Mary Boland, Victor Francen, Nazimova, Michael Chekhov, Marek Windheim, Ivan Triesault, John Bleiffer, Lotte Palfe, Wolfgang Zilser, Pyotr. Credits: Directed by Vincent Sherman. Original screenplay by Ellis St. Joseph and Howard Koch. Music by Franz Waxman. Produced by Jerry Wald. Photography by Carl Guthrie.

Plot: An English girl, Ida Lupino, marries a Polish Count, Paul Henreid, very much against the wishes of his aristocratic family. They go to live at the ancestral home near Warsaw, with the expected struggle against tradition and an uncle who holds the purse strings. The uncle favors appeasement with Germany and lives in a mental world of class and privilege. The mother, Nazimova, and the daughter, Nancy Coleman, follow the same line of thought. Old uncle Leopold (Michael Chekhov), dependent on his brother and ineffectual, feels differently, however, and abets the lovers in everything. Just when Ida and Paul have modernized the estate and made it pay for the first time in 20 years the Germans march into Poland and bomb Warsaw. Paul joins his regiment and comes back wounded. Then the Mayor of Warsaw calls for a last stand. The proud uncle comes to get the family and escape, but Paul and Ida gather the peasants of the estate. They apply the scorched earth policy and then leave for Warsaw to defend Poland to the last.

Comment: This is a story of Poland just before and during the tragic invasion by the Nazis; it shows the attitude of the aristocrats of that country—their refusal to modernize and their stubborn hope to temporize with Germany. It also shows the drama of the invasion. But above all, it is a love story—a love story so strong and affecting that audiences will remember it for years to come. Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid make a pair of lovers that really carry conviction. In the early scenes Miss Lupino is pretty, shy, uncomprehending of the great emotion that has hit her. Later she is the loyal wife to the letter, with a mature love that cannot be broken. There are other fine performances. Michael Chekhov, said to be the son of the famous Russian dramatist, has a sympathetic role and plays it to the hilt. Nazimova, back after a dozen years absence from the screen, does a fine portrait as the aristocratic mother. Nancy Coleman sinks her personality in one of those hateful parts. The characters are deeply etched, with the result that the picture leaves the audience with a feeling that it has really seen something. For the showman the job is to make the women realize that here is a momentous love story that they'll never forget. Word-of-mouth will be a big factor, and it will all be favorable. Let them know that there are no war scenes; the tragedy of war is there, but not the actual carnage. It is a love classic—let them know it.

Beautiful But Broke

Columbia Comedy-With-Music 73 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Jan. 28th)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Family) Plenty of entertainment in this one for the jive and jitterbug fans, for it has lots of hot music and torch singing.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: A program offering that could be used as a top feature in sections where adolescents prevail.

Cast: Joan Davis, John Hubbard, Jane Frazee, Judy Clark, Bob Haymes, Willie West and McGinty, Danny Mummert, Byron Foulger, George McKay, Ferris Taylor, Isabel Withers, John Eldredge, Grace Hayle, John Dilson. Credits: Directed by Charles Barton. Screenplay by Monte Brice. Adaptation by Manny Seff. Based on a story by Arthur Housman. Director of photography, L. W. O'Connell. Produced by Irving Briskin.

Plot: A business representative and her all-girl orchestra are put off a train en route to a booking. They find an old-fashioned house to spend the night in. The next day they meet a couple of Army engineers who interest them enough to make them want to stay on. They put on a big show to raise funds for a baby station, which turns out to be a great success. However, they all stay on as defense workers. with the engineers taking care of the future of two of them.

Comment: What a session this will be for the jive and jitterbug fans. Plenty of the music they like; lots of pretty girls; some torch singing and the inimitable comedy of Joan Davis. All these will keep them thoroughly amused throughout the picture's seventy-odd minutes of running time. Though only a program offering, the contents plus the Joan Davis name may make this strong

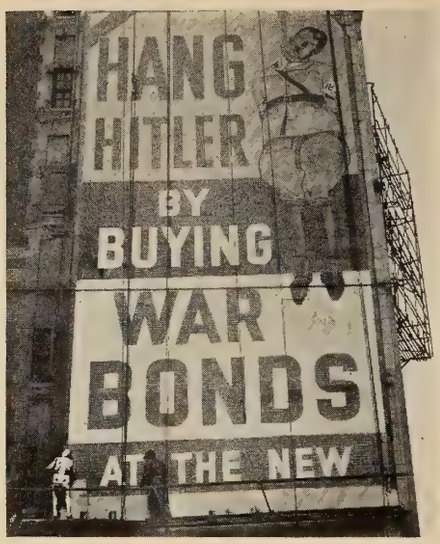
Exhibitors Using a Variety of Stunts to Boost Bond Drives

Fourth War Loan campaign reports received in New York during the past few days reveal a variety of activities that should prove helpful to theatremen in the remaining days of the current drive and in the forthcoming Fifth War Loan.

Quincy, Calif. Manager J. C. Lee of the Town Hall Theatre sent a poem to the chairman of previous drives who was vacationing in Louisiana. Result: the former chairman placed an order for bonds worth $1000. Lee's usherettes are working hard on the drive. In one day they had taken orders for $2000 worth of bonds. The Town Hall management suggests that every exhibitor keep a complete list of the names of all bond buyers in his theatre so that he can contact them in future drives either by letter or bond-selling teams.

Cooperstown, N. Y. Half of the houses operated by Smalley Theatres, Inc., whose executive offices are located here, have been conducting a free movie week instead of a free movie day, with bond buyers being admitted to see any picture during the week. The idea seems to be going over better than free movie day, according to William C. Smalley, president and general manager.

Pulaski, Va. A War Bond Premiere and Auction at the Pulaski Theatre here boosted the sale of bonds in Pulaski County by $452,702, with $111,500 of this total bringing in the top money for a personal letter and a pair of nylon hose from screen actress Betty Grable, it is reported by Robert P. Beamer, manager of the Pulaski and area exhibitor vice-chairman for the Fourth War Loan. So many gifts were donated for the auction that lack of time prevented many of them being placed on sale. These articles will be offered for bidding during the remainder of the drive. Purchase of a war bond constitutes each person's bid, and the remaining articles will go to the highest bidder at the end of the Fourth War Loan.



Osborne, Kan. Importance of the motion picture theatre in community life was again demonstrated in this little town when William H. Blair, owner and operator of the Blair Theatre, helped Osborne double its quota of bond sales. A bond rally at the Blair brought a total sale of $134,558.75, while the city's quota was $64,900.

Portland, Ore. Mrs. J. J. Parker, local theatre owner and former State War Activities chairman for the WAC, turned editorial writer last week to aid the Fourth War Loan. Her guest editorial, appearing in the Portland Daily Journal, praised the "fighting cinema" as the greatest salesman in the world today. Wrote Mrs. Parker: "The screen brings the war to our very doorsteps and makes us realize the importance of our job of selling war bonds. The sacrifices we make in purchasing bonds are small indeed compared with the sacrifices made on the battlefields by our heroic men in uniform."

Eufala, Ga. S. H. Coleman of the Lee Theatre here comes up with a neat stunt. He has erected a huge scaffold on which an effigy of Hitler dangles. Back of the figure is a scale, marked off in feet. For every bond bought, the purchaser has the privilege of yanking the hangman's rope, thus raising the effigy higher and higher.

1420 Bonds; 1216 Seats

The bond premiere held at the Majestic Theatre, Reno, was a complete sellout and netted a sale of 1420 bonds against a seating capacity of 1216. This is the first of three such bond premieres to be held in Reno.

A Pleasure to Paint This

Two men, one dressed as a hangman and one as a skeleton, attracted much attention as they painted the gigantic sign shown above on East wall of New Amsterdam Theatre in New York.

Army Show Sets a Bond Sale Record

An all-Army show, featuring Captain Glenn Miller and his Training Command band, Sgt. David Ross and a complete cast of G. I. entertainers, has proved to be the most successful bond selling venture that has come out of this campaign in the New Haven district, according to reports received from Lou Brown, public relations chairman. After selling out the Yale Theatre the show was moved to Loew's Poli where the SRO sign was put out two days before the performance. In scaling the Poli the majority of seats went to those purchasing $25, $50 and $100 bonds.

The show has proved so successful that a condensed version is being routed throughout Connecticut. On January 31 it appeared at Poli Theatre, Meriden. Other dates, February 8, Warner Theatre, Torrington; February 15, Paramount Theatre, New Haven; February 11, Middlesex Theatre, Middletown; February 16, Wilkinson Theatre, Wallingford, and on February 23, Whitney Theatre, New Haven.

Harry F. Shaw, state chairman for the motion picture industry in the Fourth War Loan drive, originated the show in cooperation with the Army technical school at Yale University.

Woman Manager Goes Over Top; Sells a Bond for Every Seat

Betty Margarido, manager of Skouras' Forest Hills Theatre, Long Island, New York, is the first woman manager to turn in a bond-for-every-seat hit.

Theatre has a seating capacity of 934. Miss Margarido has sold 981 bonds from January 1st to the 21st, and 1359 bonds up to the 25th. These are not pledges; they are cash-on-the-line sales.

A salute is in order to this gal.

School Children Busy

School children in the Philadelphia area who have joined the Junior Home Front Hero tieup between American Legion Posts and motion picture theatres will sell all their bonds exclusively through theatres. Arrangements have been made by local school authorities and theatre managers whereby the schools will get credit for their bond-selling activities.

'Flying Bondsmen' Discuss Objectives

nation-wide execution from now to the concluding day of the Fourth War Loan campaign.

3. To stress the importance for the "top man" in each territory to assume responsibility and leadership for all industry war effort.
4. To emphasize the importance of closer relationship between the motion picture state chairmen and the Treasury Department War Finance Committee in each community. Ricketson suggested that each state chairman should be a member of the Treasury State Organization.
5. To impress upon each state group the importance of increasing the number of issuing agents.
6. To point out the long range value and immediate importance to exhibitors for running bond trailers and war activity reels.
7. To develop a more coordinated relationship with the Hollywood Victory Committee in connection with stars and personalities used in various war effort campaigns.
8. To assist industry committees in the various territories in breaking "bottlenecks" and to lend an ear to troubles and problems confronting local groups.

The twelve representatives and the states and cities they are visiting are as follows:

George J. Schaefer: Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island (New Haven, Boston, Providence).

Leonard Goldenson: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania (Albany, Buffalo, Newark, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh).

Robert Mochrie: Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia (Wilmington, Baltimore, Washington, D. C., Richmond. Wheeling.).

Herman Robbins: Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Missouri (Omaha, Des Moines, St. Louis, Kansas City).

Harry Kalmine: Wyoming, Nevada, Idaho, Montana, Colorado, Arizona, Utah (Butte, Denver, Phoenix, Salt Lake City).

Herman Wobber: Washington, Oregon, California (Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles, San Francisco).

Cohen High Bond Bidder at Sale Of Theatre Wing's Registry

The War Finance Committee for New York announced that The American Theatre Wing's Registry, containing the signatures of hundreds of famous headliners of the stage, screen and radio, has added $104,000 in war bonds to the Fourth War Loan. The book was sold at auction Thursday, January 27, during the intermission of Sonja Henie's Hollywood Ice Revue. All bidders were required to buy bonds in the amount of their bids.

Max A. Cohen

The coveted album was knocked down by Carl Waite, sports director for Westchester County, who wielded the gavel, to Max A. Cohen of White Plains, N. Y., for $26,000. Mr. Cohen is president of Cinema Circuit, a leading figure in exhibitor organization affairs and was state director in the First War Loan. He is currently serving with the 4th War Loan WAC Committee.

Collections 50% Ahead

Charles Raymond and Lester Zucker, co-chairmen of the Cleveland March of Dimes theatre committee, reported that total Greater Cleveland collections were 50 per cent ahead of last year.—Cl.

Regional Newsreel

ATLANTA

Peachtree's upper limbs were crowded with thousands of fun-seekers last week and theatres almost had to dust off the old "S.R.O." sign and hang it out front.

It appeared late Saturday the city's theatres alone would equal last year's whole state quota in the March of Dimes drive. Loew's Grand had taken in $5,155.54; the Lucas & Jenkins group $9,699.75 and the Rialto $1,936.47. Last year the moviemen gathered up enough change to match donations from every other source. This year Colonel Charles E. Kessnich of MGM, chairman of the Film Division, believes they'll almost double that figure.

Jane Withers wound up the week in promoting Fourth War Loan bond sales with Victory figures to the credit of the industry.

The Red Cross women were busy soliciting donations for the blood bank at the Capitol last week.

Jim Black of the Variety Club staff called on his buddies in uniform, with a silver bar on each shoulder.

Roy H. Haines, Western and Southern general sales manager of Warner Bros., with A. W. Schwalberg, vice-president of Vitagraph, Inc., met with R. L. McCoy, Southern division manager, and Henry G. Krumm, branch manager. Plans are now being readied for "This Is the Army" picture's release in neighborhood houses.

Eddie Pentecost, former manager of Loew's Grand, was in town prior to taking up active duty in Uncle Sam's Navy. Was in show business in North Carolina for the last year.

Danny Demetry plans a Bond Premiere February 8 at his Emory Theatre.

Postwar plans of the Henry Grady Hotel includes the conversion of the Roxy Theatre, the lobby of which is to be used as an entrance for the 30-story Tower-Annex, with the present theatre entrance from Peachtree Street converted into an arcade and the Cain Street entrance leading to the hotel annex. An outlay of $2,000,000 is anticipated.

BOSTON

Chief Booker McGerigle of the local RKO offices is again at his desk after a siege with the influenza.

Al Somerby, veteran—youthful one—manager of the Old Howard, has his alterations at the theatre virtually completed in accordance with the new orders of the Safety Commission.

Branch Manager "Zippie" Goldman has returned from a visit to New York where he was in conference with executives of PRC.

It's Mrs. A. Newman now, for Elaine Stone, secretary to E. M. Loew, has become the bride of Dr. A. Newman, and the two are honeymooning in Florida.

William Lavery of the Lafayette Theatre in Haverhill, spent several days on Boston calling on film friends this week.

Lee Johnson of the accounting department of 20th Century-Fox has resigned to enter other business activities.

Branch Manager Moe Grassgreen, 20th Century-Fox, is spending a well-earned vacation in Florida.

Branch Manager Bill Sharton of New Haven visited the local United Artists office this week to confer with District Manager James Winn.

William Daniels, chief projectionist of the Capitol Theatre in Lynn, is receiving condolences on the loss of his mother, whose death occurred in North Carolina.

Sgt. Gerald Welch, former assistant manager of the Strand at Lowell, is now "somewhere in the Pacific" according to word received here.

Ray Allard of Fall River's theatre colony spent the first of the week in Boston.

Nathan Yamins has joined Mrs. Yamins and their daughter at Palm Beach for a few weeks' vacation.

John Hurley is a newcomer to the staff of the Center Theatre in Fall River.

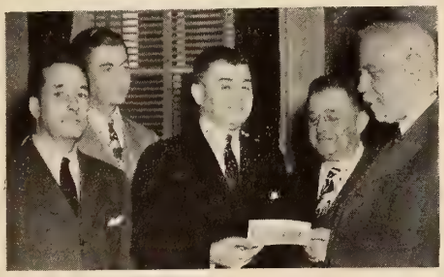
Recent visitors in film row: Jack Findley of the Mystic Theatre, Westerly, R. I.; Abe Montague, general sales manager of Columbia; Benjamin Simons, New Haven manager of 20th Century-Fox; Joseph McCann, New Bedford exhibitor.

Ben Stein made a visit to Portland this week, where his picture "Social Enemy Number One" is playing.

Lieut. Abe Levine, formerly one of the most active men in the Boston Variety Club, now stationed somewhere overseas, sent a V Mail letter to Sam Haase and it was posted on the walls of the club. Lieut. Levine says: "England is a nice place and the people here are cheerful and friendly. We had a Christmas party for about 100 kids and it reminded me of the parties held for kids by the Variety Club. We had as much fun as did the kids. My best regards to everyone."

The annual Motion Picture Salesmen's Ball will be held at the Mayfair the night of February 13 with John Howard as master of ceremonies, and with Harry Goldstein and Maynard Sickles in charge of the fun.

The funeral of John "RKO" Sharpe's father was attended by many from the film district.



Shirley Whitman of the local RKO exchange is now a member of the Woman's Defense Corps.

Walter Dyer of Universal is to have an Ice-Capades party at his cottage on Norton Lake. Some fancy figure-skaters are planning to attend.

Herb Philbrick has three new young women assistants at the publicity offices of M and P.

CHARLOTTE

In the bond premiere of "Madam Curie" at Charlotte's largest theatre, the Carolina, this week every seat of the 1400-capacity house was occupied by a bond buyer. Total sum represented was $7,084,775, more than one-half of the quota of $13,000,000 allotted to Charlotte. Public thanks were expressed to Ben Rosenwald, manager of the MGM exchange here, and Jack Austin, manager of the Carolina Theatre, by R. E. Keer, local war finance chairman, for this big boost toward reaching the bond goal in Charlotte.

MILLION DOLLAR SALE. Daniel Bell, Under-Secretary of the Treasury, presents to Henry P. Blair, president of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., of Washington, a "million dollar golden chair ticket" to the WRC-Variety Club War Bond Matinee of "Ice Capades" in the national capital. In the group above, left to right: Carlton Smith, Station WRC; John S. Allen, Chief Barker of the Variety Club of Washington; Mr. Bell; Sidney B. Lust, chairman of the "honored 500" section of the show; Mr. Blair. The purchase by the Equitable Co., enabled 176 wounded soldiers and sailors to see the ice show as guests of the company.

A. B. Craver, manager of the Visulite Theatre and city chairman for theatres in the bond drive, announces February 16 as free movie day for the Visulite, Plaza, and Charlotte theartes. Booths will be set up in each theatre for the sale of bonds, and every bond buyer during a seven-day period may see the show and use his bond in lieu of a ticket. "Heaven Can Wait," "Flight Command," and "Captive Wild Woman," have been selected for free movie day showing.

R. L. McCoy, former manager for Warner Bros. in Charlotte, and now Southern division manager, attended a conference with John Bachman, present manager here, at the Warner Bros. exchange.

Roy Haines, Eastern and Southern general manager for Warner Bros., and Herbert Pickman, publicity director from Atlanta, attended the sales conference with Mr. Bachman.

A. W. Schwalberg, vice-president of Vitagraph, Inc., was in Charlotte for a few days.

Roby Branon, chairman for the film industry in the March of Dimes for the states of North and South Carolina, announces that he expects the drive to exceed the total of $15,000 in 1943 by a safe margin. He was assisted in the dimes campaign by Warren Irvin of Columbia, S. C., and Roy Rowe, immediate past president of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina.

CHICAGO

The Balaban and Katz Employes Association will give a turkey dinner to B & K and Great States service men, their wives, and sweethearts at the Stevens Hotel on February 11. The show and midnight turkey dinner will be the last word in entertainment, and more than 1000 guests are expected to be present to enjoy it.

Movie Day bond sales broke all records here. B & K had to take typewriters from publicity and other offices to keep up with the rush. Other circuits and theatres reported equally rushing business. More than 6000 bonds were said to have been sold during the day.

Speaking of breaking records, it is also reported that when final figures are in the March of Dimes will have exceeded last year's figures by at least 50 per cent.

The Warner Theatre circuit will play "This Is the Army" late in February over the entire circuit, with prices set at 55 cents evenings and 40 cents at matinees. Extra advertising is planned.

DES MOINES

The state executive council has failed to approve a recommendation of the tax commission to hire outside legal assistance in an effort to collect a state income tax on film rentals. The tax commission had recommended hiring legal assistance, claiming no income tax is paid on box-office receipts turned over to film companies as film rentals. The council indicated it will not take up the request and several of the members, in discussing the case, pointed out they felt the tax commission should handle the matter itself if it felt such a tax should be paid. It was also reported that the matter would be left up to the next legislature.

Tri-State Theatre Corp. of Des Moines disclosed that a former employe at the Fort Theatre, Rock Island, Ill., Corp. Paul E. Holland, had been killed in action in the South Pacific. He formerly was an usher at the Fort Theatre

Highlighting the industry's week in Detroit was the luncheon given Monday by the Detroit Variety Club in honor of Louella Parsons, who was in town in connection with the sales of her book, "The Gay Illiterate." Arvid Kantor was in charge of arrangements and Earl J. Hudson, president of United Detroit Theatres, was the master of ceremonies. Others at the speakers' table were Edward C. Beatty, president of W. S. Butterfield Theatres of Michigan; Ray Branch, president of the Allied Exhibitors Association of Michigan; David M. Idzal, managing director of the Fox Theatre; Charles Perry, manager of the Adams Theatre; David Newman, Variety Club secretary and public relations director of Co-operative Theatres of Michigan; Lou Wisper, of Wisper and Wetsman Theatres; J. R. MacPherson, past barker of Detroit Variety and now with National Screen in New York; Arthur Robinson, Variety Club treasurer; Moe Duddleson, resident manager for United Artists Corp.; Barney Kilbridge, motion picture exhibitor; Irving Berlinsky, of the Film Building Drug Co., and Larry Becker, Variety director. Guests included Sammy Barrett, general manager, Co-operative Theatres; Frank Wetsman, of W. and W. Theatres; J. P. A move by Co-operative Theatres of Michigan to have its motion picture houses in Wayne County (Detroit) declared "essential," has found the regional War Manpower Commission in Detroit decidedly cool. The informal request for such action was submitted to the WMC by the organization in behalf of some 50 exhibitors operating more than 100 houses in the county. Newman was told two weeks ago, the spokesman said, that formal applications would have to be made, but at the same time he "was frankly discouraged from taking such action." WMC officials have already decided that the reasons given in Newman's letter for the "essential" rating had no chance of approval.

Commissioner Oscar G. Olander of the Michigan State Police has been appointed to the committee of the International Association of Chiefs of Police which is making a national study of juvenile delinquency.

Though final figures await tabulation, the March of Dimes campaign in Detroit was a big success, Abner E. Larned, chairman of the drive, has announced. The midnight show at the Fox Theatre January 28 added more than $8,000 to the fund. Thirty-seven entertainment groups made the show a big success, with a special surprise in the personal appearance of Lt. Tom Harmon, former All-America grid star who is back in the U. S. after thrilling adventures in China. Larned thanked David Idzal, Fox manager, the Fox employes and the members of the committee who helped to put the show part of the dimes program over the top.

PITTSBURGH

The males on Film Row and among theatre operators are getting fewer week by week. This week sees the departure of George J. Ball, head booker at 20th Century-Fox, for the Marine Base at San Diego, Cal., Paul Reith, office manager, and Carl Peppercorn, sales representative, respectively, for RKO here, and Robert Nesbitt, shipper for the Monogram exchange. John D. Walsh, manager of Shea's Fulton Theatre in the downtown section of Pittsburgh, has been reclassified 1-A and is expecting to be called any day; he is married and the father of two children.

Fellow employes held a farewell dinner for George Ball of 20th Century-Fox in the Marine Room of the Roosevelt Hotel on Saturday evening, and presented him with a substantial cash gift along with their good wishes for the best of luck and a safe return.

Joseph Sommers, formerly associated with the Anas Enterprises in Weirton and Holidays Cove, W. Va., has joined the Warner Theatre Circuit staff and at present has been assigned to some of their local houses.

Mario Giordano, until recently connected with the Skouras Theatres in New York, has been loaned temporarily to the Dipson Theatrical Enterprises to act as manager of the New Bradford Theatre, Bradford, Pa., succeeding E. J. Hollister.

The engagement of Cpl. Martin Rothenstein, who operated the Cambridge Theatre, Cambridge Springs, Pa., before entering the service, to Miss Mildred Swartz, of Akron, Ohio, has just been announced.

ST. LOUIS

William Kaimann, 52 years old, manager of the Bremen Theatre, shot and critically wounded his brother, Clarence Kaimann, 51 years old, in the basement office of the O'Fallon Theatre, the night of January 26 and then apparently attempted suicide in his automobile in O'Fallon Park some time later. Both men were taken to the City Hospital where physicians said their condition was critical. Clarence Kaimann told the police there had been some differences of opinion among the family over the management of theatres. William Kaimann died a day later without regaining consciousness.

Errol Flynn, Warner Bros. star, arrived here January 27 to join Gene Tierney and Anthony Quinn in promoting the sale of War Bonds at special rallies and meetings. The trio appeared at a rally at the Washington University Field House the evening of January 28 and later that night were among the entertainers at a bond rally at the Chase Hotel.

The Grand Theatre in Benld, Ill., operated by Joe Katz and the Weeks Theatre, Dexter, Mo., owned by C. H. Weeks, have already conducted very successful Bond Premieres and some 50 other houses in the St. Louis territory, outside of St. Louis and St. Louis County have announced plans for such events. As is known, the 110 theatres in St. Louis and St. Louis County are having free movie nights every Monday night of the Fourth War Loan Drive, while five bond premieres are to be staged at local first-run houses.

T. J. Price, owner of the Home Theatre, Oblong, Ill., and Perry Hoeffler, resident manager in Quincy, Ill., for the Publix Great States Circuit, have made very effective use of a simple plan for stimulating war bond sales in their houses. Publix has three theatres in Quincy. In each of the four theatres large lobby display boards have been set up with space provided for the display of the individual pictures of many soldiers, sailors, marines, merchant marine men, Wacs, Waves, Spars and auxiliary members of the Marine Corps. If a patron purchase a war bond through the theatres she has the privilege of having a picture of a service man or woman shown on the board.

Sam Pirtle of Jerseyville, Ill., head of the important circuit bearing his name, has returned from a vacation trip to Mexico, while Theodore Coleman, Mount Carmel, Ill., exhibitor, is en route to our neighboring republic. Both were along the Row this week, Sam telling about his wonderful trip and Ted wishing the film folks good-bye until they meet again.

Tilden Dickson of Crystal City, Mo., and St. Claire, Mo., is still in Arizona visiting with his wife and son.

Latest reports from his hospital are that John X. Quinn, MGM manager, is making splendid progress.

Jimmy Frisina, Springfield, Ill.; Ken Rought, Hewton, Ill.; Ed Clarke, Mattoon, Ill.; George Barber, Villa Grove, Ill., and Joe Goldfarb, Upper Alton, Ill., were seen along the Row this week.

Owen H. (Ollie) Blanchard, 67, who died recently at the City Hospital, was a former comedian and minstrel who at one time worked with his own show in a number of the early motion picture theatres. He recently returned from a tour of the USO Centers in the Middle West..

The recent annual meeting of the St. Louis Amusement Company was without incident. All directors and officers were re-elected. The company had a good year, it is understood.

Rex Williams, resident manager of the Loew's theatres, has now recovered sufficiently from injuries received in an automobile accident to spend an hour or so in his office.

Earl G. Vandiver, who operates the Palace and Ritz theatres in Kennett, Mo., dropped into PRC and signed up for the 1943-44 product 100 per cent.

Al Rosecan, owner of the Princess Theatre in South St. Louis, has dropped 24 pounds of excess poundage during the past 30 days. Al won a bet of $100 from a gymnasium friend by taking off more poundage than he did in the 30-day period.

SAN FRANCISCO

All precedents were shattered when San Francisco's conservative Chamber of Commerce, long recognized as one of America's "old line" organizations, elected B. V. Sturdivant, Fox-West Coast northern California division chief, to its board of directors. This is the first time the motion picture or theatrical industry has been accorded such recognition, and the move is interpreted in these parts as a public tribute to the "all-out" war effort of the entertainment field.

The Warfield, a downtown Fox-West Coast first-run and vaudeville house, has changed its policy from the regular pre-war schedule to the "open all night" one, which has already been adopted by three other downtown film houses, including the first-run Paramount, move-over-St. Francis, and second-run State. Since the Warfield is a combination house featuring a stage show and single picture, it was decided by the management to have the last stage performance at 10:30 p.m. and screen a double bill from 11:00 p.m. to 5:00 a.m. Other "open all nights" are Lippert's Studio Theatre, the Esquire and Telenews.

Lon Hoss, Universal Exchange manager here, is a very busy person these days. Just having hosted all the local circuits at a strictly invitation only trade showing of "Gung Ho!" and "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" at the Tivoli, Manager Hoss is now guesting W. A. Scully,

CLOSING OF BIG DEAL. Top officials of RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., and International Pictures, Inc., affix signatures to pact which calls for RKO Radio to distribute International's forthcoming product. Signing the pact is Leo Spitz, who with William Goetz (left, standing) formed International several months ago. Behind Spitz stands Charles W. WASHINGTON

Prominent Army, Navy and Marine Corps daughters were on the March of Dimes collection staff at the Earle Theatre. The junior group of the "Daughters of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps" volunteered to do their bit in the drive.

Branch Manager C. E. Peppiatt, 20th Century-Fox, spent a few days in New York. He also celebrated his birthday on February 1.

Margaret Duffy, clerk, left the Warner Bros. employ on Janary 29. Pearl Black is resigning from the contract department at Fox.

Tom Baldridge, MGM, has been out of town all week working on a bond tour. Nat Rosen, Fox booker, spent a week-end in New York recently.

High-ranking Navy officials were guests of the Earle Theatre on Friday night, January 28, to see Republic's "The Fighting Seabees." Jack Foxe, manager of the Loew's Columbia Theatre, takes honors as the first manager in the District of Columbia to sell "a bond for every seat."

Bill Brooker, Paramount exploiteer, was in to visit Warners' Frank La Falce, director of advertising and publicity, regarding Paramount's newest pictures, "Miracle of Morgan's Creek" and "No Time for Love."

Charles McGowan, contact manager at Warners, is back from Florida, with a nice pink complexion.

RKO's Mr. Breecheen went to Norfolk for the opening of Wilder Circuit's News Theatre, "The Center."

Checks totalling $1,000,000 were presented to Under Secretary of Treasury Daniel W. Bell by Henry P. Blair, president of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., in payment for the Fourth War Loan bonds and a ticket for the "Golden Chair" section at the Station WRC-Variety Club of Washington bond matinee of Ice-Capades, which was held at Uline's Arena on January 29.

Recently named to a Board of Visitors of eight welfare, civic, religious and educational leaders for Washington hospitals, was Rudy Berger, Washington and Charlotte district manager for MGM. Mr. Berger is former Chief Barker of the local Variety Club.

A family gathering was held in honor of Augustus C. Putnam, who celebrated his 78th birthday. Mr. Putnam is the father-in-law of William C. Ewing, assistant director of advertising and publicity at Warner Bros.

Gene McCurdy, from Baltimore, was in for a booking session at RKO.

The next meeting of the MGM Pep Club will be February 7.

Ivan Rosenbaum, neighborhood theatres, Richmond, was in for a booking meeting at RKO.

Norma Yehraus of MGM has announced her marriage to Roy Van Osdale of Mt. Ranier, Maryland.

J. J. Maloney, MGM division manager from Pittsburgh, was a caller at the local exchange.

Republic's Jake Flax of Washington, and Steve Edwards of New York were co-hosts with Warner Bros. at a cocktail party at the Willard Hotel, at which an identification bracelet was presented to Chief E. R. Saulnier, Seabee.

VANCOUVER

Odeon Theatres have purchased the Abbotsford Theatre, Abbotsford, B. C., from Wilf Little and Cornie Friesen. The price was $18,000. It is one of the oldest buildings in town, built 30 years ago. It seats 420. Abbotsford is 45 miles from Vancouver and three miles from the U. S. border, with a population of 550. Odeon will re-seat it, make changes in lobby and projection room, and install a modern heating unit. It's a one-man projectionist situation, and Friesen will stay on in the booth for Odeon. This gives Odeon 26 theatres in British Columbia.

The National War Labor Board has decided to allow an appeal of Famous Players circuit against a British Columbia Regional Board ruling which granted two-week vacations with pay to film theatre projectionists. The National Board decided to limit the holiday period to one week with pay. The original request by the projectionists' local, 348, was for two weeks with pay and increased cost of living bonus, or one week with pay plus double time for the six statutory holidays each year and an increased cost of living bonus. The BCRB decided to grant the two weeks with pay and dismissed the demands for the increased bonus, so F. P. are the winners as they offered the projectionists one week with pay.

The Vancouver Province has cut all advertising space by 15 per cent, based on the amount of linage used from month to month last year, the move being made to save newsprint. Theatres and all other advertisers are affected.

Bob Sparrow of the Plaza, Vancouver, staff is now the manager of the Rio Theatre, Ladysmith, Vancouver Island. This is an Odeon Circuit house taken over recently.

Sam Shapin, auditor for Warner Bros. from New York, spent a few days here checking the local branch, and leaves this week for Calgary.

Larry New, who was manager of the Grandview, Vancouver, before joniing the Navy, is now in the moving picture section of the Navy at Halifax, N. S.

$10,000 Contest Tops Press Book Stunts

A $10,000 award to the couple duplicating Betty Hutton's "miracle" in "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" during local runs of the Paramount comedy is suggested as one of the major stunts in the exploitation campaign outlined in the press book. The campaign book, prepared by the Paramount advertising department under the direction of R. M. Gillham, is just off the press.

The "miracle award" stunt is suggested as a "terrific town-talking teaser," with additional publicity to be obtained by the theatre insuring itself against the possibility of the "miracle" coming to pass—although chances are a million to one that it wouldn't happen.

The press book points out that it would be wise from a box-office standpoint to keep the surprise ending a secret, right up to the final showing, and to keep the public wondering what the Preston Sturges comedy is all about. The press book shows how to achieve both purposes effectively, with teaser stunts and ads provided carrying out this part of the campaign ingeniously.

Also included within its covers are money-making ideas, stunts and tie-ups, as well as cooperative advertising campaign. Local merchandising tieups are available on seven important nationally-advertised products, which are tied in with the picture in newspaper, magazine and billboard advertising.

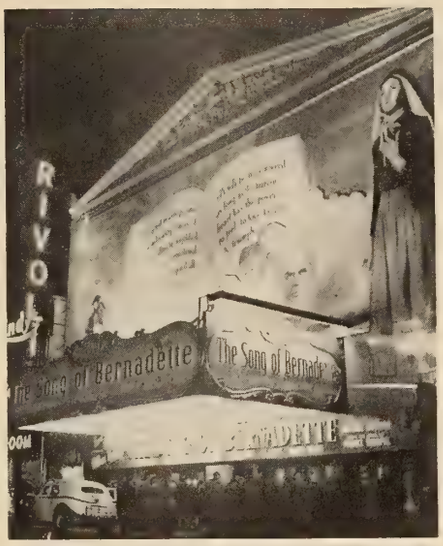
Extensive Trailer Campaign Used For 'Lady in the Dark' Premiere

One of the longest and most extensive trailer campaigns on record is being carried on locally by the Hollywood and downtown Paramount theatres in connection with the west coast world premiere February 9 of "Lady in the Dark."

Beginning Christmas week both houses began running the black-and-white advance trailer, which was supplanted by a 200-foot color trailer for two weeks. Two other color trailers, both of the maximum footage of 200 feet, are now running prior to the premiere.



Including one-frame teaser ads which were thrown on the screens early in December, Paramount audiences will have been reminded constantly of the premiere for a total of 61 days.

Carl Post Field Man for Warners in St. Louis Territory

Mort Blumenstock, in charge of Warner Bros. advertising and publicity in the East, has added Carl Post, formerly engaged in press work in various branches of the amusement world, to the field public relations staff in the Prairie territory.

With headquarters in the St. Louis exchange, Post will temporarily work with Don Walker, the Prairie District representative working out of Kansas City, while getting established with exhibitors, newspapers and other contacts in the St. Louis area.

In addition to representing Harry James and other bands and radio artists, and doing occasional motion picture field work, Post worked on the National Waste Paper Conservation Campaign.

Impressive Front for 'Bernadette'

Taken during the recent invitational preview, this scene shows how the New York Rivoli's facade and marquee have been designed to attract patrons to see 20th Century-Fox's "The Song of Bernadette." Note that figure of Bernadette is rightfully the dominating element of display.

Magazine Club Urges 'Jane Eyre' Support

The Good Housekeeping Club Service, an adjunct of the widely read magazine which carries great weight among millions of women, has prepared a special pamphlet on "Jane Eyre" and has distributed it to 22,000 women's clubs throughout the country.

The pamphlet carries a strong recommendation for the picture and urges the clubs to support it through the following activities:

1. Contact local theatre manager and learn "Jane Eyre" playdate.
2. Offer the cooperation of the Club in obtaining community support for the picture.
3. Put the Club's telephone chain to work on the picture—each member to telephone 10 people, asking them in turn to phone 10 more, and so on.
4. Review the novel in the Club in preparation for seeing the picture at the local theatre.
5. Enlist the support of the schools.
6. Arrange a library shelf of stills and copies of "Jane Eyre."

Cooperation Pays

President S. J. Gregory of the Alliance Circuit, Chicago, believes in cooperating with local educational and charitable institutions.

At Anderson, Indiana, Manager Herbert Sullivan of the State held a special showing of "Lassie Come Home" for the sisters of St. Mary's School.

At Marion, Manager Billy Connors of the Indiana always invites students of the School for the Blind to be his guests whenever a musical plays that house.

These tieups have won goodwill for circuit, Gregory declares.—Ch.

'Lost Angel' Given Strong Campaign by Jacoby in Altoona

An elaborate campaign was staged by Manager W. B. Jacoby of the State Theatre, Altoona, Pa., for the showing of "Lost Angel." Following is an itemized account of Jacoby's selling activities to aid you in planning your own campaign on the picture:

Screening. To get a cross-section audience whose opinions could be used in ads, a special screening was held for shop girls, doctors, lawyers, shop workers, etc. The brief quotes obtained from members of this preview audience were used not only in advance and current ads, but also in radio announcements and on a special board in a prominent store window. The board was headed by this copy: "This Is What Altoonians Think of Margaret O'Brien in 'Lost Angel'."

Newspaper Ads. Teaser ads were started ten days before playdate. Copy was changed daily. Other special advertising was used, including copy in the personal columns.

Classified and Poetry Contests. A classified ad contest was planted in the Tribune. Names were hidden among the ads. Those who found their names received guest tickets. A poetry contest was also planted. Readers were asked to write a four-line poem on "Lost Angel" or Margaret O'Brien. Winner received a four-week pass, while single passes went to runners-up. An editorial commending the film was published in the Tribune.

Radio. Starting ten days in advance, spot announcements were broadcast before and after important commercial programs.

Heralds. Two thousand heralds were stuffed in out-of-town newspapers delivered from house to house. Copy on each herald included many of the favorable comments received from guests at the screening.

Street Car Cards. This form of advertising was used in all transportation lines, including buses. The cards were seen by thousands of residents in outlying towns and helped considerably in spreading news of the engagement.

Teaser Placards. "Reward" teasers were spotted in dozens of shops. Cards measured 14x22. Idea was taken from exploitation section of the press book on "Lost Angel."

Fourth War Loan Tieup. Arrangements were made to have small cards placed in packages sold by leading merchants. Copy on the cards: "Don't be a 'Lost Angel.' Do Your Share and Support the Fourth War Loan Drive." A ballyhoo man also distributed the cards. He carried a bannered suitcase, stopped at street corners, opened the suitcase, took forth a quantity of the cards which he handed out to pedestrians.

Window Displays, Posting. Several windows were promoted. Twenty-four sheets, six-sheets, three-sheets and special cards were posted throughout Altoona.

Loudspeaker Airs Tunes

A radio program featuring Gershwin tunes and the installation of a loudspeaker atop the marquee to air the ear-catching score of "Girl Crazy" were accomplishments of Leon Robertson and Mark Jenkins of the Gillioz Theatre, Springfield, Mo.

Program Exchange

Two Souvenirs Accompany Request of Canadian for Sample of House Organs

Just to prove to you how busy showmen are with the Fourth War Loan bond drive: come with us to our program basket. Look closely. No, your eyes are not deceiving you: there is only one program. During previous bond drives the influx of programs has substantially subsided, but never in the history of the Program Exchange has it fallen as low as it is right now. We aren't fretting about it; on the contrary, as we pointed out last week, we believe it is an excellent indication that theatremen are deeply involved in the Fourth War Loan for the present; and along toward the end of the drive, and after it is over, these theatremen will resume forwarding programs to us.

We are in receipt of a letter from George J. Forhan of the Belle Theatre, Belleville, Ontario, Canada. Mr. Forhan desires some samples of programs as issued by the different managers here in the United States. We shall send him a few samples we have on hand, and as others come to our desk we intend to forward them to him later.

"Frankly," the Canadian exhibitor writes, "I regret that I have no program to exchange with any manager, as I have never issued a house program; but it is my intention to do so when the paper situation adjusts itself in Canada. My situation is going to need a house program to stimulate business, and I want to prepare for it now, as I have not used one."

Mr. Forhan encloses two souvenirs of Canada which we shall save for good luck. One is what he terms "a twenty-five-cent shin-plaster"—a twenty-five-cent bank note that is now out of circulation. The other is a Canadian nickel which looks as though it had been minted from gold but which is probably copper. Anyway, right now, while it's shiny and new, it looks like a gold piece, and we shall continue to imagine it as such until the newness has worn off and the coin shows its true color. That bank note fascinates us. We're not a collector of old coins and bills, but it wouldn't take much persuasion to start us off on the hobby. If bank notes were used for quarters and half-dollars these days it would reduce the jingling in our pockets. On the other hand, we might get these two-by-four notes mixed with other papers and lose them; so perhaps it's just as well that quarters and halves are minted. We want to thank Mr. Forhan for his kindness and thoughtfulness, and wish to assure him that we shall preserve the souvenirs.

And now—since we have no program on which to comment—what shall we comment about? Well, for one thing, there's the weather, which must always have its place in the Program Exchange. It's still too warm for January. Surely it won't be long until we have invigorating frigid temperatures once more. This torrid 36-degree weather today makes us lethargic; we amble slowly down the street, huffing and puffing and perspiring 'neath our red flannels, woolen suit and heavy woolen overcoat. Cold weather would make us move faster; we could get to various destinations quicker and thus save time. For the life of us, we can't see how people in torrid climates—such as Texas—get things done. We shall expect a deluge of protests from the Lone Star State, headed by Jack Jackson, a true Texan if there ever was one.

What are you doing about the Fourth War Loan in your programs? Are you giving the drive proper significance? Are you announcing your bond premieres, bond auctions, bond rallies? Are you enclosing bond application blanks with the programs you mail to patrons, and are you giving these blanks with the programs you hand out to patrons at theatres?

Are you using cover illustrations appropriate to the occasion? Are you using slogans? Are you taking advantage of your program to call attention to bond promotions during special days and special weeks? If your program is useful in promoting your regular attractions, surely it can be useful in generating and maintaining interest in the Fourth War Loan. And remember, we'd still like to see what you're doing along this line, so send your program(s) to the Program Exchange Editor, SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW, 1501 Broadway, New York 18, N. Y.

If you are not now using a program, why not consider a small four-page tabloid. With stories and scene mats taken from the press book, with items obtained from your newspaper editor (who probably receives more Hollywood material than he can use), and with a little make-up ingenuity on your part, you should be able to bring forth an eye-arresting house organ. Try making up such a program. We think you'll find it an enjoyable job, and one that should be productive.

Well, we shall stop here; but look for us in this space again next week. Incidentally, if any of our Program Exchange members in the armed forces read these lines, we'd like to hear from them, if it is at all possible.

Newspaper Ad Tieup Set for 'Destination Tokyo' in Key Cities

Under a tieup arranged by Warner Bros. with Electric Boat Company, "Destination Tokyo" will get the benefit of some unusual exploitation through the medium of newspaper ads occupying nearly a full page in leading newspapers of principal cities.

First ad in the series has appeared in the New York World-Telegram, coincident with the New York Strand engagement of "Tokyo." Layout includes a group of stills from the film, in addition to plugs for the production and mention the film, in addition to plugs for the production and mention of the Broadway engagement.

A similar ad is set for Collier's.

Hoodlums Displaying Tricks to Audience is Cure for Vandalism

Versatile theatreman Leonard Kraska (STR, Jan. 29, p. 16) of the Dorchester, located in a Boston suburb, has apparently solved the juvenile delinquency problem.

Cornering the leader of the local hoodlum element, Kraska complimented him on his gang's hidden talents, appealed to the youth's ego by inviting the boys to display their talents at one of Kraska's weekly amateur shows. Condition for the gang's personal appearance: all vandalism, rowdiness was to stop immediately, and the boys were to act as policemen to make sure that no new group continued the work these hoodlums had already begun.

The leader and his gang went for the stunt like the proverbial "ton of bricks," and now there is no more vandalism in the Dorchester Theatre or the surrounding district. Since the hoodlums displayed their talents several weeks ago, there has not been a single case of vandalism, no defacing of walls, no slashed seats, no nothing.

Says Kraska: "I've got my finger crossed and hope my little angels don't suddenly turn into little devils, but frankly, I'm not worried much. They like the idea of some authority; they like the idea of being trusted. Maybe that's why they are now monitors instead of embryonic yeggmen."—Bo.

Salvage Drive Boosts Film

Sid Holland, manager of the Palace Theatre, Akron, Ohio, landed a lot of extra newspaper publicity for "What a Woman!" when he tied in with the local papers and arranged a waste paper matinee for kids. Every boy or girl who delivered at least ten pounds of paper were admitted free to see the picture.

Screening Earns Film Editorial

As the result of a private screening of "None Shall Escape," Manager Irving Cooper of the Palace Theatre, Stamford, Conn., landed a highly laudatory editorial in the Stamford Advocate before the picture opened in town.

Watchful Policy Urged on Front-of-House Operation

Showman Keene Advances Pertinent Suggestions on Regulations for Cashiers, Doormen

By Lionel Keene

There's nothing an interested manager can't correct . . . so, in my meanderings about town, I have jotted down a few observations that may prove helpful in enabling you to have as perfect a pre-war operation as present conditions will permit.

Let's start at the box-office . . . that's the patron's first introduction to theatre . . . don't forget to hang up your admission price sign . . . and the right prices. Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it . . . who would forget it? Well, you'd be surprised! Keep a Time Schedule of your Current program in an inexpensive frame with a detachable back (you can purchase one in the 5c and 10c store) in full view of the public . . . for their and your ready reference.

When that telephone rings, it doesn't cost anything extra to say: "Good afternoon . . . or evening . . . as the case may be . . . Atlanta Theatre." And be sure, if it is an inquiry as to the running time of your program, you give the correct information. A person usually asks . . . "what time is your next show?" Answer something like this: "The feature picture is now showing and will be over at 6:45 p.m. The next complete show will start at 6:45 p.m. Thank you." There is nothing more annoying than to be given a time for the next show or next feature, and arrive at the theatre only to find the picture has already started.

And for further courtesy, remember . . . if a person presents a pass . . . treat it the same as you do a cash sale . . . from the very manner in which you handle the transaction leave the person with the feeling the management is sincere in its welcome by adding: "Glad to have you" when you hand out the pass coupons. With every ticket sale, don't forget . . . "Thank you," and that goes for the ticket-taker too!!! If you use a ticket machine, be sure it is not only polished daily . . . but is oiled regularly. They're next to impossible to replace today . . . and spare parts are scarce.

Keep Inventory of Tickets

This reminds me . . . do you keep an inventory of your tickets, and mark down alongside the starting number of the roll or pack the date it is put in service? A record of the kind enables you at any time . . . at a glance . . . to know when it is time to re-order tickets. Remember, with the shortage of manpower, the ticket printing companies are unable to give you the same quick service as has been their custom . . . so allow yourself sufficient time for replacement. It is not a bad idea either to have a multitude of colors of all admission prices for frequent switching. It does this for you: keeps your employes honest . . . enables your doorman to recognize an old ticket at a glance. Further, with the "junior" inexperienced ticket takers, who are not always on the job as you would ike them to be, with business as good as it is today in most theatres, the doorman does not collect all the tickets . . . and it is human nature for a person to present the ticket for a second time, especially if they are aware the color is the same as those in use. So, if you do not put a stop to this practice, not only do you lose additional revenue, but Uncle Sam is deprived of the Theatre Admission Tax he needs so much these days.

Of course, you are aware such a "chiseler" is subject to Federal prosecution should a government agent "spot" him. This recalls an annoyance I experienced of "teen age" folks "crashing the gate" . . . of those who would buy one ticket, then open the exit door at the farthest end of the theatre to let their pals in free. I ran a trailer regularly offering a cash reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person evading payment of the government tax on admissions, which was a polite way of letting the miscreants know we were wise to them. It was also a means of letting "our friends" who had "free entree" know they should stop by the box-office and pay the government tax. We indirectly spread word about the neighborhood that we had installed a camera with an "electric eye" which photographed each individual who attempted to pass the doorman without a ticket, and that the photographs were turned over to the Federal authorities. It worked miracles! FBI are magic letters to use to relieve petty and "smart-aleck" annoyances.

Another policy inaugurated was to furnish the ticket taker with a card, the size of a calling or business card, which he attached on top of his ticket box, giving the opening numbers and colors of the tickets in use for the day so he could check numbers on tickets presented to enable him to pick up any old numbers: those being used a second time.

Here's another: It is the policy of most theatres to tear a ticket in half, drop one half in the box and return the other half to the patron. I found it necessary to retain both halves, for patrons would request permission to go to the corner drug store, or even to the concession stand in the lobby. I soon found that a great many of these "teen agers" did this following a complete show: go to the corner drug store, give their ticket stub to another "teen ager" who, if questioned by the doorman, would claim he had been in the show, but had just gone to the corner store for a moment. This resulted in a cash loss of an admission and again deprived Uncle Sam of his Federal Tax. Retaining both halves of the ticket turned the trick, and reduced the number of patrons who had "personal business" at the "corner store."

The kids even acquired the habit of asking the doorman permission to visit the concession stand in the lobby . . . for fear, in the absence of a ticket stub, they might not be able to get back in the theatre.

Another nuisance quickly corrected was the habit of young men and women of the neighborhood using box-office telephone for "social calls," holding up the line for sometimes as long as half an hour, keeping persons at home who wanted to call the theatre for information. A card was placed in full view in the box-office stating: "Phone Calls 5c." If the cashier was requested by a child, or even a grown-up, permission to use the telephone to let the folks at home know they were ready to be called for at the theatre, we were glad to extend the courtesy, especially in inclement weather. Restrictions were placed on theatre employes, particularly the cashier, on use of the telephone for long-drawn-out, unnecessary personal calls. I suggest you have a late telephone directory hanging on a hook in the box-office for ready reference for your patrons and staff.

To continue . . . if and when business is good . . . remove some of the receipts several times during the afternoon and evening . . . and place the money in your safe . . . so if there should be a "hold-up" . . . your loss will be a minor one. And when your cashier closes the box-office, be there and carry the money bag while she "totes" the tickets and other box-office records. Just a precaution that pays!

And, too, look in the nooks and corners of the floor of the box-office for any change that may have been accidentally dropped during the day's operation. Cashiers sometimes have something else on their mind at the moment . . . possibly a date . . . or are just plain tired . . . and overlook doing this. Many times I have found loose change left on the box-office floor, or in the drawer under money wrappers . . . and even in the drawer of the popcorn machine.

Speaking of money wrappers, your cashier can save you time if she will have all change wrapped before the end of the day's business. Then, it is a good plan to close the box-office door and see that it's locked when the cashier leaves for the day. As a matter of fact, insist that your cashier keep the box-office door closed and locked during the period of operation and never open it except on an agreed signal . . . a safety measure against possible hold-up. And make it a rule that at no time will anyone except an authorized person be permitted in the box-office while the cashier is on duty. Any business to be transacted by lesser employes should be through the front. There is nothing that reflects poor management so obviously than an employe (other than an authorized person, usually the manager or his assistant) or "friend" standing in the box-office conversing with the cashier. Don't forget, your box-office is your "First Line of Defense."

If you sell war stamps, be certain the supply is constantly replenished . . . and that your cashier handles a war stamp transaction just as carefully and as courteously as she would the sale of a ticket. She is contributing to the war effort in encouraging purchasers to return to your theatre for their war stamp savings and making a friend for the theatre so that when they think of the "movies," they'll think of you. Keep a five-cent memo book of your daily sales of war stamps. It is interesting to follow, and enables you to determine on sight just how many stamps of each denomination you must purchase to replenish the supply. And let your patrons know you sell war stamps through appropriate stickers on your box-office glass, and through a film trailer. It is your patriotic duty!

Double-Check Cashier Daily

Once out of the box-office and in the manager's office, have your cashier complete the daily statement . . . it would be a time saver if she completes the matinee figures (usually up to 6 p.m.) on her return from supper. You double-check her daily . . . finding it correct . . . with all essential information filled in, such as opposition pictures, etc. I've always followed the rule of discouraging the completion of the day's statement while the cashier is on duty in the box-office . . . even though she may find time for it . . . as the smarter ones, should they be so inclined, can very easily check their money, and if they find they are over pocket the difference without your knowledge. In instances where you find the cashier is very seldom over . . . and more often short . . . make up your mind you're not getting all that is due you, as it is human to err. Keep another five-cent memo book of daily shortages and overages . . . let it be known you will make up any shortages out of the overages . . . if there is sufficient overage . . . that, otherwise, the cashier will be responsible for any shortages. It is well also to have your cashier sign an application for bond, even though you do not actually bond her. At least, she will have the impression she is bonded and, consequently, will be honest.

Assuming the Daily Statement is now checked, and double-checked . . . and the money is cor-

A PRACTICAL SELLING CAMPAIGN for SHOWMEN

Jane Eyre

A 20th Century-Fox Picture

Directed by Robert Stevenson

Starring

ORSON WELLES
as Edward Rochester

JOAN FONTAINE
as Jane Eyre

The very nature of this picture stamps it as a class attraction. As such "Jane Eyre" requires a carefully considered campaign if the ultimate in results is to be realized on its engagement at your theatre. It is a truly great story, an autobiography by the celebrated Charlotte Bronte which has been reprinted in forty-three editions in the United States alone. Given the added spark of life on the screen it is a memorable emotional experience for all who see it. Irresistibly, "Jane Eyre" will capture the plaudits of press and public most of whom are already aware of its coming to the screen through the medium of national advertising in 21 important magazines with 90,000,000 readers. It becomes your single property the moment it is bought and with you rests the opportunity of making it one of the outstanding box-office pictures of the year. We submit the following suggestions and information for your guidance if and when you play the picture.

BILLING

The very fact that such widespread national advertising has been employed makes it advisable to cash in on this asset. The wide readership of the book also makes the title, "Jane Eyre," important. In order to make the picture stand out, why not sock the title home with large block-letter posters? Shout what, where and when in the old circus fashion. As a tag line in small type you might add, "See It from the Beginning" as it is that kind of a picture. This idea is worth consideration as the keynote of the entire campaign. If you are already using block paper try a new color scheme or reverse block, or print the title vertically reading from top to bottom in two columns. Above all take a different approach than is customary to command attention.

SPECIAL HERALDS

The picture will elicit raves from all who see it and for this reason it is an ideal production to screen for a private group of prominent citizens whose word bears weight in your situation. Editors, critics, educators, librarians (skip the clergymen), secretaries to several prominent executives, several 5 & 10 clerks, a few male and female defense workers—in other words a representative cross section of opinion—and have them write their comments in brief with permission for publication. Print these comments as a special herald with names and titles using a cover caption, "What Boomtown people say about 'Jane Eyre'." Give these heralds a back cover stressing "See It from the Beginning," with show times specified. A personal note might point up the importance of this angle by saying that: "It is the consensus of opinion that this fine story must be seen from the very start to be most enjoyed. Having seen it myself, I am convinced of this fact and urge all who enjoy fine drama, moving love romance and great pictorial beauty to see this great screen play from the beginning.

This may be an old stunt but it will cause comment and place the show in a sort of special "must see" category. Give these heralds widespread distribution.

TIEUPS

Plenty of book store windows are ready and waiting with special display material on this picture, including drug stores where books are sold. Fashion tie-ups on a national scale are covered with stills, mats, etc., in the press book. If your newspaper will go for the pictorial serialization you may be able to promote banners on their delivery trucks plugging "Jane Eyre." You may be able to get a co-op page with eight advertisers on a jumbled title stunt with one big letter of the title in each ad. You can always fall back on the Jane Eyre Rose, Sundae, Hat, etc., stunt to grab windows or counter displays.

EXPLOITATION

This picture calls for dignified treatment, which excludes ballyhoo or any street stunts that might detract. We would recommend that exploitation be confined to the usual channels which permit class effect without sacrifice of "smash" effect.

LOBBY DISPLAY

Naturally, the book becomes the central motif for all displays. A giant book with the characters stepping from the pages with their identity specified will be ideal where space and art shop facilities permit. The "kiss" stills shown in mat form as a series of five in the press book are, for our money, the outstanding pictorial material available on this picture. They express the deep romantic emotion on which the story is built and avoid the costume angle. They would be most effective if enlarged for display either as a sequence or individually.

For the front of the theatre the title itself will work out fine as giant cut-out letters, since there are only eight characters to deal with and two words with an equal number of letters allowing for balanced, flexible placement. Sock the title across in all your displays so that they can see "Jane Eyre" no matter where they look. Illuminate the cut-out letters with pig-tail sockets if you have them available as it only means eight letters to wire and is a most effective gag if you haven't done it for some time.

RADIO

Build an advance teaser campaign for spot announcements using words from the book as spoken by each character: "I am Jane Eyre." "I am Edward Rochester," etc. See press book for elaboration on this idea. Another approach would be to have a male and female announcer read the comment cards of men and women who attended the screening.

NEWSPAPERS

Since the title is pre-sold, advance teasers in bold type are in order as follows: (1) Coming . . . (2) Coming . . . "Jane . . . (3) Coming . . . "Jane Eyre" . . . (4) Coming "Jane Eyre" The Greatest Emotion Picture of the Year (5) Coming . . . Go into your routine with a first advance ad and follow through.

You may find it practical to use the screening comments of local people as the basis for a large advance ad using a smash border out of the newspaper mat service which is free to advertisers.

After your opening, use an "Acclaimed by Last Night's Audience . . . etc." ad to tell the readers how they praised it and use a local comment in each day's ad during the run of the picture. Keep hitting that "See It from the Beginning" line in all copy. Persuade the book reviewer to do a column on the manner in which the book was transposed on the screen. Play up the book in all ads.

FINAL TIP

See the picture for yourself and you will become sufficiently enthused to make this one click for all it's worth . . . and that's plenty.

Watchful Policy is Urged in Operation Of Front of House

rect . . . have the cashier prepare her daily and hourly reports for the next day's business. I haven't previously dwelt on the hourly report . . . but it occurs to me, if you do not keep one daily, you are passing up a record of value . . . one that may be helpful to you at some future time in deciding an issue. For instance, when the Public School System inaugurated later openings and closings, I watched the daily hourly reports to determine what, if any, effect it might have on business . . . and as a result, changed the opening time from 3 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., which meant a saving of one-half hour operator's pay . . . cost of light and power . . . and fitted in better with the time of the employes, who were students. Atlanta's change to Eastern time affected late night business . . . so a 10:30 p.m. closing was instituted, replacing the former 11 p.m. curtain . . . another half hour saving, determined from the hourly reports, requiring fewer short subjects for the day, resulting in a saving of film rental.

What arrangement have you for being sure you benefit from any money that may be taken up at the door from late patrons who attend after the cashier has closed up for the day? If this is not regulated, you could be missing out on quite a little revenue. I made it a rule that the doorman should immediately contact the manager, or his assistant, and purchase the desired number of admissions, the manager placing the change in the cashier's money box to be included in the next day's business. See that your cashier forms the habit of counting her change each day before starting the sale of tickets and reporting to you any discrepancy immediately. Then, if there should be a shortage at the end of the day, she has no "comeback" that someone may have trifled with the "change" before she opened the box-office.

Here's a final suggestion. There are days of the week . . . mostly afternoons, when time hangs heavy for the cashier, so that if you have any odds and ends, such as making up passes for the week or keeping easy records you may desire, she can do it, keep occupied and out of mischief. I always managed to find something for my cashier to do for me, and she enjoyed doing it, as it acquainted her with various phases of the business . . . and made the day seem shorter. If you haven't experienced it, you'd find it very tiresome sitting in a crowded box-office for so many hours at a stretch when business is nil and no traffic of interest passing by the theatre.

On the subject of passes. So many persons in one community were accustomed to theatre courtesies, it was a problem to reduce them without offense. Finally, a service fee of 10c per person was hit upon, copied from a downtown first-run who had the policy in effect. It's a funny thing, but the fellow who had been in the habit of abusing the "pass privilege" by bringing with him not only his family but whatever friends might be visiting, and depositing at the box-office only the actual federal tax, stopped coming altogether when he found it cost 10c per person, and even went out of his way to criticize the management for its new Pass Policy.

Dead Ringer for 'Lassie'

Exploitation for "Lassie Come Home" by C. P. Spencer of the Capitol Theatre, Hamilton, Ontario, included the rounding up of a dog which was a dead ringer for the film canine and having the animal led around town by a young man built along the same general lines as Roddy McDowall.

Promotional Activities Boost 'Fighting Seabees' in Chicago

An elaborate promotion centered about a Seabee home on leave after active service in the Mediterranean was employed by Edwin Silverman and Norman Kassel of Essaness Theatres to boost the Chicago engagement of "The Fighting Seabees" in its premiere at the Woods Theatre, where the production opened recently.

Through the cooperation of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, U. S. N., Seabee Paul A. Gerts was chosen to represent Chicago at Republic's national reception at the Hotel Astor in New York City, where a group of Seabees representing twenty-six states was honored. His selection for this appearance received coverage in the Chicago News, Sun, and Tribune.

Gerts was feted at a press preview and reception at the Blackstone Hotel, which was attended by the newspaper and radio press and high-ranking Naval officers. The Herald-American carried a story on the reception, tied in with the Woods opening, and the News also carried a story about the reception.

Gerts visited Mayor Edward J. Kelly, who presented him with a Seabee identification bracelet, and this event received picture coverage in the Times, Sun, and Tribune.

Gerts broadcast on the Treasury Hour, broadcast over WGN, and heard over 140 stations of the Mutual network on January 19th. His appearance took place at Treasury Corner before the vast crowds which are attracted to this spot.

He also appeared at a Bond Rally at Sears-Roebuck Western Avenue store, and addressed the meeting, with mention of "The Fighting Seabees."

Excellent newspaper coverage was obtained in the Chicago press. Advance coverage included a big photo splash in a Story in Pictures in the Little Theatre section of the Sunday Tribune and the Sunday Herald-American, as well as an entire Kup's Column in the Times, which mentioned theatre and playdate.

A special screening for Navy personnel was held.

Trailers advertising "The Fighting Seabees" ran in every one of the twenty-eight Essaness neighborhood theatres, announcing the opening at the Woods Theatre. These trailers were continued throughout the engagement. A trailer was used at the Woods itself for two weeks prior to the opening.

A special giant-size lobby piece proved an advance attention-getter for two weeks prior to the opening. For the same period, a 24-sheet was posted on the east wall of the Woods.

A special Seabee flag was hung from the theatre attraction board, and could be seen from State Street on the east and the City Hall on the west.

In a tieup with Robbins Music Corporation, publishers of Song of the Seabees, this song, used in the film, was plugged by local bands. A window in a local music store heralded the engagement, and was retained during the run.

There were two 15-minute broadcasts over Hal Tate's Variety Show, and radio spots were used on all major stations.

The advertising campaign included 1500 additional lines of newspaper advertising in the Herald-American, Sun, Tribune, News and Times. Radio spot announcements were used on Stations WMAQ, WBBM, WGN, WENR, WIND, WJJD, and WAIT. A full showing of 24-sheets and 250 3-sheets heralded the engagement and remained posted during the run.

Seabee Paul A. Gerts, on leave after active service in the Mediterranean, speaks at a war bond rally at Sears Roebuck in Chicago. Seabee Gerts represented that city at New York's reception at the Hotel Astor, and returned to Chicago for a press preview and reception there in connection with Republic's "Fighting Seabees," which opened at Woods last month.

'Guadalcanal Diary' Exploited by Stearn

"A wonderful increase in business" is the way Manager Harry D. Stearn of Schine's Manring Theatre, Middlesboro, Ky., describes the result of his exploitation campaign on "Guadalcanal Diary."

Stearn promoted gratis a large five-column feature mat in the Daily News, also made a tieup with that newspaper whereby 2500 copies of a roto herald were inserted in copies of the local publication and distributed by newsboys.

But let Stearn continue the report:

"We had a well rounded-out campaign, using 12 still standees from the 20th Century-Fox exchange and distributing all of them to our best merchants who gave us front-window displays. We had a special lobby front made up that covered the complete inside front of our lobby and box-office. We used large four-foot cutout letters on the title and a large six-sheet cutout of 'the kid.' Used a six-foot letter stencil under the marquee on the sidewalk, and a smaller stencil was used on street corners throughout the town. Fifty one-sheets were distributed to all local mining camps and to surrounding towns. One hundred window cards were placed in store windows throughout Middlesboro.

"Our best attention-getter was a gun promoted from a local young man who received it from somewhere in the South Pacific. It is a Japanese gun captured from the Japanese army and sent on to this boy. The peculiar part of it is that it is a Kelly-Springfield rifle made here in the United States for the Japanese government. We were able to promote this gun and put it on display two weeks in advance of the picture's opening. There was very heavy traffic in the lobby to look it over while the theatre was open."

McKenna Uses Magazine Tieup

George McKenna, manager, and Bill Brerton, publicist, of the Lafayette Theatre, Buffalo, picked up the "What a Woman!"-Woman's Magazine tie-up as suggested in the Columbia pressbook and made arrangements for the local wholesale magazine distributor to banner his five trucks with copy selling the picture and the contest. In addition, 150 specially printed 16x17 cards were tacked on as many dealers' newsstands.

enough for top billing in sections where the young bobby-sock trade prevails. Miss Davis continues to evoke laughter with her antics; Jane Frazee and Judy Clark take care of the vocalizing quite well and John Hubbard is okay as the lead in the show they put on. Good direction by Charles Barton and the production elements of Irving Briskin make this a filmusical that will attract considerable attention. Go after the youngster and adolescent trade and arrange radio plugs, using the Joan Davis name and the playing of the recordings from the picture.

The Sullivans

20th Century-Fox Biographical 111 mins.

(Block 7—Nat'l Release—February)

AUDIENCE SLANT: A skillful combination of tender warmth, delightful humor and irresistible appeal makes "The Sullivans" a thoroughly enjoyable and entertaining picture, and one to be long remembered.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: The public's familiarity with the incident on which it is based, plus word-of-mouth praise, should make this a valuable box-office property. Pointing up the entertainment elements mentioned above in your advertising should bring best results.

Plot: This story of the Sullivans begins with the births of the five sons, tells of their family life, of the acquisition of their first dog, of their quarrels among themselves, of the romance of the youngest son. When the Pearl Harbor infamy is flashed on the air, the boys decide to join the Navy. The Secretary of the Navy grants their wish to be together. The boys are shipped to the Pacific. Later a recruiting officer brings the shocking news that all five sons have been killed in the battle of the Solomons. Months later, the U.S.S. Sullivans is launched. Mrs. Sullivan, who christens the ship, realizes that her sons still sail the seas as long as the ship bearing their name is on the water.

Comment: Producer Sam Jaffe, Director Lloyd Bacon, Scenarist Mary C. McCall, Jr. —in fact, all who had a hand in bringing to the screen this true and extraordinarily fine story deserve the highest praise. News of the Sullivan tragedy months ago shocked and saddened the nation, and the circumstances were so unusual that some producer was certain to transfer it to the screen. Picturizations of true-life incidents have not always been happy, since in many cases the tendency has been to turn out a mediocre film in order to capitalize on the publicity of the incident. Not so with "The Sullivans." Those connected with the making of this picture have imbued it with a skillful combination of tender warmth, delightful humor and irresistible human appeal that makes the picture, as a whole, one to be long remembered. One is visibly moved by the climax—handkerchiefs will dry many a tear—but there is coupled with this sorrow a warm and exalted feeling of admiration for the sacrifice the Sullivans made for their country. And there is the feeling, too, of having witnessed a thoroughly enjoyable and entertaining picture. The scenes of the Sullivans' youth, the acquisition of their first dog, the sailing of their "boat" along the river near their home, their bungling efforts to build a coal box, their first experience with smoking—all of these incidents will recall childhood memories to the spectator, and they'll bring forth spontaneous laughter. No less appealing are the scenes of adolescence; of the younger Sullivans first love, his dance date with her, the first kiss, the introduction to the family, the breakup caused by the kidding of the elder brothers, the reconciliation and marriage. One could go on pointing out the situations in this film that leave their mark in one's memory. No fictionized story, no effort of Saroyan or Wilder could better convey a family's laughter, joys and heartaches than this true-life story of real people. Thomas Mitchell and Selena Royle enact the elder Sullivans convincingly and with deep feeling, while Edward Ryan, John Campbell, James Cardwell, John Alvin and George Offerman, Jr., as the five Sullivans grown to manhood, must be as near carbon copies of the real Sullivans as any five other American boys could be. Lloyd Bacon's direction is flawless. "The Sullivans" should prove a richly entertaining screen experience for moviegoers across the land, and the public's familiarity with the incident on which it is based, plus word-of-mouth praise, should make it a valuable box-office property. In exploiting it, care should be taken to point up the heart-warming story, with its laughter, romance and irresistible down-to-earth appeal.

The Crime Doctor's Strangest Case

Columbia Mystery 66 mins.

(Nat'l Release, Dec. 19th, 1943)

AUDIENCE SLANT: (Adult) Another "Crime Doctor" mystery that will be satisfactory entertainment for the whodunit fans.

BOX-OFFICE SLANT: Standard programmer that will fit either end of a dual showing.

Cast: Warner Baxter, Lynn Merrick, Gloria Dickson, Barton MacLane, Jerome Cowan, Reginald Denny, Rose Hobart, Virginia Brissac. Lloyd Bridges, Constance Worth, Thomas E. Jackson, Sam Flint. Credits: Directed by Eugene J. Forde. Story and screenplay by Eric Taylor. Based on the radio program, "Crime Doctor," by Max Marcin. Director of photography, James S. Brown. Produced by Rudolph C. Flothow.

Plot: Called in to solve the murder of a wealthy retired real estate operator, Warner Baxter finds the home filled with relatives. Suspected of the crime is a young ex-convict who had been tried for a similar murder. The sleuth clears up the old and the new mystery.

Comment: This is another of the mystery thrillers which Columbia is making from the radio stories, "Crime Doctor." It is a standard filler that will fit either end of a dual showing. Very unpretentious, in spite of the Warner Baxter name, it is just another whodunit that won't make too much of an impression wherever seen. Warner Baxter in his role of the sleuth, Dr. Ordway, turns in his usual capable performance, while Lynn Merrick and Lloyd Bridges are okay as the couple he aids out of a murder-rap. Though the picture gets off to a slow start, Eugene Forde, the director, manages to keep it moving once the characters are introduced. Rudolph C. Flothow has taken care of the production reins capably.

RCA Victor and UA Join in Promotion of Record Album, Film

RCA Victor and United Artists have joined forces in an elaborate promotional and publicity campaign designed to mutually promote Victor's album of Smetana's The Moldau, as performed by the National Symphony Orchestra with Hans Kindler conducting, and U. A.'s forthcoming film, "Voice in the Wind," starring Francis Lederer and Sigrid Gurie.

Lending itself to the joint promotion campaign is the fact that The Moldau figures prominently in the story, the music and plot being woven together to make an unusual mystery-melodrama of mass appeal.

With arrangements still to be completed on at least one other contemplated large-scale promotion, plans already in the work call for mutual exploitation through record dealer and theater exhibitor tieups, window and lobby displays, posters, banners, special stickers, radio, ads, and various publicity media.

The local record dealer-exhibitor tieup calls for reciprocal plugs, the dealer's display drawing attention to the film at the theatre and the lobby display devoting space to the album available at the dealer's shop.

Victor dealers are being supplied quantities of display streamers themed around the Hans Kindler album and the film. In addition, dealers will have a striking three-color sticker to be affixed to the album wrapper to identify it with "Voice in the Wind." Photos of the film stars are featured on the sticker.

In another unusual arrangement, United Artist press books will carry a double-page spread on the film and album tieup, with suggestions for cooperative advertising-publicity programs by the local film exhibitors and record dealers. Backing this up, field forces of the film distributing company will work closely with Victor distributors throughout the country.

On March 14, Victor's "Music You Want" spot program, broadcast over 55 stations throughout the country, will feature The Moldau and the tiein with "Voice in the Wind."

Prominent play is being given to the promotion campaign in the Victor Record News, widely-circulated record dealer publication. The Victor Record Review, Red Seal publication with a heavy circulation among record buyers, will also join in the campaign.

According to Wilma Freeman, United Artists promotion manager, this is the first time a film has been promoted principally on its music content.

Columnist Comments on Stunts Used by Selette in Nashua

In his column, "Take It From Me," Neal O'Hara made the following observation recently in the Boston Traveler.

"Service is what the Colonial Theatre of Nashua, N. H., offers its patrons. It advertises that mothers may not only attend matinees and park their baby carriages, but it affords a refrigerator to patrons who've been shopping and wish to keep such articles as butter, meats and perishables cold while they go in and look at the movie."

Naturally, Manager Eddie Selette was pleasantly surprised when he saw the item.

Pulcipher's Coca-Cola Tieup

Jessee Pulcipher, publicity director of Loew's Capitol Theatre, Washington, D. C., tied up with the local Coca-Cola dealer to distribute 700 two-color (red and blue) window and soda fountain strips on "Lost Angel."

Pin-up picture for the man who "can't afford" to buy an extra War Bond!

YOU'VE heard people say: "I can't afford to buy an extra War Bond." Perhaps you've said it yourself . . . without realizing what a ridiculous thing it is to say to men who are dying.

Yet it is ridiculous, when you think about it. Because today, with national income at an all-time record high . . . with people making more money than ever before . . . with less and less of things to spend money for . . . practically every one of us has extra dollars in his pocket.

The very least that you can do is to buy an extra $100 War Bond . . . above and beyond the Bonds you are now buying or had planned to buy.

In fact, if you take stock of your resources, and check your expenditures, you will probably find that you can buy an extra $200 . . . or $300 . . . or even $500 worth of War Bonds.

Sounds like more than you "can afford?" Well, young soldiers can't afford to die, either . . . yet they do it when called upon. So is it too much to ask of us that we invest more of our money in War Bonds . . . the best investment in the world today? Is that too much to ask?

Let's all BACK THE ATTACK!

DRAGON SEED (MGM) Drama. Principals: Katharine Hepburn, Walter Huston, Aline MacMahon, Turhan Bey, Akim Tamiroff. Director, Jack Conway. Plot: It is the story of Jade, who thirsts for the knowledge in books, realizes that without freedom her nation cannot survive, and becomes a dynamic leader in the fight against Japanese brutality and tyranny; of her romance with a farmer's son; of another philosophical, kindly and peace loving Chinese farmer rising to the bitter challenge of a world at war; of a traitor, who sells out his people to the Japanese; of Chinese guerrillas fighting the Japanese with their bare hands; of an aroused country-side in flames as the farmers burn their farms and crops to ravage the good earth they love so that it will be useless to the hated Japs.

INVISIBLE MAN'S REVENGE (Univ.) Horror. Principals: Jon Hall, Alan Curtis, Evelyn Ankers, Leon Errol, John Carradine, Gale Sondergaard. Director, Ford Beebe. Plot: To get his share of an estate, a young, cured victim of amnesia, resorts to invisibility to terrify the present owners into making a new will. His scheme works, but he is forced to kill the scientist who experimented on him in order to get back his visible state. He becomes a member of the household he expects will be his, but pays for his crime when the scientist's dog tracks him down and kills him.

MAN FROM FRISCO (Rep.) Drama. Principals: Michael O'Shea, Anne Shirley, Ray Walker, Gene Lockhart, Tommy Bond. Director, Robert Florey. Plot: A rough, tough engineer is sent to handle the construction of pre-fabricated ships in a quiet, industrious town. Superintendent at the yard is a master craftsman, the fourth generation in his family to hold the position. Trouble starts as soon as the new man takes over, so he is forced to bring in outside workers. To avoid a slow down, he finally decides to quit, leaving town right after the launching of a new ship . . . with the master craftsman's daughter by his side.

MR. CO-ED (MGM) Comedy. Principals: Red Skelton, Esther Williams, Basil Rathbone, Donald Meek, Jean Porter, Carlos Ramirez, Harry James, Xavier Cugat. Director, George Sidney. Plot: In Mexico City, supposedly writing tunes for a forthcoming Broadway musical, a young tunesmith is romancing with a shapely collegienne. To win her hand, he even follows her back to college where he becomes the only male student there. The producer of the show tries to break up the affair, but nothing works. The boy wins the girl after he helps her put on a water carnival for the college.

ROAD TO UTOPIA (Para.) Comedy. Principals: Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope, Hillary Brooke, Robert Barrat, Nestor Paiva. Director, Hal Walker. Plot: In retrospect, Crosby, Hope and Dorothy Lamour resume their travels, this time heading north to Alaska during the gold rush days. They become involved with gay women, rich gold mines, crooks and, being confidence men themselves, have a wild time stealing and protecting the map of the mine that Dorothy Lamour is seeking.

Interpretative Subject Seen Replacing Straight Newsreel; Return of the 'Crime' Series

In the drama section of the New York Times, issue of January 16, 1944, an article by Bosley Crowther notes the invasion of "think" films into the field of short subjects which at one time, he points out, "was almost entirely composed of cartoons and travelogues, screen 'oddities,' two-reel comedies and musical what-nots."

Stating that the newsreel of the past, "with its limited illustrations of events. . . . ," is now "virtually passe," Crowther predicts "that the newsreel as presently presented will be a dead duck in another couple of years." He envisions the newsreel of the future as a "purely interpretative reel, using the screen for illustrating, with factual films and diagrams, a point of view."

Crowther goes on to "venture the speculative guess that post-war television [will] render the coup de grace to the straight newsreel." Being able to see the events of the day via television, just as we hear them now, he asserts, would make it senseless to show the same "stuff" to movie customers.

In the line of "think" films, the Times movie reporter points to the "absorbing as well as instructive films turned out by the March of Time, by Pathe, by the Canadian National Film Board, by the British Ministry of Information, by Metro, by other of the commercial studios and by many independent 'documentarians' on a tremendous variety of subjects."

Crowther's remarks deserve consideration. Our memory for dates is bad, but it has been at least seven or eight years since so-called "think" films began invading the short subject field. Yes, it has been that long—and perhaps even longer. Apparently, the March of Time was the first of this type, although MGM also began producing some thought-provoking one-reelers (such as the Carey Wilson Miniatures) some years ago.

The number of "think" films will most likely increase to a certain extent, but never enough, in this writer's opinion, to threaten the popularity of the "lighter" shorts, such as comedies, cartoons and musicals. As for the newsreel, "as presently presented," being "a dead duck" when post-war television becomes a reality, that depends, of course, on the perfection of television and the extent of its use. Granted that television is certain to come into widespread use after the war, then Crowther has a pretty good foundation for his "speculative guess." His vision of a "purely interpretative reel," rather than a straight news film, is not unlikely. Post-war readjustments in establishing world order will contribute ideal subject matter for the interpretative film.

"Crime" evidently does pay—at least at the box-office, for MGM has announced the revival of the "Crime Does Not Pay" series. We're inclined to think that the series was never

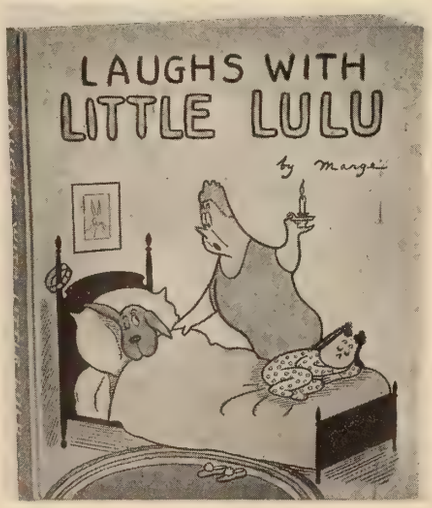
Post to Lend Promotional Aid To Campaigns on Little Lulu

With the release of "Eggs Don't Bounce," first of its new series of "Little Lulu" cartoons in Technicolor, Paramount offers a short subject endowed with a ready-made fan following, plus certain unique exploitation values, it was stated this week by Oscar Morgan, general sales manager of shorts.

"Little Lulu" has been groomed for her screen debut with a background of some six years as a cartoon feature of the Saturday Evening Post, during which period her adult and juvenile appeal has achieved an unprecedented popularity with the estimated 13,000,000 readers of the Post.

To Cooperate With Exhibitors



Now that "Little Lulu" has reached the screen, the Post will provide this cartoon favorite with its full promotion support. As evidence of this interest, thirty-two of the Post's top executives took time out to attend a special preview of "Eggs Don't Bounce" at Paramount's Philadelphia exchange. "Eggs Don't Bounce" was unanimously acclaimed by the Post staff as having captured the impish spirit of Marge's famous creation, and following the screening, instructions were issued to Post branches and field representatives to cooperate with exhibitors on all local showings. Special screenings of the film for Post representatives in various other exchange centers have been requested by Arthur Kohler, general manager, with a view to developing special local angles.

In addition to the foregoing, the David McKay Publishing Company of Philadelphia, publisher of five deluxe Little Lulu books, which retail at one dollar each, is set to cooperate on local showings with special window and counter displays in department and book stores.

The two original songs in the first subject, Little Lulu, the theme song, and Now You Done It, have been published by Famous Music and are receiving a national buildup via music store displays, radio plugs, etc., tieing in with the picture.

Numerous merchandising tieups which include novelties as well as large newspaper and magazine space on nationally advertised products, augment the promotion campaign for Little Lulu. The first of these tieups, a two-color illustrated ad strip on Kleenex, will break in several national publications shortly. These tieups are cleared through William C. Erskine, 9 Rockefeller Plaza, New York.

To enable exhibitors to cash in to the full on "Little Lulu," Paramount has provided a complete lineup of advertising accessories. These are headed by a giant 5-foot standee cutout in four colors, a two-color stock one-sheet, a set of color-glo stills and set of black and white stills, and a wide variety of ad slugs on a composite mat.

Reproduced above is the cover of one of the five Little Lulu books published by the David McKay Publishing Company of Philadelphia which is set to cooperate on local showings of Paramount's Little Lulu Technicolor cartoons with special window and counter displays in stores.

Five Shorts Started At Warner Studios

Five new Warner Bros. short subjects have been placed in production by Gordon Hollingshead, head of the shorts department under Executive Producer Jack L. Warner. Group includes:

"Songs of the Range," history of cowboy music.

"Cattlemen's Days," shot in Technicolor at Gunnison, Colo.

"Champions of the Future," being directed by Edward Hill, who will make a country-wide tour for the necessary sports material showing kids who hope to become future champs.

"South American Sway," directed by Jean Negulesco, featuring Latin rhythm bands.

"America the Beautiful," two-reel Technicolor scenic of the nation's famous parks and amusement resorts.

Managers Become Blood Donors

The Red Cross maintained stations in downtown Interstate theatres in Fort Worth, Texas, as part of the campaign on the MGM-Carey Wilson short subject, "Brothers in Blood." Newspapers were generous with art and stories. After looking at the Government subject, all Fort Worth Interstate managers became generous blood donors. Credit for a first-class selling job goes to Dan Gould, Jr.

Production Activity On The Short Subject Front

Wills Gets Title Role

Chill Wills will play the title role in MGM's Passing Parade, "The Immortal Blacksmith," story of Tom Davenport, inventor of the first electric motor. John Nesbitt, who will do the narration, also wrote the script, to be directed by Sammy Lee.

'Lulu' and the 'Lady'

The high regard Paramount has for the first of the New Technicolor Little Lulu cartoon, "Eggs Don't Bounce," was disclosed with the announcement that the short subject will make its western debut on the world premiere program with "Lady in the Dark" at the Hollywood Paramount February 9.

Kennedy on 'Rampage'

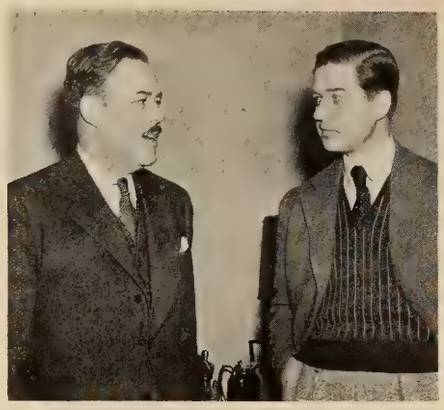
"Radio Rampage," fifth in the 1943-44 series of six two-reel comedies which RKO will produce with Edgar Kennedy as the star, went into production with Charles E. Roberts as production supervisor and director.

Lantz Prepares New Cartune

Walt Lantz is preparing a new cartune which will be entitled "The Painter and the Pointer" for his Andy Panda series released by Universal. Lantz has assigned Ben Hardaway and Milt Schaefer to prepare the script, which goes before the cameras this week. Another Lantz cartune for later production is "The Pied Piper of Basin Street," which will be directed by James Culhane.

McGann to Direct Western

Warner Bros. have engaged William McGann to direct a two-reel western, "Trial By Trigger," to star Robert Shayne. Short is the fifth and last in the Santa Fe series.



Four Coming Up

Columbia will complete four two-reel comedies in the next four weeks. First is "Oh Baby" and stars Hugh Herbert, with Jules White directing and producing. The others will be another Hugh Herbert and two Billy Gilbert comedies.

Another Winner Receives Check

William K. Jenkins of the Lucas and Jenkins Circuit presents to T. R. Jones, manager of the Bradley, Columbus, Ga., the check he won in Universal's Featurette Exploitation Contest.

Representatives of Swedish civil and government bureaus in the U. S. were guests last week of Producer Richard de Rochemont at a special preview of the latest March of Time, "Sweden's Middle Road," in March of Time studios. Producer de Rochemont (left) is shown discussing 20th-Fox release with Vice Consul Eyvind Bratt.

Issue Sales Manual On WB Cartoon Series

A special press book containing suggestions for advertising and exploiting the Merry Melody and Looney Tune cartoon series has just been issued by Warner Bros.' short subjects publicity department. Exploitation suggestions include a Bugs Bunny Festival, Coloring Contest, Comic Book Tieups, Komical Kartoon Karnival, Window Tieups, Cartoon Character Cutouts.

Available, according to the press book, is a composite mat of illustrations of the individual Merry Melody and Looney Tune characters: Daffy Duck, Bugs Bunny, Porky Pig, Elmer, The Cagey Canary, Cecil Turtle, The Pup, The Minah Bird, The Wacky Worm, Sniffles. Small one-column slug mats on each series are also available.

Posters and accessories illustrated include one-sheets (one for each series), Bugs Bunny 40x60 photochrome display, and 30x50 cut-out standees (one for each series.)

MOT Lenser Stranded in Sweden When Nazis Shoot Down Transport

Jimmy Hodgson, veteran MOT cameraman, has failed to follow his film out of Sweden where he was shooting March of Time's current release, "Sweden's Middle Road." Nazis, shooting down a transport plane, forced suspension of service to England without warning.

Jimmy's material, which got through safely, forms the subject of "Sweden's Middle Road," which MOT released nationally last week.

Dons Don Blues in 'Dreams'

Don Curtis wore an Army uniform in "See Here, Private Hargrove," while Don DeFore sported Air Corps garb for "A Guy Named Joe." Now both Dons are about to don the blues of the U. S. Merchant Marine in MGM's Passing Parade short subject, "Dreams," with narration by John Nesbitt. Production on the subject starts shortly with Paul Burnford at the directorial helm.

Smith Short on Jitterbugging

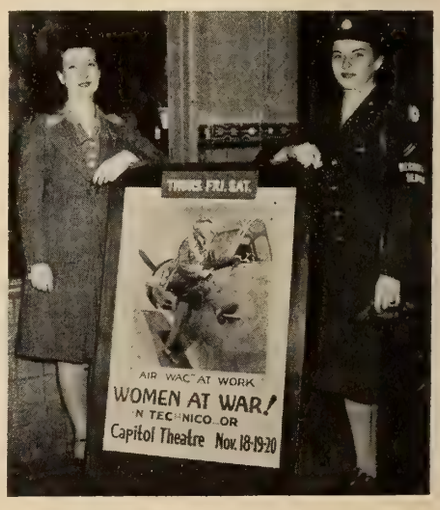
Pete Smith is currently filming a jitterbug jamboree, "Groovie Moovie," for MGM release. A group of boogie-woogie specialists from nationally known dance and hotel orchestras have been assembled by Metro's music department chief, Nat Finston, to help put the dancers through their paces.

Kind Deed of Fox Wins News Breaks

Credit Manager Jack Fox of Loew's Theatre, Washington, D. C., with turning a kind deed into a worthwhile news break in both the Washington Times-Herald and Daily News. The kind deed that brought the publicity, as reported by Manager Fox:

"One of our ushers discovered that his uncle, Chief Petty Officer Theodore Boswell of Capitol Heights, Md., who is a 'CB,' appeared in our current News of the Day showing the battle of Tarawa. We immediately contacted Mrs. Mary Virginia Boswell, his wife, and I invited her to the theatre as my guest. After running the newsreel shot off three or four times and blowing up the frame of film that made her husband clearly visible, it was positively established that it was true. It was her husband!

"It was a great relief for Mrs. Boswell to know that her husband was safe after the landing at Tarawa, and, as she expressed it, 'I could not have received a finer Christmas present than to know my husband is safe.'



"The few feet of film that shows her husband was presented to her, and I am sure it will be treasured."

Since this situation is apparently being duplicated in many another community throughout the country, exhibitors in situations where it has not yet occurred would do well to be on the alert for such a possibility, so as to handle it effectively.

Novel Shorts Programs May Be Used in Robb & Rowley Theatres

The two short subject programs, "Ducky Fun Feud" and "Star and Giggle Revue," instituted by the Interstate Circuit for its theatres in Texas and the southwest, is being suggested as a worthy experiment by Don Douglas, editor of The 24-Sheeter, for managers of Robb & Rowley theatres.

Writes Douglas: "There are mats on both of these novel programs which we believe we can promote, or you can make up your own program. Who will be the first to make the test on this circuit? You will be given every cooperation by this department if you want to take a chance on what seems to be a sure-shot bet."

Exploits 'Women at War'

Manager Florine Maples of the Capitol Theatre, Brownsville, Texas, invaded local hotel lobbies and department stores with campaign material on Warners' Technicolor short subject, "Women at War." Miss Maples also got complete cooperation from Army and Wac officials. Above: Miss Maples with Wac recruiting officer and display board in the lobby of the El Jardin Hotel.

Pacific Troops Want Scenes of Home in Their Newsreel Fare

Most popular entertainment for service men in the Southwest Pacific are newsreels, it was disclosed last week by Earle Crotchett, Universal newsreel cameraman and war correspondent, during an interview at the company's home office.

Earle Crotchett

Crotchett, who is home on a 30-day leave after photographing the recent Marine action at Cape Gloucester, New Britain Island, declared that the fighting men "cheered" familiar scenes. Typical example: Times Square.

Newsreels viewed by troops in the Southwest Pacific, Crotchett said, are usually six weeks old and are combination reels sent out by the War Department. There are no restrictions on filming, he added, but the War Department carefully scrutinizes all film before it is released for showing. Of the 5000 feet he photographed on Cape Gloucester, only 500 feet was "killed" by the censors.

Because the people of Australia are newsreel-conscious, theatres in Brisbane, Melbourne and Sydney devoted to newsreels exclusively are almost always crowded. Hollywood films are viewed by troops in the open, often in heavy rain. Entertainment provided by the USO is most popular when music predominates. One unit warmly received featured Ray Bolger and Little Jack Little.

Most spectacular scenes during combat are made from airplanes, Crotchett said, because visibility on the ground is marred by the jungles. He predicted that the war in the Southwest Pacific would end approximately six to eight months after the war in Europe, when America and Great Britain could direct their full military power at Japan.

Establishing a record among newsreel war correspondents, Crotchett has participated in 26 flying combat missions, 130 hours of actual flying time. He is in New York with his wife, and expects to return to the Southwest Pacific early in March.

Radio Tieup, Store Displays Selling MOT's 'Upbeat in Music'

A double-barreled exploitation campaign tied in directly with local playdates is now in effect for March of Time's "Upbeat in Music." Allis-Chalmers, sponsors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, featured in the film, has been publicizing "Upbeat in Music" with free local radio announcements over Blue Network stations. The company has also been devoting window space to displays in its 3000 dealer outlets calling attention to local playdates.

E. B. Marks Music Corporation, publishers of Now, the song introduced in the film by Perry Como, are also tieing in directly with local playdates. Included in their campaign: mailings to over 3000 local music stores throughout the country, special stills and feature articles for local papers, MOT film title credit on song sheets, trade paper advertising, and special coast-to-coast promotion by Marks' Contact Department.

They Helped Sell 'Dimout'

Marquee mention, extra ad space, lobby, screen and publicity helped sell "Broadway Dimout," a This Is America subject, for C. H. Stewart of the Waco Theatre, Waco, Texas.

Short Subject Reviews

Eggs Don't Bounce (Very Good)

Paramount (D3-1) Little Lulu Cartoon 9 mins.

First of the new "Little Lulu" cartoons, produced in Technicolor from the Saturday Evening Post character created by Marge arrives as a delightful addition to the roster of comic personalities that have entertained millions. The "Little Lulu" song which has been composed as a theme for the opening is as catchy as you please, and it can be expected to be widely played by radio bands. Four characters are seen in this short, with a colored mammy. Lulu's dog, and Henrietta the Hen, in addition to Lulu, comprising the cast. The story deals with Lulu's adventures while trying to bring home a dozen eggs from the store, unbroken. The colored mammy also sings an original song written for the film, Now You Done It. This series benefits by a tremendous pre-established audience of Lulu's reader-fans. With all the mischief that can be dreamed up for this feminine Tom Sawyer of the screen, it should rapidly establish its place with the best-loved comic characterization of the cartoon field. An auspicious start has been made by Famous Studios.

The Playful Pest (Fair)

Col. (5703) Phantasy Cartoon 7 mins.

An exterminator sets about to rid a house of a particularly annoying termite, but he finds the job isn't as easy as he had planned. The termite nearly drives the poor exterminator crazy. It all goes to make a fairly entertaining cartoon which children, especially, should enjoy. Subject was produced by Dave Fleischer.

Marry-Go-Round (Very Good)

Paramount (E3-2) Popeye 7½ mins.

The Popeye series, since the adoption of Technicolor, has taken on new life and refreshment. With no let up in Popeye's marital designs on Olive Oyl, this short brings his fruitless proposals one step near distraction. Popeye takes a few instructions in the art of love from his pal, Shorty, and when he muffs his lines while popping the question, Shorty takes over in the Charles Boyer manner, proving too hot for Popeye's health. Olive goes for "What-a-man" Shorty and Popeye has to step in to break up the chase.

Russia's Foreign Policy (Heavy)

United Artists—World in Action 20 mins.

This is a laudable attempt by the National Film Board of Canada to present Russia's policy in the matter of her attitude toward other nations and to indicate what we may expect from her after the war. The producers have gathered many clips from newsreels and feature pictures to illustrate the various points, and many of them are extremely interesting from a historical angle. Shots of the old Russian imperial family, scenes during the days of the revolution, first World War activities of the German Army, the development of the Soviet leaders, the Free German Committee in Russia —all are individually important. However, the sum total of film material adds up to a rather heavy treatise on the historical beginnings of the present war, with very little indication of what Russia's foreign policy is going to be. Undeniably, though, this World of Action subject is worth seeing and worth playing.

Lloyds Insures Puppets

Hollywood's most logical insurance policy was taken out by the Paramount Studio to protect the entire cast of players now appearing in the Technicolor film, "And To Think I Saw It On Mulberry Street."

It is a $10,000 fire insurance policy with Lloyds of London and it protects Paramount against loss by fire of the wooden puppets who are the actors in the picturization of the novel of the same name.

George Pal, producer of film, required six months to carve the 26 leading characters in the film from solid blocks of wood, plus the scores of other characters who appear in the fantasy written by Dr. Seuss.

To further protect the actors, Paramount has agreed to place each of the leading players in an asbestos container when they are not appearing before the camera, it was disclosed, and in the office safe at night for added protection. Lloyds of London insisted upon this procedure before issuing the policy.

MGM Revives 'Crime' Series; 'Easy Life' First on Schedule

As the first subject in its Crime Does Not Pay series to be released since November, 1942, MGM will offer "Easy Life," an original story dealing with a juvenile delinquent who becomes the dupe of a notorious gang. Bernard Thomas, a newcomer, will have the lead, and the cast includes Kenny Bowers, Steven Geray, George Meador and Morris Ankrum. Walter Hart directs.

A second Crime Does Not Pay subject, "Patrolling the Ether," which revolves around the Government's Radio Intelligence Division, is also scheduled for early release. Pat McGeehan, announcer for the Red Skelton air show, will do the narration. Paul Burnford directs.

FitzPatrick Signs New MGM Pact; Plans Series on Central America

Globetrotter James A. FitzPatrick celebrated his fifteenth anniversary with MGM by signing a new contract with the company calling for a series of 12 Traveltalk subjects to be filmed in Technicolor in Central America.

FitzPatrick has already left to make arrangements for his Technicolor crew, scheduled to join him later. The FitzPatrick itinerary includes Guatemala, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua.

PRODUCTION NOTES FROM THE STUDIOS

Hellinger to Produce, Ann Sheridan to Star in 'Doughgirls'; Hitchcock to Direct Selznick Film; Vanguard Signs Hecht

With "Lassie Come Home" continuing to smash box-office records throughout the country, MGM is rushing plans for a sequel. The new picture will be titled "Son of Lassie" and like its forerunner will be produced by Sam Marx. Production is scheduled to begin in March.

Carole Mathews, 22-year-old radio announcer and actress from Chicago, was signed by Columbia for second feminine lead in mystery thriller, "Girl in the Case," now in production with William Berke directing. Cast is headed by Janis Carter, Edmund Lowe and Robert Scott. Producer is Sam White.

Eddie Quillan, Fifi D'Orsay and Charles Butterworth were signed by PRC Producer Jack Schwarz as support for Frances Langford and Guy Kibbee in "Dixie Showboat" which started last week with Christy Cabanne directing. They join a cast headed by Frances Langford, Guy Kibbee and Charles Butterworth.

William Beaudine has been signed by Producer Lindsley Parsons to direct "Detective Kitty Kelly," Monogram comedy written by Tim Ryan and Victor Hammond. Only cast member set so far is Scenarist-Comedian Tim Ryan.

Cecil Kellaway, the genial Australian character actor, was chosen by Director Mitchell Leisen for one of the top roles in "Practically Yours," the Norman Krasna comedy-drama which will co-star Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray, and which Leisen will direct and Harry Tugend will produce.

Republic has handed two Roy Rogers assignments to writers. Fred Schiller is writing "Roll Along Prairie Moon" and Gordon Kahn is at work on "Montana," both under the production supervision of Harry Grey.

Laraine Day was signed to a two-picture-per-year contract over a period of four years by RKO Radio in a contract-sharing deal with MGM. First assignment under new ticket will be opposite Paul Henreid in "The Spanish Main," which Robert Fellows will produce in Technicolor.

Hal Mohr has been assigned to handle the cameras on Universal's Technicolor production, "The Climax," which stars Susanna Foster, Turhan Bey and Boris Karloff. Mohr was cameraman on "The Phantom of the Opera." George Waggner is the producer-director of "The Climax" and production gets under way this week.

Ben Hecht has been signed by Vanguard Films, Inc. to a long-term writing contract, it was announced by Daniel T. O'Shea, president of Vanguard. His first assignment will be to work on the script of "The House of Dr. Edwardes," the film Alfred Hitchcock will direct as a Selznick International picture on his return from England. "The House of Dr. Edwardes" will be based on the mystery novel by Frances Beeding. Joseph Cotten has been announced for the masculine lead in the picture.

Samuel Goldwyn has signed Ernst Fegte to a term contract. His first assignment will be as production designer for "Treasure Chest," Technicolor comedy to star Bob Hope. Fegte moves over from Paramount, where he has handled the art assignment on many films including "Five Graves to Cairo," which Paramount has entered for Academy honors.

Ace Song-Writers Mack Gordon and Jimmy Monaco have written six new songs which King of Swing Benny Goodman and his band will play in 20th Century-Fox's "Sweet and Low-Down," in addition to a number of the band's own specialties. The all-star cast features Benny Goodman and his band, Linda Darnell and James Cardwell, Lynn Bari and Jack Oakie. Archie Mayo is directing for Producer William Le Baron.

The go-ahead signal was given on "Candlelights in Lisbon," Vera Hruba Ralston's second starring picture for Republic. The story, dealing with international intrigue in the famous Portuguese capital, is being produced and directed by George Sherman. Besides Miss Ralston, others in the cast are Erich von Stroheim, Dick Arlen, Otto Kruger and Mona Barrie.

Joan Winfield, young actress working with Jack Benny and Alexis Smith in "The Horn Blows at Midnight," has been given a new contract by Warner Bros. Miss Winfield was also in the recently completed "One More Tomorrow."

David O. Selznick has acquired the screen rights to "Portrait of Jennie," the popular novel by Robert Nathan. While no production date has been set and casting has not yet started, it is likely that Jennifer Jones, Hollywood's newest star who is under long-term contract to Selznick, will have the title role.

Ann Sheridan will star in Warner Bros.' "The Doughgirls." Mark Hellinger will produce the film version of the stage hit and James V. Kern, former writer, debuts as a director on the picture. Shooting is scheduled to start late in February. Miss Sheridan is only player set.

Marjorie Weaver, Walter Catlett and Patsy O'Connor were signed by Associate Producer Bernard Burton for Universal's "Pardon My Rhythm," the next Gloria Jean starrer, which gets under way with Felix Feist as director.

Juanita Quigley, now playing a featured role in "National Velvet," with Mickey Rooney starred and Donald and Elizabeth Taylor in featured roles, was signed to a long-term contract by the MGM studios.

Preparations were started by Irving Briskin at Columbia for early production of "The Melody Lingers On," which will be a frank effort to capitalize upon the currently nostalgic trend of the public's taste in popular music. Songs of the past four decades will be featured in the musical, which is planned as the largest scale production undertaken to date by Briskin for Columbia.

Youngest Meets the Oldest

Pictured above is Fred Stone, veteran of stage and screen, as he was met at the station in Pasadena, Calif., by 5-year-old Jimmy Clemens, Jr., who, as the youngest member of the cast of David O. Selznick's International picture, "Since You Went Away," welcomes the oldest. Also on hand to meet the veteran actor was Mrs. Dorothy Stone Collins, daughter of Mr. Stone. In the United Artists release, Mr. Stone will portray a farmer.

Ingrid Bergman to Star in Film Based on Life of Sarah Bernhardt

The secret of Ingrid Bergman's next picture is out. For some time David O. Selznick has been refusing offers from every studio in town for Miss Bergman to appear in the best pictures on their respective programs. But Selznick stated that he would be using her himself, which no one would believe because he didn't seem to have anything ready.

Now it develops that Selznick has been secretly preparing a story based on the life of Sarah Bernhardt, whose personal story and theatrical triumphs made headlines for several decades and who was generally regarded as the greatest actress in history. Ben Hecht has been writing the story and screenplay, and has recently been working in close collaboration with William Dieterle, who is under long term contract to Vanguard Films. This is Dieterle's next picture, just as it is Miss Bergman's.

PRC's Western Stars Sell Bonds

Harold Schuster has been assigned by RKO to direct Katina Paxinou in the forthcoming production of "Mama's Bank Account," which is being made from the highly successful novel by Kathryn Forbes.

WB Studio Roster of 248 Sets New High

Compilation of the first complete roster of Warner Bros. talent for 1944, including stars, featured players, directors, producers, writers and special artists, shows a contract list totaling 248, the highest figure ever reached by the company for talent under contract.

As a result of policy set up by Jack L. Warner, executive producer, of developing new personalities and giving rapid promotion from the ranks, 116 new contractees were added in the past year.

Star list now includes Robert Alda, Humphrey Bogart, Jack Carson, Nancy Coleman, Joan Crawford, Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Sydney Greenstreet, Paul Henreid, Walter Huston, Priscilla Lane, Joan Leslie, Paul Lukas, Ida Lupino, Irene Manning, Dennis Morgan, Ann Sheridan, Alexis Smith, Barbara Stanwyck, and Jane Wyman.

Nineteen additional stars and personalities were signed for special deals including Fredric March, Ingrid Bergman, Gary Cooper, Charles Coburn, Oscar Levant, Paul Whiteman, Philip Dorn, Michele Morgan, Lucile Watson, Eve Arden, Jack Benny, Guy Kibbee, Reginald Gardiner, Allyn Joslyn, Edward Arnold, Ann Harding, Robert Benchley and Walter Brennan.

Seventy-four other players are under contract. They are Betty Alexander, John Alexander, John Alvin, Warner Anderson, Lynne Baggett, Julie Bishop, Monte Blue, Jane Bryan, Kitty Carlisle, Dane Clark, John Dall, Helmut Dantine, Warren Douglas, Douglass Drake, Faye Emerson, Dick Erdman, Victor Francen, Angela Greene, Alan Hale, Marjorie Hoshelle, Robert Hutton, Bill Kennedy, Peter Lorre, Lynn Martin, Raymond Massey, Hattie McDaniel, Dolores Moran, Marianne O'Brien, Eleanor Parker, Virginia Patton, William Prince, Claude Rains, Joyce Reynolds, Stephen Richards, John Ridgely, Marjorie Riordan, S. TITLE CHANGES

"Empire of the West" (Col.) now SADDLE LEATHER LAW.
"Triumph Over Pain" (Para.) now GREAT MOMENT.

Coburn and Cummings Set For 'The Impatient Years'

Charles Coburn was assigned at Columbia to one of star roles in "The Impatient Years," now being scripted by Virginia Van Upp from her own original story. Production is slated for early spring start. "The Impatient Years" will also bring Irving Cummings back to Columbia.

Studio was anxious to get him because of record-breaking business being registered by "What a Woman!," Rosalind Russell-Brian Aherne co-starrer, which he directed.

Sonny Tufts Sings in Musical

Sonny Tufts sings a specialty number in "Bring On The Girls," Paramount's Technicolor musical in which he stars with Eddie Bracken, Veronica Lake and Marjorie Reynolds. His song is a novelty comedy number, Egyptian Ella, which he first sang as a band leader at Yale. His first audition at Paramount was doing a song, but he was immediately given a straight acting test which won him a contract and his debut role in "So Proudly We Hail." Now that he is in a musical where all the stars do numbers, Sonny makes his movie bow as a "crooner."

Exchanges to View 'Goebels'

Fred W. Kane, associate producer on W. R. Frank's "The Private Life of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebels," will swing around the country's principal exchange centers to screen the picture for exhibitor reactions. Kane will first visit San Francisco and later stop off at Minneapolis to confer with Frank, who is now setting distribution arrangements on "Goebels" and preparing his second picture, "Springtime in Vienna," which will star Claudia Drake.

Ross Signs LeRoy To Direct 'The Robe'

Frank Ross has signed Mervyn LeRoy to direct Ross' independent production of the Lloyd C. Douglas best seller, "The Robe." Regarded as one of the most timely and challenging screen stories in years, "The Robe" is to be produced on a scale surpassing the magnitude of "Ben Hur" and other notable milestones in the progress of motion pictures.

Possibly the biggest directorial plum in years, Ross' engagement of LeRoy to direct "The Robe" is doubly newsworthy because several ranking screen directors have made extraordinary concessions for the privilege of picturizing this stirring adventure which recounts the birth of Christianity. Ross and his writers have been at work on the screen treatment more than seven months and signing LeRoy now is indicative of possible production in the early summer. It is estimated filming alone will require six months, with numbers of scenes being photographed in Mexico. Release is contemplated about Christmas time or early in 1945 through RKO Radio.

One of the most consistent directors of hit films in the business, LeRoy is also one of the youngest among Hollywood's top ranking picture makers. He begins his association with Ross upon completion of his MGM contract. He is now directing "Sixty Seconds Over Tokyo." LeRoy's "Madame Curie," currently showing on the nation's screens, "Random Harvest," "Blossoms in the Dust," "Waterloo Bridge" and "Anthony Adverse" have been among the most memorable films of the past decade.

New Earphone for Sound Men Adopted by Warner Bros. Studio

As result of successful use of new-type earphones for sound men, Warner Bros. have adopted the device 100 per cent. It replaces former "ear-muff" type headpiece, which covered entire ear, but which did not give as faithful reproduction of voices and music as new device.

New receiver is fitted individually to ears of each sound man by making a plaster cast of the recorder's outer and inner ear. Lucite replica is made of cast, and sound receiver attached. Sounds pass through channel in lucite and directly up against sound man's ear drum. Producer Robert Buckner adopted this new earphone, which looks like a black button, to aid his sound crew.

OUTLAWS OF SANTA FE (Rep.) Western. Principals: Don Barry, Tom London, Wally Vernon, Bud Geary, Helen Talbot, Twinkle Watts. Director, Howard Bretherton. Plot: When a young man learns, upon the death of a hard-shrewd killer, that he was not his son but the son of a peace officer killed in line of duty, he decides to go straight and return the money stolen from a bank. In this town, he becomes a marshal and risks his neck trying to get the man responsible for all the crookedness there and also responsible for his father's death.

INCENDIARY BLONDE (Technicolor) (Para.) Drama. Principals: Betty Hutton, Arturo de Cordova, Barry Fitzgerald, Mary Phillips. Director, George Marshall. Plot: This is the fictionized story of Texas Guinan, a famous night club hostess and entertainer. It starts, when as a young girl, she ran away from her impoverished parents' ranch in Texas, to become a singer. After going through subsequent experiences, the story ends with her promising to wait for her press agent when he gets a prison sentence.

GAMBLER'S CHOICE (Para.) Drama. Principals: Chester Morris, Nancy Kelly, Russell Hayden, Lloyd Corrigan. Director, Frank McDonald. Plot: From the sidewalks of New York come three playmates: two boys and a girl, who are a prosperous gambling house owner, a police lieutenant and a girl entertainer. Their friendship endures through the years until rival gamblers try to frame the girl's father, in order to prevent the police lieutenant from cleaning up the city. The gambler, after he learns of the plan, beards the lions' den to get the evidence—paying with his life.

GYPSY WILDCAT (Univ.) Drama. Principals: Maria Montez, Jon Hall, Peter Coe, Leo Carrillo, Douglas Dumbrille, Curt Bois, Gale Sondergaard. Director, Roy William Neill. Plot: A band of gypsies are imprisoned, charged with the murder of a Count. The Baron, their accuser, discovers one of their girls wearing the Count's crest and realizes that she is the dead man's long lost daughter. She gives her consent to marriage, if he will release the other gypsies, but a young soldier of fortune turns the tables on the Baron by proving him guilty of the murder himself.

ARE THESE OUR CHILDREN? (RKO) Drama. Principals: Kent Smith, Michael Barnitz, Jean Brooks, Bonita Granville, Tessa Brind, Glenn Vernon. Director, Mark Robson. Plot: This is the story of an average American neighborhood of the middle class—the people who live there, good and bad—but more than anything else, it is the story of their children. Events pile up swiftly to bring tragedy and turmoil to a neighborhood that has become unsavory through neglect and selfishness.

ANYBODY HERE SEEN KELLY (Univ.) Drama-With-Music. Principals: Harriet Hilliard, Kirby Grant, Roscoe Karns, Milburn Stone, Betty Kean, Eddie Quillan. Director, Edward Lilley. Plot: A topnotch radio singer, in order to help an ambitious young lady in whom he's interested get a singing spot on an all night show, becomes her partner to the detriment of his own show. Everyone becomes interested in the unknown tenor, including his own sponsor, but he keeps his identity hidden until the sponsors sign them up as a team.

100 EXHIBITORS!

THEY will be honored throughout the industry and their names will be famous in the trade press!

THEY will be given a free trip to Washington with all expenses paid.

THEY will be named to the Industry's Executive Advisory Committee of the 5th War Loan.

THEY will receive a personal letter of congratulation from the Secretary of the Treasury and will be presented with a tribute scroll, an honorary medallion and other awards.

THEY will be featured in the Official Report of the industry to the nation on the 4th War Loan; and they and their staffs will wear a special "E" lapel button from the Treasury Department.

THEY will be honored in their home states and in their localities with important dignitaries present!

THEY are the industry's patriotic showmen who from Jan. 1st through Jan. 29th sell the most "E" Bonds in ratio to their seating capacity.

IT IS NOT TOO LATE TO BE AMONG THE HONORED HUNDRED!

Down the Stretch

The Fourth War Loan campaign goes into the home-stretch with the film industry, and particularly the theatremen, running strong. Those who have done the outstanding jobs of going over their quotas well in advance of the finish line, unfortunately, must carry some of the burden for that minority that has fallen behind in the race for the greatest objective it will ever be the privilege of showmen to attain.

There is still time for those who have not given the campaign all that's in 'em.

A good, sincere, energetic effort, even if it occurs on the final day (February 18th) will bring the showmen who make such endeavor a handsome reward—a personal satisfaction and sense of high duty faithfully performed. That's worth all the sweat and effort a big ballyhoo, a bond auction or bond premiere may entail.

Go get it—and you'll realize how much greater is the reward than the effort merits.

Now's the Time!

Since nothing succeeds like success, there can be no other verdict than that America's motion picture producers are reaching new heights of technical, artistic and showmanship skill in the selection of story material, casting, directing and staging the screen shows that are current as theatre attractions.

There are some cynics who say that any kind of picture can do business today. Perhaps so. But while isolated instances might be cited to sustain that contention, the attitude revealed by any such expression cannot carry the ring of true conviction unless you are willing to believe that the American people can, en masse, be fooled. For our part, we'll string along with the homely philosophy that you can't fool all of the people for as long a time as the average grade "A" product has been attracting the masses to theatres of all types and policies of operation.

There is a lesson in showmanship to be learned from what is taking place at the theatres these days. It is a lesson that has value on two counts.

First, the facts blast to hell all those long-underwear notions about the public not liking this kind of picture and wanting only that kind. For years there's been a "poison list" on which the top entry, probably, is the "costume picture." Well, where does that notion get off in the light of what's happened recently, and is happening right now, if you put "Jane Eyre" (as many would only a relatively short while back) in the "costume" classification? The picture is knocking out tremendous figures at the Music Hall in New York. Of course, one swallow doesn't make a summer, the skeptic will say. But what about "Madame Curie," which is a biographical drama, but its period puts it in the costume class—just as was, for example, "Pasteur" (which did a right smart business, if you'll remember, years ago).

Second, is the lesson that there's no time when smart showmanship right at the "point of sale," as the advertising chaps call it (which in the case of film merchandise is the theatre) will not be an absolute essential to the health and prosperity of the motion picture industry. It would be a good idea for the producers and the distributors to bear that in mind, now as well as later. The current boom in theatre attendance is not due wholly to outstanding pictures. It's the latter plus good showmanship by the exhibitors that is keeping motion pictures in the forefront as a vastly popular article for the American consumer.

Showmanship brains, brawn and ability are certainly abundant in this country. What better proof of that than the sensationally successful results which the theatremen have turned in for the March of Dimes collections and the current Fourth War Loan?

What must be continued is the showmanship effort to develop every last bit of potential draw for all pictures played. Now (with box-office income to sustain good advertising and exploitation efforts) is no time for any exhibitor to coast along with the tide and let the picture draw its own crowds to his theatre. That process spells doom, not only for the individuals practicing such foolhardy business tactics, but for the industry as a whole. The time is now to expand, to further develop the large audiences which are necessary to keep the theatre prosperous, come what changes may occur with respect to the amount of money in circulation. Only by exploiting all pictures, attracting the interest and cultivating the movie-going habit by all classes and groups—the young, the older and the old, the married, the single and those who are in varying types of occupation—only that way can the theatre owner assure his own theatre's present and future welfare.

Toast Skouras at Bond Luncheon

Theatre owners of New York and New Jersey honored Charles (bond-for-every-seat) Skouras at a testimonial luncheon in New York Monday. More than 1200 attended the event, which called for the purchase of a bond with every ticket.

Skouras received the tribute of Ted R. Gamble, national director of the War Finance Division. Ned E. Depinet, Si Fabian, Edward L. Alperson and other prominent motion picture personages lauded the leadership of Skouras in the Fourth War Loan campaign. Gamble, speaking as a representative of the Treasury Department, said that he knew of no other industry that had made a finer record in cooperating with the government in the sale of bonds, and referring to the job done by Skouras as national chairman of the industry's current campaign, said that while he had no desire to influence such decisions, he thought it would be a "hell of a good idea" to have Skouras and his crew of assistants on the job for the industry's Fifth War Loan campaign. Harry Brandt was toastmaster.

Skouras told the gathering that the industry had sold about 5,000,000 war bonds from the beginning of the Fourth War Loan on February 1, and that this represented less than fifty per cent of the goal of a bond for every one of the 11,500,000 theatre seats. He said that the job done in the campaign was not a one-man accomplishment, and acknowledged his thanks to the distributors committee, the WAC organization, the exhibitors who were responding to his appeal to do the bond selling job, the studios and their personalities and the trade press for acting as a means of communication to the theatremen.

The luncheon committee was made up of the following: Harry Brandt, Edward L. Alperson, David Weinstock, Hal Horne, Max A. Cohen, Donald C. Jacocks.

'Ali Baba' Leads at Army Post Theatres in January

Universal's "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" ranked top as a box-office attraction at U. S. Army post theatres during January, it was announced by the Army motion picture service, which as a service to the industry and the public supplies monthly reports on the results at the post theatres.

Runners up to the leaders were, in the order named: "Desert Song," Warner Bros.; "Gung Ho!" Universal; "The Fighting Seabees," Republic; "Song of Russia," MGM.

$415,847 Dimes Collection Total for Warner Circuit

Nearly doubling last year's collections and tripling the 1942 total, Warner Circuit houses took in $415,847 in this year's March of Dimes, the Warner home office announced Wednesday.

The 1943 figure was $229,852 while the previous year's total was $147,751.

Show Saves Supper

A prevue of "Dangerous Blondes" at the Palace Theatre, Winchester, Va., saved a local woman's dinner.

Shortly after viewing a scene in the trailer where a woman shrieks, "Oh, I left my pot roast in the stove," the local woman, according to Manager H. H. Hable, approached the box-office seeking a return ticket.

She said she was sure she had forgotten to turn off the gas under her dinner at home.

J. J. Unger Appointed U. A. Sales Executive

J. J. Unger has joined United Artists, in an important sales capacity, effective immediately, Carl Leserman, United Artists General Sales Manager, announced this week.

Unger recently resigned from Paramount after an association of eighteen years, in which time he rose from branch manager of Paramount's New York Exchange to the position of Eastern Sales Manager.

The exact duties of his post at United Artists will be announced shortly.

Philadelphia Exchanges Seek Essential Rating

Representatives of distributor home offices and film exchanges in Philadelphia met with Milton Weiss, technical operation officer of the War Manpower Commission, in the Quaker City Tuesday in preparation for a move by the film companies to have exchanges designated as needed establishments.

Among those attending the session were: Leon Bamberger of RKO, assistant to the chairman of the WAC Distribution Committee; A. A. Schubart, of RKO; Claude R. Collins, WAC Newsreel Division in Washington; Harold Bache, Local B-7 (Bookers and Salesmen's Union); Henrietta Weinberg, F.E.E. U. (office workers union) and Horace Johns of Local No. 307 (the operators union.)

From the exchanges were W. R. Schwartz, Monogram; Samuel Gross, 20th-Fox; Lester Woertele, Columbia; William Mansell, Vitagraph; Ulric Smith, Paramount; George E. Schwartz, Universal; Lou Formato, Metro; Vincent O'Donnell, RKO; Joseph Engle, Republic; and Harry Bodkin and E. V. McCaffery of United Artists.

Kelly Named U. S. Chief for Rank Film Interests

Arthur W. Kelly's appointment as executive in charge of the J. Arthur Rank interests in the United States, was announced Thursday.

Kelly's first duties will be the sales and exploitation in this country of "The Life and Death of Colonel Blimp."

The Kelly appointment, and that of E. T. Carr as head of the Rank interests in London, are the first steps in the organization of worldwide motion picture operations by the wealthy English industrialist.

Desperadoes Caught in Philadelphia Theatre

The New Palace Theatre may be the last run in Philadelphia, but the house managed by Fred Sarr hit the front pages of all the town's papers last week when two desperadoes who had escaped from Rockview Penitentiary, near Bellefonte, Pa., were captured there while looking at "Guadalcanal Diary." The fugitives were Gus Menetti, member of the "Thrill Bandit" mob which terrorized Philadelphia in 1938, and Peter Andreyko, bad man from Carbon County.

Exhibitors Confer With Clark on Decree Set-up

Independent exhibitor organization representatives this week conferred with Assistant Attorney General Tom C. Clark and placed before him their criticism and counter proposals to the decree amendments set forth in the distributor brief submitted last week.

On Tuesday Clark met with Harry Brandt, Mel Albert, Max A. Cohen and Leon Rosenblatt, representing the TOA of New York. The following day Clark received the committee appointed at the Allied board of directors meeting in Chicago and was presented with the brief prepared by the committee in which many features of the distributor proposals were singled out for revision.

The committee was comprised of Abram F. Myers, general counsel; H. A. Cole, of Dallas; W. F. Crockett, MPTO of Virginia; Bob Poole, Los Angeles and head of PCC; Jesse L. Stern, New York Unaffiliated.

In New York it was announced Wednesday by Harry Brandt, that a committee made up of Max A. Cohen, Leon Rosenblatt and Mel Albert had been appointed to draft counter proposals to the distributor recommendations.

Makes 'Em Like It

Bill Solomon, 20th-Fox adsales manager in Philadelphia, reports the case of perfect salesmanship to satisfy the customer. At a local picture theatre, Solomon was witnessing a screening of "Kings of the Ring" from a seat 'way up front. Presently the usher showed two patrons into seats next to Solomon. The customers mumbled something about the seats being too near the screen, whereupon the usher said: "these are very choice—they're ringside seats."

26 Monogram Features Planned for '44-45

Monogram will offer 26 features and 16 westerns on its 1944-45 program, W. Ray Johnston, president, announced on his arrival in New York this week.

Johnston, whose visit to New York is his first in two years, is for the purpose of presiding at a series of regional sales meetings on February 12-13. The meetings will launch a sales drive under the slogan: "Fifty Years of Service."

Producers have been assigned to the full program for the new season, Johnston said. Scott R. Dunlap will make four feature films, Jeffrey Bernerd two, King Bros. three, Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz eight, Lindsley Parsons six, Philip N. Krasne and James S. Burkett two, and Biltmore Productions one.

Pictures definitely scheduled are one with Belita, two specials with Gale Storm, four with the East Side Kids, three with Billy Gilbert, Maxie Rosenbloom and Shemp Howard, and two Charlie Chan productions starring Sidney Toler. Johnny Mack Brown and Raymond Hatton will appear in a series of eight westerns, and another star yet to be selected in the second series.

Monogram will exceed all its past budgets in expenditures for the 1944-45 program, according to Johnston.

Rites Held in San Francisco for Arch Bowles, FWC Executive

Funeral rites were held in San Francisco this week for Arch M. Bowles, general manager of Fox West Coast theatres and chairman of the Board of Governors of the California Theatres Association, who died in St. Francis Hospital here after an illness of several months.

State, civic and film representatives on the Pacific Coast attended the services. Interment was in Cypress Lawn Mausoleum. Pallbearers were Herman Wobber, Robert McNeil, Oscar Samuels, W. H. Lollier, Abe Gore, Clifford Work, Mike Naify, Frank Whitbeck, Charles W. Koerner and Mel Hulling.

'Up In Arms' Shows February 21

"Up In Arms" will be trade screened nationally on February 21st by RKO Radio.

All screenings will be held in theatres, with time and place ascertainable from the local RKO Radio exchange. There will be no screenings in New York and Los Angeles as the picture has already been trade shown.

Silver Jubilee for Jersey Allied

Allied Theatres of New Jersey will hold its silver jubilee in Atlantic City in June in connection with the organization's annual convention.

Ethel Barrymore Returns

Ethel Barrymore will return to the screen after an absence of eleven years, to portray Cary Grant's mother in RKO Radio's "None But The Lonely Heart."

$10,000,000 Quota for Red Cross Fund

The motion picture industry has set a goal of $10,000,000 in the 1944 Red Cross campaign, it was stated Wednesday with announcement that Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner Bros. Theatres, had accepted the industry chairmanship for the Motion Picture Theatres Red Cross Drive.

Joseph Bernhard

The period for the drive had been set for the week of March 23 to March 29, inclusive.

Mr. Bernhard was the first chairman of the War Activities Committee Theatres Division and served until last year. Mr. Bernhard pointed out that with the Great Invasion imminent, the Red Cross is asking the country for unlimited quotas and is counting on the industry to do its greatest job in the war effort.

Emphasis in this year's drive is being shifted to local cooperation between exhibitors and the Red Cross, says Mr. Bernhard in a letter he is sending to 16,500 theatres.

$4,000,000 Was '43 Total

Last year the motion picture theatres collected more than $3,000,000 while an additional $1,000,000 was contributed directly by various branches of the industry.

Norman H. Davis, national chairman of the American Red Cross, in a letter being sent to 3,700 local chapters in connection with the 1944 campaign, pays high tribute to the film industry's cooperation in the work of the Red Cross.

New York Exchange Employes Vote Strike to Begin Monday

New York film exchange employes of Local B51, AFL and IATSE, voted at a meeting Tuesday to go on strike commencing Monday (14th). The strike, it was said, will take out of the exchanges a total of 340 employes in the branches of the eight major companies.

The Union is comprised of shippers, poster clerks and inspectors, and the strike was called because of the failure of the film companies to grant wage increases which it is claimed were promised. The wage increases have yet to be acted upon by the War Labor Board.

10,000 in Contest

More than 10,000 contestants in the Fourth War Loan "Honored Hundred" competition have been accounted for by entry blanks and reports from state chairmen, it was revealed Wednesday by Robert W. Selig, assistant campaign manager.

With an all-expense trip to Washington, honor scrolls, citations, medallions, trade-paper acclaim and other laurels awaiting the hundred theatre managers who sell the greatest number of "E" bonds in ratio to the number of seats in their theatres, unprecedented enthusiasm and results have been stimulated by the contest.

Cross-section checks of the nation's theatres through the "Honored Bondsmen of the Day" feature of the competition has given war loan committee heads an accurate day-by-day "feel" of the progress of the campaign.

Lesser Is Partington's Successor at Roxy

Irving M. Lesser was appointed associate general manager of the Roxy Theatre, New York, by A. J. Balaban, general manager. Lesser has been associated with the theatre for several years. He succeeds the late J. A. Partington.

The Roxy's production staff of Gae Foster, Arthur Knorr, the talent and artists' bureau under the supervision of Sam Rauch of F & M, remains the same, Balaban announced.

Mrs. Partington in F & M Post

Mrs. Inger Partington succeeds to the interests of her husband, the late J. A. Partington, in Fanchon and Marco, it was announced by Harry C. Arthur, Jr. It is anticipated, the Arthur statement added, that when J. A. Partington, Jr., now a staff sergeant in the Army, returns to civilian life he will join F & M.

Shayon Joins Morris

Sam Shayon, assistant to the president of Fanchon and Marco, the late J. A. Partington, will join the William Morris Agency, Inc. in an important capacity on March 1.

Tries to Explain Delayed Showing of Newer Films

Jake Rachman, writer of a Stage and Screen column in the Omaha World-Herald newspaper, discussed delayed showings of top pictures in Omaha theatres claiming that patrons were asking for the answer.

"At the risk of being accused of hedging, we are going to say as a blanket answer that we do not know but probably it was because there was no playing time open for the pictures," Rachman stated in his column.

He pointed out that the question of a delayed showing was being asked on "Lassie Come Home" which is now being shown in Omaha. He said people were asking: "Why didn't we see that last year when it was being shown all over the country?" and also pointed out that the "Phantom of the Opera" was released last fall and was shown in Omaha only within the last three or four weeks.

Wage Tilt for Window Washers

Window washers in Chicago theatres and loop office buildings have been awarded a minimum monthly wage scale of $181.40 by the Sixth Regional War Labor Board, according to Chairman Robert K. Burns. The workers formerly received 89 cents an hour, or $169.20 per month.

Columbia Promotions Announced at Meet

The appointment of a new division supervisor, the realignment of a number of branches and several promotions were among the announcements made at the conclusion of Columbia's sales meeting in New York last week.

Ben Marcus, Kansas City branch manager, has been promoted to district supervisor of the Mid-west division; Joe Gins, Charlotte branch manager, has been appointed to the newly created post of Detroit manager, and George Roscoe, salesman in the Charlotte exchange, has been named branch manager of the same office replacing Gins.

Ben Marcus will supervise the Des Moines, Omaha and Minneapolis branches as well as the Kansas City office formerly in Carl Shalit's division.

Also announced was the fact that Central Division Supervisor Carl Shalit with headquarters in Detroit, will act as coordinator with the Home Office in connection with the Buffalo exchange, headed by Phil Fox; and the Albany exchange, headed by Joe Miller; in addition to the three branch offices current in his district—the Indianapolis exchange, headed by Guy Craig; the St. Louis exchange, headed by Clarence Hill; and the Detroit office, now headed by Gins.

'Committee of 12' Returning to Report on War Loan Tours

Many of the industry executives who toured the country on behalf of the National Campaign Committee of the Fourth War Loan have returned to New York to make their reports to Charles Skouras, national chairman, who will analyze them and have them compiled to serve as a guide and pattern for all future war loan drives in which the industry will participate.

The Committee of Twelve comprises George Dembow, Robert Mochrie, Herman Wobber, Leonard Goldenson, George J. Schaefer, Dan Michalove, Joseph R. Vogel, Major Leslie Thompson, Oscar Doob, John Harris, Gradwell Sears and Harry Kalmine.

Crooker in MGM Publicity Post

Howard Dietz, MGM vice-president in charge of advertising and promotion, announced this week the appointment of Herbert Crooker as Eastern publicity manager succeeding Lou Smith, resigned. Crooker, well known in motion picture circles, was with Warner Bros. for 12 years where he held the post of Eastern publicity manager.

Mooney Ad-Publicity Supervisor

Martin Mooney has been named supervisor of all PRC advertising and publicity by Leon Fromkess, vice-president in charge of production. Mooney is also producing four pictures for the PRC 1944-45 program and acting as liaison executive on matters of censorship.

Distributes 'Undercover'

Paul Graetz has acquired the distribution rights for the U. S. and Latin America on "Undercover," feature produced in England by Michael Balcon. Featured in the cast are John Clements, Mary Morris, Tom Wall and Godfrey Tearle.

Grainger Returns From Sales Trip

James R. Grainger, President of Republic returned to the Home Office Wednesday from a four weeks' sales trip, during which he visited Chicago; Los Angeles, Dallas, New Orleans, Tampa, Jacksonville, and Atlanta.

All This and Bonds, Too

Managers who think they have a busy day, might consider the case of James B. Reid, of the Ken-Ten Theatre, Pruden, Tenn. Reid, having read the SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVIEW item recently about an exhibitor who started in show business 40 years ago sweeping out a theatre and is now using the experience to good advantage by sweeping out the theatre he owns in Pratt, Kansas (because of manpower shortage) went through the following routine one day last week:

Swept and cleaned theatre; made trip to school to sell War Bonds and stamps; operated projector for show; audited receipts; took film to bus station and picked up new film; worked up advertising for new show—and worked on plans for Free Movie Day Bond Show.

"The assistant doorman, cashier and myself are all that the war has left here for the operation of the Ken-Ten," says Reid.

55 Features on New Season's Schedule

Universal will maintain the current season's schedule of 55 features and 7 westerns for the 1944-45 season, William A. Scully, vice-president and general sales manager announced in New York this week following his return from the coast studios.

In the lineup of 55 features there will be two which will be sold separately, and the program will include 8 features to be filmed in Technicolor. Universal thus will more than double the number in the chromatic photography offered on the current schedule, on which three are in Technicolor.

Scully said that the production plan called for a wide diversification of subjects, with musicals, light comedy, spectacle and drama as well as horror pictures to be filmed. The arrangement he said will permit changes to provide for special story material that may develop or any changes in public tastes.

One of the productions set will star Deanna Durbin in a new type of role as the heroine of a musical western now titled "Caroline." This production as well as "The Climax," co-starring Susanna Foster and Boris Karloff, will be filmed in Technicolor.

Scully said that all the exhibitors to whom he has talked lately are of the opinion that theatre attendance will increase over recent figures with the brand of product now coming from Hollywood.

20th-Fox Executives Return From Coast

20th Century-Fox executives Spyros P. Skouras, president; Tom Connors, vice-president in charge of world-wide distribution; William J. Kupper, general sales manager; Hal Horne, director of advertising and publicity, have returned from Hollywood, where studio conferences took place with Joseph M. Schenck, executive head of production, and Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production.

Discussions centered around "The Purple Heart," which the studio is speeding through to release because of its topical interest, and other forthcoming productions.

Affiliated Adds 'Frisco House

Another San Francisco house was added to the Affiliated Theatres Circuit there, when the company took over operation of the Ellis Theatre on February 6. New policy of the neighborhood theatre is replacement of the stage show and one feature with a double bill of action pictures with 6 changes per week.

Regular Admissions for Para Specials

Releasing contracts for Paramount's "Lady in the Dark" and "The Story of Dr. Wassell" will not carry stipulations for advance price admissions, it was announced by Neil Agnew, general sales manager, at the company's sales meeting in New York last week-end.

Both pictures are in Technicolor and both will be given extensive exploitation campaigns.

In discussing "Lady in the Dark" at the meeting, Agnew told company representatives that the picture has an "excellent opportunity of being Paramount's biggest all-time grosser."

"The Story of Dr. Wassell" will probably be given its world premiere in Washington, D. C., early in May. It was produced by Cecil B. De Mille with Gary Cooper in the title role, and this week received the approval of both the War and Navy Departments. It is the first photoplay in which the actual voice of an American President is heard from the sound track. By White House permission De Mille was permitted to use a recording of President Roosevelt's Fireside Chat of April 28, 1942.

Four Features in New Paramount Block No. 3

Paramount's third block for the current season is comprised of four features, it was announced this week by Neil Agnew, general sales manager.

The pictures are: "Going My Way," starring Bing Crosby in the role of a young, athletic, music-loving priest; "The Hour Before the Dawn," melodrama with espionage background starring Franchot Tone and Veronica Lake; "You Can't Ration Love," comedy with Betty Rhodes, Johnnie Johnston, Marjorie Weaver and Johnnie "Scat" Davis; "The Navy Way," a Pine-Thomas production with the Naval training station at Great Lakes as a background and with Robert Lowery and Jean Parker among the principals.

Place Resigns From 20th-Fox

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation announced that effective February 1, Hermann G. Place had resigned as a director and as chairman of the executive committee of the corporation. Mr. Place had been a director of the corporation since 1933 and chairman of the executive committee since June, 1941. He will return to the banking business.
